NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Injunction

The District of Columbia Board of Education and Board of Commissioners were not entities and therefore were not subject to suit, although their respective members were properly sued for injunctive relief in respect to education of Negro deaf children in the District. Miller v. Board of Education of District of Columbia (D.C.D.C. 1952, 106 F. Supp. 988).

Obligations and duties

Board of Education of District of Columbia* (D.C.D.C. 1952, 106 F. Supp. 988).

Public or private institution

The Columbia Institution for the Deaf is a private institution and is not part of the public school system of the District of Columbia and it has the right to contract and to sue and be sued, notwithstanding Congressional appropriation of money for education of deaf-mutes taught at the institution. *Miller v. The Congressional intent in appropriating money for instruction of deaf persons in District of Columbia was that there should be separation of races in education of deaf children of District. Miller v. Board of Education of District of Columbia (D.C.D.C. 1952, 106 F. Supp. 988).

Separate but equal facilities

The separate but equal facilities doctrine requires that Negro deaf children in District of Columbia be educated in District of Columbia as are white deaf children in the District, rather than in Maryland. Miller v. Board of Education of District of Columbia (D.C.D.C. 1952, 106 F. Supp. 988).

REFERENCES IN TEXT

The Columbia Institution for the Deaf, referred to in this section, is now known as Gallaudet College. See § 31-1025.

CODIFICATION

Section is from a paragraph in § 1 of the Sundry Civil Expense Appropriation Act for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, act March 3, 1899, ch. 424, cited. As specified in that paragraph, one-half of the indefinite appropriation referred to should be paid out of the revenues of the District of Columbia and one-half thereof out of the Treasury of the United States. In this section, the provisions have been reworded to eliminate the 50-50 payment plan, and to provide for full payment out of the revenue of the District of Columbia, in conformity with later enactments and developments which apparently have superseded the 50-50 plan for payment of such expenses. The Act of June 29, 1922, ch. 249, 42 Stat. 668, formed the basis of various sections of the Code which provided the 60-40 plan, and also repealed all prior inconsistent Acts. The 1922 Act was repealed by Act May 16, 1938, ch. 223, § 8, 52 Stat. 375. Under former § 47-134 (see note thereunder) and now under § 47-2501 et seq., annual payments for expenses of the District of Columbia are made by the United States.

Racial segregation in the public schools of the District of Columbia is a denial to Negro children of the due process of law guaranteed by the Fifth Amendment. Bolling et al. v. Sharpe et al. (1954, 347 U.S. 497).

Racial discrimination in public education is unconstitutional, and all provisions of Federal, State, or local law requiring or permitting such discrimination must yield to this principle. Brown et al. v. Board of Education of Topeka et al. (1954, 347 U.S. 483, reargued, 349 U.S. 294).

§ 31-1111. Placement of children in schools.

Any white resident shall be privileged to place his or her child or ward at any one of the schools provided for the education of white children in the District of Columbia he or she may think proper to select, with the consent of the Board of Education; and any colored resident shall have the same rights with respect to colored schools. (R. S., D. C., § 282; June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. 107, ch. 180, § 6; June 20, 1906, 34 Stat. 316, ch. 3446 § 2.)

AMENDMENTS

1878—Act June 11, 1878, abolished the board of school trustees and transferred the powers and duties to the Commissioners of the District.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Racial and economic discrimination

Board of Education will not be permitted to transfer two elementary schools from "cluster" of one junior high school to "cluster" of another junior high for purposes of pupil placement since the transfer has apparent segregatory purpose which would knowingly permit white children to escape an increasingly black school. J. W. Hobson etc. v. C. F. Hansen etc. (1970, 320 F. Supp. 720).

Boundary plan for assignment of pupils to schools had constitutional weaknesses since there were socio-economic differences between two areas divided by boundary and since school for one area was new and much better equipped than school for other area; and since pairing plan would give every child in areas opportunity during some part of his elementary school life to attend newer school and since two schools were only a block apart on dividing line, school board which had approved boundary plan was directed to reconsider. J. W. Hobson etc. v. C. F. Hansen etc. (1970, 320 F. Supp. 409).

Since the school board made its districting decision on basis of projected enrollment figures which were proved to be significantly inaccurate and which perhaps obscured important constitutional considerations, reconsideration of such decision was necessary upon such ground alone. Id.

In this action alleging racial and economic discrimination and other wrong doings in the operation of the public school system, the court ordered: 1. An injunction against racial and economic discrimination. 2. Abolition of the track system. 3. Abolition of the optional zones. 4. Transportation of voluntary children in overcrowded schools to underpopulated schools. 5. The defendants to file for court approval of a plan for pupil assignment eliminating racial and economic discrimination in the public school system. 6. Substantial integration of the faculty of each school beginning with the new school year. 7. The defendants to file for court approval, a teacher assignment plan fully integrating the faculty of each school. J. W. Hobson etc. v. C. F. Hansen etc. (1967, 269 F. Supp. 401; remanded 132 U.S. App. D.C. 372, 408 F. 2d 175).

§ 31-1112. Proportionate amount of school moneys to be set apart for colored schools.

It shall be the duty of the proper authorities of the District to set apart each year from the whole fund received from all sources by such authorities applicable to purposes of public education in the District of Columbia, such a proportionate part of all moneys received or expended for school or educational purposes, including the cost of sites, buildings, improvements, furniture and books, and all other expenditures on account of schools, as the colored children between the ages of 6 and 17 years bear to the whole number of children, white and colored, between the same ages, for the purpose of establishing and sustaining public schools for the education of colored children; and such proportion shall be ascertained by the last reported census of the population made prior to such apportionment, and shall be regulated at all times thereby. (R. S., D. C., § 306; June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. 107, ch. 180, § 6; June 20, 1906, 34 Stat. 316, ch. 3446, § 2.)

Injunction

Bulluck et al. v. W. Washington, Commissioner, et al.* (1971, 452 F. 2d 1385, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 53.)

- 31-1303. Termination of Agency.

§ 31-1301. Educational Agency for Surplus Property established—Functions and duties.

There is hereby established in the municipal government of the District of Columbia the District of Columbia Educational Agency for Surplus Property, hereinafter referred to as the "Agency", which shall under the direction of the Commissioner of the District of Columbia carry out in the District of Columbia the State functions contemplated by section 484 (j) and (k) of title 40, U.S. Code, and such other duties relating to the distribution of surplus property, or other functions, as the Commissioner may in his discretion assign to such Agency, and for the purposes of section 484(j), the District of Columbia shall be deemed to be a State. The Commissioner is authorized to appoint a director for such Agency and such other personnel as may be necessary with compensation to be fixed in accordance with chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]. The Commissioner is also authorized to appoint an advisory board for such Agency to be composed of not more than ten members: Provided, That the membership of such board shall include representatives of the tax-supported, tax-exempt, and nonprofit educational institutions in the District of Columbia: And provided further, That the members of such advisory board shall serve without compensation and at the pleasure of the Commissioner. Such advisory board may submit reports and recommendations to the Commissioner as well as to the Agency. (Aug. 16, 1950, 64 Stat. 450, ch. 720, § 1.)

CODIFICATION

The reference in this section to "chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]" was substituted for "the Classification Act of 1923, as amended", on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, set out in note under § 1-251. Although the reference in this section was to the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, at time of enactment of this section on August 16, 1950, that act (Mar. 4, 1923, 42 Stat. 1488 ch. 265, as amended) had been repealed and superseded by the Classification Act of 1949 (Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 954, ch. 782), and § 1106(a) of the latter act (63 Stat. 972) had provided that references in other laws to the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, should be deemed to refer to the Classification Act of 1949. The Classification Act of 1949, as amended, has since been repealed by act Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a) (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law), and is now covered by the provisions of title 5, U.S.C., cited.

(Oct. 8, 1951, 65 Stat. 368, ch. 448, title I, § 3; Oct. 25, 1951, 65 Stat. 637, ch. 560, § 3; Aug. 5, 1955, 69 Stat. 536, ch. 575, § 1.)

<sup>1</sup> The original act referred to "section 4 of this Act." Section 4 of the Act was classified to § 31-659. Reference was probably intended to be to section 5 of the Act, which is set out as § 31-1404.

CODIFICATION

The reference in this section to "subchapter III of chapter 83 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the retirement of government employees]" was substituted for "the Civil Service Retirement Act, approved May 29, 1930, as amended", on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, set out in note under § 1-251. The Civil Service Retirement Act, approved May 29, 1930 (46 Stat. 468, ch. 349), as generally amended by act July 31, 1956, 70 Stat. 743, ch. 804, title IV, § 401 (which redesignated the 1930 act as the "Civil Service Retirement Act"), and as amended by other acts, was repealed by act Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a) (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law), and is now covered by the provisions of title 5, U.S.C., cited.

For the same reasons, the reference to "sections 8332 and 8333 of title 5, U.S. Code" was substituted for "section 5 of such act [meaning the said act of May 29, 1930]", and the references to "section 8334 of title 5, U.S. Code" were substituted for the references to "section 9 of such Act". Sections 5 and 9 of the said act of May 29, 1930, were renumbered "3" and "4", respectively, by act July 31, 1956, mentioned above, and are now covered by §§ 8332, 8333 and 8334 of title 5, U.S.C.

REPEAL AND REVIVAL

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 31-1511, 31-1533.

§ 31-1522. Types of positions to which chapter applies—Authority of Board to determine which positions meet established criteria and other matters—Teacher-aide positions—Initial assignment of school principal positions and periodic evaluation of duties and responsibilities.

(a) This chapter applies to all positions under the Board which require at least a bachelor's degree in an appropriate field, and in addition—

(1) involve classroom or other instruction or the supervision and direction of classroom and other instructional activities; or

(2) involve activities, other than teaching, which require the incumbents to possess academic credits in educational theory and practice at least equivalent to those required of a teacher with a bachelor's degree; or

(3) involve activities which are so directly related to the educational process that the positions have characteristics of the educational field to a marked degree, even though academic credits in educational theory and practice are not required; or

(4) involve the management or direction of organizational units or school services which, though not directly involved in the educational process, require the incumbent to deal so extensively with employees who are directly involved in the educational process in problems that require an understanding of the aims, methods and points of view of educators and educational philosophy, that it becomes impractical, insofar as salary treatment is concerned, to attempt to distinguish between them and positions covered under paragraphs (1), (2), or (3) of this subsection. This paragraph (4) shall apply only to such positions as are necessary to coordinate such non-educational units or services with the educational activities of the school system.

(b) The Board, with the concurrence of the District of Columbia Council, is authorized to determine which positions meet the criteria specified in subsection (a) of this section and to establish or transfer positions covered under other wage or salary fixing acts or authorities to the coverage of this chapter. Similarly, the Board, with the concurrence of the said Council, is authorized to determine that positions covered under this chapter do not meet the criteria specified in subsection (a) of this section and to remove any such position from the coverage of this chapter: Provided, That any employee occupying any position covered by this chapter on July 1, 1955, but which is later determined not to meet the criteria specified in subsection (a) of this section, shall continue to be entitled to the salary and other benefits of this chapter as long as he remains in such position. The Board, subject to the concurrence of the said Council, is authorized to specify for any position to be brought under this chapter, the class and group as established in this chapter which shall apply to such position: Provided, That such class shall be selected on the basis of the difficulty, responsibility, and qualification requirements of such position. Positions brought under this chapter in accordance with this section shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter to the same degree and in all respects as if such positions were specifically named in this chapter. The Board is authorized to conduct such studies as are required to apply the criteria specified in subsection (a) of this section. The Board of Education of the District of Columbia, with the cooperation of the Council, is authorized to make a study of the classification of the positions covered under this chapter for the purpose of determining what classification adjustments may be necessary or desirable to provide a classification alignment based on the difficulty, responsibility, and qualification requirements of the positions and to take such appropriate corrective action as is concurred in by the Council: Provided, That any such adjustments shall be made within the classes established by this chapter: Provided further, That no adjustment resulting from this study shall decrease the existing rate of compensation of any present employee, but when a position becomes vacant any subsequent appointee to such position shall be compensated in accordance with the rate of pay determined to be applicable to such position. If a position is placed in a lower salary class and the present salary of the incumbent falls between two step rates for the newly assigned class he shall receive the higher of such rates. If a position is placed in a higher salary class, placement for salary purposes shall be made in accordance with section 31-1536.

(d) The initial assignment of each position of school principal in the public school system of the District of Columbia to one of the four principal levels within salary class 6 of the salary schedule in section 31-1501 shall be made in accordance with the following provisions:

(1) Within 60 days following the date of enactment of this subsection [November 13, 1966], the Board of Education, with the cooperation of the Commissioner of the District of Columbia, shall assign each position of school principal to one of the four principal levels within salary class 6 of the salary schedule in section 31-1501. Such assignment shall be made on the basis of an evaluation by the Board of Education, with the cooperation of the Commissioner of the District of Columbia, of the duties and responsibilities of each position of school principal in the school administered by the person holding such position. Such evaluation shall be based on (A) such workload factors as (i) the academic program, (ii) the number of teachers, nonteaching personnel, and other professional and nonprofessional personnel supervised, (iii) school enrollment, (iv) cocurricular activities, (v) extracurricular activities, and (vi) community activities; and (B) such other factors as the Board of Education deems appropriate. The initial assignment of a position of school principal to a principal level within salary class 6 shall be effective on July 1, 1966.

(2) In the case of a person holding the position of school principal on July 1, 1966, the initial assignment of the position held by such person to one of the four principal levels within salary class 6 shall not (A) affect the group and service step occupied by such person, or (B) for the period during which such person holds such position, reduce his rate of compensation below the rate of compensation to which he was entitled immediately prior to July 1, 1966.

(3) During the period beginning on July 1, 1966, and ending on the date of such initial assignment, each person holding the position of school principal on July 1, 1966, shall have his compensation fixed in accordance with the rate of compensation prescribed for that service step, corresponding to his creditable years of service, of principal level I in that group within salary class 6 which corresponds to his academic qualifications. Each such person shall be paid for such period the difference, if any, between the amount of compensation he received during such period and the amount of compensation that he would have been paid during such period if his compensation had been fixed in accordance with the rate of compensation prescribed for the principal level in salary class 6 to which his position was assigned.

(e) On July 1, 1967, and on July 1 of each year thereafter, the Board of Education, with the cooperation of the Commissioner of the District of Columbia, shall evaluate the duties and responsibilities of each position of school principal on the basis of the factors prescribed in paragraph (1) of subsection (d) of this section to determine whether the principal level within salary class 6 to which such position is assigned is commensurate to the duties and responsibilities of such position. The Board of Education may assign a position of school principal to a different principal level within salary class 6 only if it determines on the basis of three consecutive annual evaluations that such assignment should be made. A person holding a position of school principal which the Board of Education has assigned to a different principal level shall not be placed in a lower service step in the new principal level than the service step he occupied immediately prior to such assignment.

(f) Whenever a teacher or school officer is changed to a lower salary class or to a lower level in the same salary class as in the case of school principals in the public school system, the Superintendent of Schools is authorized to fix the rate of compensation at a rate provided for in the salary class or level to which the employee is changed which does not exceed his existing rate of compensation, except that if his existing rate falls between two service steps provided in such lower salary class or level, he shall receive the higher of such rates; if he is receiving a rate of basic compensation in excess of the maximum rate provided in such lower salary class or level in which he is to be placed, he will retain his existing rate of compensation and receive one-half of any future increases granted his new salary class or level until such time as his rate of basic compensation is no longer in excess of the maximum rate provided in such lower salary class or level. This subsection shall not apply if such reduction to a lower salary class or level is (1) for personal cause, (2) at the request of such teacher or school officer, (3) as a condition of a previous temporary promotion to a higher grade, or (4) because of a reduction in force brought about by lack of funds or curtailment of work. ### SUBCHAPTER IV.—METHOD OF ADVANCEMENT AND PROMOTION OF EMPLOYEES

§ 31-1531. Method of assignment to service steps—Promotion of employees.

(a) (1) On July 1 of each year, following the effective date of the District of Columbia Teachers' Salary Act Amendments of 1970, each permanent employee in salary class 15 who is on service step 13 and has completed 15 years of creditable service shall be assigned to longevity step Y. Each permanent employee in salary class 15 who is in longevity step X, on such effective date, shall be assigned to longevity step Y. In determining years of creditable service in salary classes 3 through 15 for placement on service steps, credit shall be given for previous service in accordance with the provisions of this chapter governing the placement of employees who are newly appointed, reappointed, or reassigned or who are brought under this chapter in accordance with the provisions of this section.

(2) Any teacher who was promoted from the salary class originally designated Salary Class 18 under this chapter (redesignated as Salary Class 15 by amendments effective on January 1, 1963 [act Oct. 24, 1962, Pub. L. 87-881]), if such promotion occurred after June 30, 1958, and prior to January 1, 1963, and who on the effective date of this paragraph occupies the same position to which he was promoted during such period shall be assigned to the numerical service step in his class, or class and group to which he would have been assigned had he been promoted on or after January 1, 1963.

(b) As soon as such reevaluation is completed for all employees involved, each such employee shall be assigned to the numerical service step for his salary class, or class and group, under this chapter next above the step corresponding to the number of his years of creditable service rendered prior to July 1, 1958, as determined by such re-evaluation, but no employee shall receive a salary above the top step for his class, or class and group, or below the step already occupied by him. If such re-evaluation places the employee on a higher numerical service step than the one already occupied by him he shall receive the full annual salary at the higher step for the year beginning July 1, 1958. On July 1 of each year, following the effective date of the District of Columbia Teachers' Salary Act Amendments of 1970, each permanent employee who has not reached the highest service step for his group, or, if his salary class has no group, the highest service step for such salary class, shall advance one such service step until he reaches the highest service step for such group or salary class. However, the Board of Education, on the written recommendation of the Superintendent of Schools, is authorized to deny any such salary advancement following any school year in which the employee fails to receive a performance rating of "satisfactory" from his superior officer.

(c) The Superintendent of Schools, salary class 1, shall be assigned as of the date of his appointment as Superintendent to the salary step provided for that position in section 31-1501.

(d) Any permanent employee serving in a position which is not covered by this chapter but which may later be established under section 31-1522 shall be given service credit for the purpose of salary placement under this chapter equivalent to the number of years of satisfactory service rendered within the school system in the position then occupied by the employee, and shall be assigned to the numerical service step on the schedule for his class, or class and group, under this chapter next above the numerical service step corresponding to his years of creditable service in such position. If the employee has already attained a service step in such position which is numerically as high or higher than the top service step provided for his salary class, or class and group, under this chapter, he shall be assigned to the highest service step provided for his class, or class and group, under this chapter. (Aug. 5, 1955, 69 Stat. 526, ch. 569, title IV, § 6; Aug. 28, 1958, 72 Stat. 1009, Pub. L. 85-838, § 1; Oct. 24, 1962, 76 Stat. 1233, Pub. L.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 31-1533.

§ 31-1532. Assignment of new employees to service steps—Evaluation of past experience—Adjustment of salary steps of existing employees—Absence because of military or naval service.

(a)(1) Each employee who is newly appointed or reappointed to any position in salary classes 3 to 15, inclusive, of the salary schedule in section 31-1501 shall be assigned to the service step numbered next above the number of years of service with which he is credited for the purpose of salary placement. The Board, on the written recommendation of the Superintendent of Schools, is authorized to evaluate the previous experience of each such employee to determine the number of years with which he may be so credited. Employees newly appointed, reappointed, or reassigned to any position in salary class 15 shall receive one year of such placement credit for each year of satisfactory service, not exceeding nine years, in the District of Columbia in salary class 15, or in any type of position covered in salary class 15 regardless of school level, in an educational system or recognized standing outside the District of Columbia public schools, as determined by the Board. Employees newly appointed, reappointed, or reassigned to any position in salary classes 3 to 14, inclusive, shall receive no placement credit for educational service or trade experience outside the District of Columbia public schools. In the case of a person who is newly appointed to any position in salary class 3, 4, 5, or 6, who is determined by the Board of Education to possess unique or unusually high qualifications of special need to the school system, and whose annual salary immediately prior to such appointment was higher than the rate of compensation prescribed for service step 1 of his salary class, such person may, in the discretion of the Board of Education, have his compensation fixed at the rate of compensation prescribed for service step 2 or 3 of his salary class. Employees reappointed or reassigned to positions in salary classes 3 to 14, inclusive, shall receive one year of placement credit for each year of satisfactory service in the same salary class or in a position of equivalent or higher rank within the District of Columbia public schools, except that no such employee shall receive more than five years of placement credit for previous service rendered as a temporary employee within such system. Persons appointed to the position of shop teacher in the vocational education program shall receive one year of placement credit for each year of approved experience in the trades, as determined by the Board but not in excess of nine years for any combination of trade experience and educational service outside the school system.

(2) Salary placement credit for service rendered either inside or outside the public school system of the District of Columbia shall be effective on the date of appointment or on the first day of the twelfth month prior to the date of approval of such placement credit by the Board, whichever is later.

(3) Each probationary or permanent employee in salary class 15 who is in the employ of the Board of Education on the effective date of this paragraph [July 1, 1966] shall move to the numerical service step or longevity step, as the case may be, commensurate with the additional creditable service allowed such employee under the amendments made by the District of Columbia Teachers' Salary Act Amendments of 1966.

(b) In crediting previous experience of any teacher who has been absent from his duties because of naval or military service in the armed forces of the United States or its allies, the Board is hereby authorized to include such naval or military service as the equivalent of approved experience.

(c) No provision in this chapter shall be interpreted as preventing any teacher, school officer, or other employee of the Board who has been granted leave to enter the armed forces of the United States or its allies from receiving any annual service increment or increments to which he would have been entitled had he remained continuously in the service of the public schools.

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) (1) of this section, any educational employee who was employed by the Board of Education at the District of Columbia Teachers' College and who was transferred to the Board of Higher Education pursuant to the authority conferred by section 31-1603(a) (12), and who wishes to be reappointed to a position under the Board of Education shall receive salary placement credit for the intervening years of service at the District of Columbia Teachers College as if he had had continuous service with the Board of Education if—

(1) there is no break in service between the termination of employment by the Board of Higher Education and the reappointment by the Board of Education; and

(2) such service is credited to the District of Columbia Teachers' Retirement and Annuity Fund, either by deductions made for such retirement system or by the purchase of credit for such service for deposit in such fund.

AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR GRANTS

SEC. 2. There are authorized to be appropriated for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1969, and for each of the next three fiscal years, such sums as may be necessary, not to exceed in the aggregate $40,052,000, to enable the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare (hereafter in this Act referred to as the "Secretary"), to make grants to assist in meeting the cost of projects for the modernization of public or nonprofit private hospitals and in meeting the cost of projects for the construction or modernization of public health centers, long-term care facilities, including extended care facilities, diagnostic or treatment centers, rehabilitation facilities, facilities for the mentally retarded, and community mental health centers in the District of Columbia. Sums so appropriated shall remain available until expended.

LOANS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OR MODERNIZATION OF HOSPITALS AND OTHER HEALTH FACILITIES

SEC. 3. (a) The Secretary may make loans to assist in meeting the cost of projects for the construction or modernization of any hospital or other facility referred to in section 2 of this Act. The Secretary may make a loan under this section only if he determines that the applicant for the loan is unable to obtain the amount of such loan for the project from other public or private sources at reasonable rates of interest. The amount of any loan made under this section may not exceed 50 per centum of the cost of the project for which the loan is sought.

(b) Any such loan may be made only on the basis of an application submitted to the Secretary in such form and containing such information and assurances as he may prescribe.

(c) Each such loan shall bear interest at the rate of 2½ per centum per annum on the unpaid balance thereof and shall be repaid over a period determined by the Secretary to be appropriate, but not exceeding 50 years.

(d) There is authorized to be appropriated $40,575,000 to carry out the provisions of this section.

APPROVAL OF APPLICATIONS

(2) has been denied under a Medical Facilities Act because insufficient funds are available from the allotments of the District of Columbia under the applicable Medical Facilities Act to permit approval of the application.

In determining whether to approve an application for a grant under Medical Facilities Act for any project in the District of Columbia, the availability of additional funds for such project under this Act shall be taken into consideration. Approval of such application may be made contingent upon the approval of an application or applications with respect to such project under this Act and upon such additional funds being made so available.

(b) The Secretary shall establish criteria for determining the order in which to approve, under this Act, applications for grants and loans with respect to projects. Such criteria with respect to construction projects for the same type of facility (or for modernization projects) shall be the criteria developed by the State Agency of the District of Columbia pursuant to the State plan approved under the applicable Medical Facilities Act.

(c) In the case of any project with respect to which an application for a grant or loan is filed under this Act and with respect to which an application for a grant has been denied under a Medical Facilities Act, such application under this Act may be approved only if there is compliance with the same terms and conditions (including determination, in accordance with the applicable State plan, that the project is needed) as are applicable to applications for grants under the Medical Facilities Act, other than the availability of sufficient funds in the appropriate allotment of the District of Columbia.

(d) An application for a grant or loan under this Act with respect to any project may not be approved unless an opportunity to review the application has been afforded to a body, found by the Secretary to be a responsible metropolitan areawide planning body, and any recommendations of such body that were timely made have been considered by the appropriate State agency of the District of Columbia and have been submitted to the Secretary in connection with the application.

(b) The total of the payments of grants made under this Act with respect to any project, together with any payments made with respect thereto under a Medical Facilities Act, may not exceed—

(1) in the case of a construction project for a long-term care facility, including extended care facilities, a diagnostic or treatment center, or a rehabilitation facility, 66⅔ per centum of the cost of such project; and

(2) in the case of any other project (including a modernization project), 50 per centum of the cost of such project.

RECOVERY OF PAYMENTS

SEC. 6. (a) Payments of grants under this Act shall be subject to recovery or recapture under the same conditions and to the same extent as is provided under the applicable Medical Facilities Act with respect to payments made thereunder.

(b) If, at any time before a loan made under this Act has been repaid in full, an event occurs for which (if a grant had been made under a Medical Facilities Act) recovery by the United States would be authorized, the unpaid balance of the loan shall become immediately due and payable by the applicant, and any transferee of the facility for which such loan was made shall be liable to the United States for such repayment.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

District not a voluntary creditor

District of Columbia was entitled to reimbursement for expenses of treatment of incompetent veteran from committee of the veteran from date of her appointment until the veteran was transferred to the rolls of the Veterans Administration which now bears the costs involved, since the District was not a voluntary "creditor" within the statute exempting from claims of "creditors" payments of benefits due or to become due under any law administered by the Veterans Administration. T. Savoid, Committee etc. v. District of Columbia (1961, 288 F. 2d 851, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

§ 32-405. Admission of indigent insane of District of Columbia—"Indigent insane person" defined.

All indigent insane persons residing in the District of Columbia at the time they became insane shall be entitled to the benefits of Saint Elizabeths Hospital. An indigent insane person within the meaning of this section shall be one who is insane and unable to support himself and family, or himself, if he has no family, under the visitation of insanity. (R. S., § 4844; Mar. 3, 1877, 19 Stat. 347, ch. 105; July 1, 1916, 39 Stat. 309, ch. 209, § 1.)

In general

The estate of a patient committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital while a resident of the District of Columbia is liable to the District for his maintenance, and statute of limitations does not run against the District in its claim for such maintenance. Hart v. Commissioners of District of Columbia (1946, 155 F. 2d 877, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 154).

Where court committing patient to St. Elizabeths Hospital was of view that patient's estate should be used for support of his family in preference to his own support, when patient's wife and child died and other children became of age or married, that primary obligation ceased and patient's estate thereupon became available for his own maintenance. Id.

§ 32-406. Private patients—Rate of board—Friends to comply with regulations.

Whenever there are vacancies, private patients from the District may be received at a rate of board to be determined by the visitors, to be in no case less than the actual cost of their support, and may remain until restored to reason.

The friends of the patient shall comply with the regulations of the hospital in respect to payment of board and in all other respects. (R. S., §§ 4853, 4854.)

This section is a composite of the credits cited in the history line.

The matter is now covered by section 21-1104.

Section 32-610, § 9 of the same act, provided for the appointments of two physicians to examine the feeble-minded person, one of whom to be skilled in the diagnosis and treatment of mental diseases. The physicians were authorized to go to the patient wherever he was located and they were required to file a certificate of their findings. The matter is now covered by § 21-1105.

Section 32-611, § 10 of the same act, authorized the issuance of a warrant to take the feeble-minded person into custody, where it was in the interest of the patient or the public. Pending a hearing it authorized his detention or the placing him under temporary guardianship. He was, however, not to be confined with criminals. The matter is now covered by section 21-1106.

Section 32-612, § 11 of the same act, authorized the continuance of the hearing from time to time, examination into the financial condition of the patient and his relatives, the taking of proof as to his mental condition and the determination thereof. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

Baby Broker Act is not unconstitutional as vague and indefinite. A. Dobkin v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 657).

Evidence, sufficiency of Evidence sustained conviction for violation of Baby Broker Act. A. Dobkin v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 657).

Purpose

The purpose of this chapter is to regulate procedure for placing children for adoption to protect children and parents from corrupt, irresponsible, careless, or untrained intermediaries. Goodman v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 50 A. 2d 812).

§ 32-782. Child-placing agency—License.

Any person, firm, corporation, association, or public agency that receives or accepts a child under sixteen years of age and places or offers to place such child for temporary or permanent care in a family home other than that of a relative within the third degree shall be deemed to be maintaining a child-placing agency. No child-placing agency shall be maintained in the District of Columbia without a license issued by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia: Provided, That notwithstanding any provisions of section 32-784 such a license shall be issued forthwith to any corporation or association chartered by special Act of Congress and having under its charter the purposes or powers of a child-placing agency as herein defined. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS

Attorneys

Where defendant was requested by adopting mother to handle adoption, defendant arranged with doctor for examination of child, defendant presented natural mother with paper identified as consent to adoption and gave natural mother $50 obtained from adopting mother, stating that such was a loan, and defendant did not possess a license which authorized him to place or arrange or assist in placing or arranging for placement of any child for adoption, defendant was guilty of violation of Baby Broker Act. Anderson v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 154 A. 2d 717).

A lawyer is within his rights under this chapter so long as he gives only legal advice, appears in court in adoption proceedings representing either relinquishing or adopting parents, and refrains from serving as an intermediary, go-between, or placing agent and leaves or refers placement of children and arrangements for their placement to agencies duly licensed for that purpose. Goodman v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 50 A. 2d 812).

A lawyer, as such in placing children for adoption, is not exempt from this chapter notwithstanding he acts without compensation and with humane motives, and, to place babies for adoption, he must have a license as a child-placing agency. Id.

(2) any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the remainder of such term; and

The rules and regulations prescribing standards of placement, care, and services to be required of child-placing agencies shall be reviewed by the committee annually and, subject to the approval of the Council, may be amended when deemed necessary." #### AMENDMENT

1954—Act June 8, 1954, amended section generally, and, among other changes, increased the representatives from the Department of Public Welfare from one to two, provided for two representatives from each of the charitable organizations of the District licensed to place children in homes, for one representative from both the legal and medical professions, increased terms for the members of the committee from one to three years, staggered such terms, and in the last sentence, following the words "rules and regulations" and preceding "shall be reviewed" inserted "prescribing standards of placement, care, and services to be required of child-placing agencies".

§ 32-786. Agency vested with parental rights—Consent to adoption—Adoption petition—Parents' relinquishment of rights—Recordation.

(a) Whenever a licensed child-placing agency shall have been given the permanent care and guardianship of any child and the rights of the parent or parents of such child shall have been terminated by order of a court of competent jurisdiction or by a legally executed relinquishment of parental rights, the agency is vested with parental rights and may consent to the adoption of the child pursuant to the statutes regulating adoption procedure. Minority of a natural parent shall not be a bar to such parent's relinquishment to a licensed agency. Any relinquishment of parental rights other than by court order as provided in this subsection may be revoked upon the written consent of all the parties to said relinquishment and any such relinquishment may be transferred from one licensed child-placing agency to another licensed child-placing agency, in which case the second agency shall assume all the rights and duties of the first agency. Such transfer or relinquishment shall be filed in the Family Division of the Superior Court for the District of Columbia, as hereinafter provided in this section. Except in proceedings for adoption, no parent may voluntarily assign or otherwise transfer to another his rights and duties with respect to the permanent care and control of a child under sixteen years of age unless such relinquishment of parental rights is made to a licensed child-placing agency. Such relinquishment of parental rights shall be a statement in writing signed by the person relinquishing such parental rights who shall subscribe his name thereto and acknowledge the same before a representative of the licensed child-placing agency in the presence of at least one witness. Said relinquishment of parental rights shall be recorded and filed in a properly sealed file in the Family Division of the Superior Court for the District of Columbia. (July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 401, title IV, 84 Stat. 657.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 901(b) (2) of Act July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358 provided in part:

"Title IV [Secs. 32-1101 to 32-1106] shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act." [July 29, 1970]

§ 32-1102. Authority to enter into compact.

(a) The Commissioner of the District of Columbia (hereafter in this title referred to as the "Commissioner") is authorized to enter into and execute on behalf of the District of Columbia a compact with any State or States legally joining therein in the form substantially as follows [Subsection (b) follows Article XV of Compact]:

"THE INTERSTATE COMPACT ON JUVENILES

"The contracting states solemnly agree:

"ARTICLE I—Findings and Purposes

"That juveniles who are not under proper supervision and control, or who have absconded, escaped or run away, are likely to endanger their own health, morals and welfare, and the health, morals and welfare of others. The cooperation of the states party to this compact is therefore necessary to provide for the welfare and protection of juveniles and of the public with respect to (1) cooperative supervision of delinquent juveniles on probation or parole; (2) the return, from one state to another, of delinquent juveniles who have escaped or absconded; (3) the return, from one state to another, of non-delinquent juveniles who have run away from home; and (4) additional measures for the protection of juveniles and of the public, which any two or more of the party states may find desirable to undertake cooperatively. In carrying out the provisions of this compact the party states shall be guided by the non-criminal, reformatory and protective policies which guide their laws concerning delinquent, neglected or dependent juveniles generally. It shall be the policy of the states party to this compact to cooperate and observe their respective responsibilities for the prompt return and acceptance of juveniles and delinquent juveniles who become subject to the provisions of this compact. The provisions of this compact shall be reasonably and liberally construed to accomplish the foregoing purposes.

"ARTICLE II—Existing Rights and Remedies

"That all remedies and procedures provided by this compact shall be in addition to and not in substitution for other rights, remedies and procedures, and shall not be in derogation of parental rights and responsibilities.

"ARTICLE III—Definitions

"That, for the purposes of this compact, 'delinquent juvenile' means any juvenile who has been adjudged delinquent and who, at the time the provisions of this compact are invoked, is still subject to the jurisdiction of the court that has made such adjudication or to the jurisdiction or supervision of any agency or institution pursuant to an order of such court; 'probation or parole' means any kind of conditional release of juveniles authorized under the laws of the states party hereto; 'court' means any court having jurisdiction over delinquent, neglected or dependent children; 'state' means any state, territory or possessions of the United States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico; and 'residence' or any variant thereof means a place at which a home or regular place of abode is maintained.

"ARTICLE IV—Return of Runaways

"(a) That the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to legal custody of a juvenile who has not been adjudged delinquent but who has run away without the consent of such parent, guardian, person or agency may petition the appropriate court in the demanding state for the issuance of a requisition for his return. The petition shall state the name and age of the juvenile, the name of the petitioner and the basis of entitlement to the juvenile's custody, the circumstances of his running away, his location if known at the time application is made, and such other facts as may tend to show that the juvenile who has run away is endangering his own welfare or the welfare of others and is not an emancipated minor. The petition shall be verified by affidavit, shall be executed in duplicate, and shall be accompanied by two certified copies of the document or documents on which the petitioner's entitlement to the juvenile's custody is based, such as birth certificates, letters of guardianship, or custody decrees. Such further affidavits and other documents as may be deemed proper may be submitted with such petition. The judge of the court to which this application is made may hold a hearing thereon to determine whether for the purposes of this compact the petitioner is entitled to the legal custody of the juvenile, whether or not it appears that the juvenile has in fact run away without consent, whether or not he is an emancipated minor, and whether or not it is in the best interest of the juvenile to compel his return to the state. If the judge determines, either with or without a hearing, that<sup>1</sup> the juvenile should be returned, he shall present the appropriate court or to the executive authority of the state where the juvenile is alleged to be located a written requisition for the return of such juvenile. Such requisition shall set forth the name and age of the juvenile, the determination of the court that the juvenile has run away without the consent of a parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to his legal custody, and that it is in the best interest and for the protection of such juvenile that he be returned. In the event that a proceeding for the adjudication of the juvenile as a delinquent, neglected or dependent juvenile is pending in the court at the time when such juvenile runs away, the court may issue a requisition for the return of such juvenile upon its own motion, regardless of the consent of the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to legal custody, reciting therein the nature and circumstances of the pending proceeding. The requisition shall in every case be executed in duplicate and shall be signed by the judge. One copy of the requisition shall be filed with the compact administrator of the demanding state, there to remain on file subject to the provisions of law governing records of such court. Upon the receipt of a requisition demanding the return of a juvenile who has run away, the court or the executive authority to whom the requisition is addressed shall issue an order to any peace officer or other appropriate person directing him to take into custody and detain such juvenile. Such detention order must substantially recite the facts necessary to the validity of its issuance hereunder. No juvenile detained upon such order shall be delivered over to the officer whom the court demanding him shall have appointed to receive him, unless he shall first be taken forthwith before a judge of a court in the state, who shall inform him of the demand made for his return and who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for him. If the judge of such court shall find that the requisition is in order, he shall deliver such juvenile over to the officer whom the court demanding him shall have appointed to receive him. The judge, however, may fix a reasonable time to be allowed for the purpose of testing the legality of the proceeding.

"Upon reasonable information that a person is a juvenile who has run away from another state party to this compact without the consent of a parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to his legal custody, such juvenile may be taken into custody without a requisition and brought forthwith before a judge of the appropriate court who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for such juvenile and who shall determine after a hearing whether sufficient cause exists to hold the person, subject to the order of the court, for his own protection and welfare, for such a time not exceeding 90 days as will enable his return to another state party to this compact pursuant to a requisition for his return from a court of that state. If, at the time when a state seeks the return of a juvenile who has run away, there is pending in the state wherein he is found any criminal charge, or any proceeding to have him adjudicated a delinquent juvenile for an act committed in such State, or if he is suspected of having committed within such state a criminal offense or an act of juvenile delinquency, he shall not be returned without the consent of such state until discharged from prosecution or other form of proceeding, imprisonment, detention or supervision for such offense or juvenile delinquency. The duly accredited officers of any state party to this compact, upon the establishment of their authority and the identity of the juvenile being returned, shall be permitted to transport such juvenile through any and all states party to this compact, without interference. Upon his return to the state from which he ran away, the juvenile shall be subject to such further proceedings as may be appropriate under the laws of that state.

"(b) That the state to which a juvenile is returned under this Article shall be responsible for payment of the transportation costs of such return.

"(c) That 'juvenile' as used in this Article means any person who is a minor under the law of the state of residence of the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to the legal custody of such minor.

"ARTICLE V—Return of Escapees and Absconders

"(a) That the appropriate person or authority from whose probation or parole supervision a delinquent juvenile has absconded or from whose institutional custody he has escaped shall present to the appropriate court or to the executive authority of the state where the delinquent juvenile is alleged to be located a written requisition for the return of such delinquent juvenile. Such requisition shall state the name and age of the delinquent juvenile, the particulars of his adjudication as a delinquent juvenile, the circumstances of the breach of the terms of his probation or parole or of his escape from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision, and the location of such delinquent juvenile, if known, at the time the requisition is made. The requisition shall be verified by affidavit, shall be executed in duplicate, and shall be accompanied by two certified copies of the judgment, formal adjudication, or order of commitment which subjects such delinquent juvenile to probation or parole or to the legal custody of the institution or agency concerned. Such further affidavits and other documents as may be deemed proper may be submitted with such requisition. One copy of the requisition shall be filed with the compact administrator of the demanding state, there to remain on file subject to the provisions of law governing records of the appropriate court. Upon the receipt of a requisition demanding the return of a delinquent juvenile who has absconded or escaped, the court or the executive authority to whom the requisition is addressed shall issue an order to any peace officer or other appropriate person directing him to take into custody and detain such delinquent juvenile. Such detention order must substantially recite the facts necessary to the validity of its issuance hereunder. No delinquent juvenile detained upon such order shall be delivered over to the officer whom the appropriate person or authority demanding him shall have appointed to receive him, unless he shall first be taken forthwith before a judge of an appropriate court in the state, who shall inform him of the demand made for his return and who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for him. If the judge of such court shall find that the requisition is in order, he shall deliver such delinquent juvenile over to the officer whom the appropriate person or authority demanding him shall have appointed to receive him. The judge, however, may fix a reasonable time to be allowed for the purpose of testing the legality of the proceeding.

"Upon reasonable information that a person is a delinquent juvenile who has absconded while on probation or parole, or escaped from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision in any state party to this compact, such person may be taken into custody in any other state party to this compact without a requisition. But in such event, he must be taken forthwith before a judge of the appropriate court, who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for such person and who shall determine, after a hearing, whether sufficient cause exists to hold the person subject to the order of the court for such a time, not exceeding 90 days, as will enable his detention under a detention order issued on a requisition pursuant to this Article. If, at the time when a state seeks the return of a delinquent juvenile who has either absconded while on probation or parole or escaped from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision, there is pending in the state wherein he is detained any criminal charge or any proceeding to have him adjudicated a delinquent juvenile for an act committed in such state, or if he is suspected of having committed within such state a criminal offense or an act of juvenile delinquency, he shall not be returned without the consent of such state until discharged from prosecution or other form of proceeding, imprisonment, detention or supervision for such offense or juvenile delinquency. The duly accredited officers of any state party to this compact, upon the establishment of their authority and the identity of the delinquent juvenile being returned, shall be permitted to transport such delinquent juvenile through any and all states party to this compact, without interference. Upon his return to the state from which he escaped or absconded, the delinquent juvenile shall be subject to such further proceedings as may be appropriate under the laws of that state.

"(b) That the state to which a delinquent juvenile is returned under this Article shall be responsible for the payment of the transportation costs of such return.

"ARTICLE VI—Voluntary Return Procedure

"That any delinquent juvenile who has absconded while on probation or parole, or escaped from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision in any state party to this compact, and any juvenile who has run away from any state party to this compact, who is taken into custody without a requisition in another state party to this compact under the provisions of Article IV(a) or of Article V(a), may consent to his immediate return to the state from which he absconded, escaped or ran away. Such consent shall be given by the juvenile or delinquent juvenile and his counsel or guardian ad litem if any, by executing or subscribing a writing, in the presence of a judge of the appropriate court, which states that the juvenile or delinquent juvenile and his counsel or guardian ad litem, if any, consent to his return to the demanding state. Before such consent shall be executed or subscribed, however, the judge, in the presence of counsel or guardian ad litem, if any, shall inform the juvenile or delinquent juvenile of his rights under this compact. When the consent has been duly executed, it shall be forwarded to and filed with the compact administrator of the state in which the court is located and the judge shall direct the officer having the juvenile or delinquent juvenile in custody to deliver him to the duly accredited officer or officers of the state demanding his return, and shall cause to be delivered to such officer or officers a copy of the consent. The court may, however, upon the request of the state to which the juvenile or delinquent juvenile is being returned, order him to return unaccompanied to such state and shall provide him with a copy of such court order; in such event a copy of the consent shall be forwarded to the compact administrator of the state to which said juvenile or delinquent juvenile is ordered to return.

"ARTICLE VII—Cooperative Supervision of Probationers and Parolees

"(a) That the duly constituted judicial and administrative authorities of a state party to this compact (herein called 'sending state') may permit any delinquent juvenile within such state, placed on probation or parole, to reside in any other state party to this compact (herein called 'receiving state') while on probation or parole, and the receiving state shall accept such delinquent juvenile, if the parent, guardian or person entitled to the legal custody of such delinquent juvenile is residing or undertakes to reside within the receiving state. Before granting such permission, opportunity shall be given to the receiving state to make such investigations as it deems necessary. The authorities of the sending state shall send to the authorities of the receiving state copies of pertinent court orders, social case studies and all other available information which may be of value to and assist the receiving state in supervising a probationer or parolee under this compact. A receiving state, in its discretion, may agree to accept supervision of a probational or parolee in cases where the parent, guardian or person entitled to the legal custody of the delinquent juvenile is not a resident of the receiving state, and if so accepted the sending state may transfer supervision accordingly.

"(b) That each receiving state will assume the duties of visitation and of supervision over any such delinquent juvenile and in the exercise of those duties will be governed by the same standards of visitation and supervision that prevail for its own delinquent juveniles released on probation or parole.

"(c) That, after consultation between the appropriate authorities of the sending state and of the receiving state as to the desirability and necessity of returning such a delinquent juvenile, the duly accredited officers of a sending state may enter a receiving state and there apprehend and retake any such delinquent juvenile on probation or parole. For that purpose, no formalities will be required, other than establishing the authority of the officer and the identity of the delinquent juvenile to be retaken and returned. The decision of the sending state to retake a delinquent juvenile on probation or parole shall be conclusive upon and not reviewable within the receiving state, but if, at the time the sending state seeks to retake a delinquent juvenile on probation or parole, there is pending against him within the receiving state any criminal charge or any proceeding to have him adjudicated a delinquent juvenile for any act committed in such state or if he is suspected of having committed within such state a criminal offense or an act of juvenile delinquency, he shall not be returned without the consent of the receiving state until discharged from prosecution or other form of proceeding, imprisonment, detention or supervision for such offense or juvenile delinquency. The duly accredited officers of the sending state shall be permitted to transport delinquent juveniles being so returned through any and all states party to this compact, without interference.

"(d) That the sending state shall be responsible under this Article for paying the costs of transporting any delinquent juvenile to the receiving state or of returning any delinquent juvenile to the sending state.

"ARTICLE VIII—Responsibility for Costs

"(a) That the provisions of Articles IV(b), V(b) and VII(d) of this compact shall not be construed to alter or affect any internal relationship among the departments, agencies and officers of and in the government of a party state, or between a party state and its subdivisions, as to the payment of costs, or responsibilities therefor.

"(b) That nothing in this compact shall be construed to prevent any party state or subdivision thereof from asserting any right against any person, agency or other entity in regard to costs for which such party state or subdivision thereof may be responsible pursuant to Articles IV(b), V(b) or VII(d) of this compact.

"ARTICLE IX—Detention Practices

"That, to every extent possible, it shall be the policy of states party to this compact that no juvenile or delinquent juvenile shall be placed or detained in any prison, jail or lockup nor be detained or transported in association with criminal, vicious or dissolute persons.

"ARTICLE X—Supplementary Agreements

"That the duly constituted administrative authorities of a state party to this compact may enter into supplementary agreements with any other state or states party hereto for the cooperative care, treatment and rehabilitation of delinquent juveniles whenever they shall find that such agreements will improve the facilities or programs available for such care, treatment, and rehabilitation. Such care, treatment and rehabilitation may be provided in an institution located within any state entering into such supplementary agreement. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS

Defense

It is no defense for a druggist prosecuted for selling an adulterated drug to show simply that he was at the time of sale ignorant of the fact that the drug was adulterated, as he must know what he sells, or proposes to sell, and that it conforms to the standard prescribed by law. District of Columbia v. Lynham (1900, 16 App. D.C. 85).

§ 33-102. Definition of "drug" and "food"—Best quality to be furnished.

The term "drug," as used in this chapter, shall include all medicines for external or internal use, antiseptics, disinfectants, and cosmetics. The term "food," as used in this chapter, shall include confectionery, condiments, and all articles used for food or drink by man, and if there be more than one quality of any article of food or drug known by the same name the best quality thereof shall be furnished to the purchaser, unless he otherwise requests at the time of making such purchase, or unless he be notified at such time of the inferior quality of the article delivered. (Feb. 17, 1898, 30 Stat. 246, ch. 25, § 2.)

§ 33-103. Adulterated article defined.

An article shall be deemed to be adulterated within the meaning of this chapter:

(a) In the case of drugs: First, if, when sold under or by a name recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia, it differs from the standard of strength, quality, or purity laid down in the edition thereof at the time official; second, if when sold under or by a name not recognized in the United States Pharmacopoeia, but which is found in the German, French, or English Pharmacopoeia, it differs from the strength, quality, or purity laid down therein; third, if, when sold as a patented medicine, compounded drug, or mixture, it is not composed of all of the ingredients advertised or printed or written on the bottles, wrappers, or labels of or on or with the patented medicine, compounded drug, or mixture: Provided, That if the defendant in any prosecution under this chapter, in respect to the sale of any such patented medicine, compounded drug, or mixture, shall prove to the satisfaction of the court that he had purchased the article in question as the same in nature, substance, and quality as that demanded of him by the purchaser, and with a written warranty to that effect; that he had no reason to believe at the time when he sold it that the article was otherwise, and that he sold it in the same state as when he purchased it, he shall be discharged from the prosecution.

(b) In the case of food: First, in the case of cheese, if it is not made exclusively from milk or cream, or both, with or without common salt; second, in the case of coffee, if it is not composed entirely of the seed of the Coffea arabica; third, in the case of lard, if it is not made exclusively from the rendered fat of the healthy hog; fourth, in the case of tea, if it is not composed entirely of the genuine leaf of the tea plant not exhausted; fifth, in the case of all kinds of vinegar, if it contains an acidity equivalent to the presence of less than four per centum of absolute acetic acid; and cider vinegar, if it is not made from the pure apple juice and contains less than one and five-tenths per centum of total solids; sixth, in the case of cider, if it is not made from the legitimate product of pure apple juice; in the case of wines and fruit juices, if not made from the pure fruit as represented; and in the case of cider, wines, fruit juices, and malt liquors, if not free from salicylic acid or other preservatives; and in the case of malt liquors, if not free from pruric acid, coccus indicus, colchicine, colo- cynth, aloes, and wormwood; seventh, in the case of glucose, if it contains more than five one-hundredths per centum of ash; eighth, in the case of flour, if it is not composed entirely of one single ground cereal; ninth, in the case of bread, if there is any addition of alum, sulphate of copper, borax, or sulphate of zinc, or other poisonous or harmful ingredient, and if it contains more than thirty-one per centum of moisture, more than two per centum of ash, and less than six and twenty-five one-hundredths per centum of albuminoids; tenth, in the case of olive oil, if it is not made exclusively from the olive berry (Olea europæa), and its specific gravity at fifteen and six-tenths degrees centigrade (sixty degrees Fahrenheit) "actual density" to be not more than nine hundred and seventeen one-thousandths nor less than nine hundred and fourteen one-thousandths: Provided, That an offense shall not be deemed to be committed under this section in the following cases, that is to say, first, where the order calls for an article of food or drug inferior to such standard, or where such difference is made known by being plainly written or printed on the package; second, where the article of food or drug is mixed with any matter or ingredient not injurious to health and not intended fraudulently to increase its bulk, weight, or measure or conceal its inferior quality, if at the time such article is delivered to the purchaser it is made known to him that such article of food or drug is so mixed. (Feb. 17, 1898, 30 Stat. 246, ch. 25, § 3; June 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 768, ch. 3915; Feb. 27, 1925, 43 Stat. 1006, ch. 358, § 13.)

CODIFICATION

Provisions of subsec. (b), formerly designated as ninth through eighteenth, were redesignated first through tenth in view of acts June 30, 1906, and Feb. 27, 1925. Provision formerly designated as eighth deeming milk to be adulterated when it contains less than three and one-half per centum of fat, less than nine per centum of solids not fat, and contains more than eighty-seven and one-half per centum of water, and cream when it contains less than twenty per centum of butter fat, and part of provision formerly designated as ninth, now designated first, reading "butter or" preceding "cheese" were omitted from the Code as now covered by act Feb. 27, 1925, as amended, regulating the sale of milk, cream and ice cream, which is classified to sections 33-301 et seq. Provisions formerly designated as first through eighth deeming food to be adulterated when there is a mixture, extraction, or substitution of substances affecting quality or strength, it is an imitation of or sale under the name of another article, it contains putrid, deceased, decomposed or rotten animal or vegetable matter, it is colored, polished, coated or powdered to conceal damage, it is made to appear better or of greater value than it actually is, it contains poisonous or injurious ingredients, were omitted from the Code as covered by section 7 of the Federal Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 769, ch. 3915, and section 402 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act of June 25, 1938, 52 Stat. 1046, ch. 675, as amended, which is classified to U.S. Code, title 21, § 342, upon repeal of act June 30, 1906 by section 902(a) of act June 25, 1938.

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

It was never intended that this act should hold manufacturers liable for misstatements as to the curative merits of his goods, and as this is a criminal statute creating a new offense, should be liberally construed. United States v. Johnson (D.C. Mo. 1910, 177 F. 313).

Defenses

It is no defense for party prosecuted for selling adulterated foods to show that he was ignorant of such fact, as he must know what he sells and that it conforms with the law. District of Columbia v. Lynham (1900, 16 App. D.C. 85).

Interstate commerce

There is nothing in the act to regulate the traffic of foods within the States. Its main purpose was to prevent inferior goods from being sold in interstate commerce United States v. Charles L. Heinle Specialty Co. (D. C. Pa. 1910, 175 F. 299).

Labels

Under this act the label on drugs must state the substance from which such derivative is produced. United States v. Antikamnia Chemical Co. (1914, 34 S. Ct. 222, 231 U. S. 654, 58 L. Ed. 419).

Where food product is labeled "Compound: pure comb and strained honey and corn syrup," it is not misbranded merely because the percentage of corn syrup is much greater. United States v. Boeckmann (C.C.N.Y. 1910, 176 F. 382).

If the labels on the goods are, in fact, true, then there is no violation of the act, the object of the statute being to protect the public from fraud in the purchase of food. United States v. Sixty-eight Cases of Syrup (D.C. Ill. 1909, 172 F. 781).

Review

Where decree in favor of the United States condemning certain food has been fully executed, and costs against claimant voluntarily paid, the appellate court will not review the case. Charles v. United States (C.C.A. 5, 1911, 183 F. 566).

§ 33-104. Rules and regulations for collecting and examining drugs and food.

It shall be the duty of the Director of Public Health of the District of Columbia, under the direction of the Commissioner of said District, to adopt such measures as may be necessary to facilitate the enforcement of this chapter, and of the District of Columbia Council prepare rules and regulations with regard to the proper method of collecting and examining drugs and articles of food in said District. The act entitled "An Act to regulate within the District of Columbia the sale of milk, cream, and ice cream, and for other purposes", approved Feb. 27, 1925, as amended by Act Aug. 8, 1946, 60 Stat. 936 (§§ 33-301 to 33-319 of this Code), was amended generally by section 601(a) of act Jan. 5, 1971, Pub. L. 91-650. The amendment reduced the number of sections to 10, which sections are classified as §§ 33-301 to 33-310. The effect of the amendment was to substitute, effective as of Dec. 31, 1971, a new dairy products law for the provisions that were contained in the 1925 Act. Sections 33-301 to 33-319, containing the 1925 Act as amended, but prior to its amendment by said act of Jan. 5, 1971, are set out in the 1967 edition of the Code.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Moving consideration in the passage of this act was to safeguard the public health, and it is of course within the power of Congress, in the exercise of its police powers in the District, to say how this shall be accomplished. Leaman v. District of Columbia (1932, 55 F. 2d 1020, 60 App. D. C. 395).

Hermetically sealed cans

Sterilized cream sold in hermetically sealed cans is cream within this section. Leaman v. District of Columbia (1932, 55 F. 2d 1020, 60 App. D.C. 395).

Historical

The act of 1895 was not in conflict with the Federal Pure Food Act of 1906. The act of 1895 looked primarily to the regulation of the source of supply, while the act of 1906 dealt with the sale of misbranded and adulterated foods, and the later act dealt with it when placed in the market. The former aimed at the regulation of the source of supply to secure sanitary additions and surroundings; the latter operated when the milk reached the District and was subject to tests as to misbranding and adulteration. District of Columbia v. Simpson (1917, 47 App. D.C. 6).

The act of 1895 is only impliedly repealed by the subsequent act of 1898, so far as the provisions of the latter act are repugnant to it, or so far only as the latter statute, making new provisions is plainly intended as a substitute for provisions contained in the former act. Weigand v. District of Columbia (1903, 22 App. D.C. 559).

Upon comparing the provisions of the act of 1895 with those of the later act of 1898, it is clear beyond reasonable doubt that section 3 of the former act has been repealed by operation and fair intendment of sections 4, 6, 7, and 8 of the latter act of 1898; and this was affirmed by the last section of the act of 1898, when it declared that all acts and parts of acts inconsistent therewith were thereby repealed. It is conceded that section 7 of the act of 1895 was repealed by the provision of the subsequent act changing the marketable standard of milk, and we think that section 13 of the act of 1895 is also repealed, because inconsistent with the provisions of the latter act and because the provisions of the latter act were intended to furnish the one general and sole rule upon the subject. Id.

(g) "Apothecary" means a licensed pharmacist as defined by the laws of the District of Columbia and, where the context so requires, the owner of a store or other place of business where narcotic drugs are compounded or dispensed by a licensed pharmacist; but nothing in this chapter shall be construed as conferring on a person who is not registered nor licensed as a pharmacist any authority, right, or privilege that is not granted to him by the pharmacy laws of the District of Columbia.

(h) "Hospital" means an institution or clinic for the care and treatment of the sick and injured, approved by the Director of Public Health of the District of Columbia as proper to be entrusted with the custody of narcotic drugs and the professional use of narcotic drugs under the direction of a physician, dentist, or veterinarian.

(i) "Laboratory" means a laboratory approved by the Director of Public Health of the District of Columbia as proper to be entrusted with the custody of narcotic drugs and the use of narcotic drugs for scientific and medical purposes and for purposes of instruction.

(n) "Narcotic drugs" means coca leaves, opium, cannabis, isonipecaine, and opiate, and every substance not chemically distinguishable from them, and any compound, manufacture, salt, derivative, or preparation of coca leaves, opium, cannabis, isonipecaine, or opiate, whether produced directly or indirectly by extraction from substances of vegetable origin, or independently by means of chemical synthesis, or by a combination of extraction and chemical synthesis.

(o) "Federal narcotic laws" means the laws of the United States and the regulations promulgated thereunder relating to opium, coca leaves, cannabis, and other narcotic drugs.

(p) "Official written order" means an order written on a form provided for that purpose by the Attorney General, under any laws of the United States making provision therefor, if such order forms are authorized and required by federal law and, if no such order form is provided, then on an official form provided for that purpose by the Board of Pharmacy.

(q) "Dispense" includes distribute, leave with, give away, dispose of, or deliver.

(r) "Registry number" means the number assigned to each person registered under the federal narcotic laws.

(s) "Board of Pharmacy" means the Board of Pharmacy of the District of Columbia as provided by section 2-607.

(t) "Isonipecaïne" and "opiate" shall have the same meaning as that given to such terms by section 4731 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 785, ch. 532, § 1; Aug. 1, 1950, 64 Stat. 393, ch. 513, § 1; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 618, ch. 676, title III, § 301 (a).)

Constitutionality

Statutes which made it unlawful for any person to manufacture, possess, have under his control, sell, prescribe, administer, dispense or compound any narcotic drug and which defined narcotic drug as including marijuana were constitutional. S. V. Scott v. United States (1968, 395 F. 2d 619, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

(b) Arrests without a warrant, and searches of the person and seizures pursuant thereto, may be made for a violation of subsection (a) hereof by police officers, as in the case of a felony, upon probable cause that the person arrested is violating such subsection at the time of his arrest.

(c) No evidence discovered in the course of any such arrest, search, or seizure authorized by subsection (b) hereof, shall be admissible in any criminal proceeding against the person arrested unless at the time of such arrest he was violating the provisions of this section. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 787, ch. 532, § 2; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 618, ch. 676, title III, § 301 (b).)

Abuse of discretion

Even if defendant knowingly and voluntarily waived his right to be present initially, it was an abuse of discretion to have proceeded without him, where case began with a single count information charging possession of heroin, and where it took less than two months for case to reach trial, and trial, including Miranda hearing, took less than a day. N. K. Campbell v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 295 A. 2d 498).

Acquittal on appeal

Court of Appeals, on reversing convictions for narcotic vagrancy, maintaining common nuisance, and possession of narcotics, for failure of evidence to show that defendants had in their possession more than trace of heroin, would not remand for new trial, where there was no showing that government had additional proof that actual amounts involved were more than mere traces that were actually usable or saleable as narcotics. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

Appeal and error

Conviction of possession of narcotics was required to be reversed for new trial where it was unclear whether the court, that had reserved pretrial motion to suppress, in stating that it put no credence in arresting officer's trial testimony concerning officer's knowledge of arrest warrant at time officer and another stopped defendant, meant literally, that the officer was not telling the truth or whether trial court disregarded trial testimony because it disapproved of failure of officer, who stated that he didn't want to bring out knowledge of warrant at motions court and possibly destroy case, to take all reasonable steps to assure that his testimony accurately reflected what occurred; officer's trial testimony should not have been ignored. G. C. Kinard v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 288 A. 2d 233).

Arrest

Action of one police officer in remaining behind open passenger door of police car with pistol drawn and pointed downward as other officer approached driver's side of parked automobile, that matched description of automobile reported to be occupied by gun-carrying narcotics users, for purpose of "covering" his partner, did not constitute an arrest. F. W. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 275 A. 2d 555).

Choice between local and federal statute by accused

Defendant was not entitled to choose to be prosecuted under District of Columbia Code which provided lesser penalty rather than under federal narcotics statutes. L. R. Hutcherson v. United States (1965, 345 F. 2d 964, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 274).

Concurrent sentences

Where defendants received concurrent sentences in prosecution for possession of narcotics, possession of implements of crime, unlawful entry and narcotics vagrancy and evidence was sufficient to support conviction of possession of narcotics and possession of implements of crime, District of Columbia Court of Appeals would not pass upon sufficiency of evidence to support other convictions. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Constitutionality

Statutes which made it unlawful for any person to manufacture, possess, have under his control, sell, prescribe, administer, dispense or compound any narcotic drug and which defined narcotic drug as including marijuana were constitutional. S. V. Scott v. United States (1968, 395 F. 2d 619, 129 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

— Standing to challenge

Neither proof of prior narcotics convictions nor admission at time of arrest that defendant used narcotics and that he was participating in a methadone treatment program is sufficient to establish that defendant is an addict; thus, he has no standing to claim that this section is unconstitutional as applied to him or that punishing him for possession of narcotics would be cruel and unusual punishment in violation of the Eighth Amendment. F. Lyles v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 793).

Cross-examination

Where former narcotics agent was principal government witness in a narcotics prosecution and testified to facts which, if believed, would justify guilty verdict without additional evidence, and where witness had admitted to counsel that police authorities suspected that test conducted almost immediately before he was dismissed for allegedly being "under weight" showed that he had been using narcotics, defense counsel had right to cross-examine the agent as to the true reasons for his dismissal and as to whether he was using narcotics at time he observed defendant commit the alleged offense, for purposes of determining the witness' credibility and his powers of observation at the time he observed the offense. United States v. L. E. Fowler (1972, 465 F. 2d 664, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 79).

Since prior discovery is necessarily limited in a criminal case, a reasonable amount of exploratory cross-examination by defense counsel should be allowed, based on slight suspicion, even if he cannot state to the court what precise facts his cross-examination will develop, especially where the Government's principal witness is involved. Id.

Where gist of defense in prosecution for possession of narcotic drugs was that though a passenger in the automobile defendant did not have seized narcotics in his possession and was not guilty of offense charged but it was due to a mistake by arresting officers at scene that he was charged with the offense and police sergeant was only government witness who testified that he saw the defendant drop package to ground and his credibility on that point was crucial, the defendant was entitled to cross-examination for purpose of establishing prior inconsistent statements by witness and should have been permitted opportunity to make proffer, and it was prejudicial error to deny the defendant such cross-examination. L. Holmes v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 93).

Custodial interrogation

Questions addressed to three defendants by arresting officers seeking an explanation for defendants' being in condemned house were noncoercive and not "custodial interrogation" within rule of Miranda v. State of Arizona. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Defense of addiction

Since the quantity of narcotics found in defendant's possession is not suggestive of nontrafficking possession, conviction for possession of heroin is not improper on theory that defendant is an addict and not a trafficker in narcotics. F. W. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 275 A. 2d 555).

Due process

Right of defendant to a fair trial, his Sixth Amendment right to counsel, and the use of compulsory process for witnesses, did not require finding that Government's failure to extend immunity, to defendant's uncle, who allegedly owned pistol found in possession of defendant, who was convicted of carrying a pistol without a license and of unlawful possession of marihuana, amounted to a deprivation of due process of law. J. Terrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 860; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1398, 410 U.S. 938).

Duty to arrest

When police detectives saw narcotics paraphernalia in possession of defendants, officers were under statutory duty to arrest offenders immediately. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Evidence—Admissibility

Where defendant, who was convicted of carrying a pistol without a license, and of unlawful possession of marihuana, testified that he had been beaten by police and desired hospitalization, Government could rebut such testimony with evidence that defendant's purpose of seeking hospital treatment was that he was a heroin addict, and admission of such evidence did not require a mistrial, as had occurred on previous occasion when such evidence was admitted, where tactical choice of defense counsel was in all probability to proceed. J. Terrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 860; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1398, 410 U.S. 938).

Where the defendant and his companion were in area in which narcotics traffic was substantial and were engaged in transaction in which number of small flat tinfoil packets were passed, and arresting officer, throughout his experience on narcotics squad for period of 18 months during which he was involved in over 200 arrests, had seen similar packets and had always found narcotics in them, the arrest was based on probable cause, and the tinfoil packets, seized in search pursuant to such arrest and later found to contain heroin, were admissible in prosecution for possession of heroin. W. G. Munn v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 28).

In a prosecution for possession of narcotic drugs under this section, no substance should be received in evidence unless it is first properly identified as being narcotics for reason that it is not probative of charge absent the identification and could result in misleading the jury. L. Holmes v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 93).

Though regulation required police officers after impounding automobile that had been stolen, abandoned or left unattended to inventory contents, remove any valuables for safekeeping and put automobile in place of safety, and though compliance with the regulation necessarily involves some search and seizure, marihuana found under seat of vehicle outside station while driver, whose license was under suspension, was inside being booked on traffic charge is not admissible in prosecution for possession of the marihuana. R. G. Mayfield v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 276 A. 2d 123).

Police officer's reasonable suspicions, resulting from radio call advising that occupants of white automobile at intersection bearing specific license plate number were using narcotics and carrying gun and corroborated by matching details of white automobile at the intersection bearing the same license plate number, matured into probable cause to arrest when he saw vial that he believed to contain narcotics on floor of the automobile, and the narcotics found in ensuing search of the automobile are admissible. F. W. Green v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 275 A. 2d 555).

Officers, who had entered premises under warrant authorizing a search for narcotics and who observed the defendant seated on side of a bed with one hand tightly closed, had probable cause to suppose that at least some of the narcotics were being secreted in her closed hand and were likely to be destroyed and seizure of narcotics from defendant's hand and from box beneath bed upon which she was seated was within scope of authority conferred by the search warrant and was not violative of defendant's Fourth Amendment rights, and narcotics thus seized were properly received into evidence. E. Nicks v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 273 A. 2d 256).

Where defendant, while driving automobile, was recognized by police officer who knew that the defendant was a narcotics violator and that he did not possess a valid driver's license, and where officer waved defendant to curb and asked to see his license, whereupon defendant admitted that he was unlicensed, the officer's arrest of defendant is not a sham, and heroin seized during search incident to arrest is not subject to suppression. F. Lyles v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 793).

Even if the arrest of defendant without warrant was invalid, capsules which the police officers recovered from trash pile in corner of fire-gutted pool hall after defendant and another person had been permitted by officers to leave the room were not seized in violation of defendant's Fourth Amendment rights and were admissible in prosecution for unlawful possession of narcotics. United States v. E. L. Hayes (D.C. App. 1970, 271 A. 2d 701).

In this case, since the police officer received reliable information in early morning hours that a large supply of heroin was to be transported in a few hours from a certain to an uncertain location for processing, and no magistrate was available so that officers were warranted in effecting entry without search warrant, and upon forcing entry found the apartment empty, the significant possibility of removal of contraband was an exceptional circumstance justifying search for the narcotics, and thus narcotics seized were properly admitted in prosecution for violation of this section. C. E. Hailes v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 363).

Where defendants' arrest for narcotics violations was legal, narcotics paraphernalia seized at time of the arrest was properly admitted in defendants' joint trial for narcotics violations. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Where defendant was a frequenter of an establishment where intoxicating liquor was being illegally sold and by doing so was guilty of a misdemeanor being committed in presence of officers, officers were within their proper duty in arresting defendant without a warrant, and as incident of arrest search of defendant was lawful, and narcotics then and there seized were properly admitted in evidence against him in prosecution for narcotics violations. M. T. Smith, Jr. v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 877, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 339).

— Sufficiency

Evidence sustained conviction of possession of cocaine found on ledge of building where the defendant had been standing. United States v. J. Weaver (1972, 458 F. 2d 825, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 3).

Evidence on issue whether defendant, who was charged with unlawful possession of marihuana, had been in possession of usable quantity was not sufficient to warrant submission of case to jury. F. L. Payne v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 501).

Evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction for possession of marihuana, even assuming that defendant was a tenant of the apartment in which marihuana was found in envelope on table in living room, where, at time of search, defendant was in bedroom while four or five other persons were in the living room, and where there was no evidence that defendant was aware of the existence of the marihuana in the living room or could have exercised control over it; such evidence was insufficient to show constructive possession of the marihuana by defendant. M. Thompson v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 275).

Evidence in prosecution for being present in illegal establishment is sufficient to prove beyond reasonable doubt the nonexistence of license to dispense narcotics even though Government offered no testimony as to nonexistence of license. A. Geddie v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 668).

Where as a matter of reasonable probability there was no possibility for misidentification and adulteration of certain narcotic evidence, missing link in government's chain of possession of the narcotics evidence does not warrant reversal of convictions of unlawful possession of narcotic drug, narcotic vagrancy and presence in illegal establishment. B. Spade v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 654).

Absence of any proof that defendants had in their possession more than trace of heroin or that such trace could be used or dispensed as narcotic required reversal of convictions for narcotic vagrancy, maintaining common nuisance, and possession of narcotics. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

Where there is only trace of substance, a chemical constituent not quantitatively determined because of minuteness, and there is no additional proof of its usability as narcotic, there can be no conviction under statute making it illegal for person to maintain place resorted to by drug addicts for purpose of using narcotic drugs or used for illegal keeping or sale of same. Id.

Where there is only a trace of substance, a chemical constituent not quantitatively determined because of minuteness, and there is no additional proof of its usability as a narcotic, there can be no conviction for unlawful possession of a narcotic. R. M. Edlin v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 395).

Evidence that microscopic chemical analysis of narcotics paraphernalia disclosed traces of heroin was insufficient, in absence of any additional proof as to usability of traces as a narcotic, to show illegal possession of a narcotic drug. Id.

— Suppression

Heroin found in the defendant's pocket during search incident to an arrest for grand larceny should not have been suppressed on theory that the search which brought heroin to light infringed Fourth Amendment rights. United States v. C. E. Bynum (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 649).

In this case, the court held that the trial judge did not err in denying motion to suppress heroin properly seized from defendant, one judge being of the opinion that the defendant was properly "seized" in rapidly moving on-street investigation and discarding of narcotics was not product of illegal police action, and second judge being of the opinion that the officer had probable cause to arrest defendant for disorderly conduct and seizure of heroin was therefore lawful. W. Von Slichter v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 336).

Fair hearing

Since the trial court granted motion to suppress narcotics seized in course of on-the-street encounter before all the evidence had been presented, and testimony of police officer who approached passenger side of automobile where defendant was sitting was not taken, and during cross-examination of officer who did testify court interrupted with comments and leading questions, the government was deprived of fair hearing. United States v. J. F. Crickenberger (D.C. App. 1971, 275 A. 2d 232).

Guilty plea

Absent any showing that the defendant was induced to plead guilty solely because of advice given by counsel that an appeal would lie to review the denial of motion to suppress evidence, there was no manifest injustice, and it thus was not error to deny motion to withdraw the plea.

M. A. Shuler v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 278 A. 2d 116).

Inferences

Fact that the probable holder of any license to dispense drugs testified that no drugs were dispensed or used on premises with his permission together with other facts of case permitted the jury to infer that no license existed despite fact that Government offered no testimony as to nonexistence of license. A. Geddie v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 284 A. 2d 668).

Instructions

Where, in prosecution for unlawful possession of narcotic drug, judge read from indictment, which charged that the defendant "knowingly" possessed narcotic drug and instructed that one of elements of crime was that defendant "knowingly" had cocaine in his possession, judge adequately instructed jury on the defendant's knowledge as element of the crime. United States v. J. Weaver (1972, 458 F. 2d 825, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 3).

Since the defendant did not request instruction on her theory that she had only borrowed coat in which heroin was found, failure to so instruct was not reversible error in prosecution for possession of heroin. B. Spade v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 654).

Instructions were adequate to present to jury the issue of whether there was knowing possession by defendant of heroin that was found in jacket she was wearing and that she claimed was borrowed. Id.

Defendant was not entitled, in prosecution for facilitating the concealment or sale of narcotics, to alternative instruction permitting jury to find him guilty of unlawful possession of narcotics as a lesser included offense on theory that in his particular case possession was a necessary element of the prosecution's case on facilitation. C. S. Kelly v. United States (1966, 370 F. 2d 227, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 205).

Intent

In this case, the court held that defendant's admission of his intent to use hypodermic and needle for criminal purpose was sufficiently corroborated and statement was sufficiently trustworthy for admission on proof of intent in prosecution for possession of implements of a crime, since although possession of a wet needle, needle holder and syringe but not the cooker, might not be sufficient to establish corpus delicti, it did constitute substantial independent evidence which would tend to establish trustworthiness of admission by defendant, a nonmedical person, to arresting officer. L. F. McKoy v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 649).

Knowledge

Although this section pertaining to unlawful possession of narcotic drug does not contain the term "knowing," the offense prohibited by the law is a knowing possession of the drug. United States v. J. Weaver (1972, 458 F. 2d 825, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 3).

Narcotics paraphernalia

Defendant could be convicted of possession of narcotics paraphernalia under section 22-3601 rendering unlawful a possession of instruments of a crime, even though no criminal statute prohibited use or consumption of narcotics, as this section makes it unlawful for any person to manufacture, possess, or have under his control, sell, prescribe, administer, disburse, or compound any narcotic drug. A. L. Wheeler v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 276 A. 2d 722).

Possession

In order to have constructive possession of marihuana, it was necessary that defendant be in a position to exercise dominion and control over it. M. Thompson v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 275).

Probable cause

After police officers found ammunition and marihuana on person of defendant, earlier occupancy by defendant of vehicle, his assault of police officer, his flight and his resistance to being taken into custody, were sufficient to establish probable cause to search the vehicle for further related evidence, such as ammunition, guns, or drugs. J. Terrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 860; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1398, 410 U.S. 938).

Redirect examination

In prosecution for violations of federal narcotics laws, where on cross-examination of government's expert chemist, the defense elicited the fact that heroin is actually a morphine derivative, and that morphine can be legally imported into the United States, permitting witness on redirect to testify that in his opinion the narcotics involved were produced outside the United States was not improper on grounds that question was beyond qualifications of witness, since defense counsel's initial voyage into area of drug's source permitted full exploration by the government. R. E. Green v. United States (1967, 383 F. 2d 199, 127 U.S. App. D.C. 272).

Review

Court of Appeals could not review alleged excessiveness of sentence of 180 days straight time imposed upon conviction of possession of narcotics where sentence was within limits prescribed by statute. J. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 484).

Search and seizure

Warrantless search of vehicle in which defendant was found, based on probable cause, which would have been valid immediately, was not rendered invalid merely because it became necessary to move the vehicle from a hostile crowd which gathered after defendant was taken into custody, especially where defendant asked a friend to take the vehicle to defendant's fiancée, who was later shown to be the owner of the vehicle. J. Terrell v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 860; cert. denied 93 S. Ct. 1398, 410 U.S. 938).

Right of privacy to which one using toilet stall in public restroom may be entitled is necessarily a limited one. United States v. R. Smith (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 856).

If pouch that was found on floor of toilet stall in public restroom as defendant and his companion departed belonged to either of them, it became abandoned property by their knowing action in leaving it there, and its examination by police officer was permissible. Id.

Where officers who had no complaint or report of crime in area, had never seen defendant before and did not observe him engaged in unlawful conduct detained defendant, who was on street at early hour in morning, for period of time and then asked him to accompany them to apartment building where he had previously been but did not tell defendant that he was free to ignore their request, the search of leather pouch that hung from defendant's belt and into which defendant had reached and seizure of narcotics found therein were invalid and the narcotics recovered should have been suppressed. E. O. Robinson v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 278 A. 2d 458).

Even if detention for failure to display operator's permit constituted arrest and such arrest was a subterfuge to allow police officers to search automobile and its occupants, seizure of narcotics was not invalid since narcotics were observed in plain view by officer when defendant occupant unsuccessfully attempted to conceal narcotics. H. L. Wise v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 476).

Record on appeal from conviction of possession of narcotics did not support contention that the arrest, assertedly made when occupants of automobile were detained when defendant failed to produce operator's permit; was merely pretext for gathering evidence. Id.

That police officers who searched automobile outside police station while driver, whose license was under suspension, was being booked on traffic charge had seen driver slip envelope under automobile seat, but any inference that attempt to conceal narcotics was thereby suggested was negated by their expressed willingness to let passenger take vehicle if he had possessed requisite permit, officers' observation of such act on part of driver did not furnish probable cause for such search, which disclosed marijuana under the front seat. R. G. Mayfield v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 276 A. 2d 123).

In this case, the court held that since there was probable cause for arrest without a warrant prior to search of defendant, who was suspected of robbing liquor store, seizure of heroin disclosed by search was valid. R. Harrison v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 368).

Search warrant

Where affidavit stated that a police informant had purchased on several occasions from the defendant on defendant's premises a substance that later proved to be hashish, magistrate could reasonably infer that alleged transfers were not made in pursuance of proper order forms, and affidavit supporting government's application for search warrant is not insufficient for failure to allege that informant-purchaser lacked written order forms required of a transferee of marijuana. A. R. Rutledge v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 213).

Evidence disclosing that detective was informed by a reliable person as to place where large quantity of narcotics were stored but was unable to obtain a search warrant because he could find no one available to issue it and went to building and knocked on door which was then forced open was insufficient to show exceptional circumstances authorizing a search without a warrant or probable cause for an arrest without a warrant. Townsley v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1965, 215 A. 2d 482).

Narcotics paraphernalia is not the fruit of a crime, a weapon, or property the mere possession of which constitutes a crime; it is, however, the "means and instrumentality" by which narcotics may be illegally used, so that it is within exception permitting lawful seizure of certain articles even though not described in search warrant. R. M. Edelin v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 395).

Hypodermic needle, syringe, bent spoon usable as a narcotics "cooker" and tissue paper, all wrapped in a stocking and found under pillow on bed, were an apparent narcotics user's "kit" and were the "means and instrumentality" by which narcotics might be illegally used, so that seizure of such paraphernalia under warrant authorizing seizure of check writing machine and undetermined number of blank checks was valid under exception permitting instrumentalities and means by which a crime is committed to be seized even though not described in search warrant, and such evidence was not subject to suppression in narcotics prosecution. Id.

Sentence

A defendant's Fifth Amendment rights may not be subordinated to misplaced zeal of trial judge who seeks to discover, prior to sentencing of defendant who has been convicted of possession of narcotics, source of the narcotics found in return for a different sentence than otherwise might be imposed. J. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 293 A. 2d 484).

Where trial judge improperly considered, in sentencing defendant, defendant's refusal to disclose source of narcotics he had been found guilty of possessing and where refusal of trial judge, who declared that he had heard nothing for 45 seconds with respect to source of narcotics and that case, therefore, would not be sent to probation office, to obtain a presentence probation report was highly questionable, trial judge had failed to exercise discretion in sentencing process, and although sentence imposed was only one-half statutory maximum, error in sentencing process was so egregious as to require that sentence be vacated. Id.

Although trial judge had improperly considered, in sentencing defendant, defendant's refusal to disclose source of narcotics he had been found guilty of possessing, and had, under questionable circumstances, refused to obtain a presentence report, error in sentencing process required that sentence be vacated, but resentencing by another judge was not required. Id.

If a defendant who had been permitted to proceed in forma pauperis is indigent, so much of judgment of conviction for possession of heroin as provided for imprisonment in default of payment of $1,000 fine should be vacated. J. A. Simms v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 276 A. 2d 434).

Stipulations

Refusal of the trial court to allow defense to question admissibility, on ground of an illegal search and seizure, of heroin found on the defendant on theory that the stipulation between prosecution and defense that material removed from defendant was heroin and that chain of custody need not be proved, removed necessity of introducing substance into evidence and in turn precluded opportunity for objection to its admission, constitutes reversible error. F. Purvis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 270 A. 2d 501).

Warning of constitutional rights

The case was remanded to determine whether defendant who was convicted of possession of implements of crime had been warned of his constitutional rights by arresting officers before he made incriminating statements. W. J. Johnson v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 255 A. 2d 494).

§ 33-403. Manufacturers and wholesalers—License required.

No person shall manufacture, compound, mix, cultivate, grow, or by any other process produce or prepare narcotic drugs, and no person as a wholesaler shall supply the same, without having first obtained a license so to do from the Board of Pharmacy. Licenses shall be issued for a period of one year and may be renewed for a like period. A fee of $10 shall be paid to the Board of Pharmacy for any license so issued or renewed. The said Board of Pharmacy is authorized to have printed such licenses as may be necessary and to be paid for out of the money collected by it for the issuance of licenses. At the close of each fiscal year any funds unexpended in excess of the sum of $100 shall be paid into the treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 787, ch. 532, § 3.)

§ 33-404. Qualifications for licenses—Revocation and suspension.

No license shall be issued under section 33-403 unless and until the applicant therefor has furnished proof satisfactory to the Board of Pharmacy of the following:

(a) That the applicant is of good moral character or, if the applicant be an association or corporation, that the managing officers are of good moral character.

(b) That the applicant is equipped as to land, buildings, and paraphernalia properly to carry on the business described in his application.

No license shall be granted to any person who has been convicted of a wilful violation of any law of the United States, or of any state, relating to opium, coca leaves, cannabis, or other narcotic drugs, or to any person who is a narcotic-drug addict.

§ 33-405. Use of official written orders.

An official written order for any narcotic drug shall be signed in duplicate by the person giving said order or by his duly authorized agent. The original shall be presented to the person who sells or dispenses the narcotic drug or drugs named therein.

In event of the acceptance of such order by said person, each party to the transaction shall preserve his copy of such order for a period of two years in such a way as to be readily accessible for inspection by any public officer or employee engaged in the enforcement of this chapter. It shall be unlawful for a manufacturer or wholesaler to sell, barter, exchange, or give away any preparation or remedy described in section 4702 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, which contains not more than two grains of opium, or not more than one-fourth of a grain of morphine, or not more than one-eighth of a grain of heroin, or not more than one grain of codeine, or any salt or derivative of any of them in one fluid or avoirdupois ounce, except in pursuance of a written order, on a form to be issued in blank by the District of Columbia Board of Pharmacy. Every person who shall accept any such order, and in pursuance thereof shall sell, barter, exchange, or give away any of the aforesaid preparations shall preserve such order for a period of two years in such a way as to be readily accessible to inspection by any officer or agent authorized for that purpose.

The Board of Pharmacy shall cause suitable written order forms to be prepared for the purchase of narcotics for which no form is provided by the Attorney General, and shall cause the same to be for sale by said board at cost, to those persons who shall have registered under the federal narcotic laws. The Board of Pharmacy shall keep an account of the number of forms sold and the names and addresses of the purchasers and the serial numbers of such forms sold to each purchaser. Whenever the Board of Pharmacy shall sell any such forms it shall cause the name and address of the purchaser thereof to be plainly written or stamped thereon before delivering the same. The District of Columbia Council is authorized and directed to make such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, as it may deem necessary for the administration and enforcement of this chapter.

It shall be deemed a compliance with this section if the parties to the transaction have complied with the Federal narcotic laws respecting official order forms if such order forms are authorized and required by Federal laws, or, if no such order form is required by Federal law and if no such order form is available for purchase as provided in the preceding paragraph of this section, then the parties to the transaction shall comply with the rules and regulations made pursuant to this chapter respecting official order forms and such other records as may be required. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 787, ch. 532, § 5; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 618, ch. 676, title III, § 301(c).)

provided in the preceding paragraph of this section, then the parties to the transaction shall comply with the rules and regulations made pursuant to this chapter respecting official order forms and such other records as may be required." for "is provided, then with the rules and regulations of the Board of Pharmacy respecting official order forms." in the third paragraph.

(a) An apothecary, in good faith, may sell and dispense narcotic drugs to any person upon a written prescription of a physician, dentist, or veterinarian, dated and signed, in ink or indelible pencil, on the day when issued, by the physician, dentist, or veterinarian prescribing said narcotic drugs. The prescription when issued shall also state the full name and address of the patient for whom, or of the owner of the animal for which, the drug is dispensed, and the full name, address, and registry number under the federal narcotic laws of the person prescribing, if he is required by those laws to be so registered. If the prescription be for an animal, it shall state the species of animal for which the drug is prescribed. The person filling the prescription shall write the date of filling and his own signature on the face of the prescription.

The oral prescription shall be reduced to a written record by the apothecary before filling, with said written record containing the same information as is required by law or regulation in the case of a written prescription except for the requirement of the written signature of the prescriber.

(c) A written prescription or a written record of an oral prescription shall be retained on file by the proprietor of the pharmacy in which it is filled for a period of two years, so as to be readily accessible for inspection by any public officer or employee engaged in the enforcement of this chapter. ### § 33-409. Professional use of narcotic drugs—Return of unused drugs.

(a) Physicians and dentists.—A physician or a dentist, in good faith and in the course of his professional practice only, may prescribe by a written or oral prescription, administer, and dispense narcotic drugs, or he may cause the same to be administered by a nurse or interne under his direction and supervision. Each written prescription shall be dated and signed by the person prescribing on the day when issued and shall bear the full name and address of the patient for whom the narcotic drug is prescribed and the full name, address, and registry number under the federal narcotic laws of the person prescribing, provided he is required by those laws to be so registered. In issuing an oral prescription, the physician or dentist shall furnish the apothecary with the same information as is required by law or regulation in the case of a written prescription for narcotic drugs and compounds, except for the requirement of the written signature of the prescriber.

(b) Veterinarians.—A veterinarian, in good faith and in the course of his professional practice only and not for use by a human being, may prescribe by a written or oral prescription, administer, and dispense narcotic drugs, and he may cause them to be administered by an assistant or orderly under his direction and supervision. Each written prescription shall be dated and signed by the person prescribing on the day when issued and shall bear the full name and address of the owner of the animal; the species of the animal for which the narcotic is prescribed; and the full name, address, and registry number under the federal narcotic laws of the person prescribing, provided he is required by those laws to be so registered. In issuing an oral prescription, the veterinarian shall furnish the apothecary with the same information as is required by law in the case of a written prescription for narcotic drugs and compounds, except for the written signature of the prescriber.

(c) Nothing contained in subsections (a) and (b) of this section shall be construed as authorizing an oral prescription to be furnished by the physician, dentist, or veterinarian to the apothecary, for a narcotic drug or compound other than those narcotic drugs or compounds determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, or his delegate, pursuant to the provisions of section 4705 (c) (2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, to possess little or no addiction liability.

(d) Return of unused drugs.—Any person who has obtained from a physician, dentist, or veterinarian any narcotic drug for administration to a patient during the absence of such physician, dentist, or veterinarian shall return to such physician, dentist, or veterinarian any unused portion of such drug, when it is no longer required by the patient. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 790, ch. 532, § 9; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 619, ch. 676, title III, § 301 (e), (f), (g).)

AMENDMENT

1956—Act July 24, 1956, amended section to include oral prescriptions in subsecs. (a) and (b), added the last sentence in said subsecs., requiring the furnishing of the same information in oral prescriptions as in written prescriptions, added subsec. (c), and redesignated former subsec. (c) as subsec. (d).

Subsec. (d), formerly (c), so redesignated by act July 24, 1956.

§ 33-410. Preparations exempted—Conditions—Paregoric.

Except as otherwise in this chapter specifically provided, said sections shall not apply to the following cases:

(a) Prescribing, administering, dispensing, or selling at retail of any medicinal preparation that contains in one fluid ounce or, if a solid or semisolid preparation, in one avoirdupois ounce (1) not more than two grains of opium, (2) not more than one-quarter of a grain of morphine or of any of its salts, (3) not more than one grain of codeine or of any of its salts, (4) not more than one-eighth of a grain of heroin or of any of its salts.

(b) Prescribing, administering, dispensing, or selling at retail of liniments, ointments, and other preparations that are susceptible of external use only and that contain narcotic drugs in such combinations as prevent their being readily extracted from such liniments, ointments, or preparations, except that this chapter shall apply to all liniments, ointments, and other preparations that contain coca leaves in any quantity or combination.

(c) Prescribing, administering, dispensing, or selling at retail of any medicinal preparation containing not in excess of 25 per centum of paregoric, in combination with some drug or drugs which confer upon it medicinal properties other than those possessed by paregoric.

The exemptions authorized by this section shall be subject to the following conditions:

(1) The medicinal preparation, or the liniment, ointment, or other preparation susceptible of external use only, prescribed, administered, dispensed, or sold, shall contain in addition to the narcotic drug in it, some drug or drugs conferring upon it medicinal qualities other than those possessed by the narcotic drug alone.

Such preparation shall be prescribed, administered, dispensed, and sold in good faith as a medicine, and not for the purpose of evading the provisions of this chapter.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the kind and quantity of any narcotic drug that may be prescribed, administered, dispensed, or sold to any person, or for the use of any person or animal, when it is prescribed, administered, dispensed, or sold in compliance with the general provisions of this chapter.

Manufacturers or wholesalers shall sell tincture opii camphorata, commonly known as paregoric, only in accordance with the provisions of sections 33-405, 33-406, on official written order forms provided for that purpose by the Board of Pharmacy. It shall be unlawful for any person to bring into or have in his possession for sale in the District of Columbia any paregoric unless an official written order form has been issued therefor. No person shall dispense or sell any paregoric at retail to any person without a written or oral prescription from a duly licensed physician, dentist, veterinarian, or other duly authorized person. Prescriptions shall be retained and filed as provided in section 33-408. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 790, ch. 532, § 10; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 619, ch. 676, title III, § 301(h); Aug. 25, 1959, 73 Stat. 430, Pub. L. 86-206, § 1; July 14, 1960, 74 Stat. 536, Pub. #### AMENDMENTS

1960—Act July 14, 1960, eliminated provisions which related to preparations containing in one ounce not more than one-sixth of a grain of dihydrocodeinone or any of its salts.

1959—Act Aug. 25, 1959, amended last par. of section by substituting "without a written or oral prescription" for "without a written prescription."

1956—Act July 24, 1956, amended subsec. (a) by adding "(5) not more than one-sixth of a grain of dihydrocodeinone or any of its salts." following the matter in numeral (4), added subsec. (c), pertaining to the prescribing, administering, dispensing, or selling of medicinal drugs containing paregoric, and in the third sentence of the last para, substituted the words "without a written prescription" for the words "without a prescription."

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 33-411, 33-420.

§ 33-411. Records to be kept—Form—Preservation.

(a) Physicians, dentists, veterinarians, and other authorized persons.—Every physician, dentist, veterinarian, or other person who is authorized to administer or professionally use narcotic drugs shall keep a record of such drugs received by him, and a record of all such drugs administered, dispensed, or professionally used by him otherwise than by prescription in accordance with the provisions of subsection (e) of this section. It shall, however, be deemed a sufficient compliance with this subsection if any such person using small quantities of solutions or other preparations of such drugs for local application shall keep a record of the quantity, character, and potency of such solutions or other preparations purchased or made up by him, and of the dates when purchased or made up, without keeping a record of the amount of such solution or other preparation applied by him to individual patients.

(b) Manufacturers and wholesalers.—Manufacturers and wholesalers shall keep records of all narcotic drugs compounded, mixed, cultivated, grown, or by any other process produced or prepared, and of all narcotic drugs received and disposed of by them, in accordance with the provisions of subsection (e) of this section.

(c) Apothecaries.—Apothecaries shall keep records of all narcotic drugs received and disposed of by them, in accordance with the provisions of subsection (e) of this section.

(d) Vendors of exempted preparations.—Every person who purchases for resale, or who sells narcotic drug preparations exempted by section 33-410 shall keep a record showing the quantities and kinds thereof received and sold, or disposed of otherwise, in accordance with the provisions of subsection (e) of this section.

(e) Form and preservation of record.—The form of record shall be prescribed by the Board of Pharmacy. The record of narcotic drugs received shall in every case show the date of receipt, the name and address of the person from whom received, and the kind and quantity of drugs received; the kind and quantity of narcotic drugs produced or removed from process of manufacture, and the date of such production or removal from process of manufacture; and the record shall in every case show the proportion of morphine, cocaine, or ecgonine contained in or producible from crude opium or cocoa leaves received or produced, and the proportion of resin contained in or producible from the plant Cannabis sativa L., received, or produced. The record of all narcotic drugs sold, administered, dispensed, or otherwise disposed of, shall show the date of selling, administering, or dispensing, the name and address of the person to whom, or for whose use, or the owner and species of animal for which the drugs were sold, administered, or dispensed, and the kind and quantity of drugs. Every such record shall be kept for a period of two years from the date of the transaction recorded. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 791, ch. 532, § 11; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 620, ch. 676, title III, § 301 (i).)

AMENDMENT

1956—Act July 24, 1956, struck out the last sentence in subsec. (e) which stated that the keeping of records required by federal narcotic laws constituted compliance with section.

§ 33-412. Labels.

(a) Whenever a manufacturer sells or dispenses a narcotic drug, and whenever a wholesaler sells or dispenses a narcotic drug in a package prepared by him, he shall securely affix to each package in which that drug is contained a label showing in legible English the name and address of the vendor and the quantity, kind, and form of narcotic drug contained therein. No person, except an apothecary for the purpose of filling a written or oral prescription under this chapter, shall alter, deface, or remove any label so affixed.

(b) Whenever an apothecary sells or dispenses any narcotic drug on a written or oral prescription issued by a physician, dentist, or veterinarian he shall affix to or place in the container in which such drug is sold or dispensed a label showing his own name, address, and registry number, or the name, address, and registry number of the apothecary for whom he is lawfully acting; the name and address of the patient, or, if the patient is an animal, the name and address of the owner of the animal, and the species of the animal; the name, address, and registry number of the physician, dentist, or veterinarian, by whom the prescription was written; and such directions as may be stated on the prescription. No person shall alter, deface, or remove any label so affixed as long as any of the original contents remain. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 792, ch. 532, § 12; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 620, ch. 676, title III, § 301(j).)

AMENDMENT

1956—Act July 24, 1956, substituted "a written or oral prescription" for "prescription" in subsecs. (a) and (b), and "affix to or place in" for "affix to", in subsec. (b).

§ 33-413. Authorized possession of narcotic drugs by individuals.

A person to whom or for whose use any narcotic drug has been prescribed, sold, or dispensed by a physician, dentist, apothecary, or other person authorized under the provisions of section 33-406, and the owner of any animal for which any such drug has been prescribed, sold, or dispensed, by a veterinarian, may lawfully possess it only in the container in which it was delivered to him by the person selling or dispensing the same. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 792, ch. 532, § 13.)

§ 33-414. Search warrants—Requirements—Form—Contents—Return—Penalty for interfering with service.

(a) A search warrant may be issued by any judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia or by a United States commissioner for the District of Columbia when any narcotic drugs are manufactured, possessed, controlled, sold, prescribed, administered, dispensed, or compounded, in violation of the provisions of this chapter, and any such narcotic drugs and any other property designed for use in connection with such unlawful manufacturing, possession, controlling, selling, prescribing, administering, dispensing, or compounding, may be seized thereunder, and shall be subject to such disposition as the court may make thereof and such narcotic drugs may be taken on the warrant from any house or other place in which they are concealed.

(b) A search warrant cannot be issued but upon probable cause supported by affidavit particularly describing the property and the place to be searched.

(c) The judge or commissioner must, before issuing the warrant, examine on oath the complainant and any witnesses he may produce, and require their affidavits or take their depositions in writing and cause them to be subscribed by the parties making them.

(d) The affidavits or depositions must set forth the facts tending to establish the grounds of the application or probable cause for believing that they exist.

(e) If the judge or commissioner is thereupon satisfied of the existence of the grounds of the application or that there is probable cause to believe their existence, he must issue a search warrant, signed by him, to the major and superintendent of police of the District of Columbia or any member of the Metropolitan police department, stating the particular grounds or probable cause for its issue and the names of the persons whose affidavits have been taken in support thereof, and commanding him forthwith to search the place named for the property specified and to bring it before the judge or commissioner.

(f) A search warrant may in all cases be served by any of the officers mentioned in its direction, but by no other person, except in aid of the officer on his requiring it, he being present and acting in its execution.

(g) The officer may break open any outer or inner door or window of a house, or any part of a house, or anything therein, to execute the warrant, if, after notice of his authority and purpose, he is refused admittance.

(h) The judge or commissioner shall insert a direction in the warrant that it may be served at any time in the day or night.

(i) A search warrant must be executed and returned to the judge or commissioner who issued it within ten days after its date; after the expiration of this time the warrant, unless executed, is void.

(j) When the officer takes property under the warrant, he must give a copy of the warrant together with a receipt for the property taken (specifying it in detail) to the person from whom it was taken by him, or in whose possession it was found; or in the absence of any person, he must leave it in the place where he found the property.

(k) The officer must forthwith return the warrant to the judge or commissioner and deliver to him a written inventory of the property taken, made publicly or in the presence of the person from whose possession it was taken, and of the applicant for the warrant, if they are present, verified by the affidavit of the officer at the foot of the inventory and taken before the judge or commissioner at the time, to the following in effect: "I, ———, the officer by whom this warrant was executed, do swear that the above inventory contains a true and detailed account of all the property taken by me on the warrant."

(l) The judge or commissioner must thereupon, if required, deliver a copy of the inventory to the person from whose possession the property was taken and to the applicant for the warrant.

(m) The judge or commissioner must annex the affidavits, search warrant, return, inventory, and evidence, and at once file the same, together with a copy of the record of his proceedings, with the clerk of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia.

(n) Whoever shall knowingly and willfully obstruct, resist, or oppose any such officer or person in serving or attempting to serve or execute any such search warrant, or shall assault, beat, or wound any such officer or person, knowing him to be an officer or person so authorized, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than two years. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 792, ch. 532, § 14; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 620, ch. 676, title III, § 301(k); July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570.)

REFERENCE IN TEXT

The Act of Oct. 17, 1968, Pub. L. 90-578, terminated the office of United States commissioner and established in place thereof the office of United States magistrate. The Act became operative in the District of Columbia on June 27, 1969, when two United States magistrates assumed the office pursuant to appointment by order of the District Court dated June 20, 1969. See §§ 401(a) and 402(a) (b) of said Act (28 U.S.C. 631 note).

AMENDMENTS

1970—Section 155(a) of Act July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, amended subsecs. (a) and (m) by striking out "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia".

1956—Act July 24, 1956, amended subsec. (h), which formerly read: "The judge or commissioner must insert a direction in the warrant, that it be served in the daytime unless the affidavit is positive that the property is in the place to be searched in which case he must insert a direction that it be served at any time in the day or night.", to read "The judge or commissioner shall insert a direction in the warrant that it may be served at any time in the day or night."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding § 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

"Municipal court for the District of Columbia" was substituted for "police court of the District of Columbia" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the Police Court and the Municipal Court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

The laws dealing with narcotics and drug problems are controlling over the general search warrant provisions of the United States and District of Columbia Codes. United States v. C. Thomas et al. (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 164; cert. denied 93 S.Ct. 341, 448, 409 U.S. 992).

Delay in execution

In this case, the court held that defendant failed to show that eight-day delay in executing search warrant after it was issued had prejudiced him. J. E. Curtis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 653).

Even an unreasonable time lag in execution of search warrant must prejudice defendant to render search invalid. Id.

Under this section which provides that the warrant command the search "forthwith" and that the warrant must be executed within 10 days after its date, delay within 10-day limitation does not, standing alone, vitiate warrant. W. J. Johnson v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 255 A. 2d 494).

Since prejudice was not claimed by reason of failure to execute search warrant until six days after its issuance, the delay did not vitiate the warrant and did not require suppression of evidence obtained pursuant to the warrant. Id.

Description of premises

In an appeal from an order of District of Columbia Court of General Sessions granting motion to suppress evidence, the court held that a warrant ordering search of "Entire Premises, 2nd Floor Front" at specified address described the place to be searched with sufficient particularity to be valid, and thus motion to suppress evidence seized should have been denied, though second floor of the premises was divided into two apartments, each fronting on street, where affidavit, referring to specific apartment number, was attached to the warrant and sufficiently referred to therein to enable officer executing warrant to look at affidavit and determine place intended. United States v. S. H. Moore et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 652; aff'd 461 F. 2d 1236, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 150).

Evidence

Evidence supported finding of intent necessary for convictions of petit larceny of meperidine and unlawful possession of meperidine and biphentamine. D. A. Fisher v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 553).

Execution of search warrant

This section providing that "the judge or commissioner shall insert a direction in the warrant that it may be served at any time in the day or night.", qualifies sections 23-521 to 23-523 permitting a nighttime execution of the search warrant if, and only if, there is an express authorization therefor pursuant to statute; the latter sections are applicable to nonnarcotic cases only. United States v. H. Green (1971, 331 F. Supp. 44).

Search warrant and its execution during the nighttime hours is proper in narcotics case where there is a showing of probable cause both as to its existence for its service at such time, and where it is accompanied by a supporting affidavit as well as by an insertion within the warrant as to when it could be served. Id.

Where none of the grounds set forth in § 23-522 for search warrant authorizing execution at night were included in either application or warrant, search made pursuant to warrant well after ending of daylight hours is invalid and evidence seized is subject to suppression, though warrant was issued in connection with alleged violations of federal narcotics laws. United States v. L. Gooding (1971, 328 F. Supp. 1005).

Requirement of this section that search warrant command search "forthwith" is to insure that probable cause existing when warrant issued also exists when it is executed. J. E. Curtis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 653).

Search warrant was properly executed, though police allegedly tricked defendant by allowing defendant to think that only janitor was at door of apartment, where door was opened three or four inches by defendant, and one of the officers thrust his badge and search warrant through aperture and stated that he had a search warrant, and when defendant started to run, the officer pulled door open, and night chain slipped off, and that officer then entered and placed defendant under arrest. C. Jones v. United States (1962, 304 F. 2d 381, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

Search and seizure

Defendant's cooperation, before arrest, with police was voluntary where he did not deny involvement of disappearance of meperidine and biphethamine but gave purported explanation thereof, voluntarily told police officer that packages in his automobile trunk were from employer, and repeated such statements to employer in officer's presence. D. A. Fisher v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 553).

A defendant charged with violation of narcotics laws had standing to contend that entry and subsequent seizure were unlawful notwithstanding he testified that property seized was not his and that place of arrest was not his home, where to hold that defendant's failure to acknowledge interest in narcotics or premises prevented his attack upon search, would be to permit the Government to have advantage of contradictory positions as basis for conviction, since conviction flowed from defendant's possession of narcotics at time of search, yet fruits of that search, upon which conviction depended, were admitted into evidence on ground that defendant did not have possession of narcotics at that time, so that prosecution subjected defendant to penalties meted out to one in lawless possession while refusing him remedies designed for one in that situation. Jones v. United States (1960, 80 S. Ct. 725, 362 U.S. 257, 4 L. Ed. 2d 697).

In prosecution for narcotics violation, evidence disclosing that experienced narcotic officer received information from an informant whom he knew to be a narcotics user that defendant and another person had a large quantity of narcotics at a certain address to which defendant would drive in a certain type of automobile and officer went to location and noticed automobile and defendant whom he recognized as one involved in narcotics traffic and saw him enter the premises described, there was probable cause for issuance of search warrant by commissioner. Brandon v. United States (1959, 270 F. 2d 311, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 118, certiorari denied 80 S. Ct. 808, 362 U.S. 943, 4 L. Ed. 2d 771).

In prosecution for violation of narcotics statute, trial judge properly denied defendant's motion to suppress evidence on ground of illegal arrest and subsequent search of premises, where articles which defendant desired to be suppressed for use as evidence were not enumerated or described in motion, and where they were not identified at hearing on motion. O'Neal v. United States of America (1955, 222 F. 2d 411, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 386).

Where police had warrant for drug peddler's arrest, had reason to believe that peddler lived in certain apartment building, had refrained from arresting peddler earlier only so as to make his arrest coincide with others, did not force any doors to defendant's apartment, were recognized as police without their announcing the fact, and, immediately upon entering defendant's apartment, announced their purpose of seeking peddler, their presence in defendant's apartment did not violate her constitutional rights, and police had right to arrest defendant for narcotics violations committed in their presence, and to seize evidence of those crimes. O'Neal v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 105 A. 2d 739, affirmed 222 F. 2d 411, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 386).

Sentences

Defendant's assignment of error relating to sentences imposed for conviction of petit larceny and unlawful possession of meperidine would not be considered, where such sentences were each less than sentence imposed for conviction of unlawful possession of biphethamine, and the conviction involving biphethamine was valid. D. A. Fisher v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 553).

Subject of search

Under the circumstances of this case, it was not unreasonable for officers to seize pistol which, as convicted felon, defendant was forbidden to possess, incidental to authorized search of his apartment for narcotics, in absence of showing that presence of pistol on premises was attributable to eight-day delay in execution of search warrant J. E. Curtis v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 653).

Where, in searching defendant's premises under a valid search warrant authorizing search for alcoholic beverages or any property designed for use in connection with violation of Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, police officer looked behind a movable partition closing off a fireplace and discovered two large clean paper bags in the midst of rubble, and although the feel and weight of such bags indicated to him that they did not contain bottles, the officer looked into the bags and discovered therein a quantity of marihuana, the officer's action in looking into the bags did not constitute an unreasonable search, but was lawful. United States v. White (D.C.D.C. 1954, 122 F. Supp. 664).

Issuance of search warrant

Affidavit reciting that confidential informant whose reliability had been proven told narcotics agents that defendant was selling heroin in his apartment, that agents furnished him with funds to purchase narcotics, and that informant was observed to enter the apartment building and then emerge, surrendering to agents a narcotic substance purchased from defendant, disclosed probable cause for issuance of the warrant. Jones v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 908, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 370).

Where officers searched informant and found him to be without money or drugs, supplied him with money, watched him enter premises of defendant and leave premises, and then searched informant and found that money had been spent and that drugs had been obtained, there was probable cause for issuance of search warrant. United States v. McKethan (D.C.D.C. 1965, 247 F. Supp. 324).

Affidavit for search warrant reciting that previously reliable sources had informed affiant that defendant and others were selling narcotics out of a certain apartment, that affiant had personally observed narcotics purchase taking place in building in question and that the suspects had been involved with narcotics in the past was sufficient to authorize issuance of search warrant. Siler v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1965, 215 A. 2d 478).

Failure of United States Commissioner, who granted application of narcotics agents for a search warrant, to take affidavit or deposition in writing of informant of narcotics agents was not fatal, where evidence before United States Commissioner from trained narcotics agents, who had personally observed known drug addicts and drug peddlers entering and leaving residence of defendant, and who had received information from reliable sources, was ample to support search warrant, without reference to oral statements of informant. Ward v. United States (1960, 281 F. 2d 917, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 282).

Where United States narcotics agents had residence of defendant under surveillance for some time prior to certain date, and on that date narcotics agents and detectives observed known drug addicts and peddlers entering and leaving defendant's residence, and at 9 p.m. on that date known drug peddler, shortly after leaving defendant's residence, was arrested and found to have heroin in his possession, and he admitted purchasing the heroin at defendant's residence, a search warrant was properly issued for search of defendant's residence. Id.

Where narcotics agents sought search warrant from United States Commissioner, issue was whether narcotics agents were fully warranted as men of reasonable caution in believing that an offense against narcotics laws had been and was being committed, and not whether they had information or evidence which would sustain a conviction or even a charge. Id.

If United States Commissioner is satisfied of existence of grounds of application for search warrant or that there is probable cause to believe their existence, he must issue a search warrant. Id.

§ 33-415. Persons and corporations exempted.

The provisions of this chapter restricting the possession and having control of narcotic drugs shall not apply to common carriers or to warehousemen, while engaged in lawfully transporting or storing such drugs, or to any employee of the same acting within the scope of his employment; or to public officers or their employees in the performance of their official duties requiring possession or control of narcotic drugs; or to temporary incidental possession by employees or agents of persons lawfully entitled to possession, or by persons whose possession is for the purpose of aiding public officers in performing their official duties. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 794, ch. 532, § 15.)

§ 33-416. Common nuisances.

Any store, shop, warehouse, dwelling-house, building, vehicle, boat, aircraft, or any place whatever, which is resorted to by narcotic drug addicts for the purpose of using narcotic drugs or which is used for the illegal keeping or selling of the same, shall be deemed a common nuisance. No person shall keep or maintain such a common nuisance. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 794, ch. 532, § 16.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Presence or employment in illegal establishments, see § 22-1515.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 23-546.

Elements of offense

In order to convict a defendant of keeping a place to which drug addicts resort for the purpose of using narcotic drugs, it is unnecessary to prove that drugs were or had been kept on the premises; however, such proof is essential to sustain a conviction of maintaining a place used for the illegal keeping or selling of narcotic drugs; and there must in addition be proof that the narcotic drugs kept or sold on the premises were of a usable or salable quantity. L. E. Gantt v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 350).

Evidence

In prosecution for violation of narcotics law, admission of testimony of officer that he found capsules of heroin hydrochloride on ground outside house and beneath open window of second story apartment where defendant and other persons were assembled, was not grounds for reversal, where there was nothing in record to show that any objection was made to such evidence. O'Neal v. United States of America (1955, 222 F. 2d 411, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 386).

This section declaring any place resorted to by narcotic drug addicts for purpose of using such drugs a common nuisance, which no person shall keep or maintain, does not impliedly require evidence that narcotic drugs were or had been kept on premises resorted to by addicts for such purpose in order to prove crime of keeping or maintaining such a nuisance. United States v. Williams (1954, 210 F. 2d 687, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 120).

There may be a conviction under this section of keeping a place resorted to by narcotic addicts for purpose of using narcotics, but not of keeping a place used for illegal keeping or selling of such drugs, without proof that narcotics had been kept on premises. Williams v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 101 A. 2d 843).

— Sufficiency

In this case the court agreed that at the time the motion for judgment of acquittal was made there existed sufficient evidence, including fact that narcotic paraphernalia was present in apartment and that rent receipts indicated defendant lived in the apartment, to present to a jury the question of whether defendant kept or maintained a place resorted to by drug addicts for the purpose of using drugs; and since, though it was doubtful whether a jury question existed on alternative charge that the defendant maintained a place used for the illegal keeping or selling of drugs, there was sufficient evidence to support a verdict of guilt of maintaining a common nuisance, and the trial court properly denied the acquittal motion. L. E. Gantt v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 350).

New trial

Under this section, defining as nuisance a place resorted to by narcotic addicts for purpose of using narcotics, or used for illegal keeping or selling of narcotics, where there was no evidence that narcotics had been kept on premises, but jury were led to believe that they might find defendant guilty of violating either or both provisions of this section, by argument of prosecuting attorney and by trial court's reading entire statute to jury without attempting to differentiate the two features, and where it could not be determined upon which feature verdict of guilty was based, conviction could not stand and would be reversed for new trial. Williams v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 101 A. 2d 843).

Prejudicial error

In a trial involving the owner of a rooming house for permitting marijuana to be smoked on his premises, it was not prejudicial error to a quash subpoena ad testificandum for a material defense witness who was awaiting trial on charges relating to the very transactions to which he would be requested to testify in owner's trial where trial court was familiar with evidence to which witness was to testify and witness' attorney had informed court that witness would invoke privilege against self-incrimination if he were called to testify. D. G. Harris v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 255 A. 2d 489).

Probable cause for arrest

Police, who were cruising area, had probable cause to arrest defendant, whom they had previously arrested for narcotics violation, when they saw him with known narcotics user, and evidence seized from person of defendant who, upon request, produced capsules from hand and pocket was admissible. A. O. Freeman v. United States (1963, 322 F. 2d 426, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 213).

Admission of testimony, at trial judge's request, that police officer had previously arrested defendant for narcotics violation was error which was prejudicial to defendant who did not take stand during his prosecution for narcotics violation. Id.

Police officers who were on routine investigation of report that heroin was being "capped" at rooming house and who saw paraphernalia used by narcotics addicts in room from public hallway to which they had been properly admitted had probable cause to enter the room to arrest defendant, and having done so, properly seized heroin found in envelope and the paraphernalia. Jennings v. United States (1957, 247 F. 2d 784, 101 U.S. App. D. C. 198).

Reversible error

In view of the evidence in this case, including witness' testimony that he had lived with defendant for about three months prior to his arrest and had used heroin in the apartment over five times, the trial court did not err in accepting a general verdict of guilt after instructing the jurors that they could find the defendant guilty of violating either or both alternative provisions of this section making it a common nuisance to maintain a place resorted to by narcotic drug addicts for the purpose of using narcotic drugs or to maintain a place used for the illegal keeping or selling of drugs. L. E. Gantt v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 267 A. 2d 350).

Sentence

Alternative sentence of 30 days in jail and fine of $500 or 90 days in jail is not invalid on the ground of denial of equal justice in assessing sentence without permitting fine to be collected through installment plan or suspending execution of sentence for fine on condition that defendant do specified daytime work to satisfy fine since the record does not show that the trial judge was aware of defendant's alleged indigency and the defendant made no postsentence motion to vacate or modify judgment of fine or imprisonment in lieu of paying fine. D. G. Harris v. United States (1971, 440 F. 2d 240, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 212).

Warrant of arrest

Where police officers received information from reliable informant in afternoon that person for whom arrest warrant was outstanding could be found at defendant's house, but officers made no attempt to serve warrant until 8:30 the next day, delay between time that officers received tip and time they went to defendant's house to make arrest did not negate their bona fide, reasonable belief that accused was still in the house, and narcotic drugs, which were found in a closet by police officers while making a search for persons sought after identifying themselves and forcing entry, were admissible against defendant. I. M. Palmer v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A.2d 801).

Where police had warrant for drug peddler's arrest, had reason to believe that peddler lived in certain apartment building, had refrained from arresting peddler earlier only so as to make his arrest coincide with others, did not force any doors to defendant's apartment, were recognized as police without their announcing the fact, and, immediately upon entering defendant's apartment, announced their purpose of seeking peddler, their presence in defendant's apartment did not violate her constitutional rights and police had right to arrest defendant for narcotics violations committed in their presence, and to seize evidence of those crimes. O'Neal v. United States of America (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 105 A.2d 739, affirmed 222 F.2d 411, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 386).

§ 33-416a. Vagrancy—Narcotic drug user—Penalties—Conditions imposed.

(a) The purpose of this section is to protect the public health, welfare, and safety of the people of the District of Columbia by providing safeguards for the people against harmful contact with narcotic drug users who are vagrants within the meaning of this section and to establish, in addition to sections 24-601 to 24-611, further procedures and means for the care and rehabilitation of such narcotic drug users.

(b) For the purpose of this section—

(1) the term "vagrant" shall mean any person who is a narcotic drug user or who has been convicted of a narcotic offense in the District of Columbia or elsewhere and who—

(A) having no lawful employment or visible means of support realized from a lawful occupation or source, is found mingling with others in public or loitering in any park or other public place and fails to give a good account of himself; or

(B) is found in any place, abode, house, shed, dwelling, building, structure, vehicle, conveyance, or boat, in which any illicit narcotic drugs are kept, found, used, or dispensed; or

(C) wanders about in public places at late or unusual hours of the night, either alone or in the company of or association with a narcotic drug user or convicted narcotic law violator, and fails to give a good account of himself; or

(D) is included within one of the classes of persons defined in paragraphs (1) through (9), inclusive, of section 22-3302;

(2) the term "narcotic drug user" shall mean any person who takes or otherwise uses narcotic drugs, except a person using such narcotic drug as a result of sickness or accident or injury, and to whom such narcotic drugs are being furnished, prescribed, or administered in good faith by a duly licensed physician in the course of his professional practice.

(c) Whenever any law-enforcement officer has probable cause to believe that any person is a vagrant within the meaning of this section, he is authorized to place that person under arrest and to confine him in any place in the District of Columbia designated by the Commissioner thereof.

(d) Pending arraignment and without unnecessary delay the person arrested as a vagrant within the meaning of this section shall have the opportunity to be examined by a physician designated by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia, who shall determine whether there is evidence of narcotic drug usage.

(e) If the physician designated by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia is satisfied that the person examined is not a narcotic drug user, or if there is insufficient evidence of narcotic drug usage, the United States Attorney shall, if the said person is not otherwise chargeable as a vagrant within the meaning of this section, bring such matter to the attention of the Corporation Counsel for the District of Columbia for determination as to whether there shall be a prosecution under the provisions of section 22-3302.

(f) Upon affirmative determination that the person arrested is a narcotic drug user, or if the person has been convicted of a narcotic offense in the District of Columbia or elsewhere, and if such person is also a vagrant as hereinbefore defined, he shall be charged with the offense of vagrancy within the meaning of this section and arraigned in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia where the prosecution shall be conducted in the name of the United States by the United States attorney.

(g) Any person convicted of being a vagrant under the provisions of this section shall be punished by fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

(h) The court, in sentencing any person found guilty under the provisions of this section, may in its own discretion or upon the recommendation of the probation officer, impose conditions upon the service of any such sentence. Conditions thus imposed by the court may include submission to medical and mental examination, and treatment by proper public health and welfare authorities; confinement at such place as may be designated by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia, and such other terms and conditions as the court may deem best for the protection of the community and the punishment, control, and rehabilitation of the defendant.

(i) In all prosecutions under the provisions of this section, the burden of proof shall be upon the defendant to show that he has lawful employment or has lawful means of support realized from a lawful occupation or source. (June 20, 1938, ch. 532, § 16A, as added July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 620, ch. 676, title III, § 301 (1); July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 157(d), 84 Stat. 574.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 157(d) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended subsection (f) by striking out "United States branch of the municipal court" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 304 of act July 24, 1956, provided that: "Sub-section (1) of section 301 of this title [this section] shall take effect thirty days after the date of its enactment [July 24, 1956]."

CHANGE OF NAME

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "Municipal Court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded Act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions. See section 11-101.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

Acquittal on appeal

Court of Appeals, on reversing convictions for narcotic vagrancy, maintaining common nuisance, and possession of narcotics, for failure of evidence to show that defendants had in their possession more than trace of heroin, would not remand for new trial, where there was no showing that government had additional proof that actual amounts involved were more than mere traces that were actually usable or saleable as narcotics. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

Burden of proof as to lawful employment

In prosecution for narcotics vagrancy under statute defining vagrant as any person who is a narcotic drug user or who has been convicted of a narcotic offense and who is found in any place or vehicle in which any illicit narcotic drugs are kept, found, used, or dispensed, mere presence of defendant as passenger in back seat of automobile in which narcotics paraphernalia was found did not impose on defendant burden of proof under statutory provision that burden of proof shall be on defendant to show that he has lawful employment or has lawful means of support realized from lawful occupation or source. H. C. Wilson v. United States (1966, 366 F. 2d 666, 125 U.S. App. D.C. 87).

Concurrent sentences

Where defendant received identical concurrent sentences in prosecution for illegal possession of narcotics and narcotics vagrancy, failure to charge scenter in narcotics vagrancy information did not require vacation of judgment on such charge, absent collateral consequences warranting vacation. J. D. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 659).

Where defendants received concurrent sentences in prosecution for possession of narcotics, possession of implements of crime, unlawful entry and narcotics vagrancy and evidence was sufficient to support conviction of possession of narcotics and possession of implements of crime, District of Columbia Court of Appeals would not pass upon sufficiency of evidence to support other convictions. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Constitutionality

Burden put upon prior narcotics offenders and narcotics users by this section, as those most likely to engage in illicit narcotics traffic, of absenting themselves from places where the narcotics are kept or used is not impermissible deprivation of freedom of movement. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

This section which defines as a vagrant any unemployed narcotic user or who has been convicted as a narcotic offender without lawful and visible means of support who is found in public place and fails to give good account of himself did not enable citizens of ordinary intellect to distinguish wrong from right and was unconstitutional. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States (1968, 414 F. 2d 1111, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

The Court is not at liberty to ignore shortcomings of statutory language, or rationalize its validity, simply on basis of methods associated with its administration. Id.

This section which was vague and indefinite could not be rendered constitutional by the unpublicized scope limitations which its enforcement plan espouses. Id.

Since under the Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes anyone using street for a lawful business in a lawful manner may do so without restriction, statutes are not an unreasonable restriction on freedom of movement in violation of due process clause of Fifth Amendment. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1111, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Convictions for violation of Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes were not invalid on ground that defendants were being punished solely for their status as vagrants. Id.

Convictions of defendants for violation of Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes on proof showing defendants' associations with known narcotics users and prostitutes did not violate Eighth Amendment's prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment despite claim that there was an absence of any overt criminal act. Id.

Narcotic vagrancy statute defining vagrant as any person who is narcotic drug user or has been convicted of narcotic offense and is found in any vehicle in which illicit narcotic drugs are found is not void for vagueness on theory that it could be applied unreasonably in hypothetical situations. H. C. Wilson v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 212 A. 2d 805).

Narcotic vagrancy statute is not unconstitutional on theory that it imposes cruel and unusual punishment, in view of requirement under the statute of something more than mere showing of status of narcotic addiction in order to establish violation. Id.

Narcotic vagrancy statute is constitutional although it does not require proof of intent. Id.

Statute providing for greater punishment for acts of vagrancy by narcotics users than by nonusers did not in violation of constitution impose cruel and inhuman punishment on narcotics users. J. E. Rucker, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 212 A. 2d 766).

Whether narcotic vagrancy statute could be applied unreasonably in certain hypothetical situations so as to be unconstitutional for vagueness would not be considered where it was reasonably applied to defendants in possession of narcotics and narcotic paraphernalia. A. B. Brooke and James S. Goodman v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 208 A. 2d 726).

This section, defining "vagrant" as any person who is a narcotic drug user or who has been convicted of narcotic offense and who, having no lawful employment, etc., is found mingling with other narcotic users, etc., which places the burden upon such defendant to show that he has lawful employment or lawful means of support, as construed to require the government first to prove preliminary elements of offense before placing burden of proof upon defendant, is not unconstitutional as restricting a defendant's freedom of movement in stating with whom he can or cannot associate, since it does not unreasonably interfere with any citizen's freedom of movement or association. Jenkins v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 146 A. 2d 444).

Construction

Without requirement of knowledge by defendant that he is in place wherein narcotics are kept, found, used, or dispensed, this section would violate due process; but this section is construed to require knowledge on part of defendant, and, so construed, is constitutionally valid; overruling in part Harris v. United States, D.C. Mun. App., 162 A. 2d 503. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

This section was designed in large part to punish participants in narcotics traffic, and as such does not fit into class of offenses in which absolute criminal liability is imposed. Id.

When an individual is unable to give a good account to police when wandering at late and unusual hours and is associated with criminals or narcotics addicts and is not lawfully employed, these factors, together with others enumerated in statutes, constitute probable cause for arrest for vagrancy. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1111, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Vagrancy statutes were not invalid on ground that they were "catch-alls" used when other crimes could not be proven or that they allegedly required a lesser quantum of proof to convict. Id.

Word "loitering" as used in Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes was not unconstitutionally vague, particularly where additional conditions were necessary to constitute offense. Id.

Reference to "failure to give a good account" as used in Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes restricts rather than enlarges application of statutes and allows suspected vagrant to dissipate probable cause by satisfactorily explaining his conduct, and the arresting officer is not the only one who must evaluate account given by person questioned. Id.

Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes delineate with specificity what vagrancy is, and the definitions are neither numerous nor susceptible to widely divergent interpretations. Id.

Custodial interrogation

Questions addressed to three defendants by arresting officers seeking an explanation for defendants' being in condemned house were noncoercive and not "custodial interrogation" within rule of Miranda v. State of Arizona. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Duty to arrest

Elements of offense

Presence of narcotics is not essential element of common nuisance offense when addicts are shown to frequent premises for purpose of using narcotics, but there can be no conviction for maintaining place used for illegal keeping or sale of narcotics without also showing that such drugs were or had been kept on premises. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

Evidence

In prosecution for narcotics vagrancy, evidence failed to establish that house in which the narcotics were found was actually a rooming house rather than a notorious gambling and drinking house. Harris v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 503).

Mere fact that certain narcotics were found outside a house in which defendant, who was charged with narcotics vagrancy, was arrested did not prevent a finding that he was in a house or place where narcotics were kept, in view of fact the narcotics were seen being thrown out of and falling from a window in the house, and in view of fact one metal cap with traces of heroin was found in the house. Id.

In vagrancy prosecution under this section, defining "vagrant" as one who is a narcotic drug user or who has been convicted of narcotic offense, evidence was sufficient for jury or issue of defendant's guilt. Jenkins v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 146 A. 2d 444).

In vagrancy prosecution under this section, defining "vagrant" as one who is a narcotic drug user or one who wanders around in company with narcotic drug user or convicted narcotic law violator, failure to show that defendant knew that the three men with whom he was found were drug users or convicted drug law violators did not preclude conviction, since statute makes no reference to guilty knowledge and it would be wrong for courts to require such proof in such a case. Id.

Admissibility

Where defendants' arrest for narcotics violations was legal, narcotics paraphernalia seized at time of the arrest was properly admitted in defendants' joint trial for narcotics violations. S. Keith, R. L. Payne and T. J. Walker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 92).

Sufficiency

Where as a matter of reasonable probability there was no possibility for misidentification and adulteration of certain narcotic evidence, missing link in government's chain of possession of the narcotics evidence does not warrant reversal of convictions of unlawful possession of narcotic drug, narcotic vagrancy and presence in illegal establishment. B. Spade v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 654).

Absence of any proof that defendants had in their possession more than trace of heroin or that such trace could be used or dispensed as narcotic required reversal of convictions for narcotic vagrancy, maintaining common nuisance, and possession of narcotics. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

Where there is only trace of substance, a chemical constituent not quantitatively determined because of minuteness, and there is no additional proof of its usability as narcotics, there can be no conviction under statute making it illegal for person to maintain place resorted to by drug addicts for purpose of using narcotic drugs or used for illegal keeping or sale of same. Id.

Evidence was insufficient to support conviction for violation of Narcotics Vagrancy Statute. N. Baker v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 323).

Government's burden of proof

To prove violation of statute making it illegal for any person to keep or maintain any place resorted to by drug addicts for purpose of using narcotic drugs or used for illegal keeping or sale of same, government must show either that addicts resort to such premises for use of narcotics or that premises are maintained or used for illegal sale, use or possession of narcotics. L. Marshall and K. Watkins v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 229 A. 2d 449).

In absence of proof of contemporaneous use, conviction for narcotic vagrancy necessitates additional showing of presence of quantity of narcotics sufficient to be used or dispensed, not mere immeasurable trace. Id.

Guilty plea

That defendant's family advised him to plead guilty to charges of possessing narcotic drugs, narcotic drug vagrancy, and driving without permit did not make guilty plea, entered after consultation with counsel, involuntary although defendant's father, who advised a guilty plea, was helping to support defendant's family. J. P. Thomas, Jr. v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 2d 520).

Identity of names

In vagrancy prosecution wherein the government was required to prove that defendant was "a narcotic drug user or [one] who has been convicted of a narcotic offense", record of defendant's drug-act conviction was not improperly admitted because his character was not in issue and though there was no verbal testimony that he was the same "William Jenkins" named in certified record of conviction the identity of names will be accepted as prima facie evidence of identity of persons. Jenkins v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 146 A. 2d 444).

Information—Sufficiency

Information charging defendant with narcotics vagrancy is insufficient for failure to allege knowledge of presence of illicit narcotics in basement in which defendant was found. F. L. Brooks v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 45).

Joinder

In this case, the court held the offenses of possession of narcotics and of narcotics vagrancy, largely based on same transaction, were of "similar character," such that joinder of the charges was permissible. J. D. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 659).

Knowledge

Proof of knowledge of presence of narcotics, required in prosecutions under this section, will usually take form of inference to be drawn from defendant's proximity to or connection with narcotics, and not merely from presence in one part of large building in which narcotics are found. United States v. M. C. McClough et al. (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 48).

Charges of narcotics vagrancy violations under this section would be dismissed without prejudice, where information failed to allege knowledge on part of defendants of presence of illicit narcotics in residence in which narcotic drugs were found. Id.

Scienter or guilty knowledge is not a necessary element of the crime of narcotics vagrancy, and court, in a prosecution for such crime, did not err in charging jury to that effect. Harris v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 503; overruled in part by 263 A. 2d 48).

The government need not prove guilty knowledge as an element of the crime of narcotics vagrancy. Id.

In proscribing the activities of narcotics vagrants, the law places the burden upon the violator to know the character of his associates and the nature of the places where he visits, and requires him to exercise a degree of care so that narcotics violations are thereby made impossible or improbable. Id.

Narcotics Users

Statute providing for greater punishment for acts of vagrancy by narcotics users than by nonusers did not in violation of constitution impose cruel and inhuman punishment on narcotics users. J. E. Rucker, Jr. v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 212 A. 2d 766).

Prior convictions

One can be found guilty of violating either Narcotics Vagrancy Statute or the General Vagrancy Statute without having been previously convicted. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1111, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Both the Narcotics Vagrancy Statute and General Vagrancy Statute employ separate paragraphs which disjunctively set up criteria amounting to vagrancy and both require factors, other than prior convictions, which conjunctively amount to violation, so that prior convictions are not essential to all subsections of the statutes. Id.

Prior convictions of accused are admissible in prosecution for violation of vagrancy statutes. Id.

Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes do not improperly require presentation and proof of prior convictions, and do not deny due process and fair trial. Id.

Probable cause for arrest

Probable cause for arrest of defendant under this section, which defines a "vagrant" as any unemployed narcotic user or convicted narcotic offender without lawful means of support who is found in a public place and who fails to give a good account of himself, was not made out simply by conduct ostensibly within the purview of the section, which was later declared unconstitutional on ground of vagueness, so that defendant, who was convicted after his arrest of violation of the federal narcotics law, was deprived of his Fourth Amendment rights since he was a victim of a search based upon such arrest. L. A. Hall v. United States (1972, 459 F. 2d 831, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 42).

Arrest for vagrancy without warrant was justified under evidence, including testimony of experienced police officers that they had observed defendant in company of known prostitutes and narcotics violators on four occasions during two nights, defendant's warrantless arrest for vagrancy was not without probable cause. J. L. Worthy v. United States (1968, 409 F. 2d 1105, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Sale of narcotics made by defendant and witnessed by police earlier in day furnished probable cause for arrest of defendant when search of apartment under warrant disclosed capsules similar to those used for storing narcotics and containing traces of white powder and one of searching officers observed "tracks or needle marks" on defendant's arm. W. E. Hogan v. United States (1966, 364 F. 2d 669, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 276).

Even if arrest of one automobile occupant who was recognized by officer as thief and narcotic user and who was found to have narcotics was lawful, that did not constitute probable cause for arresting defendant, another occupant of automobile, as narcotics vagrant, arrest was illegal and evidence of needle marks on defendant's arms and his statement after arrest that he was narcotic user were not admissible against him, in prosecution under narcotic vagrancy statute. A. Lyons v. United States (D.C. App. 1966, 221 A. 2d 711).

Arrest by police officer after entering defendant's room without first announcing purpose for such entry was lawful and seizure following arrest was valid, where officer, on looking through a crack in a door, had seen defendant, surrounded by illegal narcotics accessories, injecting himself. P. C. Reid v. United States, D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 2d 867).

Police, who were cruising area, had probable cause to arrest defendant, whom they had previously arrested for narcotics violation, when they saw him with known narcotics user, and evidence seized from person of defendant who, upon request, produced capsules from hand and pocket was admissible. A. O. Freeman v. United States (1963, 322 F. 2d 462, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 213).

Admission of testimony, at trial judge's request, that police officer had previously arrested defendant for narcotics violation was error which was prejudicial to defendant who did not take stand during his prosecution for narcotics violation. Id.

Purpose of statute

A course of conduct rather than an overt act is prohibited by the Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes. H. M. Ricks and J. N. Williams v. United States; H. M. Ricks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 316; rev'd 414 F. 2d 1111, 134 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

Purpose of Narcotics Vagrancy and General Vagrancy Statutes is to prevent crimes which may likely flow from the vagrant's mode of life. Id.

Remarks of court

In prosecution for vagrancy wherein jury informed court that it would like to know whether a woman, who was married, by fact of her marriage had a lawful means of support, court's reply that some of world's best known bums were married women was uncalled-for, not responsive to question asked by jury, could well have had a prejudicial effect and required reversal. Moore v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 156 A. 2d 461).

Review

Defendant convicted of federal narcotics offenses was entitled to reversal where he was the first litigant to prevail on the claim that Fourth Amendment deficiencies of this section, which defines a "vagrant" as any unemployed narcotic user or convicted narcotic offender without lawful and visible means of support who is found in a public place and who fails to give a good account of himself, nullified an arrest and search under such statute, under rule that parties establishing new constitutional precepts uniformly enjoy the gain therefrom as an unavoidable consequence of the necessity that constitutional adjudications shall not stand as mere dictum. L. A. Hall v. United States (1972, 459 F. 2d 831, 148 U.S. App. D.C. 42).

On appeal from judgment of conviction under this section defining a "vagrant" as a narcotic user, etc., who among other things associates with narcotic users or narcotic law violators, where jury charge was not in record and no error had been assigned with reference thereto. Court of Appeals would assume that in instructing jury judge covered the matter of defendant's alleged lack of knowledge that associates were narcotic law violators accurately and satisfactorily. Jenkins v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 146 A. 2d 444).

Search

Although it is incident to an arrest for vagrancy the search was not for that reason required to be limited to a frisk. J. L. Worthy v. United States (1968, 409 F. 2d 1105, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

Vagrancy defined

"Vagrancy" is a status or condition declared wrong by law, and punishment is directed against one who places himself in such status. Jenkins v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 146 A. 2d 444).

Warrant of arrest

Four-month old warrant for arrest under which police officers forced entry to apartment was not stale where there was no evidence that officer had deliberately refrained from executing it and evidence showed that unsuccessful attempts had been made to locate defendant subsequently convicted for possession of narcotics and that prompt steps were taken to make arrest when officers learned where he could be found. A. B. Brooke and J. S. Goodman v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 208 A. 2d 726).

§ 33-417. Forfeiture by unlawful possession—Disposition.

All narcotic drugs, the lawful possession of which is not established or the title to which cannot be ascertained, which come into the custody of a peace officer shall be delivered promptly to the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate for disposal in accordance with the provisions of section 4733 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, except that narcotic drugs which may be needed as evidence in any criminal or administrative proceeding pursuant to the provisions of this chapter or the provisions of any Federal narcotic law shall, upon delivery to the Secretary of the Treasury, not be so disposed of until the United States attorney for the District of Columbia or any assistant United States attorney shall certify that such narcotic drugs are no longer needed as evidence. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 794, ch. 532, § 17; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 621, ch. 676, title III, § 301 (m).)

§ 33-418. Notice of conviction to be sent to licensing board—Revocation, suspension, and reinstatement of license.

On the conviction of any person of the violation of any provision of this chapter, a copy of the judgment and sentence, and of the opinion of the court or magistrate, if any opinion be filed, shall be sent by the clerk of the court, or by the magistrate, to the board or officer, if any, by whom the convicted defendant has been licensed or registered to practice his profession or to carry on his business, and the said board or officer may in its or his discretion suspend or revoke the license of the convicted defendant to practice his profession or to carry on his business. On the application of any person whose license or registration has been suspended or revoked, and upon proper showing for good cause, said board or officer may reinstate such license or registration. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 795, ch. 532, § 18.)

Prescriptions, orders, and records, required by this chapter, and stocks of narcotic drugs, shall be open for inspection only to federal and District of Columbia officers whose duty it is to enforce the laws of the District of Columbia, or of the United States relating to narcotic drugs. No officer having knowledge by virtue of his office of any such prescription, order, or record shall divulge such knowledge, except in connection with a prosecution or proceeding in court or before a licensing or registration board or officer, to which prosecution or proceeding the person to whom such prescriptions, orders, or records relate is a party. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 795, ch. 532, § 19.)

§ 33-420. Obtaining a narcotic drug unlawfully—Communication to physician not privileged—False statements or false personation in procurement—False label—Application to section 33-410.

(a) No person shall obtain or attempt to obtain a narcotic drug, or procure or attempt to procure the administration of a narcotic drug, (1) by fraud, deceit, misrepresentation, or subterfuge; or (2) by the forgery or alteration of a prescription or of any written order; or (3) by the concealment of a material fact; or (4) by the use of a false name or the giving of a false address.

(b) Information communicated to a physician in an effort unlawfully to procure a narcotic drug, or unlawfully to procure the administration of any such drug, shall not be deemed a privileged communication.

(c) No person shall wilfully make a false statement in any prescription, order, report, or record, required by this chapter.

(d) No person shall, for the purpose of obtaining a narcotic drug, falsely assume the title of, or represent himself to be, a manufacturer, wholesaler, apothecary, physician, dentist, veterinarian, or other authorized person.

(e) No person shall make or utter any false or forged prescription or false or forged written order.

(f) No person shall affix any false or forged label to a package or receptacle containing narcotic drugs.

(g) The provisions of this section shall apply to all transactions relating to narcotic drugs under the provisions of section 33-410, in the same way as they apply to transactions under all other sections. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 795, ch. 532, § 20.)

(June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 796, ch. 532, § 21.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Government's burden of proof

Part of government's prima facie case in prosecution for unlawful possession of narcotics is to prove that a substance in defendant's possession is proscribed as a narcotic drug under the statutory scheme of narcotics control. R. M. Edelin v. United States (D. C. App. 1967, 227 A. 2d 395).

§ 33-422. Enforcement—Employees of Board of Pharmacy—Salaries—Cost of forms.

It is hereby made the duty of the major and superintendent of police of the District of Columbia to enforce all provisions of this chapter, except those specifically delegated, and to cooperate with all agencies charged with the enforcement of the laws of the United States relating to narcotic drugs.

The Commissioner of the District of Columbia is authorized to employ such personal services for the clerical work of the Board of Pharmacy as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this chapter and to provide for the expenses of said board, including the cost of preparation and distribution of such official order forms as may be provided by the regulations of the Board of Pharmacy. Salaries of employees shall be fixed in accordance with chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]. The Commissioner of the District of Columbia shall include in his annual estimates such amounts as may be required for the salaries and expenses herein authorized. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 796, ch. 532, § 22; Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 972, ch. 782, title XI, § 1106(a).)

CODIFICATION

The reference in this section to "chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of employees and related matters]" was substituted for "the Classification Act of 1949", on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, set out in note under § 1-251. The Classification Act of 1949, as amended (Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 954, ch. 782, as amended), was repealed by act Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a) (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law), and is now covered by the provisions of title 5, U.S.C., cited.

AMENDMENT

1949—Act Oct. 28, 1949, § 1106(a), which was a part of the Classification Act of 1949, and which has since been repealed, substituted "Classification Act of 1949" for "Classification Act of 1923". See codification note above.

(a) Except as hereinafter provided, a person violating any provision of this chapter, or any regulation made by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia or the District of Columbia Council under authority of this chapter, for which no specific penalty is otherwise provided, shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both.

(c) For additional penalties for two or more violations of this chapter, see sections 22-104 and 22-104a. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 796, ch. 532, § 23; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 622, ch. 676, title III, § 301 (n); July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 208, title II, 84 Stat. 603.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Sentence

In prosecution for possession of heroin, action of the trial court in demanding, before imposing sentence, that defendant reveal in open court the name of his drug supplier is inappropriate, but is not basis for disturbing sentence of six months' imprisonment, despite contention that trial court imposed sentence of imprisonment rather than probation solely to penalize defendant for failure to name his supplier, since the defendant had acknowledged his guilt and had three prior convictions, including narcotics felony, and sentence imposed was but one-half of what could have been imposed. V. M. Wilson v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 278 A. 2d 461).

§ 33-424. Effect of acquittal or conviction under Federal narcotic laws.

No person shall be prosecuted for a violation of any provision of this chapter if such person has been acquitted or convicted under any United States statute governing the sale or distribution of narcotic drugs, of the same act or omission which, it is alleged, constitutes a violation of this chapter. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 796, ch. 532, § 24.)

§ 33-425. Separability of provisions.

If any provision of this chapter or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of the chapter which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this chapter are declared to be severable. (June 20, 1938, 52 Stat. 796, ch. 532, § 25.)

Possession of phenobarbital, unless obtained on proper prescription or under certain conditions prescribed by statute, was prohibited. W. W. Reed v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 210 A. 2d 845).

§ 33-702. Prohibited acts.

(a) Except as otherwise provided by sections 33-703 and 33-704, the following acts, the failure to act as hereinafter set forth, and the causing of any such act or failure are hereby declared unlawful:

(1) The delivery of any dangerous drug unless—

(A) such dangerous drug is delivered by a pharmacist, upon a prescription, and there is affixed to the immediate container of such or in which such drug is delivered a label bearing (i) the name and address of the owner of the establishment from which such drug was delivered; (ii) the date on which the prescription for such drug was filled; (iii) the number of such prescription as filed in the prescription files of the pharmacist who filled such prescription; (iv) the name of the practitioner who prescribed such drug; (v) the name and address of the patient, and if such drug was prescribed for an animal, a statement of the species of the animal; and (vi) the directions for the use of the drug, as contained in the prescription; or

(B) such dangerous drug is delivered to a practitioner by a pharmacist for his professional use in his practice; in which case the pharmacist may deliver the drug without affixing any additional label to the original package of such drug and must immediately record such sale and delivery by filing a suitable record of such sale and delivery in the prescription file as maintained for prescriptions for such drugs; or

(2) The refilling of any prescription for a dangerous drug except as designated on the prescription, or by the consent of the practitioner.

(3) The delivery of a dangerous drug upon prescription unless the pharmacist who filled such prescription files and retains it as required by section 33-705.

(b) Nothing in this section shall be construed to relieve any person with respect to dangerous drugs, from any requirement prescribed by or under the authority of sections 352 and 353 (b)) of title 21, U. S. Code. (July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 613, ch. 676, title II, § 203.)

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 23-546, 33-704, 33-710.

Amendment of information

Granting government's motion to amend information, after presentation of all evidence and after government had rested its case, to read "make or utter" rather than "make and utter" a forged prescription for purpose of obtaining dangerous drug did not change nature of offense or charge additional violation and constituted proper exercise of judicial discretion. G. D. Bobrow v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 225 A. 2d 311).

Assistance of counsel

Where the essential element of the government's proof was that two defendants, either jointly or severally, were in position to exercise dominion over two-room basement apartment in which narcotic paraphernalia and dangerous drug were found, but counsel representing both defendants jointly made no effort to develop on direct examination testimony, elicited by government on cross-examination, that one defendant's residence in apartment had been of temporary nature and in closing argument failed to comment on that testimony, that defendant was prejudiced by joint representation and was denied the effective assistance of counsel. P. D. McIver v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 280 A. 2d 527).

Where defense counsel, jointly representing defendant and codefendant, elicited testimony that defendant was a resident in two-room apartment in which narcotic paraphernalia and dangerous drug were found and defense counsel opened door to testimony that defendant had been seen to use heroin at apartment thereby involving defendant with narcotics in very substantial way, since obviously someone must have had such control at apartment as to give rise to presumption of constructive possession of articles seized, the defendant was prejudiced by joint representation and was denied effective assistance of counsel. Id.

Basis for search warrant

Quantitatively, the information in support of a search warrant in narcotics case must be that from which a reasonable man could conclude that there probably are illicit paraphernalia on the premises to be searched. Logically this is less evidence than that required to convict. United States v. J. D. Kuch (1969, 301 F. Supp. 965).

Burden of proving statutory exception

When exception to statutory crime is not so incorporated in its enacting clause, burden of showing that exception applies is upon one asserting its applicability. W. W. Reed v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 210 A. 2d 845).

Defendant found in possession of phenobarbital had burden of proving that his possession fell within some statutory exception to prohibition against possession of such drug. Id.

Evidence—Admissibility

Police officers who observed, from ten feet away, the defendant giving something out of a vial to codefendant in exchange for an amount of cash in "high narcotic area" neighborhood had probable cause to arrest defendants, and desoxyn tablets seized in search incident to such arrest were properly admitted into evidence in prosecution for possession of desoxyn tablets in violation of this section. A. J. Peterkin v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 281 A. 2d 567; cert. denied 92 S.Ct. 1788, 406 U.S. 922).

— Sufficiency

Testimony of officer that he saw defendant, who was being booked in cell block, reach into defendant's pocket and remove white napkin containing pills which were stipulated to be phenobarbital sustained conviction for possession of dangerous drug. W. W. Reed v. United States (D.C. App. 1965, 210 A. 2d 845).

Voir dire examination

In prosecution for violation of statutes relating to marihuana and dangerous drugs, where defendant's conviction was based on the testimony of an undercover police officer who had befriended him, trial court committed reversible error in refusing defense counsel's request that court ask, on voir dire examination, whether any of the jurors were inclined to give more weight to testimony of a police officer merely because he is a police officer than any other witness in the case. Sellers v. United States (1959, 271 F. 2d 475, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 209).

§ 33-703. Drugs exempted.

Nothing in this chapter shall apply to a compound, mixture, or preparation which is delivered or acquired in good faith for the purpose for which it is intended and not for the purpose of evading the provisions of this chapter if—

(1) such compound, mixture, or preparation of barbituric acid, its salts and derivatives shall be declared by rule or regulation duly promulgated by the District of Columbia Council after reasonable public notice and opportunity for hearing to have or to contain no habit-forming properties and not to have a dangerously toxic or hypnotic or somnifacient effect on the body of a human or animal; or

(2) such compound, mixture, or preparation of amphetamine, desoxyephedrine, phenylethylamine, or their salts or derivatives shall be found and declared by rule or regulation duly promulgated by the District of Columbia Council after reasonable public notice and opportunity for hearing to contain in addition to such drug or its salts and derivatives some other drug or drugs causing it to possess other than an excessively stimulating effect upon the central nervous system and to have no habit-forming properties or dangerously toxic effect upon the body of a human or animal.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNCIL

Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the regulatory and other functions of the Board of Commissioners, under subsections (1) and (2) to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of the Plan, set out in the appendix to title 1.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 33-702.

§ 33-704. Exemption of persons.

The provisions of subparagraphs (1) (A) and (1) (D) and paragraph (4) of section 33-702 (a) shall not be applicable (1) to the delivery of dangerous drugs to persons included in any of the classes hereinafter named, or to agents or employees of such persons, for use in the normal or usual course of their business or practice or in the performance of their official duties, as the case may be; or (2) to the possession of dangerous drugs by such persons or their agents or employees for such use:

(A) Pharmacists.

(B) Practitioners.

(C) Persons who procure dangerous drugs (i) for handling by or under the supervision of pharmacists or practitioners, or (ii) for the purpose of lawful research, teaching, or testing and not for resale.

(E) Laboratories which procure dangerous drugs for lawful medical and scientific purposes.

(F) Officers or employees of appropriate enforcement agencies of Federal, State, District of Columbia, or local governments, pursuant to their official duties.

(H) Manufacturers' representatives and drug salesmen.

(I) Carriers and warehousemen.

(July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 615, ch. 676, title II, § 205.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 33-701, 33-702, 33-705.

§ 33-705. Records.

(a) Persons (other than carriers and practitioners) listed in paragraphs (A) through (I) of section 33-704 shall—

(1) make, within thirty days after the effective date of this chapter, and biennially thereafter, a complete record of all stocks of dangerous drugs on hand, such records to be held for a period of two years, and

(2) retain all such commercial or other records, including invoices, relating to dangerous drugs received or maintained by them in the course of their business or occupation, or as required by this title, for not less than two calendar years immediately following the date of such record.

(b) Pharmacists shall, in addition to complying with the provisions of subsection (a) hereof, retain each prescription or notation of sale to practitioners for a dangerous drug received by them, for not less than two calendar years immediately following the date of the filling of the order or prescription and a complete record of each refilling of such prescription. (July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 615, ch. 676, title II, § 206.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 33-702, 33-706.

§ 33-706. Inspection.

Prescriptions, orders and records, required by section 33-705, and stocks of dangerous drugs shall be opened for inspection—

(1) upon written request, to any officer or employee duly designated by the Commissioner at all reasonable hours for the purpose of inspection and copying; and, any person upon whom such request is served shall accord to such officer or employee full opportunity to check the correctness of such files or records, including the opportunity to make inventory of all stocks of dangerous drugs on hand; and it shall be unlawful for any such person to fail to make such files or records available or to accord such opportunity to check their correctness, or

(2) to District of Columbia officers whose duty it is to enforce the laws of the District of Columbia, or of the United States, relating to dangerous drugs. No officer having knowledge by virtue of his office of any such prescription, order, or record shall divulge such knowledge, except in connection with a prosecution or proceeding in court or before a licensing or registration board or officer, in which such prescriptions, orders, or records may be pertinent.

Authority of District Council

District of Columbia City Council does not have authority under either its police power or the Insurance Code to pass insurance regulations designed to prohibit geographic discrimination and arbitrary cancellation of policies within the District. Firemen's Insurance Company of Washington v. W. E. Washington et al. (1971, 333 F. Supp. 951).

Domestic corporations

Sections 646 and 647 of 1901 code (§§ 35-102, 35-103), "were intended to apply to companies organized without the District and doing business within the District." American Home Life Ins. Co. v. Drake (30 App. D.C. 263).

Engaging in insurance

Statutes regulating business of insurance were not intended for application to all organizations having some element of risk assumption or distribution in their operations. Metropolitan Police Retiring Ass'n Inc. v. W. N. Tobriner et al. (1962, 306 F. 2d 775, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

The legislation relating to insurance in District of Columbia is so elaborate that court is not inclined to strain its coverage to include an activity left uncovered by the ordinary meaning of language used. Id.

The absence of a profit motive and facts that Metropolitan Police Retiring Association possesses a representative government and engages in no solicitation of the public, add some though not controlling support to review that its activities are not within scope of statute primarily designed to protect insured vis-a-vis the insurer. Id.

Where Metropolitan Police Retiring Association was incorporated as a charitable organization, membership was limited to members of Metropolitan Police Department, the White House Police, and Park Police, purpose of association was to furnish financial relief to members in case of their retirement from police force, payments upon retirement were principally the amounts of retirees' own contributions with some increment of interest from investments which were required to be approved by majority of board of directors and by majority vote of membership in regular session, association was not engaged in "insurance" and hence was not required to obtain certificate of authority from Superintendent of Insurance. Id.

Group health association

When Group Health Association was not engaged in the business of insurance or indemnity, and not specifically exempted from the regulations pertaining to them, the superintendent could not challenge generally and without regard to features of insurance or indemnity as to validity of the incorporation. Jordan v. Group Health Assn. (1940, 107 F. 2d 239, 71 App. D.C. 38).

Apart from any specific exemption, the business of a Group Health Association was not that of insurance so as to bring it within meaning of this act. Id.

Interpretation of laws

"No provision of the law conferred or attempted to confer upon the superintendent of insurance the power to make and enforce an interpretation of the laws relating to insurance companies, agents, or brokers. Such power is a judicial one, that can be exercised by the courts alone." Drake v. United States ex rel. Bates (1908, 30 App. D.C. 312).

Rules and regulations

There is neither express nor implied authority in the superintendent to make rules or to apply the drastic provisions of those rules solely to mutual companies, and without such authority, the limit of his power is to make rules consistent with the provisions of the law. Hutchins Mut. Ins. Co. v. Hazen (1939, 105 F. 2d 53, 70 App. D.C. 174).

Superintendent's power to promulgate regulations for the proper enforcement of the law. Drake v. United States ex rel. Bates (1908, 30 App. D.C. 312).

§ 35-103. Annual statements—Statement to be published in newspaper.

The said superintendent shall furnish, in December of each year, to every insurance company or association, local, domestic, and foreign, doing business in the District of Columbia, or its agent or attorney in the District, the necessary blank forms for the annual statements for such company or association, which shall be returned to the superintendent on or before the first day of March in each year, signed and sworn to by the president or vice-president and secretary or assistant secretary, or, if a foreign company, by its manager or proper representative within the United States, showing its true financial condition as of the next preceding 31st day of December, which shall include a statement of its assets and liabilities classified according to regulations made by the Superintendent of Insurance on that day, the amount and character of business transacted, losses sustained, and money received and expended during the year, and such other information as the said superintendent may deem necessary. Such annual statements shall be printed in at least one daily newspaper published in the District of Columbia, in the month of March in each year; and any such company or association failing to comply with the provisions aforesaid shall have its license to do business in the District revoked. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1290, ch. 854, § 647; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 534, ch. 1329; Aug. 18, 1911, 37 Stat. 22, ch. 26.)

AMENDMENTS

1911—Act Aug. 18, 1911, substituted "local, domestic, and foreign, doing business in the District of Columbia" for "hereinafter mentioned", and omitted "classified" following "include a."

1902—Act June 30, 1902, substituted "classified" for "detailed" following "include a", and inserted "or vice-president" after "president" and "or assistant secretary" after "secretary."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Instructions

In action by insured, an insurance company, on employees' fidelity policy to recover consequential losses resulting from payments made under surplus risk policies by reason of fraudulent or dishonest acts of general manager who had failed to disclose surplus risk policies in an annual statement of financial position required to be filed by District of Columbia statute, giving of instruction that referred to possible criminal prosecution of general manager was prejudicially erroneous. Imperial Insurance, Inc. v. Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation (1970, 442 F. 2d 1197, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 173).

Revocation of license

Under this section, there is authority in the Superintendent to revoke a company's license for failure on its part promptly to furnish him with an annual statement of its true financial condition. Hutchins Mut. Ins. Co. v. Hazen (1939, 105 F. 2d 53, 70 App. D. C. 174).

§ 35-104. Companies organized outside of United States to file and publish statements.

The financial statements of insurance companies or associations, required hereby to be filed annually with the Superintendent of Insurance, shall set forth specifically the assets, liabilities, and conduct of the affairs within the United States of companies or associations organized outside of the territorial limits of the United States, and such statement shall be verified under oath by the manager and assistant manager or other proper officers of such companies or associations within the United States; and so much of this chapter as requires the publication of annual statements shall only extend to the statements respecting the affairs of such foreign companies or associations within the United States. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1291, ch. 854, § 649.)

CODIFICATION

This section as enacted contains at the beginning the following provision: "No insurance company or association organized outside the territorial limits of the United States shall be licensed to do business in the District until it shall have complied with the laws of some one of said States requiring a deposit of not less than one hundred thousand dollars, or deposited in the registry of the supreme court of the District, United States or municipal bonds, the market value of which shall not be less than one hundred thousand dollars, to be approved by the superintendent of insurance and the Commissioners of the District, to be held and maintained unimpaired in the registry of said court as a reserve fund for the liquidation of any judgment or judgments that may be obtained against such insurance company or association in said court or any inferior court of competent jurisdiction in said District." However, § 35-1105 of this code provides for deposits by foreign marine insurance companies, § 35-601 provides that foreign life insurance companies should have investments of a specified quality, and if stock companies, a specified surplus, and § 35-1326 provides the requirements for issuance of a certificate of authority to foreign fire, marine, and casualty insurance companies.

§ 35-105. Statement of business in District of Columbia.

Every insurance company and association doing business in the District of Columbia shall, through its local agents or representatives, furnish to the superintendent, during the month of January of each year, a statement of its business in said District, setting forth specifically the net amount of its premium receipts, the amount of losses paid, the amount of expenses incurred, respecting the business done in the District during the calendar year next preceding, and said superintendent shall preserve a separate record of the same in his office for convenient reference, showing the ratio of such losses and expenses, respectively, to said premium receipts, and all insurance companies of every description, except mutual fire insurance companies, shall pay to the collector of taxes before March first of each year a sum equal to two per centum of said premium receipts of the last preceding calendar year, in lieu of all other taxes, except taxes upon real estate and any license fees provided for in sections 35-1201 and 35-1202; and upon the failure of any company to pay said taxes before March first, as aforesaid, the license of said company shall be revoked and a penalty of eight per centum per month shall be charged against the company, which, together with said taxes, shall be collected before said company shall be allowed to resume business. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1291, ch. 854, § 650; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 534, ch. 1329; Aug. 71, 1937, 50 Stat. 676, ch. 690, title II, § 6.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Assessment companies

This section does not apply to assessment companies organized solely for mutual protection. American Home Life Ins. Co. v. Drake (1908, 30 App. D.C. 263).

Engaging in insurance

Statutes regulating business of insurance were not intended for application to all organizations having some element of risk assumption or distribution in their operations. Metropolitan Police Retiring Ass'n Inc. v. W. N. Tobriner et al. (1962, 306 F. 2d 775, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

The legislation relating to insurance in District of Columbia is so elaborate that court is not inclined to strain its coverage to include an activity left uncovered by the ordinary meaning of language used. Id.

The absence of a profit motive and facts that Metropolitan Police Retiring Association possesses a representative government and engages in no solicitation of the public, add some though not controlling support to review that its activities are not within scope of statute primarily designed to protect insured vis-a-vis the insurer. Id.

Where Metropolitan Police Retiring Association was incorporated as a charitable organization, membership was limited to members of Metropolitan Police Department, the White House Police, and Park Police, purpose of association was to furnish financial relief to members in case of their retirement from police force, payments upon retirement were principally the amounts of retirees' own contributions with some increment of interest from investments which were required to be approved by majority of board of directors and by majority vote of membership in regular session, association was not engaged in "insurance" and hence was not required to obtain certificate of authority from Superintendent of Insurance. Id.

Group health association

Apart from any specific exemption, the business of appellee Group Health Association is not that of insurance to bring it within this section of statute. Jordan v. Group Health Assn. (1940, 107 F. 2d 239, 71 App. D.C. 38).

§ 35-106. Superintendent to make annual report.

The Superintendent of Insurance shall report annually to the Commissioner of the District, on or before the thirty-first day of March, the financial condition of each insurance company and association doing business in said District, as of the thirty-first day of December next preceding. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1292, ch. 854, § 651.)

§ 35-108. Inquiries as to District companies.

It shall be the duty of the said Superintendent of Insurance to ascertain whether the capital required by law or the charter of each insurance company or association organized under the laws of the District of Columbia has been actually paid up in cash and is held by its board of directors subject to their control, according to the provisions of their charter, or has been invested in property worth not less than the full amount of the capital stock required by its charter; or, if a mutual company, that it has received and is in actual possession of securities, as the case may be, to the full extent of the value required by its charter; and the president and secretary of such company or association shall make a declaration under oath to said superintendent, who is hereby empowered to administer oaths when hereby required, that the tangible assets exhibited to him represent bona fide the property of the company or association, which sworn declaration shall be filed and preserved in the office of said superintendent; and any such officer swearing falsely in regard to any of the provisions hereof shall be deemed guilty of perjury and shall be subject to all the penalties prescribed by law in the District of Columbia for that crime. Every corporation, joint-stock company, or association not exempt herein, transacting business in the District of Columbia, which collects premiums, dues, or assessments from its members or from holders of its certificates or policies, and which provides for the payment of indemnity on account of sickness or accident, or a benefit in case of death, shall be known as "health, accident, and life insurance companies or associations." Every such company or association shall pay to the collector of taxes for the District of Columbia a sum of money, as tax, equal to one per centum of all moneys received from members of policy or certificate holders within the District of Columbia, said tax to be paid on or before the 1st day of March of each year on the amount of such income for the year ending December 31st next preceding; and shall also file annually with said Superintendent of Insurance, on or before the 1st day of March of each year, a sworn statement, on blanks furnished by said Superintendent of Insurance, showing its true financial condition, income, disbursements, assets, and liabilities on the 31st day of December next preceding, and such other information as said Superintendent of Insurance may require; and shall pay to the said collector of taxes ten dollars for filing such statement. Said Superintendent of Insurance shall examine from time to time and at least as often as once a year all companies or associations described herein; and when he finds the capital stock of any such company impaired or its assets reduced in value to an amount less than required by the provisions hereof he shall at once give notice of said fact to said company or association, and unless said impairment is made good within sixty days after said notice, it shall be the duty of said superintendent to revoke or suspend the license of said company or association until such impairment shall have been made good; and any company or association that issues policies or certificates of insurance as described herein without a license from said superintendent or during a suspension thereof, as herein provided, shall be fined not less than twenty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars per day: Provided, That if any such company or association shall feel aggrieved by the decision of said superintendent concerning the investment or impairment of its assets or capital stock, it shall have the right to appeal, within ten days, from the decision of said superintendent to the Commissioner of the District of Columbia, and the District of Columbia Council shall prescribe rules and regulations for the hearing of said appeal, and the Commissioner's decision shall be final: Provided also, That when any such company or association shall have complied with the provisions contained herein, the Superintendent of Insurance shall issue to it a license to transact its business in the District of Columbia: Provided, however, That nothing contained herein shall interfere with or abridge the rights of any fraternal beneficial association licensed to transact business under sections 35-901 to 35-917, or incorporated by special act of Congress: And provided further, That nothing contained herein shall apply to any relief association, not conducted for profit, composed solely of officers and enlisted men of the United States Army, Navy, or Air Force, or solely of employees of any other branch of the United States government service, or solely of employees of any individual, company, firm, or corporation. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1292, ch. 854, § 653; Aug. 15, 1911, 37 Stat. 16, ch. 12, § 1.)

Benefit order

The 1940 act requiring that all fire, marine and casualty companies doing business in District of Columbia must obtain certificate of authority expressly repealed earlier statute exempting nonprofit relief associations composed of government employees from licensing and regulation, and consequently unincorporated nonprofit labor organization composed exclusively of postal clerks employed by United States Post Office Department must obtain from superintendent of insurance certificate of authority to operate program of health insurance. National Federation of Post Office Clerks, etc. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 483).

Grand Lodge of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen is a benefit order, within the meaning of the section, as amended, and subject to its provisions. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Groves (1918, 48 App. D.C. 151, certiorari denied 39 S. Ct. 184, 248 U.S. 587, 63 L. Ed. 434).

Engaging in insurance

Statutes regulating business of insurance were not intended for application to all organizations having some element of risk assumption or distribution in their operations. Metropolitan Police Retiring Ass'n Inc. v. W. N. Tobriner et al. (1962, 306 F. 2d 775, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

The legislation relating to insurance in District of Columbia is so elaborate that court is not inclined to strain its coverage to include an activity left uncovered by the ordinary meaning of language used. Id.

The absence of a profit motive and facts that Metropolitan Police Retiring Association possesses a representative government and engages in no solicitation of the public, add some though not controlling support to review that its activities are not within scope of statute primarily designed to protect insured vis-a-vis the insurer. Id.

Where Metropolitan Police Retiring Association was incorporated as a charitable organization, membership was limited to members of Metropolitan Police Department, the White House Police, and Park Police, purpose of association was to furnish financial relief to members in case of their retirement from police force, payments upon retirement where principally the amounts of retirees' own contributions with some increment of interest from investments which were required to be approved by majority of board of directors and by majority vote of membership in regular session, association was not engaged in "insurance" and hence was not required to obtain certificate of authority from Superintendent of Insurance. Id.

Group health association

Apart from any specific exemption, the business of appellee Group Health Association is not that of insurance to bring it within this section of statute. Jordan v. Group Health Assn. (1940, 107 F. 2d 239, 71 App. D.C. 38).

The appellee Group Health Association held to be a distributing, not an accumulating agency, and to require it to maintain a guarantee fund was not the intent of Congress. Id.

It is not necessary to decide whether the exemption or definition of health and accident insurance companies has any effect upon the regulations prescribed by other sections of the code. Apart from any specific exemption the business of the Group Health Association is not that of insurance so as to bring it within those sections. Id.

Payment of indemnity

This provision does not include all "insurance" companies, but only those which provide for the "payment of indemnity on account of sickness." The statute does not include necessarily contracts "to indemnify," but is limited to those which provide for the "payment" of indemnity. The word "payment" is not used as equivalent to "indemnity." Group Health Assn. v. Moor (D.C.D.C. 1938, 24 F. Supp. 445).

Report by receivers

Where business of insurance association has been so injured by ill will and protracted litigation among the stockholders that it has become insolvent, and its capital and reserve have been seriously impaired, receivers pendente lite were properly appointed to take possession of its assets and to report on the condition of its affairs. Provident Relief Assn. v. Vernon (1927, 19 F. 2d 709, 57 App. D.C. 235).

Reserves

There is no provision of the general law broad enough to cover regulations governing in the minutest detail the operation and business of an insurance company, but the statute itself makes a clear distinction between stock companies and mutual companies with respect to maintaining a reserve. Hutchins Mut. Ins. Co. v. Hazen (1939, 105 F. 2d 53, 70 App. D.C. 174).

§ 35-203. Copy of application to be delivered with policy—Statements in application as defense.

Each life insurance company, benefit order, and association doing a life insurance business in the District of Columbia shall deliver with each policy issued by it a copy of the application made by the insured so that the whole contract may appear in said application and policy, in default of which no defense shall be allowed to such policy on account of anything contained in, or omitted from, such application. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1294, ch. 854, § 657; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 534, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

1902—Act June 30, 1902, inserted "benefit order and association" following "life insurance company", "life insurance" before "business", and added "In default of which no defense shall be allowed to such policy on account of anything contained in, or omitted from, such application."

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 35-1002, 35-1202.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*In general

Where voidability provision of life policy required company to prove that applicant had received medical treatment, but insurer did not attach written application, if any, to policy, insurer could not defend on account of anything contained in or omitted from application, and was barred from declaring policy void on account of alleged nondisclosure in application. Walton et ano. v. Sun Life Insurance Company of America (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 115 A. 2d 310).

Prior to the amendment by the act of June 30, 1902, this section "did not cover policies (certificates) issued by fraternal beneficial associations." Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Groves (1928, 48 App. D.C. 151, certiorari denied 39 S. Ct. 184, 248 U.S. 587, 63 L. Ed. 434).

"This section was intended to remedy a mischief and is to be given a liberal interpretation to that end." Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Burch (1912, 39 App. D.C. 397).

Defense not based on application

In action on an industrial life policy declaring that it expressed the entire agreement between the parties, where insurer used testimony of the agent as to answers given or evaded by claimant to prove bad faith in making an application for the policy and questions relating to policy provisions that had no relation to the application not attached to the policy, a defense based on such questions and on the claimant's responses thereto would not be disallowed under this section. Walton et ano. v. Sun Life Insurance Company of America (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 115 A. 2d 310).

Entire application

Copy of entire application must be attached; "It is not left to the discretion of the insurer to select such parts of the application as it may deem material for delivery with its policy." Metropolitan Life Inc. Co. v. Hawkins (31 App. D.C. 493).

Fraudulent representations

This section applies to fraudulent representations in application for previous policy made part of second policy. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Gott (1934, 68 F. 2d 426, 62 App. D.C. 379).

Incorporation by reference

This section could not be satisfied by making a section of the constitution of the insurer a part of the contract by reference, for it requires an actual incorporation in the certificate and application of every element of the agreement "so that the whole contract may appear in said application and policy." Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Groves (48 App. D.C. 151, certiorari denied 39 S. Ct. 184, 248 U.S. 587, 63 L. Ed. 434).

Misstatement of age

Misstatement of age is no defense where copy of application was not delivered "with the policy or at any other time." Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Groves (1918, 48 App. D.C. 151, certiorari denied 39 S. Ct. 184, 248 U.S. 587, 63 L. Ed. 434).

Oral application

In action on industrial life policy declaring that it expressed the entire agreement between the parties, a defense open to insurer if no written application existed was not precluded by this section and the insurer could defend on violation of policy provisions having no relation to the application. Ferguson v. Quaker City Life Ins. Co. (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 129 A. 2d 189).

This provision does not extend to an oral application. Washington Fidelity Nat. Ins. Co. v. Burton (1932, 53 S. Ct. 26, 287 U. S. 97, 77 L. Ed. 196).

Policy constituting contract

Where a life policy by its terms constitutes the entire agreement, this section does not prevent an insurer from basing a defense on a policy provision stating that if within two years of date of issue insured has received treatment or has been attended by any physician for any serious disease, the policy should be voidable unless reference to such treatment is endorsed on the policy, even though the policy was issued on a written application and no copy of the application was delivered with the policy. Pullen v. Sun Life Ins. Co. of America (1941, 121 F. 2d 110, 74 App. D. C. 197, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 112, 314 U. S. 613, 86 L. Ed. 494).

Where written application, if there was one, was not delivered with industrial life policy, but policy by its terms constituted the entire agreement, this section did not prevent insurer from making any defense that it had under the terms of the policy. Eureka-Maryland Assur. Co. v. Gray, (1941, 121 F. 2d 104, 74 App. D. C. 191, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 114, 314 U. S. 613, 86 L. Ed. 494).

Preliminary report of agent

A preliminary report, signed only by the agent, intended for the general information of the company and not referred to in the policy, is no part of the contract of insurance and need not be attached thereto. Griffin v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1910, 36 App. D.C. 8).

Provisions outside contract

"No provision in the rules or elsewhere of an insurance company or fraternal order which was not physically embodied in the policy or application should be regarded as a part of the contract." Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Groves (48 App. D. C. 151, certiorari denied 39 S. Ct. 184, 248 U. S. 587, 63 L. Ed. 434).

Purpose

Purpose in adopting this section was to compel insurance companies, whether old line or fraternal, to state the entire contract either in the policy or the policy and application, so that the insured would be able to find the terms defining his obligations and rights as a policyholder in not more than two papers. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Groves (1918, 48 App. D.C. 151, certiorari denied 39 S. Ct. 184, 248 U.S. 587, 63 L. Ed. 434).

Reinstatement of policies

This provision applies to an application for the reinstatement of a lapsed policy. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Burch (1912, 39 App. D.C. 397).

§ 35-204. Principal office to be in District of Columbia—Keeping and removing of records—Reincorporation of companies chartered by special acts—Penalties—Prosecutions.

Any corporation now or hereafter formed or organized under any provision of law in force and effect in the District of Columbia to engage in an insurance business shall maintain its principal office within said District and shall keep its books, records, and files therein, and shall not remove from said District either its principal office or its books, records, or files without the permission of the Commissioner of the District of Columbia first had and obtained: Provided, however, That nothing contained in this section shall be construed to apply to the books, records, and files of any such corporation kept in a branch-office agency of such corporation, which books, records, and files relate solely to the business transacted by the said branch-office agency: And provided further, That any insurance corporation created by special Act of Congress is authorized upon resolution of its board of directors or trustees to reincorporate under the laws of any State of the United States, a certified copy of such resolution of such board of directors or trustees having first been filed in the office of the Superintendent of Insurance of the District of Columbia and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia. Upon compliance with the above conditions, the assets of the said corporation shall thereby become vested in the new corporation. Said new corporation shall faithfully carry out any and every right, obligation, and liability of said original corporation.

Any corporation violating any of the provisions of this section shall forthwith forfeit its charter, which forfeiture shall operate as a revocation of its license to do business within said District.

Any officer, agent, or employee of any such corporation who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall pay a fine of not less than $300 or be imprisoned for not more than ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. All prosecutions under this section shall be upon information filed in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia in the name of the District of Columbia by the corporation counsel thereof or any of his assistants. ### SUBCHAPTER II.—DOMESTIC STOCK INSURANCE COMPANIES

§ 35-221. Definition.

As used in this subchapter, unless the context otherwise requires, "domestic stock insurance company" means a stock insurance company incorporated or organized under the laws of the District of Columbia. (Apr. 18, 1966, 80 Stat. 123, Pub. L. 89-402, § 1.)

§ 35-222. Rules and regulations—Revocation or suspension of certificate—Notice and hearing—Penalties—Exemption of certain companies.

(a) The District of Columbia Council shall promulgate rules and regulations with respect to the solicitation and voting of proxies, consents, and authorizations of domestic stock insurance companies in conformity, as nearly as may be practicable, with those prescribed by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. The Superintendent of Insurance (hereinafter "Superintendent") shall have power to revoke or suspend the certificate of authority to transact business in the District of Columbia of any such company which has failed or refused to comply with the rules and regulations promulgated by the Council.

(b) The Superintendent shall not revoke nor suspend the certificate of authority of any such company until he has given the company not less than thirty days' notice of the proposed revocation or suspension and of the grounds alleged therefor, and has afforded the company an opportunity for a full hearing: Provided, That if the Superintendent shall find upon examination that the further transaction of business by the company would be hazardous to the public or to the policyholders or creditors of the company in the District, he may suspend such authority without giving notice as herein required: Provided further, That in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company, after hearing as herein provided, the Superintendent may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $500 when, in his judgment, he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company. The amount of any such penalty shall be paid by the company through the office of the Superintendent to the Commissioner of the District of Columbia. At any hearing provided by this section, the Superintendent shall have authority to administer oaths to witnesses. Anyone testifying falsely after having been administered such an oath shall be subject to the penalties of perjury.

(c) The provisions of subsections (a) and (b) of this section shall not apply to securities of a domestic stock insurance company if such securities shall be registered, or shall be required to be registered, pursuant to section 12 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (15 U.S.C. § 78l). (Apr. 18, 1966, 80 Stat. 123, Pub. L. 89-402, § 2.)

For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of the Plan, set out in the appendix to title 1. #### § 35-223. Registration requirements of beneficial owners, directors, etc.—Sales restriction—Definition—Exemption—Rules and regulations—Penalty—Effective date of section.

(a) Every person who is directly or indirectly the beneficial owner of more than 10 per centum of any class of any equity security of a domestic stock insurance company, or who is a director or an officer of such company, shall file in the office of the Superintendent on or before the 31st day of December 1965, or within ten days after he becomes such beneficial owner, director, or officer, a statement, in such form as the Superintendent may prescribe, of the amount of all equity securities of such company of which he is the beneficial owner, and within ten days after the close of each calendar month thereafter, if there has been a change in such ownership during such month, shall file in the office of the Superintendent a statement, in such form as the Superintendent may prescribe, indicating his ownership at the close of the calendar month and such changes in his ownership as have occurred during such calendar month.

(b) For the purpose of preventing the unfair use of information which may have been obtained by such beneficial owner, director, or officer by reason of his relationship to such company, any profit realized by him from any purchase and sale, or any sale and purchase, of any equity security of such company within any period of less than six months, unless such security was acquired in good faith in connection with a debt previously contracted, shall inure to and be recoverable by the company, irrespective of any intention on the part of such beneficial owner, director, or officer in entering into such transaction of holding the security purchased or of not repurchasing the security sold for a period exceeding six months. Suit to recover such profit may be instituted at law or in equity in any court of competent jurisdiction by the company, or by the owner of any security of the company in the name and in behalf of the company if the company shall fail or refuse to bring such suit within sixty days after request or shall fail diligently to prosecute the same thereafter; but no such suit shall be brought more than two years after the date such profit was realized. This section shall not be construed to cover any transaction where such beneficial owner was not such both at the time of the purchase and sale, or the sale and purchase, of the security involved, or any transaction or transactions which the District of Columbia Council by rules and regulations may exempt as not comprehended within the purpose of this section.

(c) It shall be unlawful for any such beneficial owner, director, or officer, directly or indirectly, to sell any equity security of such company if the person selling the security or his principal (i) does not own the security sold, or (ii) if owning the security, does not deliver it against such sale within twenty days thereafter, or does not within five days after such sale deposit it in the mails or other usual channels of transportation; but no person shall be deemed to have violated this section if he proves that, notwithstanding the exercise of good faith, he was unable to make such delivery or deposit within such time, or that to do so would cause undue inconvenience or expense.

(d) The provisions of subsection (b) of this section shall not apply to any purchase and sale, or sale and purchase, and the provisions of subsection (c) of this section shall not apply to any sale, of an equity security of a domestic stock insurance company not then or theretofore held by him in an investment account, by a dealer in the ordinary course of his business and incident to the establishment or maintenance by him of a primary or secondary market (otherwise than on an exchange as defined in the Securities Exchange Act of 1934) for such security. The District of Columbia Council may, by such rules and regulations as it deems necessary or appropriate in the public interest, define and prescribe terms and conditions with respect to securities held in an investment account and transactions made in the ordinary course of business and incident to the establishment or maintenance of a primary or secondary market.

(e) The provisions of subsections (a), (b), and (c) of this section shall not apply to foreign or domestic arbitrage transactions unless made in contravention of such rules and regulations as the District of Columbia Council may adopt in order to carry out the purposes of this section.

(f) The term "equity security" when used in this section means any stock or similar security; or any security convertible with or without consideration, into such a security, or carrying any warrant or right to subscribe to or purchase such a security; or any such warrant or right; or any other security which the District of Columbia Council shall deem to be of similar nature and consider necessary or appropriate, by such rules and regulations as it may prescribe in the public interest or for the protection of investors, to treat as an equity security.

(g) The provisions of subsections (a), (b), and (c) of this section shall not apply to securities of a domestic stock insurance company if (i) such securities shall be registered, or shall be required to be registered, pursuant to section 12 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (15 U.S.C. § 78l), or if (ii) such domestic stock insurance company shall not have any class of its equity securities held of record by one hundred or more persons on the last business day of the year next preceding the year in which equity securities of the company would be subject to the provisions of subsections (a), (b), and (c) of this section except for the provisions of this subsection (g) (ii).

(h) The District of Columbia Council shall make such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the execution of the functions vested in the Superintendent by subsections (a) through (g) of this section, and may for such purpose classify domestic stock insurance companies, securities, and other persons or matters within his jurisdiction. No provisions of subsection (a), (b), or (c) of this section imposing any liability shall apply to any act done or omitted in good faith in conformity with any rule or regulation of the Council notwithstanding that such rule or regulation may, after such act or omission, be amended or rescinded or determined by judicial or other authority to be invalid for any reason.

(i) Any person who willfully violates any provision of this section, or any rule or regulation thereunder the violation of which is made unlawful by this section or the observance of which is required under the terms of this section, or any person who willfully and knowingly makes, or causes to be made, any statement in any application, report, or document required to be filed under this section, which statement was false or misleading with respect to any material fact, shall upon conviction be fined not more than $1,000, or be imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both.

(j) This section shall take effect thirty days after April 18, 1966. (Apr. 18, 1966, 80 Stat. 123, Pub. L. 89-402, § 3.)

§ 35-401. Insurance department—Superintendent of Insurance—Oath—Bond—Assistants—Seal—Sealed instruments as evidence—Annual report—Attendance at conventions—Visits—Expenses.

There shall be continued in the District a department charged with the execution of the laws relating to insurance, to be called the "Department of Insurance of the District of Columbia." At the head of such department there shall be a Superintendent of Insurance, who shall devote his entire service to the department. He shall be appointed by and hold his office at the pleasure of the Commissioner. The superintendent, during his term of office, shall not be interested in the business of any insurance company except as a policyholder. He shall take and subscribe an oath of office which shall be filed with the Commissioner. In said department there shall be also two deputy superintendents and such other personnel as may be necessary within appropriations annually made by Congress for said department. The compensation of the superintendent, deputy superintendents, and other personnel shall be fixed in accordance with the provisions of chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters].

In case of the absence or inability of the superintendent, or in the event of the removal of the superintendent, and pending the appointment of his successor, one of the deputy superintendents shall perform the duties of the superintendent.

The Commissioner shall provide the department with an official seal, which shall be the seal of the District of Columbia surrounded by a border in which shall appear "Department of Insurance of the District of Columbia."

Every certificate and other document or paper executed by such superintendent, or his deputies, in pursuance of any authority conferred upon him by law and sealed with the seal of his office, and all copies of papers certified by him or by his deputies and authenticated by said seal, shall, in all cases, be evidence equally and in like manner as the original thereof and shall have the same force and effect as would the original in any suit or proceeding in any court of this District.

The office of the superintendent shall be a public office, and the records, books, and papers thereof on file therein shall be public records of the District, except as it may be provided otherwise herein.

The superintendent shall report annually to the Commissioner his official transactions, and shall include in such report abstracts of the annual statements of the several companies and an exhibit of the financial condition and business transactions of the same as shown by their annual statements. He shall also include therein a statement of the receipts and expenditures of the department for the preceding year and such recommendations relative to insurance and the insurance laws of the District as he shall deem proper.

The superintendent is authorized to attend and participate in the meetings of the national convention of insurance commissioners and of the committees thereof; he is also authorized to visit the insurance departments of the various states when in his judgment such visits are necessary for the proper conduct of his official office; and he may require such of his assistants as he may designate to attend and participate in such meetings, all subject to the prior approval of the Commissioner. The actual expense of such attendance by the superintendent and his assistants shall be paid in like manner as other expenses of the District are paid. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1129, ch. 672, ch. II, § 1; Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 972, ch. 782, title XI, § 1106(a).)

CODIFICATION

The reference in this section to "chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]" was substituted for "the Classification Act of 1949, as amended", on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, set out in note under § 1-251. The Classification Act of 1949, as amended (Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 954, ch. 782, as amended), was repealed by act Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a) (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law), and is now covered by the provisions of title 5, U.S.C., cited.

AMENDMENT

1949—Act Oct. 28, 1949, § 1106(a), which was a part of the Classification Act of 1949, and which has since been repealed, substituted "Classification Act of 1949" for "Classification Act of 1923". See codification note above.

§ 35-404. Certificate of authority—Investigation of Qualifications—Effect—Issuance.

It shall be the duty of the Superintendent to issue a certificate of authority to a company when it shall have complied with the requirements of the laws of the District so as to be entitled to do business therein. The Superintendent may, however, satisfy himself by such investigation as he may deem proper or necessary that such company is duly qualified under the laws of the District to transact business therein, and may refuse to issue or renew any such certificate to a company if the issuance or renewal of such certificate would adversely affect the public interest. In each case the certificate shall be issued under the seal of the Superintendent, authorizing and empowering the company to transact the kind or kinds of business specified in the certificate, and each such certificate shall be made to expire on the thirtieth day of April next succeeding the date of its issuance. No company shall transact any business of insurance in or from the District until it shall have received a certificate of authority as authorized by this section and no company shall transact any business of insurance not specified in such certificate of authority. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1131, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 5; Feb. 22, 1958, 72 Stat. 19, Pub. L. 85-334, § 1.)

Engaging in insurance

Statutes regulating business of insurance were not intended for application to all organizations having some element of risk assumption or distribution in their operations. Metropolitan Police Retiring Ass'n Inc. v. W. N. Tobriner et al. (1962, 306 F. 2d 775, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

The legislation relating to insurance in District of Columbia is so elaborate that court is not inclined to strain its coverage to include an activity left uncovered by the ordinary meaning of language used. Id.

The absence of a profit motive and facts that Metropolitan Police Retiring Association possesses a representative government and engages in no solicitation of the public, add some though not controlling support to review that its activities are not within scope of statute primarily designed to protect insured vis-a-vis the insurer. Id.

Where Metropolitan Police Retiring Association was incorporated as a charitable organization, membership was limited to members of Metropolitan Police Department, the White House Police, and Park Police, purpose of association was to furnish financial relief to members in case of their retirement from police force, payments upon retirement were principally the amounts of retirees' own contributions with some increment of interest from investments which were required to be approved by majority of board of directors and by majority vote of membership in regular session, association was not engaged in "insurance" and hence was not required to obtain certificate of authority from Superintendent of Insurance. Id.

Jurisdiction

The United States District Court for District of Columbia, as local court of general jurisdiction, had jurisdiction without express statutory authorization to review administrative action by trial de novo. A. F. Jordan, Sup't of Insurance etc. v. United Insurance Co. of America (1961, 288 F. 2d 778, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 112).

License requirements

Insurer who seeks licenses under the Life Insurance Act and the Fire and Casualty Act bears responsibility of satisfying the more stringent requirement regardless of which statute prescribes it, and if two certificates are issued, each must stand on its own feet. Travelers Insurance Co. v. A. F. Jordan, Dep't of Insurance etc. (1961, 287 F. 2d 347, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

Life Insurance Act of District of Columbia and Fire and Casualty Act do not prohibit issuance of certificate or certificates authorizing a single insurer to do both life and casualty insurance business. Id.

Superintendent's authority

Statute authorizing District of Columbia Superintendent of Insurance, upon satisfying himself by such investigation as he may deem proper or necessary, to refuse to issue or renew certificate, does not authorize superintendent to hold hearing, and grant of hearing by him on question of renewal of certificate was gratuitous. A. F. Jordan, Sup't of Insurance etc. v. United Insurance Co. of America (1961, 289 F. 2d 778, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 112).

Trial de novo

It was proper for District Court to grant trial de novo, rather than merely reviewing administrative record, in insurer's action against District of Columbia Superintendent of Insurance to set aside ruling denying renewal of certificate of authority, where statutes did not provide for administrative hearing, notwithstanding fact that superintendent had granted one. A. F. Jordan, Sup't of Insurance etc. v. United Insurance Co. of America (1961, 289 F. 2d 778, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 112).

§ 35-405. Revocation or suspension of certificate of authority—Notice—Alternate Penalty—Oaths.

The Superintendent shall have power to revoke or suspend the certificate of authority to transact business in the District of any company which has failed or refused to comply with any provision or requirement of chapters 3—8, or which—

(a) is impaired in capital or surplus;

(b) is insolvent;

(c) is in such a condition that its further trans-action of business in the District would be hazardous to its policyholders or creditors or to the public;

(d) has refused or neglected to pay a valid final judgment against such company within thirty days after such judgment shall have become final either by expiration without appeal within the time when such appeal might have been perfected, or by final affirmation on appeal;

(e) has violated any law of the District or has in the District violated its charter or exceeded its corporate powers;

(f) has refused to submit its books, papers, accounts, records, or affairs to the reasonable inspection or examination of the Superintendent, his deputies, or duly appointed examiners;

(g) has an officer who has refused upon reasonable demand to be examined under oath touching its affairs;

(h) fails to file with the Superintendent a copy of an amendment to its charter or articles of association within thirty days after the effective date of such amendment;

(i) has had its corporate existence dissolved or its certificate of authority revoked in the State in which it was organized;

(j) has had all its risks reinsured in their entirety in another company, without prior approval of the Superintendent; or

(k) has made, issued, circulated, or caused to be issued or circulated any estimate, illustration, circular, or statement of any sort misrepresenting either its status or the terms of any policy issued or to be issued by it, or the benefits or advantages promised thereby, or the dividends or shares of the surplus to be received thereon, or has used any name or title of any policy or class of policies misrepresenting the true nature thereof.

The Superintendent shall not revoke or suspend the certificate of authority of any company until he has given the company not less than thirty days' notice of the proposed revocation or suspension and of the grounds alleged therefor, and has afforded the company an opportunity for a full hearing: Provided, That if the Superintendent shall find upon examination that the further transaction of business by the company would be hazardous to the public or to the policyholders or creditors of the company in the District, he may suspend such authority without giving notice as herein required: Provided further, That in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for causes enumerated in this section, after hearing as herein provided, the Superintendent may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company. The amount of any such penalty shall be paid by the company through the office of the Superintendent to the Collector of Taxes of the District of Columbia. At any hearing provided by this section, the Superintendent shall have authority to administer oaths to witnesses. Anyone testifying falsely after having been administered such an oath shall be subject to the penalties of perjury. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1131, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 6; May 4, 1950, 64 Stat. 103, ch. 157, §1; Feb. 22, 1958, 72 Stat. 20, Pub. L. 85-334, § 2.)

AMENDMENTS

1958—Act Feb. 22, 1958, amended section generally, and among other changes, authorized suspension as well as revocation, and added provisions relating to transaction of business in the District when hazardous to policyholders, creditors or the public, refusal or neglect to pay final judgments, failure to file amendment to charter or articles of association, dissolution or revocation of certificate of authority in State in which organized, reinsurance of all risks in their entirety, misrepresentations of company status or the terms, name or title of any policy or class of policy issued or to be issued, or of dividends or shares of surplus distributable thereon, authorized the Superintendent to administer oaths to witnesses at hearings, and made violation of such oath punishable as perjury.

1950—Act May 4, 1950, added the proviso relating to penalties in lieu of revoking certificate.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1950 AMENDMENT

Section 8 of act May 4, 1950, provided that: "This Act [amending §§ 35-405, 35-426, 35-431, 35-508, 35-601(h), 35-722 to 35-724, and repealing § 35-532] shall take effect ninety days after the date of enactment [May 4, 1950]."

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 35-1611.

Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence was insufficient to support finding of Superintendent of Department of Insurance, in revoking insurer's certificate of authority to transact business, that the insurer through its principal officers caused issuance of printed material misrepresenting status of corporation which they had organized for declared purpose of assisting senior citizens in acquiring low cost hospital insurance. Union Fidelity Life Insurance Company v. District of Columbia Department of Insurance (D.C. App. 1972, 295 A. 2d 62).

§ 35-406. Annual statement forms to be furnished by superintendent.

The superintendent shall, annually, in the month of December, furnish to each of the companies authorized to do business in the District and required to make an annual statement to the Department two or more blanks in form adapted for such statements, and which shall conform as nearly as may be practicable to the form of statement from time to time adopted by the national convention of insurance commissioners. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1132, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 7.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Taxation and fiscal affairs of insurance companies, see § 47-1801 et seq.

§ 35-407. Annual statement—Verification—Failure to make.

Every company doing business in the District shall file with the superintendent before March 1 in each year a financial statement for the year ending December 31, immediately preceding, on forms furnished by the superintendent. Such statement shall be verified by the oaths of the president and secretary of the company, or, in their absence, by two other principal officers. The statement of an alien company shall embrace only its condition and transactions in the United States and shall be verified by the oath of its resident manager or principal representative in the United States. If any such company shall fail to file the annual statement herein required, the Superintendent may thereupon revoke its certificate of authority to transact business in the District of Columbia. The District of Columbia Council shall also have power to require that at least once in the month of March in each year a summary of such annual statement shall be published by the company in a daily newspaper published in the District. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1132, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 8; Dec. 5, 1963, 77 Stat. 347, Pub. L. 88-193, § 1.)

This paragraph shall not apply to an alien company which maintains in the United States as required by law, assets held in trust for the benefit of the United States policyholders in an amount not less than the sum of its required capital deposit and the amount of its outstanding liabilities arising out of its insurance transactions in the United States.

§ 35-411. Defamation of companies—Penalty.

It shall be unlawful for any company now or hereafter doing business in the District, or any officer, director, clerk, employee, general agent, agent, or solicitor thereof, broker or any other person, to make, verbally or otherwise, publish, print, distribute, or circulate, or cause the same to be done, or in any way to aid, abet, or encourage the making, printing, publishing, distributing, or circulating of, any pamphlet, circular, article, literature, or statement of any kind which is defamatory of any company now or hereafter doing business in the District, or which contains any false criticism or false statement calculated to injure such company in its reputation or business; and any officer, director, clerk, employee, general agent, agent, or solicitor of any company, broker or any other person, violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than $100. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1133, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 12.)

§ 35-412. Superintendent to have power to issue subpoenas—Enforcement.

In the examination of any company as provided for in chapters 3-8 of this title the superintendent shall have power to issue subpoenas in the name of the Chief Judge of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia to compel witnesses to appear and testify and/or to produce all books, records, papers, or documents before said superintendent.

If any witness having been personally summoned shall neglect or refuse to obey the subpoena issued as herein provided, then and in that event the superintendent may report that fact to the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, or one of the judges thereof, and said court, or any judge thereof, hereby is empowered to compel obedience to said subpoena to the same extent as witnesses may be compelled to obey the subpoenas of that court. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1133, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 13; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32 (a), (b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(c) (37) (A), 84 Stat. 572.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 155(c) (37) (A) of Act July 20, 1970, Public Law 91-358, amended section by striking out "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Superior Court of the District of Columbia."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1936, substituted "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia" for "Supreme Court of the District of Columbia."

Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, as amended by act May 24, 1949, substituted "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" for "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia"; and "Chief Judge" for "Chief Justice", "judges" for "justices", and "judge" for "justice."

§ 35-413. Enforcement of superintendent's orders or actions.

The superintendent may, through the corporation counsel of the District, invoke the aid of any court of competent jurisdiction to enforce any order made or action taken by him in pursuance of law. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1133, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 14.)

§ 35-414. False statements in application for insurance.

The falsity of a statement in the application for any policy of insurance shall not bar the right to recovery thereunder unless such false statement was made with intent to deceive or unless it materially affected either the acceptance of the risk or the hazard assumed by the company. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1133, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 15.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Generally

Where the insured stated in his application that he had not consulted a physician for any ailment or disease not included in his previous answers and that he had not consulted or been treated by a physician within the preceding five years, he was making a misrepresentation. Evidence shows as a matter of law that these misrepresentations materially affected either the acceptance of the risk or the hazard assumed by the company, or both. Kaitlin v. Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 188).

To avoid life policy under this section, the statement must be both false and made with intent to deceive or material to risk or its acceptance, unless possibly both intent to deceive and materiality are required in addition to falsity. Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Saxe (1943, 134 F. 2d 16, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 144, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1033, 319 U. S. 745, 87 L. Ed. 1701).

A misstatement in application for life policy to be "material to hazard assumed" within this section must be shown in some way to have affected the hazard assumed or contributed to the loss in a substantial manner. Id.

To void a life insurance policy on the ground of false representation, the answer must not only have been untrue, but it must have been with reference to a material matter. Kaplan v. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. (1940, 109 F. 2d 463, 71 App. D.C. 250).

Under this section insurer has burden of proof as to elements indicated in order to avoid life policy. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Adams (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 37 A. 2d 345).

Where insurer charged that insured prior to application for life policy had had duodenal ulcer, abnormal blood pressure, dizziness, loss of consciousness and kidney disease, and that in application he falsely denied their existence, to avoid life policy for material misrepresentation on account of answers, insurer had burden of proving one or more of them false. Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Saxe (1943, 134 F. 2d 16, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 144, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1033, 319 U. S. 745, 87 L. Ed. 1701).

Change of beneficiary

An erroneous statement in an application for change of beneficiary which does not relate to a material matter and is not made with intent to deceive, does not void a life policy. Carter v. Provident Ins. Co. (1941, 122 F. 2d 960, 74 App. D. C. 348).

Conditions precedent

The effect of this section enacted to prevent innocent and immaterial misrepresentations in application from avoiding insurance cannot be escaped by device of contracting to the contrary or labeling a contractual attempt to do so a condition to the attaching of the risk. Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Saxe (1943, 134 F. 2d 16, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 144, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1033, 319 U. S. 745, 87 L. Ed. 1701).

The purpose of this section regarding effect of false statement in application for insurance was to nullify contractual provisions contrary to its terms, and therefore a so-called condition precedent is invalid to extent that it is more broadly effective than this section allows. Id.

Where application for life policy contained clause that policy should not take effect until received by insured and full first premium thereon was paid while conditions material to risk represented by statements in application remained same as described therein, and insurer contended that the clause made truth of statements conditions precedent to attaching of risk, the so-called "condition precedent" was invalid to extent that it was more broadly effective than permitted by this section regarding false statements in application for insurance. Id.

Evidence

In action on life policy defended on ground of misrepresentations in application, objection to testimony of physician who attended insured as to what he treated insured for on ground of privilege was properly sustained. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Adams (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 37 A. 2d 345).

Where insured stated "Don't remember when last ill" in answer to question in application for life policy, and undisputed evidence established that three months previously to applying for policy insured was so sick that he had to be carried out of bathroom and immediately thereafter was treated by two different physicians on not less than six occasions, insured's statement as matter of law constituted a false misrepresentation, preventing recovery on policy. Id.

Where evidence was conflicting whether hospitalization of insured and hospital record disclosing diagnosis of duodenal ulcer were genuine or fictitious, excluding evidence that insurance companies generally, and defendant insurer usually declined risk on finding a hospital record disclosing diagnosis of duodenal ulcer, was not error. Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Saxe (1943, 134 F. 2d 16, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 144, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1033, 319 U.S. 745, 87 L. Ed. 1701).

Where insured's wife and companion testified that wife informed insurer's representative of insured's hospitalization not disclosed by application for life policy, refusing to permit insurer to cross-examine the wife and her companion concerning what was said in conversation with the representative as to change in beneficiary was not error, where insurer sought to avoid liability on ground of false statements in application. Id.

Evidence concerning insured's statements informing his wife, who was beneficiary of life policy, of hospitalization not disclosed by application was not objectionable on ground that statements were "self-serving declarations" and "hearsay", where evidence disclosed facts leading up to the wife's visit to insurer's representative the following day and reason for visit and were admissible to show that full disclosure of facts had been made to insurer's representative. Id.

Where insurer sought to avoid liability on life policy on ground that insured, prior to application, had had duodenal ulcer, abnormal blood pressure, dizziness, loss of consciousness, kidney disease, and in application falsely denied existence thereof, evidence sustained verdict against insurer. Id.

Instructions

In action on life policy defended on ground of misrepresentations in application which denied knowledge of heart trouble and medical attendance, instructions which submitted only issue as to whether there were misrepresentations as to heart trouble, and which failed to submit issue as to whether there were misrepresentations in regard to medical attendance, were erroneous. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Adams (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 37 A. 2d 345).

Misrepresentation—By beneficiary

Misrepresentation by beneficiary, in his application for a life policy on his month-old daughter of fact that he had applied to another insurer for a similar policy, even if participated in by insurer's agent, was material and constituted a valid defense to recovery on the policy. R. L. Jannenga v. National Life Ins. Co. (1961, 288 F. 2d 169, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 385).

—Material

A misstatement in an application for an insurance policy, to be material to the hazard assumed, must be shown in some way to have affected it or contributed to the loss, and in a substantial manner. L. Haubner a/k/a etc. v. Aetna Life Insurance Co. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 414).

The court held that it is clear that the facts suppressed by the life insurance applicant concerning her consultations with and examinations by physicians prior to time she applied for policy and her previous history of cancer affected in a substantial manner the hazard assumed by insurer and would certainly have influenced insurer's decision to insure her, and such false statements by insured were material to issuance of the policy. Id.

Insured's failure to reveal information to the life insurer that she was consulting with physicians at time of policy application and that she had previous history of cancer constituted sufficient cause to justify insurer's refusal to pay proceeds of policy. Id.

—Waiver

Even if life insurer's doctor knew or should have known that tumor causing removal of breast in 1953 was malignant and that recurrence of malignancy in the future was a definite possibility, this did not operate as a waiver by the insurer of a defense based on false statements allegedly contained in an application for life insurance policy, where applicant concealed information, concerning present consultations, that was clearly material to issuance of life insurance policy. L. Haubner a/k/a etc. v. Aetna Life Insurance Co. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 414).

Notice to insurer

Where insured's wife informed insurer's representative of hospitalization of insured not disclosed by application for life policy, in determining question of waiver by insurer, the representative's knowledge was to be considered "notice" to the insurer regardless of provision of policy that the representative had no power to bind the insurer by accepting any information. Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Saxe (1943, 134 F. 2d 16, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 144, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1033, 319 U.S. 745, 87 L. Ed. 1701).

Purpose

This section providing that falsity of statement in application shall not bar right to recovery under policy unless statement was made with intent to deceive or unless it materially affected either acceptance of risk or hazard assumed by insurer, was intended to prevent innocent and immaterial misrepresentations in application from avoiding insurance. Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Saxe (1943, 134 F. 2d 16, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 144, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1033, 319 U.S. 745, 87 L. Ed. 1701).

Questions for jury

Where evidence was conflicting as to whether hospitalization of insured and hospital record disclosing diagnosis of duodenal ulcer were genuine or were fictitious, whether insured's answers in application for life policy which failed to disclose hospitalization and diagnosis were material to acceptance of risk was for jury. Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Saxe (1943, 134 F. 2d 16, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 144, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1033, 319 U.S. 745, 87 L. Ed. 1701).

Where insurer contended that life policy did not take effect because of false statements in application regarding hospitalization and consultation of physician, evidence as to whether hospitalization was genuine or was fictitious for purpose of covering up alleged "social lapse" of insured caused by overdrinking at a wedding party, was for jury. Id.

Where evidence was conflicting regarding whether insured's hospitalization was genuine or fictitious, whether misstatements in application for life policy regarding hospitalization and consultation of physician were made with intent to deceive, and were material to hazard assumed or false within meaning of this section regarding effect of false statements in application, was for jury. Id.

Test of materiality

Test of materiality of a statement in an insurance application is whether the representation would reasonably influence insurer's decision as to whether it should insure. R. L. Jannenga v. Nationwide Life Ins. Co. (1961, 288 F. 2d 169, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 385).

Waiver

Where insured's wife informed insurer's representative of the fact, time and place of insured's hospitalization that had not been disclosed by application for life policy, and that wife thought insured was going to die, but representative informed wife that policy was not affected and that she should continue premium payments, the disclosure was adequate to form basis for waiver. Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. Saxe (1943, 134 F. 2d 16, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 144, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1033, 319 U.S. 745, 87 L. Ed. 1701).

Where insurer's representative with authority to receive information on insurer's behalf and to forward complaints and controversies concerning matters affecting policy to insurer's home office received knowledge of existence of ground of forfeiture of life policy and failed to communicate it promptly to insurer's home office, insurer became charged with "notice" thereof so that where insurer received premiums and allowed matter to rest for nearly a month until insured's death "waiver" of ground of forfeiture was effectually completed. Id.

Where insurer's representative having authority to solicit risks and collect premiums was informed by insured's wife of hospitalization of insured not disclosed by application, and thereafter premiums were accepted and insurer and representative stood idle for nearly a month until insured's death, there was a "waiver", precluding insurer from avoiding liability because of insured's failure to disclose the hospitalization, notwithstanding provision of policy prohibiting the representative from waiving any forfeiture. Id.

§ 35-415. General deposit—Amount—Deposits outside District.

Every company desiring to transact business in the District shall, as a prerequisite to the issuance of a certificate of authority, deposit, as herein provided, approved securities of not less than $100,000 market value. In the case of domestic companies, such deposit shall be made in the District as prescribed under section 35-416: Provided, That the deposit of every domestic company heretofore organized under the provisions of the laws of the District or other Act of Congress may, in the discretion of the superintendent, be limited (1) for stock companies, to an amount equal to the capital stock outstanding on June 19, 1934; (2) for nonstock companies, to such amount as in the opinion of the superintendent would be required from stock companies of comparable size. In no case shall the deposit of a domestic company be less than $25,000 in value. In the case of foreign or alien companies, the deposit may be made as provided under section 35-416, or may be made with the supervising official of any State, Territory, or insular possession of the United States authorized to accept such deposit, which shall be held for the benefit of all policyholders.

In the case of a deposit made with an official outside the District, a certificate of deposit from said official shall be filed with the superintendent, showing the character of the deposit, before a certificate of authority to transact business in the District may be issued, and, if the securities so deposited are not of the class authorized by chapters 3-8 of this title for investments of companies, the superintendent may require an additional deposit in approved securities. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1133, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 16; May 20, 1940, 54 Stat. 217, ch. 204.)

AMENDMENT

1940—Act May 20, 1940, substituted "Every company desiring to transact business in the District shall, as a prerequisite to the issuance of a certificate of authority, deposit, as herein provided, approved securities of not less than $100,000 market value. In the case of domestic companies, such deposit shall be made in the District as prescribed under section 35-416;" for "Every company desiring to transact business in the District shall before being licensed, deposit approved securities of not less than $100,000 market value with the superintendent or the supervising official of any State, Territory, or insular possession of the United States authorized to accept such deposit, which shall be held for the benefit of all policyholders;" "In the case of a deposit made with an official outside the District" for "If such deposit is made with an official other than the superintendent", "a certificate of authority" for "a license", inserted "in the discretion of the superintendent" in the proviso, "in value" after "$25,000", and added provisions relating to deposits of foreign or alien companies.

§ 35-416. Custody of general deposits—Collection of income—Substitution of securities—Required securities.

When any company is required by chapters 3-8 of this title to make a deposit in the District, such deposit shall be in securities of the class authorized by chapters 3-8 of this title for investments of companies, and shall be delivered by the company to the secretary of the Board of Commissioners of the District and the auditor of the District, who shall receive and hold the same subject to the lawful orders of the superintendent, and who shall be responsible for the safe-keeping of all securities deposited or delivered under the authority of this section. The company shall have the right to collect the income on deposited securities so long as it continues solvent and complies with the laws of the United States and of the District, and it shall have the right to substitute for such securities other securities, provided such substituted securities are of the character, amount, and value required by this section, and are approved by the superintendent: Provided, That not less than $25,000 of such deposit shall at all times consist of bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of the United States or of any state of the United States, or of any county or incorporated city of any state of the United States, and that securities of a class different from such bonds or other evidences of indebtedness shall not in any case be accepted for deposit except with the specific approval of and at values determined by the superintendent.

If the value of securities deposited by any company shall decline, the superintendent may require the company to make a further deposit, in order that the amount and value of the deposit required by chapters 3-8 of this title shall at all times be maintained. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1134, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 17; May 20, 1940, 54 Stat. 217, ch. 204.)

AMENDMENT

1940—Act May 20, 1940, amended section generally. Prior to such amendment, section read as follows: "When any company is required by the laws of the District, or of any State or county, or by other competent authority, to make a deposit with an insurance supervising official, or other financial officer, and where said deposit is made by the company in bonds or other evidence of indebtedness of the United States, or of any State of the United States, or of any county or incorporated city of any State of the United States, the said securities shall be delivered to the Secretary of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and the Auditor of the District of Columbia, who shall receive and hold the same, subject to the lawful orders of the Superintendent of Insurance, and who shall be responsible for the safekeeping of all securities deposited or delivered under the authority of this section, so long as the company continues solvent and complies with the laws of the United States and of the District of Columbia, and it may in that event collect the income on such securities. The company shall have the right to substitute therefor other securities, required by this section as lawful investment, provided such substitute securities are of the character, amount, and value called for by this section and are approved by the Superintendent of Insurance. If the value of the securities deposited by any company shall decline below the amounts so required, the company shall make a further deposit and maintain the deposit in the amount and value so required."

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 35-415.

§ 35-417. Withdrawal of general deposits—Notice—Examination—Bond—Reinsurance—Notice.

When a company determines to discontinue its business or to cease to do business in the District and desires to withdraw its deposit made in the District pursuant to chapters 3-8 of this title the superintendent shall, upon the application of the company, and at its expense, give notice of such intention in a newspaper of general circulation in the District once a week for three consecutive weeks. After such publication he shall deliver to such company or its assigns the securities so deposited when he is satisfied upon examination and investigation made by him or under his authority and upon the oaths of the president and secretary or other chief officers of the company that all debts and liabilities of every kind due and to become due which the deposit was made to secure are paid and extinguished: Provided, That the superintendent may require any company so withdrawing from the District to furnish bond to cover any undisclosed or contingent liabilities.

Upon a company being wholly reinsured the superintendent may deliver to it or to its assigns all securities deposited by it upon compliance with the following condition: The reinsuring company shall assume and agree to discharge all liabilities of every kind due and to become due which the deposit of the reinsured company was made to secure. Such reinsuring company shall have a deposit in the District or with some State official in the United States in securities recognized by this law as lawful investments of the company in an amount and value not less than the deposit required of the reinsured company. The deposit of the reinsuring company shall be such that it will subsist for the security of the obligations of the reinsured company assumed by the reinsuring company. The superintendent shall give notice of such reinsurance agreement and of the application for the deposit once a week for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the District before the delivery of such securities to the reinsuring company. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1134, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 18.)

§ 35-418. Examinations—Reports—Verification—Hearing upon—Publication—Expense.

The superintendent may examine the books, papers, property, and the affairs of any insurance company organized or doing business in the District and of any company engaged in or professing to be engaged in organizing, promoting, or soliciting stock or capital contributions to or aiding in the formation of an insurance company or of any company which holds the capital stock of an insurance company for the purpose of controlling the management thereof as voting trustees or otherwise. The superintendent, his deputy, or any examiner may examine under oath the officers and agents of such company and all persons deemed to have material information regarding the company's property or business. Every such company, its officers and agents, shall produce at the home office of the company at the time designated by the superintendent, its books of original entry and all records and papers in its or their possession relating to its business or affairs, and any other person may be required to produce any book, record, or paper in his custody relevant to the examination, for the inspection of the superintendent, his deputy or examiners, whenever required; and the officers and agents of such company shall facilitate such examination and aid the examiners in making the same so far as it is in their power to do so. Every such examiner shall make a full and true report of every examination made by him, verified by his oath, which shall comprise only facts appearing upon the books, papers, records, or documents of such company, or ascertained from the sworn testimony of its officers or agents or other persons examined under oath concerning its affairs, and said report so verified shall be presumptive evidence in any action or proceeding in the name of the District against the company, its officers or agents, of the facts therein stated. The superintendent shall grant a hearing to the company examined, or he shall furnish it a copy of his report, in tentative form, requesting that the statements and items therein contained be checked, and the report be returned to the superintendent within the time specified by him, before filing any such report and before making public such report or any matters relating thereto; and may withhold any such report from public inspection for such time as he may deem proper; and may, after so filing, if he deems it for the interest of the public to do so, publish any such report or the result of any such examination as contained therein in one or more newspapers in the District without expense to the company. It shall be the duty of the superintendent to examine every domestic insurance company at least once in three years.

The expense of every such examination, not to include salaries, shall be paid by the company examined, and such company shall pay to the superintendent, his deputies, and/or his examiners the actual expense of such examination upon itemized bills furnished by the superintendent. § 35-419. Superintendent may take possession of property of company and conduct its business—Conditions precedent—Procedure—Injunction—Resumption of possession by company—Order for liquidation—Appointment of deputies—Expense of liquidation—Bond—Annual report.

The superintendent may, the corporation counsel of the District representing him, apply to the court having jurisdiction of civil actions wherein the amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 for a rule directing any company doing business in the District, any company organized under the laws of the District or other Acts of Congress, or any company in course of organization, to show cause why the superintendent should not take possession of its property and conduct its business and for such other relief as the nature of the case and the interests of its policyholders, creditors, stockholders, or the public may require, whenever any such company (a) is insolvent; or (b) in the case of a stock company, has neglected or refused to observe a lawful order of the superintendent to make good within the time prescribed by law any deficiency of its capital or surplus, or in the case of a mutual company, if its assets have not become equal to its liabilities within ninety days from the date of notification thereof by the superintendent; or (c) has by contract or reinsurance, or otherwise transferred or attempted to transfer substantially its entire property or business, or entered into any transaction the effect of which is to merge substantially its entire property or business, in the property or business of any other company, association, society, or order, without having first obtained the written approval of the superintendent; or (d) is found, after an examination by the superintendent, his deputy or examiners, to be in such condition that its further transaction of business will be hazardous to its policyholders; or (e) has willfully violated its charter; or (f) is carrying on activities against public policy.

On such application, or any time thereafter, such court may, in its discretion, issue an injunction restraining such company from the transaction of its business or disposition of its property pending further order of the court. On the return of such rule to show cause, the court shall hear, try, and determine the issues forthwith and shall either deny the application or direct the superintendent to take possession of the property and conduct the business of such company, and retain such possession and conduct such business until on the application either of the superintendent, the corporation counsel representing him, or of the company, it shall, after a like hearing, appear to the court that the ground for the order directing the superintendent to take possession has been removed and that the company can properly resume possession of its property and the conduct of its business.

If, on the like application and rule to show cause, and after a hearing, the court shall order the liquidation of the business of such company, such liquidation shall be made by and under the direction of the superintendent, who may deal with the property and business of such company in his own name as superintendent or in the name of the company, as the court may direct, and shall be vested by operation of law with title to all of the property, contracts, and rights of action of such company as of the date of the order so directing him to liquidate. The filing or recording of such order in the office of the recorder of deeds for the District shall impart the same notice that a deed, bill of sale, or other evidence of title duly filed or recorded by such company would have imparted.

For the purpose of this section the superintendent shall have power to appoint under his hand and official seal one or more special deputy superintendents of insurance as his agent or agents, and to employ clerks and assistants as may by him be deemed necessary, and give each of such persons such powers to assist him as he may consider wise. The fair and reasonable compensation of such special deputy superintendents, clerks, and assistants and all expenses of taking possession of and conducting the business of liquidating any such company shall be recommended by the superintendent, subject to the approval of the court, and shall on certificate of the superintendent be paid out of the funds or assets of such company.

For the purpose of this section the District of Columbia Council shall have power, subject to the approval of the court, to make and prescribe such rules and regulations as to it shall seem proper.

The superintendent shall transmit to the Commissioner, in his annual report, the names of the companies so taken possession of, whether the same have resumed business or have been liquidated, and such other facts as shall acquaint the policyholders, creditors, stockholders, and the public with his proceedings under this section; and, to that end, the special deputy superintendent in charge of any such company shall file annually with the superintendent a report of the affairs of such company similar to that required by section 35-407. The court may require corporate surety bond from the superintendent or any assistant appointed by him, in such amount as it may deem necessary, the cost of which bond shall be paid as other expenses provided under this section. II, § 20; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32 (b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 29, 1970, Pub. Every insurance company whose assets and credits are not sufficient to reinsure its outstanding risks in a solvent insurance company, shall be deemed insolvent and may be proceeded against as an insolvent company. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1137, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 21.)

§ 35-421. Reinsurance by superintendent.

The superintendent may reinsure all of the policy obligations of any domestic insurance company, of which he is a receiver, in any solvent company authorized to do business in the District, if the assets of the company are sufficient to effect such reinsurance. If such assets are insufficient for that purpose, the superintendent, upon like consent, may reinsure a percentage of each outstanding policy obligation of such company to the extent that its assets may be sufficient for that purpose. No contract of reinsurance shall be entered into by the superintendent, except in pursuance of an order of the court in which he was appointed receiver directing the reinsurance and establishing the general form of the contract for the same. All bonds or other evidences of debt having a fixed term and rate held by any company authorized to do business in the District, if amply secured and if not in default as to principal or interest, shall be valued as follows: If purchased at par, at the par value; if purchased above or below par, on the basis of the purchase price adjusted so as to bring the value to par at maturity and so as to yield meantime the effective rate of interest at which the purchase was made: Provided, That the purchase price shall in no case be taken at a higher figure than the actual market value at the time of purchase: Provided further, That the superintendent shall have full discretion in determining the method of calculating values according to the foregoing rule, and the values found by him in accordance with such method shall be final and binding: And provided further, That any such company may return such bonds or other evidences of debt at their market value or their book value, but in no event at an aggregate value exceeding the aggregate of the values calculated according to the foregoing rule. #### § 35-423. Superintendent as attorney for service of process—Superintendent to mail process to company—Acceptance of certificate is appointment—Failure—Penalty.

Every domestic company not having its home office in the District and every foreign or alien company now or hereafter transacting business in the District, and every foreign or alien company now or hereafter soliciting, selling, or writing insurance on any resident of the District, through the medium of the United States mails, shall file with the superintendent a duly executed instrument appointing and constituting him and his successors the true and lawful attorney of such company upon whom all lawful process in any action or legal proceeding against it may be served and therein shall agree that any lawful process against it which may be served upon its said attorney, as herein provided, shall be of the same force and validity as if served upon the company and the authority thereof shall continue in force irrevocably so long as any liability of the company in the District shall remain outstanding. Such process shall be served by leaving the same with the superintendent or his deputy, and service thereof upon such attorney shall be deemed service upon the principal. The superintendent shall forthwith forward such process by mail to the company, or, in the case of an alien company, to the resident manager or last appointed general agent of the company in the United States. The deposit, by the superintendent or his deputy, of such process sent by registered mail or by certified mail in a sealed envelope, postage prepaid, in the United States mail and service of such process, shall not be effectual until the same has been so mailed and received by the company and the return receipt for such registered or certified mail shall be prima facie evidence of the notice of service to a company, or to the resident manager in the case of an alien company.

Failure of any such company to file such instrument, or failure on the part of any such company to authorize such filing, shall not invalidate any service made by serving the superintendent. By accepting a certificate of authority to transact business in the District, every such company shall be held to have appointed the superintendent its true and lawful attorney. Any such insurance company transacting business or soliciting, selling, or writing insurance on any resident of the District without designating an attorney for service of process, incident to adjustment of claims and kindred matters, shall, upon complaint filed by the superintendent in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, be fined, upon conviction of violating any provision of this section, not to exceed $200 a day for such violation. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS

Where an individual certificate of insurance was mailed to insured, although master policy of group insurance plan was delivered in Missouri to representative of association having group policy, and premiums were paid to association, and association mailed check to insurer, insurer was subject to substituted service in action by beneficiary on policy by service upon Superintendent of Insurance of District of Columbia under this section providing that every foreign company soliciting, selling, or writing insurance on any resident of the District through medium of United States mails may be served by service upon Superintendent. Security National Life Insurance Co. v. Washington (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 113 A. 2d 749).

Constitutionality

Congress, legislating for the District of Columbia, has power to protect the interest of District residents for whom out of town companies write insurance policies, and such protective legislation is effective even though it may have repercussions beyond the geographical boundaries of the District. Security National Life Insurance Co. v. Washington (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 113 A. 2d 749).

This section, providing that every foreign company soliciting, selling, or writing insurance on any resident of District of Columbia through medium of United States mails can be served by service upon District Superintendent of Insurance is constitutional and does not violate due process of law requirements. Id.

§ 35-424. Political contributions prohibited—Penalty—Immunity of witnesses.

No company doing business in the District shall directly or indirectly pay or use, or offer, consent, or agree to pay or use any money or property for or in aid of any political party, committee, or organization, or for or in aid of any corporation, joint-stock, or other association organized or maintained for political purposes, or for or in aid of any candidate for political office or for nomination for such office, or for any political purpose whatsoever, or for the reimbursement or indemnification of any person for money or property so used. Any officer, director, stockholder, attorney, or agent of any company which violates any of the provisions of this section, who participates in, aids, abets, or advises, or consents to any such violation, and any person who solicits or knowingly receives any money or property in violation of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year and a fine of not more than $1,000, and any officer aiding or abetting in any contribution made in violation of this section shall be liable to the company for the amount so contributed.

No person shall be excused from testifying or from producing books, accounts, and papers in any proceeding based upon or growing out of any violation of the provisions of this section, on the ground or for the reason that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate him or subject him to penalty or forfeiture; but no person having so testified shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he may have testified or produced any documentary evidence: Provided, That no person so testifying shall be exempted from prosecution or punishment for perjury: Provided further, That the immunity hereby conferred shall extend only to a natural person who, in obedience to a subpoena gives testimony under oath or produces evidence, documentary or otherwise, under oath. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1138, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 25.)

No person shall act within the District for any life-insurance company as a general agent, agent, or solicitor in the solicitation or procurement of applications for insurance unless he has complied with the provisions of this section and has secured a license from the superintendent of insurance. Each applicant for such license shall file with the superintendent of insurance his written application therefor on blanks furnished by the superintendent, which application shall be signed and sworn to by the applicant and shall give his name, age, residence, place of business, and occupation for five years next prior to the date of application and also set forth his qualifications for such license, namely, his familiarity with the life-insurance laws of the District and with the provisions of the contracts to be negotiated; what insurance experience he has had, if any; what insurance instruction he has had or expects to receive; whether he has been refused or has had suspended or revoked a license to solicit insurance by the insurance department or supervising officials of the District of Columbia or of any State; whether any insurance company or any general agent claims such applicant is indebted under any agency contract or otherwise, and if so, the name of the claimant, the nature of the claim and the applicant's defense thereto, if any; whether he has had an agency contract canceled, and if so, when, by what company, or general agent and the reason for such action, and such other information as the District of Columbia Council may require. Any such applicant who willfully files with or otherwise submits to the Superintendent, orally or in writing, any material statement, knowing such statement to be false, shall, in addition to any other penalty prescribed by law, be guilty of perjury and subject to the penalties thereof. The applicant shall be vouched for by an official or a licensed representative of the company for which he proposes to act, who shall certify whether the applicant is personally known to him, whether the applicant has been appointed a general agent, agent, or solicitor to represent such company, and that such company has duly investigated the character and record of such person, and has satisfied itself that he is trustworthy and qualified to act as its general agent, agent, or solicitor and intends to hold himself out in good faith as a life insurance general agent, agent, or solicitor. If, upon the showing made, the superintendent of insurance is reasonably satisfied that the applicant is a trustworthy person he shall promptly issue the license applied for. A general agent, agent, or solicitor licensed to represent any life insurance company doing business in the District shall be entitled to place excess or rejected risks in any other company lawfully doing business in the District, with the knowledge and approval of his own company without additional or separate license. Every license issued under this section shall expire annually on the 30th day of April next after its issue unless prior thereto it is revoked or suspended by the Superintendent of Insurance or the authority of the general agent, agent, or solicitor to act for the company is terminated.

In the absence of a contrary ruling by the superintendent in a given case, license renewals shall be issued from year to year upon the request of the company without further action on the part of the general agent, agent, or solicitor.

No officer or traveling salaried employee of any insurance company not compensated on a commission basis shall be required to obtain a license under this section.

Every life insurance company shall, upon the termination of the employment of any general agent, agent, or solicitor, file with the Superintendent of Insurance a statement of the facts relative to the termination of such employment and the cause thereof. Any information, document, record, statement, or thing required to be made or disclosed to the Superintendent of Insurance by this section, shall be privileged and shall not be used as evidence in any action or proceeding instituted against the company or any representative thereof by or in behalf of any person who has been licensed under the provisions of this section. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1139, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 26; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 76, Pub. L. 88-57, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

1963—Act July 8, 1963, amended the section by adding the above sentence starting with the words "Any such applicant" to follow the second sentence in the section.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNCIL

Section 402(272) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the function of the Board of Commissioners of requiring information, in addition to that specified in the statute, to be included in applications filed for licensing as life insurance general agent, agent, or solicitor, under this section, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the plan. #### SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 35-1336, 47-1591.

Predication of indictment

A perjury indictment could not be grounded upon a knowingly false answer to a question placed by superintendent of insurance, in an application for a license to act as an insurance solicitor. C. S. Nelson v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 376, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

Propriety of regulation

Superintendent of insurance does not have power to promulgate regulations, and was not authorized to make felonious even a knowingly false answer to a question which Congress had not made material. C. S. Nelson v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 376, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

Sufficiency of indictment

Indictment charging defendant generally in statutory language, with three counts of perjury, would be deemed sufficient, especially where record indicated that defendant had not been misled or prejudiced in his defense, and had not moved for a bill of particulars. C. S.

Nelson v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 376, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

Weight of Superintendent's decisions

Decision of superintendent of insurance for District of Columbia as to whether general insurance agent's license should be renewed must be given weight because of superintendent's special position in congressional regulatory plan. A. F. Jordan, Superintendent of Insurance etc. v. J. Silverman (1961, 294 F. 2d 916, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 132).

District Court's conclusion on appeal that action of superintendent of insurance for District of Columbia in refusing to renew general insurance agent's license should not be sustained was not in derogation of statutory responsibility of superintendent. Id.

Notwithstanding weight to be given decision of superintendent of insurance for District of Columbia to deny renewal of general insurance agent's license, evidence as a whole, consisting of administrative record and that additionally adduced before District Court, supported conclusion that action of superintendent should not be sustained. Id.

§ 35-426. Suspension or revocation of license—Grounds for—Hearing—Penalty.

The Superintendent of Insurance may suspend or revoke the license of any life insurance general agent, agent, solicitor, or broker when and if, after investigation, it appears to the Superintendent that any license issued to such person was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation; or that the general agent, agent, solicitor, or broker has violated any insurance law of the District; or has made any misleading representations or incomplete or fraudulent comparison of any policies or companies or concerning any companies to any person for the purpose or with the intention of inducing such person to lapse, forfeit, surrender, or exchange his insurance then in force; or has made any misleading estimate of the dividends or share of surplus to be received on a policy; or has failed or refused to pay or to deliver to the company or to his principal any money or other property in the hands of said general agent, agent, solicitor, or broker belonging to such company or principal when requested so to do; or has violated any lawful ruling of the insurance department; or has been convicted of a felony; or has otherwise shown himself untrustworthy or incompetent to act as a life insurance general agent, agent, solicitor, or broker. Before the Superintendent of Insurance shall revoke or suspend the license of any such person he shall give to such person an opportunity to be fully heard, and to introduce evidence in his behalf. Within thirty days after the revocation or suspension of license or the refusal of the Superintendent to grant a license, the general agent, agent, solicitor, or broker, or applicant aggrieved may appeal from the ruling of the Superintendent of Insurance to the court of competent jurisdiction designated in section 35-427. Appeals may be taken from the judgment of said court as prescribed in section 35-427. At any hearing provided by this section, the Superintendent shall have authority to administer oaths to witnesses. Anyone testifying falsely after having been administered such an oath shall be subject to the penalties of perjury.

No individual whose license as a general agent, agent, solicitor, or broker is revoked shall be entitled to any license under chapters 3-8 of this Title for a period of one year after revocation.

Any person who violates any provision of this section upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding $100 for each and every violation: Provided, That in lieu of revoking or suspending the license of any such general agent, agent, solicitor, or broker for causes enumerated in this section after hearing as herein provided, the Superintendent may subject such person to a penalty of not more than $200 when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continuation of the license of such person. The amount of any such penalty shall be paid by such person through the office of the Superintendent to the Collector of Taxes of the District of Columbia. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1140, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 27; May 4, 1950, 64 Stat. 103, ch. 157, § 2; Feb. 22, 1958, 72 Stat. 21, Pub. L. 85-334, § 3.)

AMENDMENTS

1958—Act Feb. 22, 1958, authorized the Superintendent to administer oaths to witnesses, provided that false testimony after such oath be penalized as perjury, and eliminated provisions which related to hearings before salaried employees of the Department designated by the Superintendent, and which required written notice to be given by registered mail to the person and to the company, not less than 20 days prior to the time set for hearing.

1950—Act May 4, 1950, added the proviso relating to monetary penalties in lieu of suspension or revocation of license.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Findings of fact

In a proceeding before Superintendent of Insurance on a complaint charging insurance solicitor with misrepresenting advantages of exchange of life insurance policies, Superintendent was required to make findings of fact disclosing particular circumstances upon which determination of misrepresentation rested and although solicitor did not ask for specific findings prior to institution of suit in District Court following revocation of his license, he would be given an opportunity to request specific findings of the Superintendent. Coffey v. Jordan ind. and as Supt. of Insurance (1959, 275 F. 2d 1, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 113).

§ 35-427. Appeal from rulings of superintendent—Procedure—Costs and supersedeas bond—Liability of superintendent.

Within thirty days after the revocation or suspension of license or the refusal of the superintendent to grant a license, the general agent, agent, solicitor, or broker or applicant aggrieved may appeal as provided by the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, secs. 1-1501 to 1-1510).

In all said proceedings and appeals said superintendent shall not be taxed with any costs, nor shall he be required to give any supersedeas bond or security for costs or damages on any appeal whatsoever. Said superintendent shall not be liable to suit or action or for any judgment or decree for any damages, loss, or injury claimed by any person on any appeal taken by said superintendent in any case, nor shall said superintendent be required in any case to make any deposit for costs or pay for any service to the clerks of any court or to any marshal of the United States. 1970—Section 163(c) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "from the ruling of the superintendent to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, in equity" and all that follows in the first paragraph and inserting in lieu thereof "as provided by the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, secs. 1-1501 to 1-1510)."

Findings of fact

In a proceeding before Superintendent of Insurance on a complaint charging insurance solicitor with misrepresenting advantages of exchange of life insurance policies, Superintendent was required to make findings of fact disclosing particular circumstances upon which determination of misrepresentation rested, and although solicitor did not ask for specific findings prior to institution of suit in District Court following revocation of his license, he would be given an opportunity to request specific findings of the Superintendent. Coffey v. Jordan ind. and as Supt. of Ins. (1959, 275 F. 2d 1, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 113).

Jurisdiction

The United States District Court for District of Columbia, as local court of general jurisdiction, had jurisdiction without express statutory authorization to review administrative action by trial de novo. A. F. Jordan, Supt of Insurance etc. v. United Insurance Co. of America (1961, 289 F. 2d 778, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 112).

Weight of Superintendent's decisions

Decision of superintendent of insurance for District of Columbia as to whether general insurance agent's license should be renewed must be given weight because of superintendent's special position in congressional regulatory plan. A. F. Jordan, Superintendent of Insurance etc. v. J. Silverman (1961, 294 F. 2d 916, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 132).

District Court's conclusion on appeal that action of superintendent of insurance for District of Columbia in refusing to renew general insurance agent's license should not be sustained was not in derogation of statutory responsibility of superintendent. Id.

Notwithstanding weight to be given decision of superintendent of insurance for District of Columbia to deny renewal of general insurance agent's license, evidence as a whole, consisting of administrative record and that additionally adduced before District Court, supported conclusion that action of superintendent should not be sustained. Id.

§ 35-428. Brokers—License—Application—Contents—Person vouched for—Examination—Issuance—Effect of revocation—Appeal from refusal to issue—Renewal annually—Penalty for violation.

Every person desiring to engage in business in the District as a life insurance broker shall apply to the superintendent for a license so to do and in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

The applicant for such license shall file with the superintendent his written application therefor and shall make a sworn statement on blanks to be prepared by the superintendent giving his name, age, residence, place of business, occupation for five years just prior to the date of making his application; and shall state that he intends to hold himself out in good faith as carrying on the business of broker of life insurance, and shall also set out his qualifications, namely, his familiarity with the life insurance laws of the District and with the provisions of the policy contracts to be negotiated; what insurance experience and instruction he has had; his intention with reference to engaging regularly if not exclusively in the business of life insurance broker; whether he has been refused or has had suspended or revoked a license as a broker, general agent, agent, or solicitor of life insurance by the insurance department or the supervising officials of any state; whether any company claims that he is indebted to it under any agency contract or otherwise; if so, what company, the nature of the claim and of his defense if any, whether he has had any agency contract canceled by any company, and if so, when, by what company, and the reason for such action, and such other information as the District of Columbia Council may require. Any such applicant who willfully files with or otherwise submits to the Superintendent, orally or in writing, any material statement, knowing such statement to be false, shall, in addition to any other penalty prescribed by law, be guilty of perjury and subject to the penalties thereof.

The applicant shall be vouched for by at least three reputable citizens of the District setting out whether the applicant is personally known to them, what they know of the reputation of the applicant as a man of business integrity, and what they know of the applicant's general fitness to act as a broker of life insurance.

The superintendent may require such applicant for license or renewal thereof to submit to examination as to his fitness or qualifications for the license or licenses applied for. Such examination may be made by the superintendent or by his deputy, which said examination may be waived by the superintendent, upon satisfactory proof of the qualifications of the applicant.

When the superintendent is satisfied from the application or the examination made by him that the applicant is qualified, he shall issue to said applicant a license to engage in the business specified in said applications which shall also be specified in said license.

No individual whose license as a broker is revoked shall be entitled to any license under chapters 3-8 of this title for a period of one year after such revocation, provided, however, that the failure or refusal of the superintendent to license any such applicant shall be subject to review in the same manner as provided in section 35-427.

Licenses shall be renewed annually and every such license shall continue in force until the 30th day of April next following unless in the meantime suspended or revoked; provided any qualified person may be licensed as a broker regardless of place of residence or domicile.

Any person who violates any provision of this section upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding $100 for each and every violation. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1141, ch. 672, Ch. II, § 29; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 76, Pub. L. 88-57, § 1.)

If he fails to pay the same over to the company after written demand made upon him therefor, such failure shall be prima facie evidence that he has used or applied the said premium for a purpose other than paying the same over to the company, and upon conviction thereof he shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement and punished accordingly. #### § 35-509. Amendment of articles of incorporation—Procedure.

Any company may amend its articles of incorporation upon publishing notice of such intention, authorized by a majority of its directors, once a week for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the District, and with the written consent of stockholders representing at least two-thirds of the capital stocks entitled to vote, or two-thirds of its members present in person or by proxy at a meeting called for that purpose if it does not have capital stock, and by observing such other and further requirements in that behalf as may be prescribed in its articles of incorporation. Such amendment shall be signed and acknowledged by the president and secretary or like officers of the company, and, with a copy of the proceedings of the stockholders or members, if any, and of the directors, shall be filed with the superintendent and by him submitted to the corporation counsel, and if he finds the amendment and proceedings in conformity with the law, he shall so certify to the superintendent. The amendment shall not take effect until the superintendent shall deliver to the company his certified copy of the amendment and of the certificate of the

(a) If a company amend its articles of incorporation by providing for an increase of its capital stock, such increase shall be subscribed and fully paid up within one year of the date of such amendment, unless the superintendent shall certify his consent to an extension of such time. Failure to have such increase of capital stock paid up within the time provided may be considered grounds for ousting the company from its powers under any such amendment to such articles of incorporation by a court of competent jurisdiction in a proceeding by the superintendent, the corporation counsel representing him, against the company for such judgment.

(b) Subsection (a) hereof shall not be applicable to an amendment of the articles of incorporation providing for an increase of capital stock wherein said amendment provides that said increase will be reserved for issuance for—

(1) the acquisition of the ownership or control of another insurance company as an affiliate or subsidiary subject to the limitations of subsection 10(b) of section 35-535: Provided, however, That no such acquisition shall be consummated until it has been approved or ratified by stockholders representing at least a majority of the capital stock entitled to vote;

(2) the granting of options to officers or employees of the company to purchase authorized but unissued shares of stock of the company, for such consideration and upon such terms and conditions as may be fixed by the board of directors: Provided, however, That (a) at no time shall the number of shares reserved for this purpose exceed, in the aggregate, 5 per centum of the total authorized shares of stock of the company; (b) no more than 10 per centum of the total number of shares authorized to be optioned may be made available to any individual under any and all options issued to him by the company; (c) no option shall be promised or granted (1) to any individual employed by an insurance company authorized to do business in the District of Columbia (other than the company promising or granting the option or a subsidiary of the company promising or granting the option) while that individual is so employed, or (2) to any individual within two years following the termination of his employment with such an insurance company; (d) the option price of shares subject to any such option shall not be less than 95 per centum of the fair market value of such shares at the time the option is granted and shall be not less than the par value of such shares; (e)

any such option shall not be transferable except by will or the laws of descent and distribution; (f) any such option shall not be exercisable after the expiration of 10 years from the time the option is granted; or

(3) the paying of stock dividends:

Provided, That at no time shall the number of shares of reserved unissued stock exceed the number of shares of issued and outstanding shares of stock of said company. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1146, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 10; Aug. 31, 1964, 78 Stat. 765, Pub. L. 88-556, § 4.)

AMENDMENT

1964—Section 4 of act Aug. 31, 1964, amended section by inserting (a) at the beginning of the section and by adding subsection (b) thereto.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1964 AMENDMENT

See note to section 35-508.

§ 35-511. Decrease of capital stock—Conditions—Reissuance of stock certificates.

A company may, with the approval of the superintendent, amend its articles of incorporation by providing for a decrease of its capital stock and a corresponding increase in surplus to an amount not less than the minimum capital stock and surplus required by chapters 3-8 of this title. The superintendent shall not approve or issue his certified copy of such amendment if he be of the opinion that the interests of policyholders or creditors may be prejudiced thereby. No distribution of the assets of the company shall be made to stockholders upon any such decrease of capital stock which shall reduce the surplus and capital stock to less than the minimum capital stock and surplus required as aforesaid. Upon any such amendment so decreasing the capital stock such company may require each stockholder to return his certificate of stock and accept a new certificate for such proportion of the amount of its original capital stock as the reduced capital stock shall bear to the original capital stock. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1146, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 11.)

§ 35-512. Liability of stockholders—Fiduciaries as stockholders—Pledged stock.

All the stockholders of every company incorporated under this chapter shall be severally and individually liable to the policyholders and creditors of the company in which they are stockholders for the unpaid amount due upon the shares of capital stock held by them, respectively, for all debts and contracts made by such company until the whole amount of capital stock fixed and limited by such company shall have been paid in.

No person holding capital stock in such company as executor, administrator, guardian, committee, or trustee shall be personally subject to any liability as stockholder of such company, but the estate and funds in the hands of such executor, administrator, guardian, committee, or trustee shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator or intestate or the ward or person interested in such trust would have been if he had been living and competent to act and hold the stock in his own name.

Every such executor, administrator, guardian, committee, or trustee shall represent the capital stock in his hands at all meetings of the company, and may vote accordingly as a stockholder.

No person holding capital stock in such company as collateral security shall be personally subject to any liability as stockholder of such company, but the person pledging such capital stock shall be considered as holding the same, and shall be liable as a stockholder accordingly; and every person who shall pledge his capital stock as collateral security may, nevertheless, represent the same at all meetings and vote as a stockholder. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1146, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 12.)

§ 35-513. Capital stock must be paid in before doing business—Capital stock payment calls—Forfeiture—Notice.

No company incorporated under this chapter shall be authorized to transact any business until the authorized capital stock shall have been actually paid in, either in cash or in investments authorized by chapters 3-8 of this title at market value; and it shall be lawful for the directors to call in and demand from the stockholders the residue of their subscriptions in money or property at such times and in such instalments as the directors shall deem proper, under the penalty of forfeiting the shares of capital stock subscribed for and all previous payments made thereon, if payment shall not be made by the stockholder within sixty days after a personal demand or a notice requiring such payment shall have been published once a week for three consecutive weeks in a daily newspaper in the District. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1147, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 13.)

§ 35-514. Capital stock transfers—Effect of record ownership.

The capital stock of such company shall be deemed personal estate and shall be transferable in such manner as shall be prescribed by the bylaws of the company; but no shares shall be transferable until all previous calls thereon shall have been fully paid in or the shares shall have been declared forfeited for nonpayment.

A person in whose name shares of capital stock stand on the books of a company shall be deemed the owner thereof as regards the company, but if any such person shall in good faith sell or otherwise dispose of any of his shares of capital stock to another and deliver to him the certificates for such shares, with written authority for the transfer of the same on the books, the title of the former shall vest in the latter so far as may be necessary to effect the purpose of the sale or other disposition, not only as between the parties themselves but also as against the creditors of and subsequent purchasers from the former. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1147, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 14.)

§ 35-515. Capital stock records—Contents—To be kept open—Contents as evidence—Penalty for neglect to make entry or to exhibit.

It shall be the duty of the directors of every domestic stock company to cause a record to be kept by the treasurer or secretary of the company or by the stock transfer agent of the company containing the names of all persons, alphabetically arranged, who are or shall within six years have been stockholders of such company, and showing their place of residence, the number of shares of capital stock held by them, respectively, the time when they became owners of such shares, and the amount of capital stock actually paid in.

Such record shall, during the usual business hours of the day, on every business day, be open for inspection by policyholders, stockholders, creditors of the company, and the personal representatives of such policyholders, stockholders, and creditors at the office or principal place of business of such company in the place where its business operations shall be located in the District of Columbia, or at the office of the stock transfer agent located in the District of Columbia, and any policyholder, stockholder, creditor, or representative shall have a right to make extracts from such record.

Such record shall be presumptive evidence of the facts therein stated in favor of the plaintiff in any suit or proceeding against such company or against any one or more stockholders.

Every officer, stock transfer agent, or any other agent of any company who shall neglect to make any proper entry in such record, or shall refuse or neglect to exhibit the same, or allow the same to be inspected and extracts to be taken therefrom, as herein provided, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and the company shall pay to the party injured a penalty of $50 for any such neglect or refusal, and all damages resulting therefrom.

Every company that shall neglect to have such record kept open for inspection, as herein provided, shall forfeit to the District the sum of $50 for every day it shall so neglect, to be sued for and recovered by the Superintendent, the Corporation Counsel representing him, in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1147, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 15; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; Aug. 20, 1964, 78 Stat. 556, Pub. An alleged cause of action charging that the president and director of a corporation is personally liable for participating in "ultra vires" act to the detriment of the corporation and for being pecuniarily interested in corporate transactions in violation of statute should be maintainable as part of a derivative action. *G. ### § 35-527. Salaries to be authorized by directors.

§ 35-528. Limitation of dividends to stockholders and policyholders.

company of any property, or any loan from such company, nor be pecuniarily interested, either as principal, coprincipal, agent, or beneficiary, in any such purchase, sale, or loan, nor shall the financial obligation of any such director or officer be guaranteed by such company in any capacity: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall prevent any such director or officer from receiving a fee for appraising property for said company or for serving on any committee that passes on the investments of said company: Provided further, That nothing herein contained shall prevent a life insurance company from making a loan upon a policy held therein by a director not in excess of the net value thereof. Any person violating any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1151, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 30.)

Claim for "ultra vires" act as part of derivative action

An alleged cause of action charging that the president and director of a corporation is personally liable for participating in "ultra vires" act to the detriment of the corporation and for being pecuniarily interested in corporate transactions in violation of statute should be maintainable as part of a derivative action. G. E. Johnson et al. v. American General Insurance Company et al. (1969, 296 F. Supp. 802).

Construction

District of Columbia statute providing that a director or officer of an insurance company doing business in the district shall not receive any money or valuable thing for negotiating any loan from the company or be pecuniarily interested in any such loan is regulatory and is intended to secure fiduciary relationship from being utilized in a manner which might give rise to conflict of interest and is not intended to punish one who violates the statute, hence the rule of strict construction of criminal statute is to be relaxed. A. F. Jordan v. Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., et ano. (1969, 409 F. 2d 1141, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 224; rev'g 283 F. Supp. 766).

Inasmuch as statute prohibiting director or officer of life insurer from obtaining loan from insurer provided that any person violating statute should be guilty of misdemeanor, statute must be treated as a penal statute. Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., et ano. v. A. F. Jordan Sup't etc. (1968, 283 F. Supp. 766; rev'd and remanded 409 F. 2d 1141).

Portion of section of District of Columbia Code to effect that no director or officer of any life insurer doing business in district shall receive any money or valuable thing for negotiating, procuring, recommending or aiding in any loan from such insurer was intended to bar director or officer from receiving any compensation, such as broker's commission, for procuring a loan to be made and to prevent director or officer from borrowing any money from insurer while he was director or officer. Id.

Eligibility of borrower to become director or officer

Under District of Columbia statute providing that a director or officer of any insurance company doing business in the district shall not receive any money or valuable thing for negotiating any loan from the company or be pecuniarily interested in any such loan, a person who is interested as principal in a loan from the insurance company is barred from becoming a director even though his interest in the loan arose prior to his becoming a director. A. F. Jordan v. Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., et ano. (1969, 409 F. 2d 1141, 133 U.S. App. D.C. 224; rev'g 283 F. Supp. 766).

Person who had borrowed money from District of Columbia insurance company was eligible to become member of board of directors or officer of company while loan was outstanding. Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., et ano. v. A. F. Jordan Sup't etc. (1968, 283 F. Supp. 766; rev'd and remanded 409 F. 2d 1141).

Section of District of Columbia Code banning director or officer of any insurer from being pecuniarily interested, either as principal, coprincipal, agent or beneficiary in any purchase by, or sale to, insurer or any loan from insurer relates to transaction of lending money and does not apply to status of loan and is not effective during entire period when loan is in existence. Id.

§ 35-531. "Voting-trust agreements" defined and declared unlawful.

It shall be unlawful for any stockholder, director, or officer of any company having capital stock to enter into any contract or agreement, commonly known as "voting-trust agreements," whereby the rights, benefits, or liabilities attaching to the capital stock are transferred or assigned, temporarily or otherwise, to any person or group of persons, incorporated or unincorporated, for the purpose of controlling, managing, or directing the company, or voting its stock: Provided, That this section shall not prevent the granting of proxies by stockholders authorizing a designated individual to represent them at stockholders' meetings. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1151, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 31.)

§ 35-532. Repealed. May 4, 1950, 64 Stat. 104, ch. 157, § 5.

Section, act June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1152, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 32, related to maximum and contingent premiums of mutual companies.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF REPEAL

Repeal of section by act May 4, 1950, effective ninety days after May 4, 1950, see section 8 of act May 4, 1950, set out as a note under section 35-405.

§ 35-533. Classification of risks, payment of dividends, and creation of surplus by mutual companies.

A mutual company may, in its articles of incorporation or in its by-laws, provide for the classification of its risks and of its members and for the payment of dividends and for the creation of a surplus. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1152, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 33.)

§ 35-534. Mutual company guaranty fund—Mutual company's power to borrow—Approval by superintendent.

For the purpose of this section, real estate shall not be deemed to be encumbered by reason of the existence of—

Such loan shall be completely amortized during the unexpired portion of the lease or leasehold estate securing its payment.

(b) Notes, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness evidencing rights to receive partial payments agreed to be made upon any contract of leasing or conditional sale, the issue of which has been approved by the proper public authority if such approval was required by law at the time of issue, if such lessee or conditional vendee is a solvent corporation domiciled within the United States or the Dominion of Canada, and if the bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, if any, of such corporation are eligible as investments under the provisions of subsection (7) of this section: Provided, however, That no company shall invest an amount in excess of 2 per centum of its admitted assets in any one issue of such notes, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness of any one corporation.

The term "net earnings available for fixed charges", as used herein, shall mean the net income after deducting all operating and maintenance expenses, depreciation and depletion, and taxes other than Federal, State, and District of Columbia income taxes, but nonrecurring items of income and expenses may be eliminated. The term "fixed charges" as used herein shall include interest on all of the fixed interest bearing debt of the corporation outstanding and maturing in more than one year, as of the date of acquisition, and in case of investment in contingent interest obligations, said term shall also include maximum annual contingent interest as of said date. The earnings of all predecessor, merged, consolidated, or purchased companies may be included through the use of consolidated or pro forma statements provided the fixed charges of all such companies are also included.

at least to three times the amount of dividends due in that year, or where in case of issuance of new preferred stock such earnings applicable to dividends are equal to at least three times the amount of proforma annual dividend requirements after giving effect to such new financing, and where the bonds and other evidences of indebtedness, if any, of such corporation are eligible as investments under the provisions of subsection (7) of this section, and where the total investment in any one issue of such preferred stock of any one corporation does not exceed 1 per centum of the investing company's admitted assets.

(b) Stocks or other securities guaranteed by any solvent corporation created under the laws of the United States, or any State thereof, or the District of Columbia, or the Dominion of Canada, or any Province thereof, if the guaranteeing corporation has not failed in any one of the three fiscal years next preceding such investment to have earned a sum applicable to interest on outstanding indebtedness and dividends on all guaranteed stocks equal to at least twice the amount of interest and guaranteed dividends payable for that year. No company shall invest in excess of 1 per centum of its assets in any one issue of guaranteed stocks made eligible for investment under this subsection.

(10) (a) Common stocks of any solvent corporation (other than its own) created under the laws of the United States, or of any State thereof, or the District of Columbia, or the Dominion of Canada, or any Province thereof, which shall have paid common dividends in cash for not less than five years next preceding the purchase of such stocks, and where the bonds and other evidences of indebtedness, if any, and the preferred stock, if any, of such corporation are eligible as investments under the provisions of subsections (7) and (9), respectively, of this section, and where the total investment in the common stock of any one corporation does not exceed 1 per centum of the investing company's admitted assets.

(b) In addition to the investments authorized in paragraph (10) (a), common stocks of any insurance company (other than as prohibited in section 35-540) created under the laws of the United States, or by any State thereof, or the District of Columbia: Provided, however, That stocks may be acquired under this paragraph (10) (b) only (i) with the intention of ultimately acquiring ownership or control of the issuing corporation as an affiliate or a subsidiary, (ii) if such acquisition will not cause the acquiring company's aggregate cost of investments under this paragraph to exceed, in the case of a capital stock company, the amount of capital, surplus, and contingency reserves in excess of $300,000, or, in the case of a mutual company, the amount of surplus and contingency reserves in excess of $150,000, and (iii) after the Superintendent of Insurance of the District of Columbia has been furnished with such information as he may require and has given to the acquiring company his written approval of the proposed acquisition stating his opinion that it will not substantially lessen competition, will not tend to create a monopoly in any line of insurance, and will not impair the financial stability of the acquiring company.

(11) Loans upon the pledge of any of the securities aforesaid, not exceeding 85 per centum of the market value of the collateral taken as security at the date of the loan.

(12) A life-insurance company may also purchase for its own benefit any policy of life insurance or other obligation of the company and claims of the holders thereof, and may lend to the holders of its life-insurance policies sums not exceeding in any case the reserve value of the policy at the time the loan is made, and for the payment of any such loan the policy and all amounts payable thereunder shall be pledged.

(13) A company doing business in a foreign country may invest the funds required to meet its obligations in such country and in conformity to the laws thereof in the same kind of securities in such foreign country that such company is allowed by law to invest in the United States.

(14) A life-insurance company may also acquire, hold, and convey real estate for the purposes and in the manner following:

(a) the building in which it has its principal office and the land on which it stands;

(b) such as shall be requisite for its convenient accommodation in the transaction of its business;

(c) such as shall have been acquired for the accommodation of its business;

(d) such as shall have been conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts, previously contracted, in the course of its dealings;

(e) such as it shall have purchased at trustee sale or sales on judgments, decrees, or mortgages obtained or made for such debts; and

(f) such as it may purchase or hold for the production of income. It may improve or otherwise develop in any manner such real estate and the improvements thereon, and may own, maintain, manage, collect, and receive income from, and sell or convey the same. No company shall, in any period of twelve consecutive months, invest in or agree to pay for real estate, including improvements thereon, under the authority of this item (f) an aggregate amount in excess of 2 per centum of its admitted assets as shown in its most recent annual statement; nor shall the total value of real estate and improvements thereon acquired or held by a company for the production of income under the provisions of this item (f) at any time exceed 5 per centum of its said admitted assets. No investment shall be made by any company pursuant to this item (f) if such company then owns real estate having a total value in excess of 10 per centum of its said admitted assets or if such investment will cause such company's aggregate investments in real estate owned by it to exceed 10 per centum of its said admitted assets: Provided, That for the purpose of applying said 10 per centum limitation real estate shall include all real estate then owned by the company and such real estate as it may have owned and sold on contract, to the extent of the balance unpaid on such contract of sale; or if the balance unpaid on account of real estate owned and sold by a company is secured by mortgage or other instrument, there shall be included as real estate the amount, if any, by which the balance unpaid exceeds 75 per centum of the value of such real estate. A company may, subject to the limitations and conditions of this item (f), elect to consider property acquired as specified in items (c), (d), and (e) as real estate for the production of income as defined in this item (f). Such election shall be duly authorized and recorded by the board of directors or by a committee of directors, officers, or employees of the company designated by the Board charged with the duty of supervising loans or investments. The minutes of any such committee shall be duly recorded and regular reports of such committee shall be submitted to the board of directors.

All such real estate specified in items (c), (d), and (e) of this subsection (14), which shall not be necessary for its accommodation in the convenient transaction of its business, and which it has not elected to hold for the production of income, shall be sold by the company and disposed of within five years after it shall have acquired the title to the same, or within five years after the same shall have ceased to be necessary for the accommodation of its business, unless the company file with the Superintendent an application for extension of time, supported by such evidence as may be required by the Superintendent, establishing to his satisfaction that an extension would be to the advantage of the company and that the interests of the company would be affected adversely by a forced sale thereof, in which event the time for the sale may be extended to such time as the Superintendent shall direct.

(15) Any domestic life insurance company may also lend or invest its funds, to an extent that the cost of such investments shall not exceed in the aggregate the lesser of (i) 5 per centum of its total admitted assets, or (ii) in the case of a capital stock company, the amount of capital, surplus, and contingency reserves in excess of $300,000 or, in the case of a mutual company, the amount of surplus and contingency reserves in excess of $150,000, in loans or investments (other than common stocks of insurance companies) not otherwise permitted under this section: Provided, however, That no company shall invest in excess of 1 per centum of its admitted assets in any one such loan or investment. The company shall keep a separate record of all loans and investments made under this subsection. In the event that, subsequently to being made under the provisions of this subsection, a loan or investment is determined to have become qualified under some other part of this section, the company may consider such loan or investment as being held under the applicable provision and such loan or investment shall no longer be considered as having been made under this subsection.

(16) The compliance of a particular investment with the restrictions that not more than a specified percentage of the investing company's admitted assets may be invested therein, as set forth in subsections (6), (7), (9), (10), (14), or (15) of this section, whichever is applicable, shall be determined as of the date of the making or acquisition of each such investment.

No loan or investment, except loans on the security of life insurance policies, shall be made by any such company, unless the same shall have been authorized or be approved by the board of directors or by a committee of directors, officers or employees of the company designated by the board charged with the duty of supervising loans or investments. The minutes of any such committee shall be duly recorded and regular reports of such committee shall be submitted to the board of directors.

No such company shall subscribe to or participate in any underwriting of the purchase or sale of securities or property, jointly with any other corporation, firm, or person, or enter into any agreement to withhold from sale any of its securities or property; but the disposition of its assets shall at all times be within the control of the company. Nothing contained in this paragraph shall be construed to invalidate or prohibit such a company from joining with one or more other investors to share in the purchase of any securities or the making of any loan for investment purposes.

Nothing in this chapter shall prohibit a company from accepting in good faith, to protect its interests, securities or property, other than herein referred to, in payment of or to secure debts due or to become due the company. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

District of Columbia Loan Shark Act is applicable to loans made by life insurance companies in regular course of their business and thus such companies, until 1963, were not exempt from requirement of obtaining license in order to make loans at rate of interest in excess of 6%, notwithstanding contentions that Act does not apply to insurance companies which "invest" their funds by making loans secured by real estate, that, in view of comprehensive regulation of insurance companies under certain titles of District of Columbia Code, they cannot be subject to licensing regulation of lending activities under Act, and that Act is not intended to apply to large loans made by "institutional lenders" and secured by real estate. In re Parkwood, Inc. (1972, 461 F. 2d 158, 149 U.S. App. D.C. 67).

§ 35-537. Reinsurance by domestic companies in authorized companies.

Any domestic company may reinsure any part of an individual risk in another company having power to make such reinsurance, and with the consent of the superintendent may reinsure any part or all of its risks in another such company. But no credit shall be taken for the reserve for unearned premiums on such reinsurance unless the company accepting the reinsurance is authorized to do business in the District by the superintendent, or in one or more States in the United States, and the superintendent shall have approved the reinsurance. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1154, ch. 672, Ch. III, § 37.)

(a) Every domestic life insurance company which issues contracts providing for payments which vary directly according to investment experience shall establish one or more separate accounts in connection with such contracts, as directed by the superintendent. All amounts received by the company which are required by contract to be applied to provide such variable payments shall be added to the appropriate separate account, and the assets of any such separate account shall not be chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business the company may conduct. Any surplus or deficit which may arise in any such separate account by virtue of mortality experience shall be adjusted by withdrawals from or additions to such account so that the assets of such account shall always equal the assets required to satisfy the company's obligations for such variable payments.

In determining the qualification of a company to issue or deliver such variable contracts in the District, the Superintendent shall consider, among other things, the history and financial condition of the company; the character, responsibility, and general fitness of the officers and directors of the company; and, in the case of a foreign or alien company, whether the regulation provided by the laws of its domicile provides a degree of protection to policyholders and the public substantially equal to that provided by this section and the rules and regulations issued by the Superintendent pursuant thereto.

(d) Every life insurance company which issues or delivers such variable contracts in the District shall file with the Superintendent, in addition to the annual statement required by section 35-407, such other periodic or special reports as the Superintendent may prescribe.

(e) The provisions of this section shall not apply to any contracts which do not provide for payments which vary directly according to investment experience.

(f) The District of Columbia Council shall have the authority to issue such reasonable rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

(g) In the case of a domestic life insurance company which issues contracts providing for payments which vary directly according to investment experience—

(b) A copy of its charter, articles of incorporation, or deed or settlement, certified by the official who is required to keep or record the same in the state under whose laws the company is incorporated, or if organized under the laws of a foreign government, province, or state, by the proper official of such government, province, or state.

§ 35-701. Superintendent to value policies—Legal standard of valuation.

(a) The Superintendent shall annually value, or cause to be valued, the reserve liabilities (hereinafter called reserves) for all outstanding life-insurance policies and annuity and pure endowment contracts of every life-insurance company doing business in the District except that in the case of an alien company such valuation shall be limited to its insurance transactions in the United States, and may certify the amount of any such reserves, specifying the mortality table or tables, rate or rates of interest and methods (net level premium method or other) used in the calculation of such reserves. All such valuations made by him or by his authority, shall be made upon the net premium basis. In calculating such reserves, he may use group methods and approximate averages for fractions of a year or otherwise. In lieu of the valuation of the reserves herein required of any foreign or alien company, he may accept any valuation made, or caused to be made, by the insurance supervisory official of any State or other jurisdiction when such valuation complies with the minimum standard herein provided and if the official of such State or jurisdiction accepts as sufficient and valid for all legal purposes the certificate of valuation of the Superintendent when such certificate states the valuation to have been made in a specified manner according to which the aggregate reserves would be at least as large as if they had been computed in the manner prescribed by the law of that State or jurisdiction.

Any such company which at any time shall have adopted any standard of valuation producing greater aggregate reserves than those calculated according to the minimum standard herein provided may, with the approval of the Superintendent, adopt any lower standard of valuation, but not lower than the minimum herein provided.

(b) This subsection shall apply to only those policies and contracts issued prior to the operative date of section 35-705b (the standard nonforfeiture law).

The legal minimum standard for the valuation of life-insurance contracts issued before January 1, 1935, shall be the method and basis of valuation heretofore applied by the Superintendent in the valuation of such contracts, and for life-insurance contracts issued on and after said date shall be the one-year preliminary term method of valuation, except as hereinafter modified, on the basis of the American Experience Table of Mortality with interest at 3½ per centum per annum: Provided, That any life company may, at its option, value its insurance contracts issued on and after January 1, 1935, in accordance with their terms on the basis of the American Men Ultimate Table of Mortality with interest not higher than 3½ per centum per annum by the level net premium method or by the modified preliminary term method hereinafter described.

If the premium charged for term insurance under a limited payment life preliminary term policy providing for the payment of all premiums thereon in less than twenty years from date of the policy, or under an endowment preliminary term policy, exceeds that charged for like insurance under twenty payment life preliminary term policies of the same company, the reserve thereon at the end of the year, including the first, shall not be less than the reserve on a twenty payment life preliminary term policy issued in the same year and at the same age, together with an amount which shall be equivalent to the accumulation of a net level premium sufficient to provide for a pure endowment at the end of the premium payment period, equal to the difference between the value at the end of such period of such a twenty payment life preliminary term policy and the full net level premium reserve at such time of such a limited payment life or endowment policy. The premium payment period is the period during which premiums are concurrently payable under such twenty payment life preliminary term policy and such limited payment life or endowment policy.

Policies issued on the preliminary term method shall contain a clause specifying that the reserve thereof shall be computed in accordance with the modified preliminary term method of valuation provided for herein.

The legal minimum standard for the valuation of annuities issued on and after January 1, 1935, shall be McClintock's Table of Mortality Among Annuity-tants, with interest at 4 per centum per annum, but annuities deferred ten or more years and written in connection with life insurance shall be valued on the same basis as that used in computing the consideration or premium therefor, or upon any higher standard at the option of the company.

The legal minimum standard for the valuation of industrial policies issued after January 1, 1935, shall be the American Experience Table of Mortality with interest at  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per centum per annum: Provided, That any life company may voluntarily value its industrial policies on the basis of the standard industrial mortality table or the substandard industrial mortality table by the level net premium method or in accordance with their terms by the modified preliminary term method hereinbefore described.

The Superintendent may vary the standards of interest and mortality in the case of alien companies as to contracts issued by such companies in other countries than the United States, and in particular cases of invalid lives and other extra hazards.

Reserves for all such policies and contracts may be calculated, at the option of the company, according to any standards which produce greater aggregate reserves for all such policies and contracts than the minimum reserves required by this subsection.

(c) This subsection shall apply to only those policies and contracts issued on or after the operative date of section 35-705b (the standard non-forfeiture law).

(1) The minimum standard for the valuation of all such policies and contracts shall be the Commissioner's reserve valuation method defined in paragraph (2),  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per centum interest, and the following tables:

(i) For all ordinary policies of life insurance issued on the standard basis, excluding any disability and accidental death benefits in such policies, the Commissioners 1941 Standard Ordinary Mortality Table for such policies issued prior to the operative date of the next to the last paragraph of section 35-705b(d), and the Commissioners 1958 Standard Ordinary Mortality Table for such policies issued on or after such operative date; provided that for any category of such policies issued on female risks all modified net premiums and present values referred to in this section may be calculated according to an age not more than three years younger than the actual age of the insured.

(ii) For all industrial life insurance policies issued on the standard basis, excluding any disability and accidental death benefits in such policies, the 1941 Standard Industrial Mortality Table for such policies issued prior to the operative date of the last paragraph of section 35-705b(d), and the Commissioners 1961 Standard Industrial Mortality Table for such policies issued on or after such operative date.

(iii) For individual annuity and pure endowment contracts, excluding any disability and accidental death benefits in such policies, the 1937 Standard Annuity Mortality Table or, at the option of the company, the Annuity Mortality Table for 1949, Ultimate, or any modification of either of these tables approved by the Superintendent.

(iv) For group annuity and pure endowment contracts, excluding any disability and accidental death benefits in such policies, the Group Annuity Mortality Table for 1951, any modification of such table approved by the Superintendent, or, at the option of the company, any of the tables or modifications of tables specified for individual annuity and pure endowment contracts.

(v) For total and permanent disability benefits in or supplementary to ordinary policies or contracts, for policies or contracts issued on or after January 1, 1966, the tables of period 2 disablement rates and the 1930 to 1950 termination rates of the 1952 Disability Study of the Society of Actuaries, with due regard to the type of benefit; for policies or contracts issued on or after January 1, 1961, and prior to January 1, 1966, either such tables or, at the option of the company, the Class (3) Disability Table (1926); and for policies issued prior to January 1, 1961, the Class (3) Disability Table (1926). Any such table shall, for active lives, be combined with a mortality table permitted for calculating the reserves for life insurance policies.

(vi) For accidental death benefits in or supplementary to policies, for policies issued on or after January 1, 1966, the 1959 Accidental Death Benefits Table; for policies issued on or after January 1, 1961, and prior to January 1, 1966, either such table or, at the option of the company, the Intercompany Double Indemnity Mortality Table; and for policies issued prior to January 1, 1961, the Intercompany Double Indemnity Mortality Table. Either table shall be combined with a mortality table permitted for calculating the reserves for life insurance policies.

(vii) For group life insurance, life insurance issued on the substandard basis and other special benefits, such tables as may be approved by the Superintendent.

(2) Reserves according to the Commissioner's reserve valuation method, for the life insurance and endowment benefits of policies providing for a uniform amount of insurance and requiring the payment of uniform premiums shall be the excess, if any, of the present value, at the date of valuation, of such future guaranteed benefits provided for by such policies, over the then present value of any future modified net premiums therefor. The modified net premiums for any such policy shall be such uniform percentage of the respective contract premiums for such benefits that the present value, at the date of issue of the policy, of all such modified net premiums shall be equal to the sum of the then present value of such benefits provided for by the policy and the excess of (A) over (B), as follows:

(A) A net level annual premium equal to the present value, at the date of issue, of such benefits provided for after the first policy year, divided by the present value, at the date of issue, of an annuity of one per annum payable on the first and each subsequent anniversary of such policy on which a premium falls due: Provided, however, That such net level annual premium shall not exceed the net level annual premium on the nineteen year premium whole life plan for insurance of the same amount at an age one year higher than the age at issue of such policy.

(B) A net one-year term premium for such benefits provided for in the first policy year.

Reserves according to the Commissioner's reserve valuation method for (i) life-insurance policies providing for a varying amount of insurance or requiring the payment of varying premiums, (ii) annuity and pure endowment contracts, (iii) disability and accidental death benefits in all policies and contracts, and (iv) all other benefits, except life insurance and endowment benefits in life-insurance policies, shall be calculated by a method consistent with the principles of this paragraph (2), except that any extra premiums charged because of impairments or special hazards shall be disregarded in the determination of modified net premiums.

(3) In no event shall a company's aggregate reserves for all life-insurance policies, excluding disability and accidental death benefits, be less than the aggregate reserves calculated in accordance with the method set forth in paragraph (2) and the mortality table or tables and rate or rates of interest used in calculating nonforfeiture benefits for such policies.

(4) Reserves for any category of policies, contracts, or benefits as established by the Superintendent, may be calculated, at the option of the company, according to any standards which produce greater aggregate reserves for such category than those calculated according to the minimum standard herein provided, but the rate or rates of interest used shall not be higher than the corresponding rate or rates of interest used in calculating any nonforfeiture benefits provided for therein: Provided, however, That reserves for participating life-insurance policies may, with the consent of the Superintendent, be calculated according to a rate of interest lower than the rate of interest used in calculating the nonforfeiture benefits in such policies, with the further proviso that if such lower rate differs from the rate used in the calculation of the nonforfeiture benefits by more than one-half per centum the company issuing such policies shall file with the Superintendent a plan providing for such equitable increases, if any, in the cash surrender values and nonforfeiture benefits in such policies as the Superintendent shall approve.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 35-519, 35-721.

§ 35-702. Separate classes and accounts to be kept for participating and nonparticipating insurance.

Every life company doing business in the District which issues both participating and nonparticipating policies shall keep the two classes of business separate and shall make, and include in the annual statement to be filed with the superintendent each year a separate statement of the gains, losses, and expenses properly attributable to each of such classes and also showing the manner in which any general outlay of expenses of the company has been apportioned to each. No such life company shall be permitted to do business in the District unless it makes such a separation of its business. This section shall not apply to paid-up, temporary, or pure endowment insurance issued or granted in exchange for lapsed or returned policies. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1157, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 2.)

§ 35-703. Standard provisions required in life insurance policies.

No policy of life insurance other than industrial insurance, annuities, and pure endowments with or without return of premiums or of premiums and interest shall be issued or delivered in the District or be issued by a life company organized under the laws of the District after the 1st day of January 1935, unless the same shall contain in substance the following:

(1) A provision that all premiums after the first shall be payable in advance, either at the home office of the company or to an agent of the company, upon delivery of a receipt signed by one or more of the officers who shall be designated in the policy.

(2) A provision that the insured is entitled to a grace period of at least thirty days or of one month within which the payment of any premiums after the first year may be made, subject at the option of the company to an interest charge not in excess of 6 per centum per annum for the number of days of grace elapsing before the payment of the premium, during which period of grace the policy shall continue in full force, but in case the policy becomes a claim during the said period of grace before the overdue premium or the deferred premiums of the current policy year, if any, are paid, the amount of such premiums, with interest on any overdue premiums, may be deducted from any amount payable under the policy in settlement. Grace shall date from the premium-paying date stated in the policy.

(3) A provision that, except as otherwise expressly provided by law, the policy shall constitute the entire contract between the parties and shall be incontestable after it has been in force during the lifetime of the insured for a period of not more than two years from its date, except for nonpayment of premiums and except for violations of the conditions of the policy relating to naval or military service in time of war, and at the option of the company, provisions relative to benefits in the event of total and permanent disability and provisions which grant additional insurance specifically against death by accident may also be excepted; that all statements made by the insured shall, in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties; and that no such statement or statements shall be used in defense of a claim under the policy unless contained in a written application and unless a copy of such statement or statements be endorsed upon or attached to the policy when issued: Provided, That nothing contained herein shall apply to applications for reinstatement. A reinstated policy shall be contestable on account of fraud or misrepresentation of material facts pertaining to the reinstatement, for the same period after reinstatement as provided in the policy with respect to the original issue.

(4) A provision that if it shall be found at any time before final settlement under the policy that the age of the insured (or the age of the beneficiary, if considered in determining the premium) has been misstated, the amount payable under the policy shall be such as the premium would have purchased at the correct age, according to the company's rate at date of issue.

(5) A provision that the policy shall participate in the surplus of the company, and any policy containing provisions for participation at the end of the first policy year, and annually thereafter, may also provide that each dividend shall be paid subject to the payment of the premium for the next ensuing year; and the insured under any annual dividend policy shall have the right each year to have the dividend arising from such participation paid in cash; and if the policy shall provide other dividend options, it shall further provide which of said options shall be effective if the insured shall not elect any such other option on or before the expiration of the period of grace allowed for the payment of the premium. This provision shall not apply to any form of paid-up insurance or temporary insurance or pure endowment insurance, issued or granted in exchange for lapsed or surrendered policies, or to nonparticipating policies.

(6) A provision that after the policy has been in force three full years the company at any time, while the policy is in force, will advance, on proper assignment or pledge of the policy and on the sole security thereof, at a specified rate of interest, a sum equal to, or at the option of the insured less than the amount required by section 35-705c under the conditions specified thereby; and that the company will deduct from such loan value any indebtedness not already deducted in determining such value and any unpaid balance of the premium for the current policy year, and may collect interest in advance on the loan to the end of the current policy year. This provision shall not be required in term insurance, nor shall it apply to temporary insurance or pure endowment insurance, issued or granted in exchange for lapsed or surrendered policies. The policy may further provide that if the interest on the loan is not paid when due it shall be added to the existing loan and shall bear interest at the same rate.

(7) A provision for nonforfeiture benefits and cash surrender values in accordance with the requirements of section 35-705a or section 35-705b.

(8) A provision specifying the options, if any, to which the policyholder is entitled in the event of default in a premium payment.

(9) A table showing in figures the loan values and the options available under the policy each year upon default in premium payments, during at least the first twenty years of the policy or during the premium paying period if less than twenty years.

(10) A provision that if in event of default in premium payments the value of the policy shall have been applied to the purchase of other insurance as provided for in this section, and if such insurance shall be in force and the original policy shall not have been surrendered to the company and canceled, the policy may be reinstated within three years from such default, upon evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company and payment of arrears of premiums and the payment or reinstatement of any other indebtedness to the company upon said policy, with interest on said premium and indebtedness at the rate of not exceeding 6 per centum per annum payable annually, and that such reinstated policy shall be contestable, on account of suicide, fraud, or misrepresentation of material facts pertaining to the reinstatement, for the same period after reinstatement as provided in the policy with respect to the original issue.

(11) A provision that when a policy shall become a claim by the death of the insured settlement shall be made upon receipt of due proof of death.

(12) A table showing the amount of instalments, if any, in which the policy may provide its proceeds may be payable.

(13) Title on the face and on the back of the policy briefly describing its form.

Any of the foregoing provisions or portions thereof not applicable to single premium or non-participating or term policies shall, to that extent, not be incorporated therein; and any such policy may be issued or delivered in the District which in the opinion of the superintendent contains provisions on any one or more of the several foregoing requirements more favorable to the policyholder than hereinbefore required. The provisions of this section shall not apply to policies of reinsurance, or to policies issued or granted in exchange for lapsed or surrendered policies, or to group insurance. #### AMENDMENT

1948—Subsec. (6) was amended by act Feb. 19, 1948, § 3(6), which substituted "amount required by section 35-705c of this chapter under the conditions specified thereby;" for provisions relating the amount of loan to the reserve at the end of the current policy year on the policy and dividend additions thereto exclusive of reserve on return premium insurance and on disability and accidental death benefits less a percentage of the policy, and deleted provisions permitting deferral of loans for six months after application, and for alternate deductions of either not more than 2½ per centum of the policy or one-fifth of the reserve.

Subsec. (7) was amended by act Feb. 19, 1948, § 3(7), which substituted "a provision for nonforfeiture benefits and cash surrender values in accordance with the requirements of section 35-705a or section 35-705b of this chapter", for provisions that in event of default in premium payments after having been paid for three years, the insured was entitled to a stipulated form of insurance with net value at least equal to reserve at default date plus dividend additions, exclusive of reserve on account of return premium insurance and disability and accidental death benefits, less a percentage of the policy, for alternate deductions of either not more than 2½ per centum of the policy or one-fifth of the reserve, a right to surrender for a specific cash value, and that the company could defer payment up to six months after application, and for a net single premium rate.

Subsec. (8) was amended by act Feb. 19, 1948, § 3(8), which deleted "after three full annual premiums shall have been paid. This provision shall not be required in term insurance of twenty years or less. A provision may also be inserted in the policy that in event of default in a premium payment before such options become available the reserve on any dividend additions then in force may at the option of the company be paid in cash or applied as a net premium to the purchase of paid-up term insurance for any amount not in excess of the face of the original policy", following "default in a premium payment."

Soliciting agent

The mailing of life policy from home office of insurer in Washington, D. C., to soliciting agent in Alabama for delivery in person to insured did not constitute a delivery of policy at Washington, D. C., since agent was agent of insurer rather than of insured, and delivery took place when agent handed policy to insured in Alabama. United Services Life Ins. Co. v. Farr (D. C. N. Y. 1945, 60 F. Supp. 829).

§ 35-705. Standard provisions required in annuities and pure endowment contracts.

On and after January 1, 1935, no annuity or pure endowment contract shall be issued or delivered in the District unless and until a copy of the form thereof has been filed with the superintendent and formally approved by him.

Except in the case of a reversionary annuity, otherwise called a "survivorship annuity," or an annuity contracted by an employer in behalf of his employees, no annuity or pure endowment contract shall be so issued or delivered in this District unless it contains, in substance, the following provisions:

First. A provision that there shall be a period of grace, either of thirty days or of one month, within which any stipulated payment to the company falling due after the first year may be made, subject, at the option of the company, to an interest charge thereon at a rate to be specified in the contract, but not exceeding 6 per centum per annum for the number of days of grace elapsing before such payment, during which period of grace, the contract shall continue in full force; but in case a claim arises under the contract on account of death during the said period of grace before the overdue payment to the company or the deferred payments of the current contract year, if any, are made, the amount of such payments, with interest on any overdue payments, may be deducted from any amount payable under the contract in settlement.

Second. If statements, other than those relating to age and identity, are required, as a condition of issuing the contract, a provision that the contract shall be incontestable after it has been in force during the lifetime of the person or each of the persons as to whom such statements are required, for a period of two years from its date of issue, except where stipulated payments to the company have not been made, and except for violation of the conditions of the contract relating to military or naval service in time of war, and at the option of the company, provisions relative to benefits in the event of total and permanent disability and provisions which grant insurance specifically against death by accident, may also be excepted.

Third. A provision that such contract shall constitute the entire contract between the parties, but if the company desires to make the application a part of the contract it may do so, provided a copy of such application shall be endorsed upon or attached to such contract, when issued, and in such case such contract shall contain a provision that it, together with the application therefor, shall constitute the entire contract between the parties.

Fourth. A provision that if the age of the person or persons upon whose life or lives the contract is based, or of any of them, has been misstated, the amount payable under the contract shall be such as the stipulated payments to the company would have purchased at the correct age or ages.

Any overpayment or overpayments by the company, on account of misstatement of age, shall with interest thereon at a rate to be specified in the contract, but not exceeding 6 per centum per annum, be charged against the current or next succeeding payment or payments to be made by the company under the contract.

Fifth. If the contract is participating, a provision that the divisible surplus shall be apportioned annually and dividends shall be payable in cash or shall be applicable to any stipulated payment or payments to the company under the contract.

Sixth. A provision that if the contract after having been in force for three full years, shall, by its terms, lapse or become forfeited because any stipulated payment to the company shall not have been made, the reserve on such contract, computed according to the standard adopted by said company in accordance with this chapter, shall, after deducting one-fifth of the said entire reserve, and any indebtedness to the company under the contract, be applied as a net single payment, according to said standard, for the purchase of a paid-up annuity or pure endowment contract, which may be nonparticipating and which shall be payable by the company under the same terms and conditions, except as to amount, as the original contract. A company may provide, in lieu of such paid-up values, for a paid-up annuity or pure endowment contract in an amount bearing the same proportion to the original annuity or pure endowment contract as the number of stipulated payments which shall have been made to the company shall bear to the total number of stipulated payments required to be made to the company under the contract, and if there be any indebtedness to the company under the contract, the amount of such paid-up annuity or pure endowment shall be reduced by an amount bearing the same proportion to such paid-up annuity or pure endowment as such indebtedness bears to the reserve on such paid-up annuity or pure endowment, computed according to the standard adopted by said company in accordance with this chapter.

Seventh. A provision that the contract may be reinstated at any time within one year from the date of default in making stipulated payments to the company, provided that all overdue stipulated payments and any indebtedness to the company on the contract shall be made or paid, with interest thereon at a rate to be specified in the contract but not exceeding 6 per centum per annum, payable annually. In cases where applicable a company may also include a requirement of evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company.

No contract for a reversionary annuity shall be so issued or delivered unless it contains in substance the following provisions:

A. Provisions "First," "Second," "Third," and "Fifth," of this section, except that under provision "First," the company may, at its option, provide for an equitable reduction of the amount of the annuity payments in settlement of any overdue or deferred payments, in lieu of providing for a deduction of such payments from any amount payable upon a settlement under the contract.

B. A provision that, if the age of any of the persons upon whose lives the contract is based has been misstated, the amount payable under the contract shall be such as the stipulated payments to the company would have purchased at the correct ages.

C. A provision that the contract may be reinstated at any time within three years from the date of default in making stipulated payments to the company, upon production of evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company, provided that all overdue payments and any indebtedness to the company on the contract shall be made or paid, with interest thereon at a rate to be specified in the contract, but not exceeding 6 per centum per annum, payable annually.

Any of the foregoing provisions or portions thereof not applicable to nonparticipating contracts nor to contracts for which a single stipulated payment to the company is made, shall, to that extent, not be incorporated therein; and any such contract may be issued or delivered in this District, which, in the opinion of the superintendent, contains provisions on any one or more of the several foregoing requirements, more favorable to the holder of the contract than hereinbefore required.

Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent a life company, which issues life insurance on a participating basis, from issuing annuities, reversionary annuities, or pure endowments on a nonparticipating basis.

Any such contract or any application, endorsement, or rider form used in connection therewith, issued in violation of this section, shall, nevertheless, be held valid, but shall be construed as provided in this section and when any provision in such contract, application, endorsement, or rider is in conflict with any provision of this section or with any other statutory provision, the rights, duties, and obligations of the company, of the holder of the contract and of the beneficiary or annuitant thereunder, shall be governed by the provisions of this section.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to contracts of reinsurance nor to contracts for deferred annuities or reversionary annuities included in life insurance policies.

For the purposes of this section, application forms, rider forms, and endorsement forms for use in connection with any such contract, excepting riders or endorsements relating to the manner of distribution of benefits or to the reservation of rights and benefits under any such contract, and used at the request of the individual holders of such contracts, shall be deemed to be parts of such contract and shall require the approval of the superintendent. No rider and no endorsement, except as stated above, shall be attached to or printed or stamped upon any such contract issued or delivered in the District until the form of such rider or endorsement has been filed with the superintendent and formally approved by him. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1161, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 5.)

§ 35-705a. Nonforfeiture benefits and cash surrender values.

This section shall apply only to policies of life insurance issued prior to the operative date of section 35-705b (the standard nonforfeiture law).

The nonforfeiture benefits referred to in provision (7) of section 35-703 shall be available to the insured in event of default in premium payments, after premiums shall have been paid for three years, and shall be a stipulated form of insurance, effective from the due date of the defaulted premium, the net value of which shall be at least equal to the reserve at the date of default on the policy and on dividend additions thereto, if any, exclusive of the reserve on account of return premium insurance and on total and permanent disability and additional accidental death benefits (the policy to specify the mortality table and rate of interest adopted for computing such reserve), less a specified percentage (not more than two and one-half) of the amount insured by the policy and of existing dividend additions thereto, if any, and less any existing indebtedness to the company on or secured by the policy: Provided, That a company may, in lieu of the provision herein permitted for the deduction from the reserve of a sum not more than 2½ per centum of the amount insured by the policy, and of any dividend additions thereto, insert in the policy a provision that one-fifth of said reserve may be deducted, or may provide therein that a deduction may be made of said 2½ per centum or one-fifth of said reserve, at the option of the company: Provided further, That the policy may be surrendered to the company at its home office within one month of the due date of defaulted premium for a specified cash value at least equal to the sum which would otherwise be available for the purchase of insurance as aforesaid: And provided further, That the company may defer payment for not more than six months after the application therefor is made. A provision may also be inserted in the policy that in event of default in a premium payment before such benefit becomes available, the reserve on any dividend additions then in force may at the option of the company be paid in cash or applied as a net premium to the purchase of paid-up term insurance for any amount not in excess of the face of the original policy. This section shall not apply to term insurance of twenty years or less. The net single premium rate employed in computing the term of temporary insurance or the amount of pure endowment insurance granted as a nonforfeiture value under any life-insurance policy may at the option of the company be based upon a table of mortality showing rates of mortality not greater than 130 per centum of those shown by the American Men

Ultimate Table of Mortality instead of the table used in computing the reserve on the policy, or in case of substandard policies not greater than 130 per centum of the rates of mortality shown by the table of mortality approved by the Superintendent for computing the reserve on the policy, anything herein to the contrary notwithstanding. (June 19, 1934, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 5a, as added Feb. 19, 1948, 62 Stat. 30, ch. 66, § 4.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 35-703, 35-723.

§ 35-705b. Standard nonforfeiture law.

(a) In the case of policies issued on or after the operative date of this section, as defined in subsection (g) no policy of life insurance, except as stated in subsection (f), shall be issued or delivered in the District of Columbia unless it shall contain in substance the following provisions, or corresponding provisions which in the opinion of the Superintendent are at least as favorable to the defaulting or surrendering policyholder—

(1) that, in event of default in any premium payment after premiums have been paid one full year in the case of ordinary insurance or three full years in the case of industrial insurance, the company will grant, upon proper request not later than sixty days after the due date of the premium in default, a paid-up nonforfeiture benefit on a plan stipulated in the policy, effective as of such due date, of such value as may be hereinafter specified;

(2) that, upon surrender of the policy within sixty days after the due date of any premium payment in default after premiums have been paid for at least three full years in the case of ordinary insurance or five full years in the case of industrial insurance, the company will pay, in lieu of any paid-up nonforfeiture benefit a cash surrender value of such amount as may be hereinafter specified;

(3) that a specified paid-up nonforfeiture benefit shall become effective as specified in the policy unless the person entitled to make such election elects another available option not later than sixty days after the due date of the premium in default;

(4) that, if the policy shall become paid up by completion of all premium payments or if it is continued under any paid-up nonforfeiture benefit which became effective on or after the third policy anniversary in the case of ordinary insurance or the fifth policy anniversary in the case of industrial insurance, the company will pay, upon surrender of the policy within thirty days after any policy anniversary, a cash surrender value of such amount as may be hereinafter specified;

(5) a statement of the mortality table and interest rate used in calculating the cash surrender values and the paid-up nonforfeiture benefits available under the policy, together with a table showing the cash surrender value, if any, and paid-up nonforfeiture benefit, if any, available under the policy on each policy anniversary either during the first twenty policy years or during the term of the policy, whichever is shorter, such values and benefits to be calculated upon the assumption that there are no dividends or paid-up additions credited to the policy and that there is no indebtedness to the company on the policy;

(6) a brief and general statement of the method to be used in calculating the cash surrender value and the paid-up nonforfeiture benefit available under the policy on any policy anniversary beyond the last anniversary for which such values and benefits are consecutively shown in the policy, with an explanation of the manner in which the cash surrender values and the paid-up nonforfeiture benefits are altered by the existence of any paid-up additions credited to the policy or any indebtedness to the company on the policy.

Any of the foregoing provisions or portions thereof not applicable by reason of the plan of insurance may, to the extent inapplicable, be omitted from the policy.

The company shall reserve the right to defer the payment of any cash surrender value for a period of six months after demand therefor with surrender of the policy.

(b) Any cash surrender value available under any policy referred to in subsection (a) in the event of default in a premium payment due on any policy anniversary, whether or not required by subsection (a), shall be an amount not less than the excess, if any, of the present value, on such anniversary, of the future guaranteed benefits which would have been provided for by the policy, including any existing paid-up additions, if there had been no default, over the sum of (i) the then present value of the adjusted premiums as defined in subsection (d), corresponding to premiums which would have fallen due on and after such anniversary, and (ii) the amount of any indebtedness to the company on the policy. Any cash surrender value available within thirty days after any policy anniversary under any policy paid up by completion of all premium payments or any policy continued under any paid-up nonforfeiture benefit, whether or not required by subsection (a), shall be an amount not less than the present value, on such anniversary, of the future guaranteed benefits provided for by the policy, including any existing paid-up additions, decreased by any indebtedness to the company on the policy.

(c) Any paid-up nonforfeiture benefit available under any policy referred to in subsection (a), in the event of default in a premium payment due on any policy anniversary shall be such that its present value as of such anniversary shall be at least equal to the cash surrender value then provided for by the policy or, if none is provided for, that cash surrender value which would have been required by this section in the absence of the condition that premiums shall have been paid for at least a specified period.

(d) Except as provided in the third paragraph of this subsection, the adjusted premiums for any policy referred to in subsection (a) shall be calculated on an annual basis and shall be such uniform percentage of the respective premiums specified in the policy for each policy year, excluding any extra premiums charged because of impairments or special hazards, that the present value, at the date of issue of the policy, of all such adjusted premiums shall be equal to the sum of (i) the then present value of the future guaranteed benefits provided for by the policy; (ii) 2 per centum of the amount of insurance, if the insurance be uniform in amount, or of the equivalent uniform amount, as hereinafter defined, if the amount of insurance varies with duration of the policy; (iii) 40 per centum of the adjusted premium for the first policy year; (iv) 25 per centum of either the adjusted premium for the first policy year or the adjusted premium for a whole life policy of the same uniform or equivalent uniform amount with uniform premiums for the whole of life issued at the same age for the same amount of insurance, whichever is less: Provided, however, That in applying the percentages specified in (iii) and (iv) above, no adjusted premium shall be deemed to exceed 4 per centum of the amount of insurance or uniform amount equivalent thereto.

In the case of a policy providing an amount of insurance varying with duration of the policy, the equivalent uniform amount thereof for the purpose of this subsection shall be deemed to be the uniform amount of insurance provided by an otherwise similar policy, containing the same endowment benefit or benefits, if any, issued at the same age and for the same term, the amount of which does not vary with duration and the benefits under which have the same present value at the date of issue as the benefits under the policy: Provided, however, That in the case of a policy providing a varying amount of insurance issued on the life of a child under age ten, the equivalent uniform amount may be computed as though the amount of insurance provided by the policy prior to the attainment of age ten were the amount provided by such policy at age ten.

The adjusted premiums for any policy providing term insurance benefits by rider or supplemental policy provision shall be equal to (a) the adjusted premiums for an otherwise similar policy issued at the same age without such term insurance benefits, increased, during the period for which premiums for such term insurance benefits are payable, by (b) the adjusted premiums for such term insurance, the foregoing items (a) and (b) being calculated separately and as specified in the first two paragraphs of this subsection except that, for the purposes of (ii), (iii), and (iv) of the first such paragraph, the amount of insurance or equivalent uniform amount of insurance used in the calculation of the adjusted premiums referred to in (b) shall be equal to the excess of the corresponding amount determined for the entire policy over the amount used in the calculation of the adjusted premiums in (a).

Except as otherwise provided in the next succeeding paragraphs of this subsection, all adjusted premiums and present values referred to in this section shall for all policies of ordinary insurance be calculated on the basis of the Commissioners 1941 Standard Ordinary Mortality Table: Provided, That for any category of ordinary insurance issued on female risks, adjusted premiums and present values may be calculated according to an age not more than three years younger than the actual age of the insured, and such calculations for all policies of industrial insurance shall be made on the basis of the 1941 Standard Industrial Mortality Table. All calculations shall be made on the basis of the rate of interest, not exceeding  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per centum per annum, specified in the policy for calculating cash surrender values, if any, and paid-up nonforfeiture benefits: Provided, however, That in calculating the present value of any paid-up term insurance with accompanying pure endowment, if any, offered as a nonforfeiture benefit, the rates of mortality assumed may be not more than 130 per centum of the rates of mortality according to such applicable table: Provided further, That for insurance issued on a substandard basis, the calculation of any such adjusted premiums and present values may be based on such other table of mortality as may be specified by the company and approved by the Superintendent.

In the case of ordinary policies issued on or after the operative date of this paragraph as defined herein, all adjusted premiums and present values referred to in this section shall be calculated on the basis of the Commissioners 1958 Standard Ordinary Mortality Table and the rate of interest, not exceeding  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per centum per annum, specified in the policy for calculating cash surrender values, if any, and paid-up nonforfeiture benefits: Provided, That for any category of ordinary insurance issued on female risks, adjusted premiums and present values may be calculated according to an age not more than three years younger than the actual age of the insured: Provided, however, That in calculating the present value of any paid-up term insurance with accompanying pure endowment, if any, offered as a nonforfeiture benefit, the rates of mortality assumed may be not more than those shown in the Commissioners 1958 Extended Term Insurance Table: Provided further, That for insurance issued on a substandard basis, the calculation of any such adjusted premiums and present values may be based on such other table of mortality as may be specified by the company and approved by the Superintendent. After the effective date of the amendatory Act of 1960, any company may file with the Superintendent a written notice of its election to comply with the provisions of this paragraph after a specified date before January first, nineteen hundred and sixty-six. After the filing of such notice, then upon such specified date (which shall be the operative date of this paragraph for such company), this paragraph shall become operative with respect to the ordinary policies thereafter issued by such company. If a company makes no such election, the operative date of this paragraph for such company shall be January first, nineteen hundred and sixty-six.

In the case of industrial policies issued on or after the operative date of this paragraph as defined herein, all adjusted premiums and present values referred to in this section shall be calculated on the basis of the Commissioners 1961 Standard Industrial Mortality Table and the rate of interest, not exceeding  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per centum per annum, specified in the policy for calculating cash surrender values, if any, and paid-up nonforfeiture benefits: Provided, however, That in calculating the present value of any paid-up term insurance with accompanying pure endowment, if any, offered as a nonforfeiture benefit, the rates of mortality assumed may be not more than those shown in the Commissioners 1961 Industrial Extended Term Insurance Table: Provided further, That for insurance issued on a substandard basis, the calculation of any such adjusted premiums and present values may be based on such other table of mortality as may be specified by the company and approved by the Superintendent. After the effective date of the amendatory Act of 1962, any company may file with the Superintendent a written notice of its election to comply with the provisions of this paragraph after a specified date before January first, nineteen hundred and sixty-eight. After the filing of such notice, then upon such specified date (which shall be the operative date of this paragraph for such company), this paragraph shall become operative with respect to the industrial policies thereafter issued by such company. If a company makes no such election, the operative date of this paragraph for such company shall be January first, nineteen hundred and sixty-eight.

(e) Any cash surrender value and any paid-up nonforfeiture benefit, available under any such policy in the event of default in the payment of any premium due at any time other than on the policy anniversary, shall be calculated with allowance for the lapse of time and the payment of fractional premiums beyond the last preceding policy anniversary. All values referred to in subsections (b), (c), and (d) may be calculated upon the assumption that any death benefit is payable at the end of the policy or contract year of death. The net value of any paid-up additions, other than paid-up term additions, shall be not less than the dividends used to provide such additions. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (b), additional benefits payable (i) in the event of death or dismemberment by accident or accidental means, (ii) in the event of total and permanent disability, (iii) as reversionary annuity or deferred reversionary annuity benefits, (iv) as term insurance benefits provided by a rider or supplemental policy provision to which, if issued as a separate policy, this section would not apply, (v) as term insurance on the life of a child or on the lives of children provided in a policy on the life of a parent of the child, if such term insurance expires before the child's age is twenty-six, is uniform in amount after the child's age is one, and has not become paid up by reason of the death of a parent of the child, and (vi) as other policy benefits additional to life insurance and endowment benefits and premiums for all such additional benefits, shall be disregarded in ascertaining cash surrender values and nonforfeiture benefits required by this section, and no such additional benefits shall be required to be included in any paid-up nonforfeiture benefits.

(f) This section shall not apply to any reinsurance, group insurance, pure endowment, annuity or reversionary annuity contract, nor to any term policy of uniform amount, or renewal thereof, of fifteen years or less expiring before age sixty-six, for which uniform premiums are payable during the entire term of the policy, nor to any term policy of decreasing amount on which each adjusted premium, calculated as specified in subsection (d), is less than the adjusted premium so calculated, on such fifteen-year term policy issued at the same age and for the same initial amount of insurance, nor to any policy or contract which shall be delivered outside the District of Columbia through an agent or other representative of the company issuing the policy.

(g) After February 19, 1948, any company may file with the Superintendent a written notice of its election to comply with the provisions of this section after a specified date before January 1, 1950. After the filing of such notice, then upon such specified date (which shall be the operative date for such company), this section shall become operative with respect to the policies and contracts thereafter issued by such company. If a company makes no such election, the operative date of this section for such company shall be January 1, 1950: Provided, however, That the operative date of the last two paragraphs of subsection (d) shall be as stated therein. (June 19, 1934, ch. 672, ch. V, § 5b, as added Feb. 19, 1948, 62 Stat. 30, ch. 66, § 4, and amended June 27, 1960, 74 Stat. 228, Pub. L. 86-530, § 2; Oct. 3, 1962, 76 Stat. 712, Pub. L. 87-738, § 2.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 35-701, 35-703, 35-705a, 35-705c, 35-723.

§ 35-705c. Loan provisions in policies.

(a) In the case of ordinary policies issued prior to the operative date of section 35-705b (the standard nonforfeiture law) the loan value referred to in provision (6) of section 35-703 shall be the reserve at the end of the current policy year on the policy and on the dividend additions thereto, if any, exclusive of the reserve on account of return premium insurance and of total and permanent disability and additional accidental death benefits, less a sum not more than  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per centum of the amount insured by the policy and of any dividend additions thereto (the policy to specify the mortality table and rate of interest adopted for computing such reserve). The policy may provide that such loan may be deferred for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. A company may, in lieu of the provision hereinabove permitted for the deduction from a loan on the policy of a sum not more than  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per centum of the amount insured by the policy and of any dividend additions thereto, insert in the policy a provision that one-fifth of the said reserve may be deducted in case of a loan under the policy, or may provide therein that the deduction may be the said 2½ per centum or the one-fifth of the said reserve at the option of the company.

(b) In the case of ordinary policies issued on or after the operative date of section 35-705b (the standard nonforfeiture law) the loan value referred to in provision (6) of section 35-703 shall be the cash surrender value at the end of the current policy year as required by section 35-705b. The company shall reserve the right to defer such loan, except when made to pay premiums, for six months after application therefor is made. (June 19, 1934, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 5c, as added Feb. 19, 1948, 62 Stat. 30, ch. 66, § 4.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 35-703.

§ 35-706. Extension of time for payment of life premiums.

A life company may enter into subsequent agreements in writing with the insured, which need not be attached to the policy, to extend the time for the payment of any premium, or part thereof, upon condition that failure to comply with the terms of such agreement shall lapse the policy, as provided in said agreement or in the policy. Subject to such lien as may be created to secure any indebtedness contracted by the insured, in consideration of such extension, said agreement shall not impair any right existing under the policy. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1164, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 6.)

§ 35-707. Interest on policy and premium loans shall be added to principal.

In ascertaining the indebtedness due upon policy or premium loans the interest, if not paid when due, shall be added to the principal of such loans and shall bear interest at the rate specified in the note or loan agreement. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1164, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 7.)

§ 35-708. Life-policy forms to be filed with Superintendent—Notice of nonconformity—Review.

A policy of life insurance shall not be issued or delivered in the District until the form of the same has been filed with the superintendent, nor if the superintendent give written notice, within thirty days of such filing to the company proposing to issue it, showing wherein the form of such policy does not comply with the requirements of the laws of the District, provided that such action of the superintendent shall be subject to review by a court of competent jurisdiction. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1164, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 8.)

War clause

Under life policy limiting liability if death of insured resulted from military or naval service outside the United States in time of war and if death of insured resulted within two years from date of issue of policy from war while insured was outside the United States, where death of insured occurred while he was serving as a naval officer outside of the United States in time of war and more than two years after date of policy, ambiguity between policy provisions would be resolved by applying the two year provision as an affirmation of liability. Hayes v. Home Life Ins. Co. (1948, 168 F. 2d 152, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

Where insured was fatally injured when he fell from hotel window in France on October 2, 1945, while serving with occupation forces, the United States was not a country "engaged in war" within life policy provision restricting liability, even though war had not terminated in a political sense. Stinson v. New York Life Ins. Co. (1948, 167 F. 2d 233, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 115).

§ 35-709. Provisions required by the laws of a company's own State may be included in policies.

The policies of a life company, not organized under the laws of the District, may contain any provisions prescribed by the laws of the state, territory, District, or country, under which the company is organized. The policies of a life company, organized under the laws of the District, may, when issued or delivered in any state, territory, District, or country, contain any provisions required by the laws of the state, territory, District, or country in which the same are issued or delivered, anything in chapters 3-8 of this title to the contrary notwithstanding. (June 14, 1934, 48 Stat. 1164, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 9.)

§ 35-710. Group life insurance.

No policy of group life insurance shall be delivered in the District unless it conforms to one of the following descriptions:

(1) A policy issued to an employer, or to the trustees of a fund established by an employer, which employer or trustee shall be deemed the policyholder, to insure employees of the employer for the benefit of persons other than the employer, subject to the following requirements:

(a) The employees eligible for insurance under the policy shall be all of the employees of the employer, or all of any class or classes thereof determined by conditions pertaining to their employment. The policy may provide that the term "employees" shall include the employees of one or more subsidiary corporations, and the employees, individual proprietors, and partners of one or more affiliated corporations, proprietors, or partnerships if the business of the employer and of such affiliated corporations, proprietors, or partnerships is under common control through stock ownership or contract. The policy may provide that the term "employees" shall include the individual proprietor or partners if the employer is an individual proprietor or a partnership. The policy may provide that the term "employees" shall include retired employees. No director of a corporate employer shall be eligible for insurance under the policy unless such person is otherwise eligible as a bona fide employee of the corporation by performing services other than the usual duties of a director. No individual proprietor or partner shall be eligible for insurance under the policy unless he is actively engaged in and devotes a substantial part of his time to the conduct of the business of the proprietor or partnership.

(b) The premium for the policy shall be paid by the policyholder, either wholly from the employer's funds or funds contributed by him, or partly from such funds and partly from funds contributed by the insured employees. No policy may be issued on which the entire premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured employees. A policy on which part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured employees may be placed in force only if at least 75 per centum of the then eligible employees, excluding any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer, elect to make the required contributions. A policy on which no part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured employees must insure all eligible employees, or all except any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer.

(c) The policy must cover at least ten employees at date of issue.

(d) The amounts of insurance under the policy must be based upon some plan precluding individual selection either by the employees or by the employer or trustees. No policy may be issued which provides term insurance on any employee which together with any other term insurance under any group life-insurance policy or policies issued to the employers or any of them or to the trustees of a fund established in whole or in part by the employers or any of them exceeds $20,000 unless 150 per centum of the annual compensation of a covered employee, exceeds $20,000, in which event all such insurance shall not exceed $40,000, or 150 per centum of such annual compensation, whichever is less.

(2) A policy issued to a creditor, who shall be deemed the policyholder, to insure debtors of the creditor, subject to the following requirements:

(a) The debtors eligible for insurance under the policy shall be all of the debtors of the creditor whose indebtedness is repayable in installments, or all of any class or classes thereof determined by conditions pertaining to the indebtedness or to the purchase giving rise to the indebtedness. The policy may provide that the term "debtors" shall include the debtors of one or more subsidiary corporations, and the debtors of one or more affiliated corporations, proprietors, or partnerships if the business of the policyholder and of such affiliated corporations, proprietors or partnerships is under common control through stock ownership, contract, or otherwise.

(b) The premium for the policy shall be paid by the policyholder, either from the creditor's funds, or from charges collected from the insured debtors, or from both. A policy on which part or all of the premium is to be derived from the collection from the insured debtors of identifiable charges not required of uninsured debtors shall not include, in the class or classes of debtors eligible for insurance, debtors under obligations outstanding at its date of issue without evidence of individual insurability unless at least 75 per centum of the then eligible debtors elect to pay the required charges. A policy on which no part of the premium is to be derived from the collection of such identifiable charges must insure all eligible debtors, or all except any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer.

(c) The policy may be issued only if the group of eligible debtors is then receiving new entrants at the rate of at least one hundred persons yearly, or may reasonably be expected to receive at least one hundred new entrants during the first policy year, and only if the policy reserves to the insurer the right to require evidence of individual insurability if less than 75 per centum of the new entrants become insured.

(d) The amount of insurance on the life of any debtor shall at no time exceed the amount owed by him which is repayable in installments to the creditor or $10,000, whichever is less. Notwithstanding the immediately preceding provision, the amount of insurance with respect to a loan commitment incurred to defray educational costs of a student may be in an amount not exceeding the fixed amount committed to be loaned under the loan commitment less the amount of any repayments made on the loan.

(e) The insurance shall be payable to the policyholder. Such payment shall reduce or extinguish the unpaid indebtedness of the debtor to the extent of such payment.

(3) A policy issued to a labor union, which shall be deemed the policyholder, to insure members of such union for the benefit of persons other than the union or any of its officials, representatives or agents, subject to the following requirements:

(a) The members eligible for insurance under the policy shall be all of the members of the union, or all of any class or classes thereof determined by conditions pertaining to their employment, or to membership in the union, or both.

(b) The premium for the policy shall be paid by the policyholder, either wholly from the union's funds, or partly from such funds and partly from funds contributed by the insured members specifically for their insurance. No policy may be issued on which the entire premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured members specifically for their insurance. A policy on which part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured members specifically for their insurance may be placed in force only if at least 75 per centum of the then eligible members, excluding any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer, elect to make the required contributions. A policy on which no part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured members specifically for their insurance must insure all eligible members, or all except any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer.

(c) The policy must cover at least ten members at date of issue.

(d) The amounts of insurance under the policy must be based upon some plan precluding individual selection either by the members or by the union. No policy may be issued which provides term insurance on any union member which together with any other term insurance under any group life insurance policies exceeds $20,000 unless 150 per centum of the annual compensation of a covered union member exceeds $20,000, in which event all such insurance shall not exceed $40,000, or 150 per centum of such annual compensation, whichever is less.

(4) A policy issued to the trustees of a fund established by two or more employers in the same industry or by one or more labor unions, or by one or more employers and one or more labor unions, which trustees shall be deemed the policyholder, to insure employees of the employers or members of the unions for the benefit of persons other than the employers or the unions, subject to the following requirements:

(a) The persons eligible for insurance shall be all of the employees of the employers or all of the members of the unions, or all of any class or classes thereof determined by conditions pertaining to their employment, or to membership in the unions, or to both. The policy may provide that the term "employees" shall include the individual proprietor or partners if an employer is an individual proprietor or a partnership. The policy may provide that the term "employees" shall include retired employees. No director of a corporate employer shall be eligible for insurance under the policy unless such person is otherwise eligible as a bona fide employee of the corporation by performing services other than the usual duties of a director. No individual proprietor or partner shall be eligible for insurance under the policy unless he is actively engaged in and devotes a substantial part of his time to the conduct of the business of the proprietor or partnership. The policy may provide that the term "employees" shall include the trustees or their employees, or both, if their duties are principally connected with such trusteeship.

(b) The premium for the policy shall be paid by the trustees wholly from funds contributed by the employer or employers of the insured persons, or by the union or unions, or by both. No policy may be issued on which any part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured persons specifically for their insurance. The policy must insure all eligible persons, or all except any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer.

(c) The policy must cover at date of issue at least one hundred persons and not less than an average of five persons per employer unit; and if the fund is established by the members of an association of employers the policy may be issued only if (i) either (a) the participating employers constitute at date of issue at least 60 per centum of those employer members whose employees are not already covered for group life insurance or (b) the total number of persons covered at date of issue exceeds six hundred; and (ii) the policy shall not require that, if a participating employer discontinues membership in the association, the insurance of his employees shall cease solely by reason of such discontinuance.

(d) The amounts of insurance under the policy must be based upon some plan precluding individual selection either by the insured persons or by the policyholder, employers, or unions. No policy may be issued which provides term insurance on any person which together with any other term insurance under any group life-insurance policy or policies issued to the employers, or any of them, or to the trustees of a fund established in whole or in part by the employers, or any of them, exceeds $20,000 unless 150 per centum of the annual compensation of a covered person exceeds $20,000, in which event all such insurance shall not exceed $40,000, or 150 per centum of such annual compensation, whichever is less.

(5) A policy issued to the Commissioner of the District of Columbia or to the head of any Federal department or independent Federal bureau, board, commission, or other Federal independent establishment, or to an association of Federal employees, as the case may be, covering not less than ten employees of the government of the District or of the Federal Government, with or without medical examination, the premium on which is to be paid by the employees and insuring only employees, or any class or classes thereof determined by conditions pertaining to the employment, for amounts of insurance based upon some plan which will preclude individual selection, for the benefit of persons other than the employer: Provided, That when the benefits of the policy are offered to all eligible employees, not less than 75 per centum of such employees may be so insured.

(6) A policy issued to an association whose eligible members have the same profession, trade, or occupation which has been organized and is maintained for purposes other than that of obtaining insurance, which shall be deemed the policyholder, to insure members, or employees of members, of such association for the benefit of persons other than the association, or any of its officials, representatives, or agents, subject to the following requirements:

(a) The members or employees eligible for insurance under the policy shall be all the members, and all the employees of the members, of the association, or all of any class or classes thereof determined by conditions pertaining to their employment, or to membership in the association, or both.

(b) The premium for the policy shall be paid by the policyholder either wholly from the association's funds, or partly from such funds and partly from funds contributed by the insured members or employees specifically for their insurance, or from funds wholly contributed by the insured members or employees specifically for their insurance. A policy on which any part or all of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured members or employees specifically for their insurance may be placed in force only if at least 60 per centum of the then eligible members or employees or a minimum of four hundred members or employees, whichever is less, excluding any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer, elect to make the required contributions. A policy on which no part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured members or employees specifically for their insurance must insure all eligible members or employees, or all except any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer.

(c) The policy must cover at least twenty-five members or employees at date of issuance.

(d) The amounts of insurance under the policy must be based on some plan precluding individual selection either by the members or employees, or by the association. No policy may be issued which provides term insurance on any association member or employee which, together with any other term insurance under any group life insurance policy or policies, exceeds $20,000, unless 150 per centum of the annual compensation of such person exceeds $20,000, in which event all such term insurance shall not exceed $40,000, or 150 per centum of such annual compensation, whichever is less.

(7) Any policy issued pursuant to this section, except a policy issued to a creditor pursuant to subsection (2) hereof, may be extended to insure the spouses and minor children of insured persons, or any class or classes thereof, subject to the following requirements:

(a) The premiums for the insurance shall be paid by the policy holder either from the policy holder's funds or from funds contributed by the insured person, or from both. If any part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured persons, the insurance with respect to spouses and children may be placed in force only if at least 75 per centum of the then eligible employees or members of the organization or the association, excluding any as to whose family members evidence of insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer, elect to make the required contribution. If no part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured persons, all such eligible employees or members of the organization or the association excluding any as to whose family members evidence of insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer, must be insured with respect to their spouses and children.

(b) The amounts of insurance under the policy must be based upon some plan precluding individual selection either by the insured persons or by the policyholder, and shall not exceed with respect to any spouse or child, 50 per centum of the insurance on the life of such insured person.

(c) Upon termination of the insurance with respect to the spouse of any insured person by reason of such person's termination of employment or membership or death, the spouse insured pursuant to this section shall have the same conversion rights as to the insurance on his or her life as is provided for the insured person under section 35-711.

(d) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 35-711, only one certificate need be issued for delivery to an insured person if a statement concerning any dependent's coverage is included in such certificate.

(8) A policy of group life insurance issued to a credit union organized pursuant to the laws of the District of Columbia or pursuant to the Federal Credit Union Act (12 U.S.C. 1751 et seq.), which credit union shall be deemed the policyholder, to insure members of the credit union for the benefit of persons other than the credit union, subject to the following requirements:

(a) The members eligible for insurance under the policy shall be all of the members of the credit union, or all of any class or classes thereof determined by age, or by membership in the credit union, or both.

(b) The premium for the policy shall be paid by the policyholder, either from the credit union's own funds, or from charges collected from the insured members specifically for the insurance, or both. A policy on which part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured members specifically for their insurance may be placed in force only if at least 75 per centum of the then eligible members, excluding any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer, elect to make the required contributions. A policy on which no part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured members specifically for their insurance must insure all eligible members, or all except any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer.

(c) The policy must cover at least twenty-five members at date of issue.

(d) The amount of insurance on the life of any member shall not exceed the total amount of his shares and deposits in the credit union or $2,000, whichever is less. Such policy may be issued either in addition to, or in lieu of, a policy issued pursuant to section 35-710(2).

(9) A policy issued to a duly organized national veterans' organization which has been organized and is maintained for purposes other than that of obtaining insurance, which shall be deemed the policyholder, to insure members of such organization for the benefit of persons other than the organization, or any of its officials, representatives, or agents, subject to the following requirements:

(a) The members eligible for insurance under the policy shall be all the members of the organization, or all of any class or classes thereof determined by conditions pertaining to their membership in the organization, or both.

(b) The premium for the policy shall be paid by the policyholder either wholly from the organization's funds, or partly from such funds and partly from funds contributed by the insured members specifically for their insurance, or from funds wholly contributed by the insured members specifically for their insurance. A policy on which any part or all of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured members specifically for their insurance may be placed in force only if at least 60 per centum of the then eligible members or a minimum of four hundred members, whichever is less, excluding any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer, elect to make the required contributions. A policy on which no part of the premium is to be derived from funds contributed by the insured members specifically for their insurance must insure all eligible members, or all except any as to whom evidence of individual insurability is not satisfactory to the insurer.

(c) The policy must cover at least twenty-five members at date of issuance.

(d) The amounts of insurance under the policy must be based on some plan precluding individual selection either by the members, or by the organization. No policy may be issued which provides term insurance on any organization member which, together with any other term insurance under any group life insurance policy or policies, exceeds $20,000, unless 150 per centum of the annual compensation of such person exceeds $20,000, in which event all such term insurance shall not exceed $40,000, or 150 per centum of such annual compensation, whichever is less.

75 per centum elect to pay the charges, but where debtors pay entire premium, then all individually insurable must be included, and increased the amount of insurance to $5,000; in labor union groups, policy must cover at least twenty-five members at issue date, and limited total term coverage to $20,000 per member; trustees of trust funds by two or more member employers, or one or more unions, or combinations of employers and unions may be policyholders, and in such cases, defined "employees" in like manner as aforesaid in the case of trust funds set up by a single employer, premiums to be paid by funds contributed by the employers, or unions, or both, with no policy to be issued if any premiums are to be paid by the insured, all individually insurable to be insured, established formulas to determine how many people must be covered at date of issue under diverse circumstances, precluded individual selection of employees, and limited individual coverage to $20,000; provisions defining as insurable groups, National Guard units, and units of the State troopers or police were deleted.

1940—Act July 2, 1940, added subdivision (e) which established as an acceptable form of group life insurance, that covering the lives of members of a group, with not less than one hundred entrants to the group yearly, and limited in coverage to $2,000 per life, who are borrowers from one lending institution, or are purchasers of securities, merchandise or other property from one vendor under agreement to repay the sum borrowed, or the balance of the price due, and payable to the lender or vendor or other creditor to whom the vendor may have transferred title to the indebtedness, with the premium "payable by the borrower lending institution vendor or other creditor."

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 35-711, 35-1604.

Construction

The terms of a statute should be so construed so as to effectuate the true intent and object of the Legislature in the enactment. Shenandoah Life Insurance Co. v. Jordan (D.C.D.C. 1955, 128 F. Supp. 274).

Number of employees required

This section, respecting group insurance in view of legislative history, does not manifest a congressional intent that 75 percent of all employees of a government department, board, commission, etc., must be included before the group may be validly insured and an association of not less than 50 employees can be formed and obtain insurance, although the group does not comprise 75 percent of all employees of the government department, board, commission, etc., and even if the sole purpose for the formation of the association is the obtaining of group insurance. Shenandoah Life Insurance Co. v. Jordan (D.C.D.C. 1955, 128 F. Supp. 274).

Opinions of superintendent

While the informal opinions of the superintendent of insurance are not conclusive in the construction of a statute the court would not disregard such administrative interpretations despite their informality especially where the interpretation had been followed in practice for a long period of time. Shenandoah Life Insurance Co. v. Jordan (D.C.D.C. 1955, 128 F. Supp. 274).

§ 35-711. Standard provisions for policies of group life insurance.

No policy of group life insurance shall be delivered in the District unless it contains in substance the following provisions, or provisions which in the opinion of the superintendent are more favorable to the persons insured, or at least as favorable to the persons insured and more favorable to the policyholder:

Provided, however, (a) That provisions (6) to (10), inclusive, shall not apply to policies issued to a creditor to insure debtors of such creditor, or to policies issued pursuant to section 35-710(8); (b) that the standard provisions required for individual life-insurance policies shall not apply to group life-insurance policies; and (c) that if the group life-insurance policy is on a plan of insurance other than the term plan, it shall contain a nonforfeiture provision or provisions which in the opinion of the superintendent is or are equitable to the insured persons and to the policyholder, but nothing herein shall be construed to require that group life-insurance policies contain the same nonforfeiture provisions as are required for individual life-insurance policies:

(1) A provision that the policyholder is entitled to a grace period of thirty-one days for the payment of any premium due except the first, during which grace period the death benefit coverage shall continue in force, unless the policyholder shall have given the insurer written notice of discontinuance in advance of the date of discontinuance and in accordance with the terms of the policy. The policy may provide that the policyholder shall be liable to the insurer for the payment of a pro rata premium for the time the policy was in force during such grace period.

(2) A provision that the validity of the policy shall not be contested, except for nonpayment of premiums, after it has been in force for two years from its date of issue; and that no statement made by any person insured under the policy relating to his insurability shall be used in contesting the validity of the insurance with respect to which such statement was made after such insurance has been in force prior to the contest for a period of two years during such person's lifetime nor unless it is contained in a written instrument signed by him.

(3) A provision that a copy of the application, if any, of the policyholder shall be attached to the policy when issued, that all statements made by the policyholder or by the persons insured shall be deemed representations and not warranties, and that no statement made by any person insured shall be used in any contest unless a copy of the instrument containing the statement is or has been furnished to such person or to his beneficiary.

(4) A provision setting forth the conditions, if any, under which the insurer reserves the right to require a person eligible for insurance to furnish evidence of individual insurability satisfactory to the insurer as a condition to part or all of his coverage.

(5) A provision specifying an equitable adjustment of premiums or of benefits or of both to be made in the event the age of a person insured has been misstated, such provision to contain a clear statement of the method of adjustment to be used.

(6) A provision that any sum becoming due by reason of the death of the person insured shall be payable to the beneficiary designated by the person insured, subject to the provisions of the policy in the event there is no designated beneficiary as to all or any part of such sum living at the death of the person insured, and subject to any right reserved by the insurer in the policy and set forth in the certificate to pay at its option a part of such sum not exceeding $250 to any person appearing to the insurer to be equitably entitled thereto by reason of having incurred funeral or other expenses incident to the last illness or death of the person insured.

(7) A provision that the insurer will issue to the policyholder for delivery to each person insured an individual certificate setting forth a statement as to the insurance protection to which he is entitled, to whom the insurance benefits are payable, and the rights and conditions set forth in (8), (9), and (10) following.

(8) A provision that if the insurance, or any portion of it, on a person covered under the policy ceases because of termination of employment or of membership in the class or classes eligible for coverage under the policy, such person shall be entitled to have issued to him by the insurer, without evidence of insurability, an individual policy of life insurance without disability or other supplementary benefits, provided application for the individual policy shall be made, and the first premium paid to the insurer, within thirty-one days after such termination: And provided further, That—

(a) the individual policy shall, at the option of such person, be on any one of the forms, except term insurance, then customarily issued by the insurer at the age and for the amount applied for;

(b) the individual policy shall be in an amount not in excess of the amount of life insurance which ceases because of such termination, provided that any amount of insurance which shall have matured on or before the date of such termination as an endowment payable to the person insured, whether in one sum or in installments or in the form of an annuity, shall not, for the purposes of this provision, be included in the amount which is considered to cease because of such termination; and

(c) the premium on the individual policy shall be at the insurer's then customary rate applicable to the form and amount of the individual policy, to the class of risk to which such person then belongs, and to his age attained on the effective date of the individual policy.

(9) A provision that if the group policy terminates or is amended so as to terminate the insurance of any class of insured persons, every person insured thereunder at the date of such termination whose insurance terminates and who has been so insured for at least five years prior to such termination date shall be entitled to have issued to him by the insurer an individual policy of life insurance, subject to the same conditions and limitations as are provided by (8) above, except that the group policy may provide that the amount of such individual policy shall not exceed the smaller of (a) the amount of the person's life insurance protection ceasing because of the termination or amendment of the group policy, less the amount of any life insurance for which he is or becomes eligible under any group policy issued or reinstated by the same or another insurer within thirty-one days after such termination, and (b) $2,000.

(10) A provision that if a person insured under the group policy dies during the period within which he would have been entitled to have an individual policy issued to him in accordance with (8) or (9) above and before such an individual policy shall have become effective, the amount of life insurance which he would have been entitled to have issued to him under such individual policy shall be payable as a claim under the group policy, whether or not application for the individual policy or the payment of the first premium therefor has been made. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1165, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 11; July 2, 1940, 54 Stat. 726, ch. 518; July 12, 1950, 64 Stat. 333, ch. 457, § 2; Oct. 3, 1962, 76 Stat. 715, Pub. L. 87-740, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

1962—Act Oct. 3, 1962, amended clause (a) of the proviso in the first sentence by adding a comma after the word creditor and the words "or to policies issued pursuant to section 10(8) [35-710(8)] of this chapter."

1950—Act July 12, 1950, amended section generally, and among other changes provided that: policyholders are to have a grace period of thirty-one days for premium payments, except the first, with death benefit coverage continuing; to contest a policy, the statement relating to insurability must be in writing and prior to a two-year period from date of issue; a copy of the application should be attached to the policy, and that a copy of an instrument containing a statement used to contest a policy is to be furnished to the insured; the conditions whereby the insurer may require evidence of individual insurability must be set forth; the method of adjustment where a misstatement of age exists must be clearly stated; policy to be payable to the beneficiary designated by the insured, subject to policy provisions in the event there is no living beneficiary, and also subject to the insurer's right, if reserved, to pay up to $250 to persons equitably entitled; insurance which matures before termination of employment shall not be considered in determining the amount of insurance obtainable at a conversion to an individual policy; if the group policy terminates or is amended to terminate the insurance of any class thereunder, every person whose insurance so terminates shall be entitled to individual insurance, subject to the same limitations as if his employment was terminated, and not more than the lesser of $2,000, or the difference between his protection in the group less his protection in any other policy his employer places him in within thirty-one days; if a person dies after termination of employment or policy during period wherein he was entitled to an individual policy, the amount of that individual policy is payable through the group even if no application had been made, and deleted the provision that violation of the policy conditions relating to war service shall survive the incontestability period.

1940—Act July 2, 1940, amended paragraph 4 by adding "The provisions of the paragraph shall not apply to insurance described in item (e) of section 35-710."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Incontestability

First sentence of incontestability clause of master life policy that policy would be incontestable after two years from date of issue except for nonpayment of premium referred exclusively to the policy and, since the insurer was not contesting the policy but the individual certificate of insurance, second sentence of incontestability clause barring contest of insurance based on asserted misrepresentation only if individual had been insured under policy for period of at least two years before death was applicable, and certificate was not incontestable since the individual did not live for two years after its date of issuance. R. A. Taylor v. American Heritage Life Insurance Company (1971, 448 F. 2d 1375).

§ 35-711a. Notice to individual insured under group life insurance policy.

If any individual insured under a group life insurance policy hereafter delivered in the District becomes entitled under the terms of such policy to have an individual policy of life insurance issued to him without evidence of insurability, subject to making of application and payment of the first premium within the period specified in such policy, and if such individual is not given notice of the existence of such right at least fifteen days prior to the expiration date of such period, then, in such event, the individual shall have an additional period within which to exercise such right, but nothing herein contained shall be construed to continue any insurance beyond the period provided in such policy. This additional period shall expire fifteen days next after the individual is given such notice but in no event shall such additional period extend beyond sixty days next after the expiration date of the period provided in such policy. Written notice presented to the individual or mailed by the policyholder to the last-known address of the individual or mailed by the insurer to the last-known address of the individual as furnished by the policyholder shall constitute notice for the purpose of this paragraph.

Except as provided in this chapter it shall be unlawful to make a contract of life insurance for a group in the District. (June 19, 1934, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 11(a), as added July 12, 1950, 64 Stat. 335, ch. 457, § 2.)

§ 35-712. Individual Accident and Sickness Policy Provisions.

1. Filing Requirements

No policy of insurance against loss resulting from sickness or from bodily injury or death by accident, or both, shall be issued or delivered to any person in the District by any company organized under this or any other law of the District, or, if a foreign or alien company, authorized to do business in the District, until a copy of the form thereof, and of the classification of risks and the premium rates appertaining thereto, have been filed with the Superintendent; nor shall it be so issued or delivered until the expiration of thirty days after it has been so filed, unless the Superintendent shall sooner give his written approval thereto. If the Superintendent shall give written notice to the company which has filed such form that it does not comply with the requirements of law, specifying the reasons for his opinion, it shall be unlawful thereafter for any such insurer to issue any policy in such form. The action of the Superintendent in this regard shall be subject to appeal and review in the form and manner prescribed in section 35-427.

2. Form of Policy

(a) No policy of accident and sickness insurance shall be delivered or issued for delivery to any person in the District unless—

(1) the entire money and other considerations therefor are expressed therein; and

(2) the time at which the insurance takes effect and terminates is expressed therein; and

(3) it purports to insure only one person, except that a policy may insure, originally or by subsequent amendment, upon the application of an adult member of a family who shall be deemed the policyholder, any two or more eligible members of that family, including husband, wife, dependent children or any children under a specified age which shall not exceed nineteen years and any other person dependent upon the policyholder; and

(4) the style, arrangement, and over-all appearance of the policy give no undue prominence to any portion of the text, and unless every printed portion of the text of the policy and of any endorsements or attached papers is plainly printed in light-faced type of a style in general use, the size of which shall be uniform and not less than ten-point with a lowercase unspaced alphabet length not less than one hundred and twenty-point (the text shall include all printed matter except the name and address of the insurer, name or title of the policy, the brief description, if any, and captions and subcaptions); and

(5) the exceptions and reductions of indemnity are set forth in the policy and, except those which are set forth in subsection (3) of this section, are printed, at the insurer's option, either included with the benefit provision to which they apply, or under an appropriate caption such as "EXCEPTIONS," or "EXCEPTIONS AND REDUCTIONS": Provided, That, if an exception or reduction specifically applies only to a particular benefit of the policy, a statement of such exception or reduction shall be included with the benefit provision to which it applies; and

(6) each such form, including riders and endorsements, shall be identified by a form number in the lower left-hand corner of the first page thereof; and

(7) it contains no provision purporting to make any portion of the charter, rules, constitution, or bylaws of the insurer a part of the policy unless such portion is set forth in full in the policy, except in the case of the incorporation of, or reference to, a statement of rates or classification of risks, or short-rate table filed with the Superintendent.

(b) If any policy is issued by an insurer domiciled in the District for delivery to a person residing in another jurisdiction, and if the official having responsibility for the administration of the insurance laws of such other jurisdiction shall have advised the Superintendent that any such policy is not subject to approval or disapproval by such official, the Superintendent may by ruling require that such policy meet the standards set forth in paragraph (a) of this subsection and in subsection (3).

3. Accident and Sickness Policy Provisions

(a) Required provisions: Except as provided in paragraph (c) of this subsection each such policy delivered or issued for delivery to any person in the District shall contain the provisions specified in this paragraph in the words in which the same appear in this paragraph: Provided, however, That the insurer may, at its option, substitute for one or more of such provisions corresponding provisions of different wording approved by the Superintendent which are in each instance not less favorable in any respect to the insured or the beneficiary. Such provisions shall be preceded individually by the caption appearing in this paragraph or, at the option of the insurer, by such appropriate individual or group captions or subcaptions as the Superintendent may approve.

(1) A provision as follows:

"ENTIRE CONTRACT; CHANGES: This policy, including the endorsements and the attached papers, if any, constitutes the entire contract of insurance. No change in this policy shall be valid until approved by an executive officer of the insurer and unless such approval be endorsed hereon or attached hereto. No agent has authority to change this policy or to waive any of its provisions."

(2) A provision as follows:

"TIME LIMIT ON CERTAIN DEFENSES: (aa) After three years from the date of issue of this policy no misstatements, except fraudulent misstatements, made by the applicant in the application for such policy shall be used to void the policy or to deny a claim for loss incurred or disability (as defined in the policy) commencing after the expiration of such three-year period."

(The foregoing policy provision shall not be so construed as to affect any legal requirement for avoidance of a policy or denial of a claim during such initial three-year period, nor to limit the application of subsection 3 (b), (1), (2), (3), (4), and (5) in the event of misstatement with respect to age or occupation or other insurance.)

A policy which the insured has the right to continue in force subject to its terms by the timely payment of premium (1) until at least age 50 or, (2) in the case of a policy issued after age 44, for at least five years from its date of issue, may contain in lieu of the foregoing the following provision (from which the clause in parentheses may be omitted at the insurer's option) under the caption "INCONTESTABLE."

"After this policy has been in force for a period of three years during the lifetime of the insured (excluding any period during which the insured is disabled), it shall become incontestable as to the statements contained in the application."

"(bb) No claim for loss incurred or disability (as defined in the policy) commencing after three years from the date of issue of this policy shall be reduced or denied on the ground that a disease or physical condition not excluded from coverage by name or specific description effective on the date of loss had existed prior to the effective date of coverage of this policy."

(3) A provision as follows:

"GRACE PERIOD: A grace period of ----- (insert a number not less than '7' for weekly premium policies, '10' for monthly premium policies, and '31' for all other policies) days will be granted for the payment of each premium falling due after the first premium, during which grace period the policy shall continue in force."

A policy which contains a cancellation provision may add, at the end of the above provision, "subject to the right of the insurer to cancel in accordance with the cancellation provision hereof".

A policy in which the insurer reserves the right to refuse any renewal shall have, at the beginning of the above provision,

"Unless not less than five days prior to the premium due date the insurer has delivered to the insured or has mailed to his last address as shown by the records of the insurer written notice of its intention not to renew this policy beyond the period for which the premium has been accepted,".

(4) A provision as follows:

"REINSTATEMENT: If any renewal premium be not paid within the time granted the insured for payment, a subsequent acceptance of premium by the insurer or by any agent duly authorized by the insurer to accept such premium, without requiring in connection therewith an application for reinstatement, shall reinstate the policy; provided, however, that if the insurer or such agent requires an application for reinstatement and issues a conditional receipt for the premium tendered, the policy will be reinstated upon approval of such application by the insurer, or, lacking such approval, upon the forty-fifth day following the date of such conditional receipt unless the insurer has previously notified the insured in writing of its disapproval of such application. The reinstated policy shall cover only loss resulting from such accidental injury as may be sustained after the date of reinstatement and loss due to such sickness as may begin more than ten days after such date. In all other respects the insured and insurer shall have the same rights thereunder as they had under the policy immediately before the due date of the defaulted premium, subject to any provisions endorsed hereon or attached hereto in connection with the reinstatement. Any premium accepted in connection with a reinstatement shall be applied to a period for which premium has not been previously paid, but not to any period more than sixty days prior to the date of reinstatement."

(The last sentence of the above provision may be omitted from any policy which the insured has the right to continue in force subject to its terms by the timely payment of premiums (1) until at least age 50 or, (2) in the case of a policy issued after age 44, for at least five years from its date of issue.)

(5) A provision as follows:

"NOTICE OF CLAIM: Written notice of claim must be given to the insurer within twenty days after the occurrence or commencement of any loss covered by the policy, or as soon thereafter as is reasonably possible. Notice given by or on behalf of the insured or the beneficiary to the insurer at ----- (insert the location of such office as the insurer may designate for the purpose), or to any authorized agent of the insurer, with information sufficient to identify the insured, shall be deemed notice to the insurer."

In a policy providing a loss-of-time benefit which may be payable for at least two years, an insurer may at its option insert the following between the first and second sentences of the above provision:

"Subject to the qualifications set forth below, if the insured suffers loss of time on account of disability for which indemnity may be payable for at least two years, he shall, at least once in every six months after having given notice of claim, give to the insurer notice of continuance of said disability, except in the event of legal incapacity. The period of six months following any filing of proof by the insured or any payment by the insurer on account of such claim or any denial of liability in whole or in part by the insurer shall be excluded in applying this provision. Delay in the giving of such notice shall not impair the insured's right to any indemnity which would otherwise have accrued during the period of six months preceding the date on which such notice is actually given."

(6) A provision as follows:

"CLAIM FORMS: The insurer, upon receipt of a notice of claim, will furnish to the claimant such forms as are usually furnished by it for filing proofs of loss. If such forms are not furnished within fifteen days after the giving of such notice the claimant shall be deemed to have complied with the requirements of this policy as to proof of loss upon submitting, within the time fixed in the policy for filing proofs of loss, written proof covering the occurrence, the character and the extent of the loss for which claim is made."

(7) A provision as follows:

"PROOFS OF LOSS: Written proof of loss must be furnished to the insurer at its said office in case of claim for loss for which this policy provides any periodic payment contingent upon continuing loss within ninety days after the termination of the period for which the insurer is liable and in case of claim for any other loss within ninety days after the date of such loss. Failure to furnish such proof within the time required shall not invalidate nor reduce any claim if it was not reasonably possible to give proof within such time, provided such proof is furnished as soon as reasonably possible and in no event, except in the absence of legal capacity, later than one year from the time proof is otherwise required."

(8) A provision as follows:

"TIME OF PAYMENT OF CLAIMS: Indemnities payable under this policy for any loss other than loss for which this policy provides any periodic payment will be paid immediately upon receipt of due written proof of such loss. Subject to due written proof of loss, all accrued indemnities for loss for which this policy provides periodic payment will be paid -----
----- (insert period for payment which must not be less frequently than monthly) and any balance remaining unpaid upon the termination of liability will be paid immediately upon receipt of due written proof."

(9) A provision as follows:

"PAYMENT OF CLAIMS: Indemnity for loss of life will be payable in accordance with the beneficiary designation and the provisions respecting such payment which may be prescribed herein and effective at the time of payment. If no such designation or provision is then effective, such indemnity shall be payable to the estate of the insured. Any other accrued indemnities unpaid at the insured's death may, at the option of the insurer, be paid either to such beneficiary or to such estate. All other indemnities will be payable to the insured."

The following provisions, or either of them, may be included with the foregoing provision at the option of the insurer:

"If any indemnity of this policy shall be payable to the estate of the insured, or to an insured or beneficiary who is a minor or otherwise not competent to give a valid release, the insurer may pay such indemnity up to an amount not exceeding $----- (insert an amount which shall not exceed $1,000), to any relative by blood or connection by marriage of the insured or beneficiary who is deemed by the insurer to be equitably entitled thereto. Any payment made by the insurer in good faith pursuant to this provision shall fully discharge the insurer to the extent of such payment.

"Subject to any written direction of the insured in the application or otherwise all or a portion of any indemnities provided by this policy on account of hospital, nursing, medical, or surgical services may, at the insurer's option and unless the insured requests otherwise in writing not later than the time of filing proofs of such loss, be paid directly to the hospital or person rendering such services; but it is not required that the service be rendered by a particular hospital or person."

(10) A provision as follows:

"PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS AND AUTOPSY: The insurer at its own expense shall have the right and opportunity to examine the person of the insured when and as often as it may reasonably require during the pendency of a claim hereunder and to make an autopsy in case of death where it is not forbidden by law."

(11) A provision as follows:

"LEGAL ACTIONS: No action at law or in equity shall be brought to recover on this policy prior to the expiration of sixty days after written proof of loss has been furnished in accordance with the requirements of this policy. No such action shall be brought after the expiration of three years after the time written proof of loss is required to be furnished."

(12) A provision as follows:

"CHANGE OF BENEFICIARY: Unless the insured makes an irrevocable designation of beneficiary, the right to change of beneficiary is reserved to the insured and the consent of the beneficiary or beneficiaries shall not be requisite to surrender or assignment of this policy or to any change of beneficiary or beneficiaries, or to any other changes in this policy."

(The first clause of this provision, relating to the irrevocable designation of beneficiary, may be omitted at the insurer's option.)

(b) Other provisions: Except as provided in paragraph (c) of this subsection, no such policy delivered or issued for delivery to any person in the District shall contain provisions respecting the matters set forth below unless such provisions are in the words in which the same appear in this paragraph: Provided, however, That the insurer may, at its option, use in lieu of any such provision a corresponding provision of different wording approved by the Superintendent which is not less favorable in any respect to the insured or the beneficiary. Any such provision contained in the policy shall be preceded individually by the appropriate caption appearing in this paragraph or, at the option of the insurer, by such appropriate individual or group captions or subcaptions as the Superintendent may approve.

(1) A provision as follows:

"CHANGE OF OCCUPATION: If the insured be injured or contract sickness after having changed his occupation to one classified by the insurer as more hazardous than that stated in this policy or while doing for compensation anything pertaining to an occupation so classified, the insurer will pay only such portion of the indemnities provided in this policy as the premium paid would have purchased at the rates and within the limits fixed by the insurer for such more hazardous occupation. If the insured changes his occupation to one classified by the insurer as less hazardous than that stated in this policy, the insurer, upon receipt of proof of such change of occupation, will reduce the premium rate accordingly, and will return the excess pro-rata unearned premium from the date of change of occupation or from the policy anniversary date immediately preceding receipt of such proof, whichever is the more recent. In applying this provision, the classification of occupational risk and the premium rates shall be such as have been last filed by the insurer prior to the occurrence of the loss for which the insurer is liable or prior to date of proof of change in occupation with the official having supervision of insurance in the jurisdiction where the insured resided at the time this policy was issued; but if such filing was not required, then the classification of occupational risk and the premium rates shall be those last made effective by the insurer in such jurisdiction prior to the occurrence of the loss or prior to the date of proof of change in occupation."

(2) A provision as follows:

"MISSTATEMENT OF AGE: If the age of the insured has been misstated, all amounts payable under this policy shall be such as the premium paid would have purchased at the correct age."

(3) A provision as follows:

"OTHER INSURANCE IN THIS INSURER: If an accident or sickness or accident and sickness policy or policies previously issued by the insurer to the insured be in force concurrently herewith, making the aggregate indemnity for ----- (insert type of coverage or coverages) in excess of $----- (insert maximum limit of indemnity or indemnities) the excess insurance shall be void and all premiums paid for such excess shall be returned to the insured or to his estate.”

or, in lieu thereof:

“Insurance effective at any one time on the insured under a like policy or policies in this insurer is limited to the one such policy elected by the insured, his beneficiary or his estate, as the case may be, and the insurer will return all premiums paid for all other such policies.”

(4) A provision as follows:

“INSURANCE WITH OTHER INSURERS: If there be other valid coverage, not with this insurer, providing benefits for the same loss on a provision of service basis or on an expense incurred basis and of which this insurer has not been given written notice prior to the occurrence or commencement of loss, the only liability under any expense incurred coverage of this policy shall be for such proportion of the loss as the amount which would otherwise have been payable hereunder plus the total of the like amounts under all such other valid coverages for the same loss of which this insurer had notice bears to the total like amounts under all valid coverages for such loss, and for the return of such portion of the premiums paid as shall exceed the pro rata portion for the amount so determined. For the purpose of applying this provision when other coverage is on a provision of service basis, the ‘like amount’ of such other coverage shall be taken as the amount which the services rendered would have cost in the absence of such coverage.”

(If the foregoing policy provision is included in a policy which also contains the next following policy provision there shall be added to the caption of the foregoing provision the phrase “—EXPENSE INCURRED BENEFITS.” The insurer may, at its option, include in this provision a definition of “other valid coverage”, approved as to form by the Superintendent, which definition shall be limited in subject matter to coverage provided by organizations subject to regulation by insurance law or by insurance authorities of this or any other jurisdiction of the United States or any province of Canada, and by hospital or medical service organizations, and to any other coverage the inclusion of which may be approved by the Superintendent. In the absence of such definition such term shall not include group insurance, automobile medical payments insurance, or coverage provided by hospital or medical service organizations or by union welfare plans or employer or employee benefit organizations. For the purpose of applying the foregoing policy provision with respect to any insured, any amount of benefit provided for such insured pursuant to any compulsory benefit statute (including any workmen’s compensation or employer’s liability statute) whether provided by a governmental agency or otherwise shall in all cases be deemed to be “other valid coverage” of which the insurer has had notice. In applying the foregoing policy provision no third party liability coverage shall be included as “other valid coverage”.)

(5) A provision as follows:

“INSURANCE WITH OTHER INSURERS: If there be other valid coverage, not with this insurer, providing benefits for the same loss on other than an expense-incurred basis and of which this insurer has not been given written notice prior to the occurrence or commencement of loss, the only liability for such benefits under this policy shall be for such proportion of the indemnities otherwise provided hereunder for such loss as the like indemnities of which the insurer had notice (including the indemnities under this policy) bear to the total amount of all like indemnities for such loss, and for the return of such portion of the premium paid as shall exceed the pro-rata portion for the indemnities thus determined.”

(If the foregoing policy provision is included in a policy which also contains the next preceding policy provision there shall be added to the caption of the foregoing provision the phrase “—OTHER BENEFITS.” The insurer may, at its option, include in this provision a definition of “other valid coverage”, approved as to form by the Superintendent, which definition shall be limited in subject matter to coverage provided by organizations subject to regulation by insurance law or by insurance authorities of this or any other jurisdiction of the United States or any province of Canada, and to any other coverage the inclusion of which may be approved by the Superintendent. In the absence of such definition such term shall not include group insurance, or benefits provided by union welfare plans or by employer or employee benefit organizations. For the purpose of applying the foregoing policy provision with respect to any insured, any amount of benefit provided for such insured pursuant to any compulsory benefit statute (including any workmen’s compensation or employer’s liability statute) whether provided by a governmental agency or otherwise shall in all cases be deemed to be “other valid coverage” of which the insurer has had notice. In applying the foregoing policy provision no third party liability coverage shall be included as “other valid coverage”.)

(6) A provision as follows:

“RELATION OF EARNINGS TO INSURANCE: If the total monthly amount of loss-of-time benefits promised for the same loss under all valid loss-of-time coverage upon the insured, whether payable on a weekly or monthly basis, shall exceed the monthly earnings of the insured at the time disability commenced or his average monthly earnings for the period of two years immediately preceding a disability for which claim is made, whichever is the greater, the insurer will be liable only for such proportionate amount of such benefits under this policy as the amount of such monthly earnings or such average monthly earnings of the insured bears to the total amount of monthly benefits for the same loss under all such coverage upon the insured at the time such disability commences and for the return of such part of the premiums paid during such two years as shall exceed the pro rata amount of the premiums for the benefits actually paid hereunder; but this shall not operate to reduce the total monthly amount of benefits payable under all such coverage upon the insured below the sum of two hundred dollars or the sum of the monthly benefits specified in such coverages, whichever is the lesser, nor shall it operate to reduce benefits other than those payable for loss of time."

(The foregoing policy provision may be inserted only in a policy which the insured has the right to continue in force subject to its terms by the timely payment of premiums (1) until at least age 50 or, (2) in the case of a policy issued after age 44, for at least five years from its date of issue. The insurer may, at its option, include in this provision a definition of "valid loss-of-time coverage", approved as to form by the Superintendent, which definition shall be limited in subject matter to coverage provided by governmental agencies or by organizations subject to regulation by insurance law or by insurance authorities of this or any other jurisdiction of the United States or any province of Canada, or to any other coverage the inclusion of which may be approved by the Superintendent or any combination of such coverages. In the absence of such definition such term shall not include any coverage provided for such insured pursuant to any compulsory benefit statute (including any workmen's compensation or employer's liability statute), or benefits provided by union welfare plans or by employer or employee benefit organizations.)

(7) A provision as follows:

"UNPAID PREMIUM: Upon the payment of a claim under this policy, any premium then due and unpaid or covered by any note or written order may be deducted therefrom."

(8) A provision as follows:

"CANCELLATION: The insurer may cancel this policy at any time by written notice delivered to the insured, or mailed to his last address as shown by the records of the insurer, stating when, not less than five days thereafter, such cancellation shall be effective; and after the policy has been continued beyond its original term the insured may cancel this policy at any time by written notice delivered or mailed to the insurer, effective upon receipt or on such later date as may be specified in such notice. In the event of cancellation, the insurer will return promptly the unearned portion of any premium paid. If the insured cancels, the earned premium shall be computed by the use of the short-rate table last filed with the official having supervision of insurance in the jurisdiction where the insured resided when the policy was issued. If the insurer cancels, the earned premium shall be computed pro rata. Cancellation shall be without prejudice to any claim originating prior to the effective date of cancellation."

(9) A provision as follows:

"CONFORMITY WITH STATE STATUTES: Any provision of this policy which, on its effective date, is in conflict with the statutes of the jurisdiction in which the insured resides on such date is hereby amended to conform to the minimum requirements of such statutes."

(10) A provision as follows:

"ILLEGAL OCCUPATION: The insurer shall not be liable for any loss to which a contributing cause was the insured's commission of or attempt to commit a felony or to which a contributing cause was the insured's being engaged in an illegal occupation."

(11) A provision as follows:

"INTOXICANTS AND NARCOTICS: The insurer shall not be liable for any loss sustained or contracted in consequence of the insured's being intoxicated or under the influence of any narcotic unless administered on the advice of a physician."

(c) Inapplicable or inconsistent provisions: If any provision of this subsection is in whole or in part inapplicable to or inconsistent with the coverage provided by a particular form of policy the insurer, with the approval of the Superintendent, shall omit from such policy any inapplicable provision or part of a provision, and shall modify any inconsistent provision or part of the provision in such manner as to make the provision as contained in the policy consistent with the coverage provided by the policy.

(d) Order of certain policy provisions: The provisions which are the subject of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this subsection, or any corresponding provisions which are used in lieu thereof in accordance with such paragraphs, shall be printed in the consecutive order of the provisions in such paragraphs or, at the option of the insurer, any such provision may appear as a unit in any part of the policy, with other provisions to which it may be logically related, provided the resulting policy shall not be in whole or in part unintelligible, uncertain, ambiguous, abstruse, or likely to mislead a person to whom the policy is offered, delivered, or issued.

(e) Third party ownership: The word "insured", as used in this section, shall not be construed as preventing a person other than the insured with a proper insurable interest from making application for and owning a policy covering the insured or from being entitled under such a policy to any indemnities, benefits, and rights provided therein.

(f) Filing procedure: The District of Columbia Council may make such reasonable rules and regulations concerning the procedure for the filing or submission of policies subject to this section as are necessary, proper or advisable to the administration of this section. This provision shall not abridge any other authority granted the Superintendent by law.

4. Conforming to Statute

(a) Other policy provisions: No policy provision which is not subject to subsection (3) of this section shall make a policy, or any portion thereof, less favorable in any respect to the insured or the beneficiary than the provisions thereof which are subject to this section.

(b) Policy conflicting with this section: A policy delivered or issued for delivery to any person in the District in violation of this section shall be held valid but shall be construed as provided in this section. When any provision in a policy subject to this section is in conflict with any provision of this section, the rights, duties, and obligations of the insurer, the insured, and the beneficiary shall be governed by the provisions of this section.

5. Application

(a) The insured shall not be bound by any statement made in an application for a policy unless a copy of such application is attached to or endorsed on the policy when issued as a part thereof. If any such policy delivered or issued for delivery to any person in the District shall be reinstated or renewed, and the insured or the beneficiary or assignee of such policy shall make written request to the insurer for a copy of the application, if any, for such reinstatement or renewal, the insurer shall within fifteen days after the receipt of such request at its home office or any branch office of the insurer, deliver or mail to the person making such request, a copy of such application. If such copy shall not be so delivered or mailed, the insurer shall be precluded from introducing such application as evidence in any action or proceeding based upon or involving such policy or its reinstatement or renewal.

(b) No alteration of any written application for any such policy shall be made by any person other than the applicant without his written consent, except that insertions may be made by the insurer, for administrative purposes only, in such manner as to indicate clearly that such insertions are not to be ascribed to the applicant.

(c) The falsity of any statement in the application for any policy covered by this section may not bar the right to recovery thereunder unless such false statement materially affected either the acceptance of the risk or the hazard assumed by the insurer.

6. Notice; Waiver

The acknowledgment by any insurer of the receipt of notice given under any policy covered by this section, or the furnishing of forms for filing proofs of loss, or the acceptance of such proofs, or the investigation of any claim thereunder shall not operate as a waiver of any of the rights of the insurer in defense of any claim arising under such policy.

7. Age Limit

If any such policy contains a provision establishing, as an age limit or otherwise, a date after which the coverage provided by the policy will not be effective, and if such date falls within a period for which premium is accepted by the insurer or if the insurer accepts a premium after such date, the coverage provided by the policy will continue in force subject to any right of cancellation until the end of the period for which premium has been accepted. In the event the age of the insured has been misstated and if, according to the correct age of the insured, the coverage provided by the policy would not have become effective, or would have ceased prior to the acceptance of such premium or premiums, then the liability of the insurer shall be limited to the refund, upon request, of all premiums paid for the period not covered by the policy.

8. Nonapplication to Certain Policies

Nothing in this section shall apply to or affect (1) any policy of group accident, group health, or group accident and health insurance; or (2) life insurance, endowment or annuity contracts, or contracts supplemental thereto which contain only such provisions relating to accident and sickness insurance as (a) provide additional benefits in case of death or dismemberment or loss of sight by accident, or as (b) operate to safeguard such contracts against lapse, or to give a special surrender value or special benefit or an annuity in the event that the insured or annuitant shall become totally and permanently disabled, as defined by the contract or supplemental contract: Provided, That no such supplemental contract shall be issued or delivered to any person in the District unless and until a copy of the form thereof has been submitted to and approved by the Superintendent under such reasonable rules and regulations as the District of Columbia Council shall make concerning the provisions in such contracts and their submission to and approval by him. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1166, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 12; July 12, 1950, 64 Stat. 335, ch. 457, § 3; July 16, 1953, 67 Stat. 162, ch. 196, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

1950—Subsec. (k) (1) amended by act July 12, 1950, which substituted "group accident, group health, or group accident and health insurance", for liability or workmen's compensation insurance or any general or blanket policy of insurance issued to any municipal corporation or department thereof, or to any employer, whether a corporation, copartnership, association, or individual or to any police or fire department, underwriters corps, salvage bureau, or to any association of fifty or more members having a constitution or bylaws and formed in good faith for purposes other than that of obtaining insurance, where not less than 75 per centum of the members or employees are insured for their individual benefit against specified accidental bodily injuries or sickness while exposed to the hazards of the occupation or otherwise in consideration of a premium intended to cover the risks of all the persons insured under such policy.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1953 AMENDMENT

This section is referred to in section 35-1332.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

Insurer had burden of proving that right to recovery on hospitalization policy was barred by insured's failure to state in application inquiring as to past medical or surgical treatment that insured's cervix had been cauterized, and such burden could be carried by evidence deduced from insured's own witnesses. Turner v. National Hospitalization (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 52 A. 2d 274).

Domestic and foreign corporations

Subsection (f) of this section providing that falsity of any statement in application for accident and health policy shall not bar right of recovery thereunder unless made with intent to deceive, or unless materially affecting acceptance of risk or hazard assumed by insurer, was applicable to insurance company issuing hospitalization policy and chartered in District of Columbia and authorized to do business in District, and to Maryland company assuming policy with consent of insured, where insured continued to live in District and claim arose in District. Turner v. National Hospitalization (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 52 A. 2d 274).

Intention to deceive

An insured's failure to state, in hospitalization policy application inquiring as to past medical or surgical treatment, that her cervix had been cauterized, precluded recovery of hospitalization benefits under policy, where failure to disclose such fact was intended to deceive and materially affected acceptance of risk. Turner v. National Hospitalization (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 52 A. 2d 274).

§ 35-713. Stock operations and advisory board contracts prohibited.

No life company doing business in the District shall issue in the District, nor permit its general agents, agents, officers, solicitors, or employees to issue or deliver in the District, agency company stock or other capital stock, or benefit certificates or shares in any common-law corporation, or securities or any special or advisory board or other contracts of any kind promising returns and profits as an inducement to insure; and no life company shall be authorized to do business in the District which issues or permits its general agents, agents, officers, solicitors, or employees to issue in the District or in any state or territory agency company stock or other capital stock, or benefit certificates or shares in any common-law corporations, or securities or any special advisory board or other contracts of any kind promising returns and profits as an inducement to insurance; and no corporation or stock company acting as agent of a life company nor any of its general agents, agents, officers, solicitors, or employees shall be permitted to sell, agree, or offer to sell, or give or offer to give, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatsoever, any share of stock, securities, bonds, or agreement of any form or nature promising returns and profits as an inducement to insurance or in connection therewith. It shall be the duty of the superintendent, upon due proof after notice and hearing that any such company or agent thereof has violated any of the provisions of this section, to revoke the authority of the company or agent so offending: Provided, however, That the action of the superintendent in this regard shall be subject to appeal and review in the form and manner prescribed in section 35-427. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1173, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 13.)

§ 35-714. Misrepresentations prohibited.

No life company doing business in the District, and no officer, director, general agent, agent, or solicitor thereof, broker, or any other person shall make, issue, or circulate, or cause to be issued or circulated, any estimate, illustration, circular, or statement of any sort misrepresenting the terms of any policy issued or to be issued by it or the benefits or advantages promised thereby, or the dividends or shares of the surplus to be received thereon, or shall use any name or title of any policy or class of policies misrepresenting the true nature thereof. Nor shall any such corporation or officer, director, general agent, agent, or solicitor thereof, broker or any other person, firm, association, or corporation make any misrepresentation to any person insured in any company for the purpose of inducing or tending to induce a policyholder in any company to lapse, forfeit, or surrender his insurance. It shall be the duty of the superintendent, upon due proof after notice and hearing that any such company or agent thereof has violated any of the provisions of this section, to revoke the authority of the company or agent so offending: Provided, however, That the action of the superintendent in this regard shall be subject to appeal and review in the form and manner prescribed in section 35-427. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1174, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 14.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Revocation or suspension of agent's or broker's license, see § 35-426.

§ 35-715. Discriminations prohibited.

No life insurance corporation doing business in the District shall make or permit any discriminations between individuals of the same class or of equal expectation of life, in the amount of payment or return of premiums or rates charged for policies of insurance, including endowment policies and annuity contracts, or in the dividends or other benefits payable thereon, or in any of the terms or conditions of the policy; nor shall any such company permit or agent thereof offer to make any contract of insurance, endowment policy, or annuity contract, or agreement as to such contracts other than as plainly expressed in the policy issued thereon, nor shall any such company or officer, agent, solicitor, or representative thereof pay, allow, or give, or offer to pay, allow, or give, directly or indirectly, as inducement to any person to insure, or give, sell, or purchase, or offer to give, sell, or purchase as such inducement or in connection with such insurance, endowment policy, or annuity contract, any stocks, bonds, or other securities of any insurance company or other corporation, association, or partnership, or any dividends or profit accruing thereon, or any valuable consideration or inducement whatever not specified in the policy, nor shall any person knowingly receive any such inducement, any rebate of premium, or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefits to accrue thereon, or any paid employment or contract for services of any kind or any valuable consideration or inducement whatever, not specified in the policy. No person shall be excused from attending and testifying and producing any books, papers, or other documents before any court or magistrate, upon any investigation, proceeding, or trial for a violation of any of the provisions of this section, upon the ground or for the reason that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to convict him of a crime or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture; but no person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he may so testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, and no testimony so given or produced shall be received against him upon any criminal investigation or proceeding. Nothing in this section shall be so construed as to forbid a company, transacting industrial life insurance, from returning to policyholders, who have made premium payments for a period of at least one year, directly to the company at its home or distant offices, a percentage of such a premium which the company would have paid for the collection thereof. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1174, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 15.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Provisions prohibited in life policies, see § 35-704.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Splitting commissions

An insurance broker was not prohibited from splitting commissions with insurance solicitor where arrangement was otherwise valid. Werber v. Wallop (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 46 A. 2d 110).

This section prohibiting discrimination, rebates, kickbacks, or other improper manipulating of premiums, did not invalidate agreement between insured and broker that broker would pay half of commissions on issuance of life policies, to insurance solicitor who had handled practically all of insured's insurance business. Id.

§ 35-716. Rights of creditors and beneficiaries under policies of life insurance.

When a policy of insurance, whether heretofore or hereafter issued, is effected by any person on his own life or on another life in favor of some person other than himself having an insurable interest therein, or, except in cases of transfer with intent to defraud creditors, if a policy of life insurance is assigned or in any way made payable to any such person, the lawful beneficiary or assignee thereof, other than the insured or the person so effecting such insurance or executors or administrators of such insured or the person so effecting such insurance, shall be entitled to its proceeds and avails against the creditors and representatives of the insured and of the person effecting such insurance whether or not the right to change the beneficiary is reserved or permitted and whether or not the policy is made payable to the person whose life is insured, if the beneficiary or assignee shall predecease such person: Provided, That subject to the statute of limitations the amount of any premiums for said insurance paid with intent to defraud creditors, with interest thereon, shall inure to their benefit from the proceeds of the policy, but the company issuing the policy shall be discharged of all liability thereon by payment of its proceeds in accordance with its terms, unless before such payment the company shall have written notice by or in behalf of a creditor of a claim to recover for transfer made or premiums paid with intent to defraud creditors with specifications of the amount claimed. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1175, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 16; Aug. 1, 1947, 61 Stat. 711, ch. 427.)

AMENDMENT

1947—Act Aug. 1, 1947, substituted "executors or administrators of such insured or the person so effecting such insurance" for "his executors or administrators".

Beneficiary, rights of

Under this section providing that the lawful beneficiary other than insured or person effecting insurance or "his" executors or administrators shall be entitled to its proceeds against creditors and representatives of insured the word "beneficiary" is an antecedent of the word "his" and this section means that lawful beneficiary or his executors or administrators shall be entitled to the proceeds against creditors and representatives of insured. Kindleberger v. Lincoln Nat. Bank of Wash. (1946, 155 F. 2d 281, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 101, 167 A.L.R. 1011, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 495, 329 U.S. 803, 91 L. Ed. 686).

Impairment of contract

Where this section was expressly made applicable to policies previously issued, this section was controlling over contrary provision of policy issued before enactment of this section and such application of this section did not impair obligation of contract embodied in the policy. Kindleberger v. Lincoln Natl. Bank of Wash. (1946, 155 F. 2d 281, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 101, 167 A.L.R. 1011, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 495, 329 U.S. 803, 91 L. Ed. 686).

Representatives of deceased beneficiary

Under this section, proceeds of life policy were payable to estate of beneficiary who predeceased insured, notwithstanding insured reserved right to change beneficiary and policy, issued before enactment of this section, provided that interest of beneficiary should vest in insured in event of beneficiary's death before insured. Kindleberger v. Lincoln Nat. Bank of Wash. (1946, 153 F. 2d 281, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 101, 167 A.L.R. 1011, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 495, 329 U.S. 803, 91 L. Ed. 686).

Where insured reserves right to change beneficiary of life policy, interest of beneficiary may be defeated by insured by expedient of changing beneficiary; but in absence of change, when policy has matured because of insured's death, claim of beneficiary to proceeds cannot be defeated and, if beneficiary has not survived, beneficiary's executors or administrators are entitled under this section to the proceeds against creditors and representatives of insured. Id.

Representatives of insured

Where life policy provided that proceeds thereof were to be paid to insured's wife, "if living; otherwise to his executors, administrators or assigns", and insured died 15 months after his wife's death without having changed beneficiary clause, insured's executors, rather than wife's administrators, were entitled to proceeds of policy notwithstanding this section providing that beneficiary's representatives shall be entitled to proceeds of a life policy as against insured's representatives, and though application for policy did not contain the quoted words appearing in policy. Horning v. Lindsay (1948, 169 F. 2d 963, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

§ 35-717. Exemption of disability insurance from execution.

No money or other benefit paid, provided, allowed, or agreed to be paid by any company on account of the disability from injury or sickness of any insured person shall be liable to execution, attachment, garnishment, or other process, or to be seized, taken, appropriated or applied by any legal or equitable process or operation of law, to pay any debt or liability of such insured person whether such debt or liability was incurred before or after the commencement of such disability, but the provisions of this section shall not affect the assignability of any such disability benefit otherwise assignable, nor shall this section apply to any money income disability benefit in an action to recover for necessities contracted for after the commencement of disability covered by the disability clause or contract allowing such money income benefit. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1175, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 16a.)

Alimony

Liability for alimony and support payments to divorced wife is not a "debt or liability" within the meaning of this exemption. Schlaefer v. Schlaefer (1940, 112 F. 2d 177, 71 App. D.C. 350).

Payments of disability insurance are not exempt from liability for alimony and for support of divorced wife. Id.

Disposition of insurance

So far as general creditors are concerned, the purpose of this provision is clear, with the exceptions stated, to make disposition of these funds a matter solely for the insured's judgement. Schlaefer v. Schlaefer (1940, 112 F. 2d 177, 71 App. D.C. 350).

Reason for law

Congress regarded it better for creditors to go unpaid than to deprive the debtor and his dependents of this means of support when earning capacity would be cut off Schlaefer v. Schlaefer (1940, 112 F. 2d 177, 71 App. D.C. 350).

§ 35-718. Exemption of group life insurance policies from execution.

No policy of group life insurance, nor the proceeds thereof when paid to any employee or employees thereunder, shall be liable to attachment, garnishment, or other process, or to be seized, taken, appropriated, or applied by any legal or equitable process or operation of law, to pay any debt or liability of such employee, or his beneficiary, or any other person who may have a right thereunder, either before or after payment; nor shall the proceeds thereof, when not made payable to a named beneficiary, constitute a part of the estate of the employee for the payment of his debts. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1176, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 17.)

§ 35-719. False statements—Misdemeanor.

Any agent, broker, examining physician, or other person who shall knowingly or wilfully make any false or fraudulent statement or representation in or with reference to any application for life insurance, or who shall make any such statement for the purpose of obtaining any fee, commission, money, or benefit from or in any company transacting business under chapters 3-8 of this title shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1176, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 18.)

§ 35-720. Proceeds of certain policies to be held in trust by life company.

Any life company licensed under the laws of the District shall have power to hold the proceeds of any policy issued by it under a trust or other agreement upon such terms and restrictions as to revocation by the policyholder and control by beneficiaries and with such exemptions from the claims of creditors or beneficiaries other than the policyholder as shall have been agreed to in writing by such company and the policyholder. Such insurance company shall not be required to segregate funds so held, but may hold them as a part of its general corporate assets. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1176, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 19.)

§ 35-721. When actual premium for life policy is less than net premium.

When the actual premium charged for an insurance policy by any company is less than the net premium on the basis adopted by the company for the valuation of such policy under section 35-701, such company shall be charged as a separate liability with a deficiency reserve equal to the total present value of the future deficiencies in the actual premium calculated according to the table of mortality and rate of interest employed by the company for the valuation of such policy. (June 19, 1934, 48 Stat. 1176, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 20.)

§ 35-722. Acceptance of premiums in arrears and recording of payments.

No industrial insurance company or agent thereof shall accept any money in payment of premiums which are in arrears on any industrial life or industrial sick benefit insurance policy which has lapsed and which the insured seeks to reinstate, unless such payment shall amount at least to the total of all premiums in arrears or unless such payment shall, under the regulations of the company, make the policy immediately eligible for reinstatement, subject only to evidence of insurability.

Every current premium shall be correctly recorded by the agent or by the company in the premium receipt book of the insured at the time the premium is paid.

Every advance premium paid by an industrial life or industrial sick-benefit policyholder shall be recorded in the receipt book of the insured in exactly the same manner as current premiums are recorded, and accurate entry thereof shall be made in the record book of the agent: Provided, however, That failure so to do shall not invalidate the policy. (June 19, 1934, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 21, as added May 4, 1950, 64 Stat. 104, ch. 157, § 7.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section effective ninety days after May 4, 1950, see section 8 of act May 4, 1950, set out as a note under section 35-405.

§ 35-723. Standard provisions required in industrial life insurance policies.

No policy of industrial life insurance shall be delivered or issued for delivery in the District unless it contains in substance the following provisions, or provisions which in the opinion of the Superintendent are more favorable to the policyholders:

(1) A provision that all premiums after the first shall be payable in advance, either at the home office of the company or to an agent of the company.

(2) A provision that the insured is entitled to a grace period of at least twenty-eight days within which the payment of any premiums after the first may be made, and during which period of grace the policy shall continue in full force, but in case the policy becomes a claim during the said period of grace before the overdue premium is paid, the amount of such premium may be deducted from any amount payable under the policy in settlement.

(3) A provision that, except as otherwise expressly provided by law, the policy shall constitute the entire contract between the parties and shall be incontestable after it has been in force during the lifetime of the insured for a period of not more than two years from its date, except for nonpayment of premiums and except for violations of the conditions of the policy relating to naval or military service in time of war, and, at the option of the company, provisions relative to benefits in the event of total and permanent disability and provisions which grant additional insurance specifically against death by accident may also be excepted; if a copy of the application be attached to the policy, a provision that all statements made by the insured shall in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties, and that no such statement or statements shall be used in defense of a claim under the policy unless contained in the attached written application.

(4) A provision that if it shall be found at any time before final settlement under the policy that the age of the insured (or the age of any other person considered in determining the premium) has been misstated, the amount payable under the policy shall be such as the premium would have purchased at the correct age, according to the company's rate at date of issue.

(5) If the policy is a participating policy, a provision indicating the conditions under which the company shall periodically ascertain and apportion any divisible surplus accruing to the policy.

(6) A provision for nonforfeiture benefits and cash surrender values in accordance with the requirements of section 35-705a or section 35-705b.

(7) A provision specifying the options, if any, to which the policyholder is entitled in the event of default in a premium payment.

(8) A provision that if in event of default in premium payments the value of the policy shall have been applied to the purchase of other insurance as provided for in this section, and if such insurance shall be in force and the original policy shall not have been surrendered to the company and canceled, the policy may be reinstated within two years from such default, upon evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company and payment of arrears of premiums and the payment or reinstatement of any other indebtedness to the company upon said policy, with interest on said premium and indebtedness at the rate of not exceeding 6 per centum per annum payable annually.

(9) A provision that when a policy shall become a claim by the death of the insured settlement shall be made upon receipt of due proof of death.

(10) Title on the face and on the back of the policy briefly describing its form.

Any of the foregoing provisions or portions thereof not applicable to single premium or nonparticipating or term policies shall, to that extent, not be incorporated therein; and any such policy may be issued or delivered in the District which in the opinion of the Superintendent contains provisions on any one or more of the several foregoing requirements more favorable to the policyholder than hereinbefore required. The provisions of this section shall not apply to policies issued or granted in exchange for lapsed or surrendered policies. Nothing contained in subsection (3) hereof shall apply to applications for reinstatement. A reinstated policy shall be contestable on account of fraud or misrepresentation of material facts pertaining to the reinstatement, for the same period after reinstatement as provided in the policy with respect to the original issue. (June 19, 1934, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 22, as added May 4, 1950, 64 Stat. 104, ch. 157, § 7.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

§ 35-724. Provisions prohibited in industrial life insurance policies.

No policy of industrial life insurance shall be delivered or issued for delivery, in the District, if it contains any of the following provisions:

(1) A provision limiting the time within which any action at law or in equity may be commenced to less than three years after the cause of action shall accrue.

(2) Except for provisions relating to misstatement of age, suicide, aviation, and military or naval service in time of war, a provision for any mode of settlement at maturity, after the expiration of the contestable period of the policy of less value than the amount insured on the face of the policy plus dividend additions, if any, less any indebtedness to the company on or secured by the policy, and less any premium that may, by the terms of the policy, be deducted. This paragraph shall not apply to any nonforfeiture provision.

(3) A provision for forfeiture of the policy for failure to repay any loan on the policy, or to pay interest on such loan, while the total indebtedness on the policy, including interest, is less than the loan value thereof.

(4) A provision to the effect that the agent soliciting the insurance is the agent of the person insured under said policy, or making the acts or representations of such agent binding upon the person so insured under said policy.

(5) A provision permitting the payment of funeral benefits in merchandise or services, or permitting the payment of any benefits other than in lawful money of the United States.

(6) A provision whereby the benefits or any part thereof accruing under such policy upon the death of a person insured may be paid to any designated undertaker or undertaking firm or corporation or to any person or persons engaged in or connected with such business, without the written consent of the person or persons to whom such benefits would otherwise be paid, or so as in any way to deprive the personal representative or family of the deceased of the advantages of competition in procuring and purchasing supplies and services in connection with the burial of the person insured.

(7) A provision that the liability of the company by reason of the insured's death shall be limited to less than the face amount of the policy if the death of the insured results from a specified kind or character of disease. (June 19, 1934, ch. 672, Ch. V, § 23, as added May 8, 1950, 64 Stat. 104, ch. 157, § 7.)

§ 35-901. Definition—When disability payable—Reserves—To whom benefits payable—Exemption from general insurance laws.

A fraternal beneficial association is hereby declared to be a corporation, society, order, or voluntary association, formed or organized and carried on for the sole benefit of its members and their beneficiaries, and not for profit, having a lodge system with ritualistic form of work and representative form of government, making provision for the payment of benefits in case of death. Each such association may make provision for the payment of benefits in case of sickness, temporary or permanent physical disability, either as a result of disease, accident, or old age: Provided, That the period in life at which physical disability benefits on account of old age commences shall not be under seventy years, or the age of expectancy from the time of entering, subject to their compliance with its laws. Any such association may create and maintain a reserve, emergency, or benefit fund in accordance with its laws. Any such association having a reserve, emergency, or benefit fund may, in addition to the benefits hereinbefore named, pay withdrawal benefits, not exceeding the contributions of such member, to a member unable or unwilling to continue membership, provided such membership shall continue not less than three successive years. Such association may also, after ten years of membership, apply its funds and accumulations as its laws provide or the association and members agree. The fund from which the payments of such benefits shall be made and the fund from which the expenses of such association shall be defrayed shall be derived from assessments, dues, and other payments collected from its members or otherwise. The payment of death benefits shall be to the families, heirs, blood relatives, affianced husband, affianced wife, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, stepfather, stepmother, stepchildren, stepbrother, stepsister, children or parents by legal adoption, member's estate, a charitable, benevolent, educational, or eleemosynary institution, or to persons dependent upon the member or upon whom the member is dependent. Such association shall be governed by sections 35-901 to 35-917, and shall be exempt from the provisions of insurance laws of the United States relating to the District of Columbia, and no law hereafter passed shall apply to them unless they be expressly designated therein: Provided, however, That the fact that any such association has outstanding agreements with its members for the payment of benefits other than those herein specified, if it is making no new contracts of that character and is retiring those already existing, shall not exclude such association from the operation of sections 35-901 to 35-917. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1310, ch. 854, § 749; Dec. 20, 1928, 45 Stat. 1055, ch. 40, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

1928—Act Dec. 20, 1928, inserted: "father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, stepfather, stepmother, stepchildren, stepbrother, stepsister, children or parents by legal adoption, member's estate, a charitable, benevolent, educational, or eleemosynary institution," and "or upon whom the member is dependent."

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 35-202, 35-902, 35-903, 35-906 to 35-909, 35-911, 35-913 to 35-917, 35-1202.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Amendment of charter or constitution

The amendment of the charter of a fraternal benefit association, which originally had been a joint-stock company, from depriving certificate holders of the right formerly had of designating beneficiaries, will not affect existing insurance contracts in the absence of anything in the charter showing that it was intended to have a retrospective effect. Brown v. Grand Fountain (1906, 28 App. D.C. 200).

A committee appointed by a fraternal beneficial association to revise the laws and constitution does not have authority to originate and propose methods without the notice as required for amendments generally, as to abolition of both constitution and laws. National Council Junior Order United American Mechanics v. State Council (1906, 27 App. D.C. 1).

Beneficiaries

This section permitted as beneficiaries only families, heirs, blood relatives, affianced husband, affianced wife, or dependents. Certificate in favor of woman who had been living with the insured, knowing that he had a legal wife living, was void. Electrical Workers Ben. Assn. v. Brown (1928, 26 F. 2d 981, 58 App. D.C. 203).

Police Relief Association could not authorize payment of benefit certificates to persons other than those designated by this section as eligible beneficiaries. Simpkins v. McDermott (1939, 81 F. 2d 257, 65 App. D.C. 123, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 592, 297 U.S. 715, 80 L. Ed. 1001).

By-Laws

When by-laws of fraternal beneficial association imposes upon the officers of local councils the duty of receiving and transmitting all assessments and dues to the central committee, a provision in such by-laws that the officers of each local council shall be agents solely of such council and its members, is not consistent with duty and agency imposed by central governing body, and it cannot defeat claim upon certificate of insurance issued by the association. Prudent Patricians of Pompeii v. Marr (1902, 20 App. D.C. 363).

Payment of dues

Courts will ordinarily not concern themselves with questions of the good standing of members of such organizations, but when good standing depends solely on payment of dues the civil courts will not hesitate to take cognizance. Prudent Patricians of Pompeii v. Marr (1902, 20 App. D.C. 363). See, also, Berkley v. Harper (1894, 3 App. D.C. 308); Moss v. Littleton (1895, 6 App. D.C. 201); Drum v. Benton (1898, 13 App. D.C. 245).

Reinstatement

Right of reinstatement is personal to the member of a fraternal beneficial association, and it does not survive to the personal representatives or beneficiaries, and if member dies within specified 30 days as stipulated in by-laws, there can be no recovery. Supreme Commandery of United Order of Golden Cross v. Bernard (1905, 26 App. D.C. 169, 6 Ann. Cas. 694).

§ 35-902. Existing associations.

All such associations coming within the description as set forth in section 35-901, organized under the laws of the United States relating to said District, or of any state, county, province, or territory, and doing business in said District on January 1, 1902, may continue such business: Provided, That they comply with the provisions of sections 35-901 to 35-917 regulating annual reports and the designation of the Superintendent of Insurance of said District, provided for in section 35-101 et seq., as the person upon whom process may be served as hereinafter provided. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1310, ch. 854, § 750.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 35-202, 35-901, 35-903, 35-906 to 35-909, 35-911, 35-913 to 35-917, 35-1202.

§ 35-903. Nonresident associations—Conditions precedent to doing business in District—Right of superintendent to examine.

Any such association coming within the description as set forth in section 35-901, organized under the laws of any state, country, province, or territory, and not doing business in said District on January 1, 1902, shall be admitted to do business within said District when it shall have filed with the Superintendent of Insurance a duly certified copy of its charter and articles of association and a copy of its by-laws certified to by its secretary or corresponding officer, together with an appointment of the said superintendent as the person upon whom process may be served as hereinafter provided: Provided, That such association shall be shown to be authorized to do business in the state, country, province, or territory in which it is incorporated or organized, in case the laws of such state, country, province, or territory shall provide for such authorization; and in case the laws of such state, country, province, or territory do not provide for any formal authorization to do business on the part of any such association, then such association shall be shown to be conducting its business in accordance with the provisions of sections 35-901 to 35-917; for which purpose the said superintendent may personally, or by some person to be designated by him, examine into the condition, affairs, character, and business methods, accounts, books, and investments of such association at its home office, which examination shall be at the expense of such association and shall be made within thirty days after demand therefor, and the expense of such examination shall be limited to fifty dollars. Any association doing business under the provisions of sections 35-901 to 35-917 shall be permitted to do business upon filing annually with the Superintendent of Insurance the certificate of authority of the insurance department of the state, province, or territory in which it is incorporated or organized: Provided, however, That in case of failure to file said certificate by any such association, or in case the Superintendent of Insurance shall deem it necessary, he shall have power, either personally or by some person designated by him, to examine into the condition, affairs, character, business methods, accounts, books, and investments of such association, at its home office, which examination shall be at the expense of the association. The amount of such expense shall not exceed one hundred dollars for associations which have no reserve or emergency fund and two hundred dollars for associations with a reserve or emergency fund. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1310, ch. 854, § 751.)

Each such association doing business on January 1, 1902, or thereafter admitted to do business within said District, and not having its principal office within said District, and not being organized under the laws of the United States relating to said District, shall appoint, in writing, the said superintendent and his successors in office to be its true and lawful attorney, upon whom all lawful process in any action or proceeding against it may be served, and in such writing shall agree that any lawful process against it which is served on said attorney shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served upon the association, and that the authority shall continue in force so long as any liability remains outstanding in said District. Copies of said certificate certified by said superintendent shall be deemed sufficient evidence thereof, and shall be admitted in evidence with the same force and effect as the original thereof might be admitted. Service upon such attorney shall be deemed sufficient service upon such association. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS

Estoppel as affecting issue

A corporation which did not question finding that it was not qualified under this chapter to do insurance business as a fraternal beneficial association had no "legal right" to a license and could not invoke an estoppel to obtain a license forbidden by statute. National Hospital Service Soc. v. Jordan (1942, 128 F. 2d 460, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 23, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 65, 317 U. S. 664, 87 L. Ed. 534).

Mandatory injunction to compel issue

Plaintiff was not entitled to a mandatory injunction requiring superintendent of insurance to renew its permit to do insurance business as a fraternal beneficial association, even though it was not qualified under this chapter, on ground that persons in control of plaintiff had acted in reliance on expired permits which were issued by superintendent's predecessors in office and that superintendent was "estopped" from refusing to renew permit. *National Hospital Service Soc. v. ### Chapter 10.—INDUSTRIAL LIFE INSURANCE

Sec.

- 35-1001. Conditions of policies.
- 35-1002. Validity of policy—Good faith of insured material element—Unsound health as defense.
- 35-1003. Incontestability of policy.
- 35-1004. Assignment of policy.
- 35-1005. Beneficiary.

§ 35-1001. Conditions of policies.

Policies of industrial weekly payment life insurance after June 4, 1934, issued or delivered in the District of Columbia shall be subject to the following conditions, in addition to any others prescribed by law and not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter. (June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 834, ch. 373, § 1.)

REPEAL OF INCONSISTENT PROVISIONS

Provisions of this chapter conflicting with the Life Insurance Act, classified to chapters 3 to 8 of this title, are repealed by section 4, Ch. VI, of said act which is set out as a note under section 35-301.

§ 35-1002. Validity of policy—Good faith of insured material element—Unsound health as defense.

If payment of such a policy shall be refused because of unsound health at or prior to the date of the policy, the good faith of both applicant and insured shall constitute a material element in determining the validity of the policy; and it shall not be held invalid because of unsound health unless the insurer shall prove that, at or before the date of issue of the policy, the insured or applicant had knowledge of, or reason to know, the facts on which the defense is based, or shall prove that the insurance was procured by the insured or applicant in bad faith or with intent to defraud the company, any provision, agreement, condition, warranty, or clause contained in said policy, or endorsed thereon, or added or attached thereto, to the contrary notwithstanding. Proof by the insurer of fraud, intent to deceive, unsound health, bad faith, breach or (of) warranty or condition precedent, or other matter of defense, shall be subject to the provisions of section 35-203. (June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 834, ch. 373, § 2.)

Burden of proof

In action on an industrial life policy with defense that insured had been attended by physician for a serious disease which resulted in death and that such was not endorsed on the policy as required by the terms thereof, record established that statutory burden of proof was actually placed upon the insurer to prove the defense by the trial court. Ferguson v. Quaker City Life Ins. Co. (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 129 A. 2d 189).

Where insurer sets up defense of insured's unsound health prior to issuance of policy, whether defense is based on application or on policy provision, insurer has burden of proving that applicant or insured acted in bad faith. Walton et ano. v. Sun Life Insurance Company of America (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 115 A. 2d 310).

This section regarding burden of proof where payment of policy is refused because of unsound health of insured, casts the burden of proof on insurer and requires that it establish that the ailment was serious and that the insured knew, or had reason to know, the facts on which the defense is based. Washington Nat. Ins. Co. v. Stanton (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 680).

Where forfeiture clause invoked in action on industrial life policy was conditioned on proof that insured had been hospitalized, had undergone an operation, or had been attended by a physician for a serious disease or injury, and had failed to disclose the facts, effect of this section was to shift the burden of proof and to make insured's good faith concerning representations on which policy issued the test and by its terms to impose on insurer the burden of proving the contrary. Eureka-Maryland Assur. Co. v. Gray (1941, 121 F. 2d 104, 74 App. D. C. 191, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 114, 314 U. S. 613, 86 L. Ed. 494).

Evidence

In action by beneficiary against insurer on industrial life policy, wherein insurer defended on provision of policy that policy is voidable if, within two years before date of issue of policy, insured received treatment for serious disease or physical condition, evidence was sufficient to sustain insurer's burden under this section of proving insured's unsound health, knowledge of insured's unsound health or reason to know thereof, and bad faith of insured or beneficiary or intent to defraud insurer. Ferguson v. Quaker City Life Insurance Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 146 A. 2d 580).

In action on industrial life policy where insurer defended on ground that insured was suffering from serious disease of arthritis at time of issuance of policy but testimony of insured's physician directly rebutted insurer's contention that insured had either real or imputed knowledge of alleged seriousness of her condition and insured's physician testified that the ailment was serious only in sense that it temporarily restricted motion of certain parts of the body, evidence was sufficient for jury. Washington Nat. Ins. Co. v. Stanton (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 680).

Good faith

In action to recover under life policy, wherein insurer relied on policy provision that policy was voidable if, within two years prior to date of issuance, insured had undergone hospitalization for condition of a serious nature, test was insured's good faith, and trial court erred in failing to make a finding on that issue. Walton et ano. v. Sun Life Insurance Co. of America (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 115 A. 2d 310).

Purpose

The design of this section is to make its terms applicable in all cases in which the defense is that the insured had suffered, before issuance of policy, a serious injury or disease, and had concealed the truth from the insurer. Eureka-Maryland Assur. Co. v. Gray (1941, 121 F. 2d 104, 74 App. D. C. 191, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 114, 314 U. S. 613, 86 L. Ed. 494).

Questions for court

In an action for the reinstatement of an industrial life insurance policy, a liberal view prevails in favor of holders of such policies. But it is equally well established that the rules of liberal construction have no application where the contract is clear and definite. Capital City Life In- urance Company v. Saunders (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 588).

Where insurer defends action on insurance policy on ground of unsound health of insured at or prior to date of policy, and there is no conflict in evidence or no contradiction of showing of existence of serious disease, the trial judge must take the case from the jury and rule as a matter of law in favor of insurer. Washington Nat. Ins. Co. v. Stanton (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 680).

Questions for jury

Where insurer defends action on insurance policy on ground of unsound health of insured at time or prior to date of policy and plaintiff creates a substantial issue of fact on question of unsound health, it becomes a question for the jury and not for the court. Washington Nat. Ins. Co. v. Stanton (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 680).

§ 35-1003. Incontestability of policy.

Every such policy shall be incontestable upon any ground relating to health after two years from its date of issue (notwithstanding a longer period may be named therein), provided the insured shall be alive at the end of said period. If the policy by its terms shall be incontestable after a shorter period than herein provided the terms of the policy with regard to such period of limitation shall govern. (June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 834, ch. 373, § 3.)

CROSS REFERENCE

General provisions governing formal requisites of insurance policies, see § 35-703 et seq.

Immediate full benefit

The words "Immediate full benefit", as used in industrial life policy, did not make the policy incontestable or require that amount thereof be paid regardless of cause of death, but meant nothing more than that full amount of policy would be paid immediately upon death. Walker v. Superior Life Ins. Co. (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 192).

The words "Immediate full benefit", appearing on cover page of industrial life policy, did not preclude insurer from rejecting claim upon the policy for insured's death five days after policy had been issued as result of heart attack under provision in limitation of liability clause, excluding heart disease and other enumerated diseases contracted in any time before or within first year from date of policy, where limitation of liability clause appeared inside the policy in the boldest type of any text matter therein. Id.

§ 35-1004. Assignment of policy.

Nothing contained in the terms of any such policy shall operate to prevent its valid assignment by the insured; but the company issuing the policy so assigned shall be discharged of all liability thereon by payment of its proceeds in accordance with its terms, unless before such payment the company shall have written notice of such assignment. (June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 835, ch. 373, § 4.)

§ 35-1005. Beneficiary.

Any individual designated with the consent of the insurer, evidenced by the signature of its president or secretary, or designated upon a form furnished by and filed with the insurer, as beneficiary of such a policy shall be entitled to the proceeds of such policy after the death of the insured in priority to all other claimants, and may sue in his own name for such proceeds if payment is refused by the insurer: Provided, That upon the expiration of fifteen days after the death of the insured, unless proof of claim in the manner and form required by the policy, accompanied by the policy for surrender, has theretofore been made by or on behalf of such designated beneficiary, the insurer may pay to any other claimant permitted by the policy. A person specified as one to whom the insured desires payment made, but not formally designated as beneficiary, shall be deemed a beneficiary for the purposes of this section, provided such designation be made in writing and filed with the company during the lifetime of the insured. (June 4, 1934, 48 Stat. 835, ch. 373, § 5.)

such laws, or by the terms of this chapter, apply to all marine insurance companies transacting business within the District: Provided, That, with respect to the filing of statements, the superintendent shall accept a photographic copy of a single original, or a certified copy from the insurance department of the state where the company is organized or has its principal office. An insurance company organized for the transaction of one or more of the kinds of insurance permitted under subdivisions three to nine, inclusive, of this section, shall also, if complying with this chapter, be admitted or licensed to write any or all insurance and reinsurance comprised in any one or more of the other subdivisions of this section: Provided, That nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing any insurance company, formed, admitted, or licensed to transact insurance in the District on March 4, 1922, from continuing the writing of those kinds of insurance which it may have been authorized to write on March 4, 1922.

Every company formed, admitted, or licensed to transact in the District any of the kinds of insurance permitted by the several numbered subdivisions of this section shall maintain separate and distinct reserves for each kind of insurance so written, and if a stock company shall not transact the business of insurance in the District unless—

(a) It has a capital stock actually paid in, in cash or invested as provided by law, of at least $100,000 for the insurance specified in any one subdivision of this section, nor unless it has a surplus of money or other lawful assets over its authorized capital and all other liabilities of at least $50,000;

Corporations for the sole purpose of reinsuring risks insured by other companies may be organized, or admitted, within the District in the same manner as prescribed for other companies. Such reinsur-

Such reinsurance companies shall comply with this chapter, and with any other law of the District, regulating direct-writing companies, in so far as the same may be applicable. No such mutual company shall be so licensed for any of the classes of insurance as allowed under the several subdivisions of section 35-1103 unless it has received in cash, with respect to each such class of insurance written, at least one advanced periodical premium on each such application, aggregating at least $10,000; but if the applications are for employers' liability or workmen's compensation insurance, the premiums on such applications shall aggregate at least $25,000, and each employer shall be considered a separate risk; nor unless it has a surplus of $10,000 in money or other lawful investments above its liabilities, including the liability equal to the aggregate amount of premiums so advanced. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS

Authority of superintendent

There is neither express nor implied authority in the Superintendent of Insurance of the District to amend, add to, or alter insurance law by regulations or to apply the drastic provisions of those rules solely to mutual companies. Without such authority, the limit of his power is to make rules consistent with the provisions of the law. Hutchins Mut. Ins. Co. v. Hazen (1939, 105 F. 2d 53, 70 App. D.C. 174).

Regulation

§ 35-1105. Foreign corporation—Requirements before doing business in District.

An insurance company organized under laws other than the laws of the District and desiring to transact business in the District shall satisfy the superintendent that it has, if a capital stock company, a paid-up capital and a surplus of assets, invested in accordance with the laws of the State under which it is organized, over its entire authorized capital and all other liabilities, at least equal to the capital and surplus prescribed under section 35-1103 for the writing of various kinds of insurance; and, if a company without capital stock or an interinsurance exchange, that it has a surplus of assets, invested according to the laws of the State under which it is organized, over all its liabilities, of $100,000; or if a mutual company other than a life insurance company that it has a surplus over liabilities amounting to $100,000, or in lieu thereof a surplus amounting to $10,000 and an additional contingent liability of its policyholders equal to not less than the cash premium expressed in the policies in force; or if a company organized under a foreign Government, Province, or State, that it has a surplus of assets invested according to the laws of the District or of the State in the United States where it has its deposit, held in the United States in trust for the benefit and security of all its policyholders in the United States, over all its liabilities in the United States, of at least $150,000, and, if writing more than one class of insurance as enumerated and allowed under section 35-1103, an additional $75,000 for each such additional kind of insurance written; and such company so organized under the laws of a foreign Government or State shall also either deposit with the superintendent securities of the amount and value of $150,000 (or such larger amount as may be required by this section if the company writes more than one class of insurance) and of the classes in which insurance companies are permitted by this chapter to make investments, or with the official of a State of the United States, authorized by the law of such State to accept such deposit, securities of the amount and value of $150,000 (or such larger amount as may be required by this section if the company writes more than one class of insurance), of the classes in which life insurance companies of such States are permitted to make their investments, and such deposits shall be made for the benefit and security of all the policyholders of such company in the United States, and the company shall file with the superintendent the certificate of such official of any such deposit with such official of any such State. (Mar. 4, 1922, 42 Stat. 404, ch. 93, title 2, § 5.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Admission of foreign and alien companies, see §§ 35-1323 to 35-1327.

§ 35-1106. Reinsurance.

Every insurance or reinsurance company, authorized to transact insurance or reinsurance within the District, may reinsure any part of an individual risk in another company having power to make such reinsurance, and with the consent of the superintendent may reinsure all of its risks, within any class of insurance as enumerated under the several subdivisions of section 35-1103, in another company. But no credit shall be taken for the reserve or unearned premium liability on such reinsurance unless the company accepting the reinsurance is licensed by the superintendent, or unless it is licensed in one or more States in the United States and shows the same standards of solvency as would be required if it were at the time of such reinsurance authorized in the District to insure risks of the same kind as those reinsured.

In case such reinsurance is effected with an insurer so authorized, or so recognized for reinsurance in this District, the ceding insurer shall thereafter be charged on the gross premium basis with an unearned premium liability representing the proportion of each obligation retained by it, and the insurer to which the business is ceded shall be charged with an unearned premium liability representing the proportion of such obligation ceded to it calculated in the same way. The two parties to the transaction shall together carry the same reserve which the ceding insurer would have carried had it retained the risk.

The superintendent shall require schedules of reinsurance to be filed by every insurer at the time of making the annual report and at such other times as he may direct. (Mar. 4, 1922, 42 Stat. 405, ch. 93, title 3, § 6.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Deducting reinsured risks in determining limitation of risks, see § 35-1315.

§ 35-1107. Unearned premium reserve.

With respect to marine insurance risks, the unearned premium shall be found by computing 50 per centum of the amount of premiums received and receivable on unexpired risks on time policies running one year or less from date of policy, and 100 per centum of the amount of premiums on all untermi-nated voyage and transit risks. As a basis for unearned premium reserves, untermi-nated voyage or transit risks shall be deemed to expire within thirty days on the average. Every insurance company shall so compute such unearned premium in its annual and other financial statements. (Mar. 4, 1922, 42 Stat. 405, ch. 93, title 4, § 7.)

§ 35-1108. Taxes—Underwriting profits—Computation of premiums earned on marine insurance contracts.

With the exception of license fees, real estate and personal property taxes, and a tax on investment income derived from funds representing reserves, capital stock and surplus as defined by this chapter, every insurance company organized, admitted, or licensed to transact business within the District shall, with respect to marine insurance written by it within the District, be taxed only on that proportion of the total underwriting profit of the company from marine insurance written within the United States which the net premiums of the company from marine insurance written within the District bear to the total net marine premiums of the company written within the United States. The term "underwriting profit," as used herein, shall be arrived at by deducting from the premiums earned on marine insurance contracts written within the United States during the calendar year (1) the losses incurred and (2) expenses incurred, including all taxes, in connection with such business.

Premiums earned on marine insurance contracts written during the calendar year shall be arrived at as follows:

(1) Gross premiums on marine insurance contracts written during the calendar year, less return premiums and premiums paid for reinsurance.

(2) Add unearned premiums on outstanding marine business at the end of the preceding calendar year.

(3) Deduct unearned premiums on outstanding marine business at the end of the current calendar year.

Losses incurred, as used herein, shall mean gross losses incurred during the calendar year under marine insurance contracts written within the United States, less reinsurance claims collected or collectible and salvages or recoveries collected or collectible from any source applicable to aforesaid losses.

Expenses incurred shall include—

(1) Specific expenses incurred, consisting of all agency commissions, agency expenses, taxes, licenses, fees, loss-adjustment expenses, and all other expenses incurred directly and specifically for the purpose of doing a marine insurance business.

(2) General expenses incurred, consisting of that proportion of general or overhead expenses, such as salaries of officers and employees, printing and stationery, all Federal Government taxes, and all other expenses not chargeable specifically to a particular class of insurance which the net premiums received from marine insurance bear to the total net premiums received by the company from all classes of insurance written during the current calendar year. § 35-1109. Statement for taxation purposes—Computation of tax by Superintendent of Insurance—Statement of taxes to be mailed.

Every company transacting marine insurance in the District shall set forth in its annual statement to the superintendent, and in the form prescribed by him, all the items pertaining to its insurance business as enumerated and prescribed in section 35-1108. To determine the basis of the tax on underwriting profit, every company which has been writing marine insurance for five years shall furnish the superintendent a statement of all of the aforementioned items, in the form prescribed by him, for each of the preceding five calendar years. A company which has not been writing marine insurance for five years shall furnish to the superintendent a statement of all of the aforementioned items for each of the calendar years during which it has written marine insurance.

If the superintendent finds the report of the company reporting correct, he shall, if the company has transacted marine insurance for five years, (1) ascertain the total average annual underwriting profit, as hereinbefore defined, derived by the company from its marine insurance business written within the United States during the last preceding five calendar years, (2) ascertain the proportion which the average net annual premiums of the company from marine insurance written by it in the District during the last preceding five calendar years bear to the average total net marine premiums of the company during the same five years, (3) compute an amount of 5 per centum on this proportion of the aforementioned average annual underwriting profit of the company from marine insurance, and (4) charge the amount of tax thus computed to such company as a tax upon the marine insurance written by it in the District during the current calendar year. Thereafter the superintendent shall each year compute the tax, according to the method described in this section, upon the average annual underwriting profit of such company from marine insurance during the preceding five years, including the current calendar year; namely, at the expiration of each current calendar year, the profit or loss on the marine insurance business of that year is to be added or deducted, and the profit or loss upon the marine insurance business of the first calendar year of the preceding five-year period is to be dropped, so that the computation of underwriting profit for purposes of taxation under this chapter will always be on a five-year average: Provided, however, That a company which has not been writing marine insurance in the District for five years shall, until it has transacted such business in the District for that number of years, be taxed on the basis of the annual average underwriting profit on marine insurance written within the United States during the preceding five years as averaged for all companies reporting to the superintendent for the current calendar year and which have been transacting marine insurance in the District for the past five years: Provided further,

That, if at any time none of the companies reporting to the superintendent shall have written marine insurance in the District for five years, a company which has not been writing marine insurance in the District for five years shall be taxed on the basis of an annual average underwriting profit as averaged for all companies reporting to the superintendent for the number of years during which they have written marine insurance in the District, subject, however, to an adjustment in the tax as soon as the superintendent, in accordance with the provisions of this section, is enabled to compute the tax on the aforementioned five-year basis: And provided further, That in the case of mutual companies the superintendent shall not include in underwriting profit, when computing the tax prescribed by this section, the amounts refunded by such companies on account of premiums previously paid by their policyholders.

When the superintendent has computed the tax on a company's underwriting profit, he shall forthwith mail to the last-known address of the principal office of such company a statement of the amount so charged against it, which amount the company shall pay to the collector of taxes within thirty days after receipt of such notice from the superintendent, and no further tax, except the taxes on investment income from funds representing reserves, capital stock, and surplus as prescribed by sections 35-1110 and 35-1111 and the license fee prescribed by section 35-1113 shall be imposed by the District upon such company, or the agents thereof, for the privilege of transacting the business of marine insurance in the District. (Mar. 4, 1922, 42 Stat. 406, ch. 93, title 5, § 9.)

§ 35-1110. Taxation on earnings on reserves for unpaid loss and unexpired insurance.

In addition to the tax on underwriting profit as prescribed under sections 35-1108, 35-1109, every insurance company transacting business within the District shall, with respect to marine insurance written by it within the District, be taxed annually at the rate of 5 per centum on its average earnings on reserves for unpaid losses and unexpired premiums. The reserve for unpaid losses and unexpired premiums shall be arrived at by adding the unpaid loss and unexpired premium reserves on marine insurance risks, written within the District, at the beginning and end of the calendar year, and striking an average. Should any company not carry its unpaid loss and unexpired premium reserves separately for the District, then the tax provided under this section shall be applied to such proportion of the company's total unpaid loss and unexpired premium reserves as the net premiums of the company from marine insurance written within the District during the calendar year bear to the total net marine premiums of the company. Average earnings on reserves for unpaid losses and unexpired premiums shall be deemed, for the purpose of taxation under this section, to mean not more than 2 per centum of these reserves. (Mar. 4, 1922, 42 Stat. 407, ch. 93, title 5, § 10.)

§ 35-1111. Taxes on investment income from funds representing capital stock and surplus.

In addition to the taxes, as prescribed under sections 35-1108 to 35-1110, every company organized under the laws of the District and transacting marine insurance therein shall, with respect to marine insurance written in the District, pay a tax of 2 per centum on its investment income from funds representing capital stock and surplus as shown by the company's annual statement. Such investment income shall, for purposes of taxation under this chapter, be arrived at as follows: Add the gross assets at the beginning and end of the calendar year and strike an average. Add capital stock and surplus at the beginning and end of the year and strike an average. Ascertain the proportion which the average capital stock and surplus bears to average gross assets. Credit to investment income on capital stock and surplus such proportion of all income, except income taxed under section 35-1110, derived from interest, dividends, rents, and profits on sales or redemption of assets. Charge against investment income on capital stock and surplus such proportion of all losses on sales or redemption of assets.

Should a company subject to this tax be writing other classes of insurance, and the capital stock and surplus referred to herein relate to all the classes of insurance written without being specifically allocated to the several classes of insurance written, then such proportion of the investment income from funds representing capital stock and surplus, computed according to the method prescribed in the preceding paragraph of this section, shall be applicable to marine insurance for purposes of taxation under this section as the net premiums from marine insurance during the calendar year bear to the net premiums of the company from all the classes of insurance written. Any two or more corporations organized under the laws of the District, and transacting the business of marine insurance, may merge or consolidate into one corporation under the name of any title approved by the superintendent, but no mutual corporation or company shall be merged with a stock corporation or company. The corporations may enter into and make an agreement for such merger or consolidation, prescribing its terms and conditions, the amount of its capital, which shall not be larger in amount than the aggregate amount of capital of the merged or consolidated corporations, and the number of shares into which it is to be divided. Such agreement must be assented to by a vote of the majority of the number of directors of each corporation prescribed in its charter and must be approved by the votes of stockholders owning at least two-thirds of the stock of each corporation represented and voted upon in person or by proxy at a meeting, called separately for that purpose, upon a notice stating the time, place, and object of the meeting served at least thirty days previously upon each personally or mailed to him at his last known post-office address, and also published at least once a week for four weeks successively in some newspaper printed in the District. Every such agreement must have the approval of the superintendent before the details of said agreement may be carried into effect as provided therein.

The new corporation may require the return of the original certificates of stock held by each stockholder in each of the corporations to be merged or consolidated and issue in lieu thereof new certificates for such number of shares of its own stock as such stockholder may be entitled to receive. Upon such merger or consolidation all rights and property of the several companies shall become the property of the corporation composed of such companies, and the new corporation shall succeed to all the obligations and liabilities of the old corporations in the same manner as if they had been incurred or contracted by it. The stockholders of the old corporations shall continue subject to all the liabilities, claims, and demands existing against them at or before such merger or consolidation. No action or proceeding pending at the time of the consolidation, in which any or all of the old corporations may be a party, shall abate or discontinue by reason of the merger or consolidation, but the same may be prosecuted to final judgment in the same manner as if the merger or consolidation had not taken place, or the new corporation may be substituted in place of any corporation so merged or consolidated by order of the court in which the action or proceeding may be pending. If such company is required by the foreign nation within which it transacts business to make a deposit in the securities of its own Government, or otherwise, the excess of such deposit over the local reserve liability, computed according to the terms of this chapter, shall be allowed as an asset in the company's home statement. The company shall also be allowed to include in its admitted assets all agents' balances in foreign countries which are collectible and which are not more than one hundred and eighty days past due. (Mar. 4, 1922, 42 Stat. 411, ch. 93, title 8, § 21.)

The capital stock of such insurance corporations may be owned by American corporations engaged in the same kind of insurance, and the holding companies shall be given credit for the stock thus owned as admitted assets when rendering their financial statements to the superintendent. Any corporation organized under this section shall pay taxes and fees as provided under sections 35-1108 to 35-1117 and shall comply with and receive the benefit of this chapter so far as the same may be applicable. (Mar. 4, 1922, 42 Stat. 411, ch. 93, title 8, § 22.)

Engaging in insurance

Statutes regulating business of insurance were not intended for application to all organizations having some element of risk assumption or distribution in their operations. Metropolitan Police Retiring Assn. Inc. v. W. N. Tobriner et al. (1962, 306 F. 2d 775, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

The legislation relating to insurance in District of Columbia is so elaborate that court is not inclined to strain its coverage to include an activity left uncovered by the ordinary meaning of language used. Id.

The absence of a profit motive and facts that Metropolitan Police Retiring Association possesses a representative government and engages in no solicitation of the public, add some though not controlling support to review that its activities are not within scope of statute primarily designed to protect insured vis-a-vis the insurer. Id.

Where Metropolitan Police Retiring Association was incorporated as a charitable organization, membership was limited to members of Metropolitan Police Department, the White House Police, and Park Police, purpose of association was to furnish financial relief to members in case of their retirement from police force, payments upon retirement were principally the amounts of retirees' own contributions with some increment of interest from investments which were required to be approved by majority of board of directors and by majority vote of membership in regular session, association was not engaged in "insurance" and hence was not required to obtain certificate of authority from Superintendent of Insurance. Id.

Labor organization

The 1940 act requiring that all fire, marine and casualty companies doing business in District of Columbia must obtain certificate of authority expressly repealed earlier statute exempting nonprofit relief associations composed of government employees from licensing and regulation, and consequently unincorporated nonprofit labor organization composed exclusively of postal clerks employed by United States Post Office Department must obtain from superintendent of insurance certificate of authority to operate program of health insurance. National Federation of Post Office Clerks etc. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 483).

§ 35-1304. Records of Insurance Department—Power to make rules.

The office of the superintendent shall be a public office, and the records, books, and papers thereof on file therein shall be public records of the District, except as the superintendent for good reason may decide otherwise, or except as it may be provided otherwise herein.

The District of Columbia Council shall have authority to make, and the superintendent shall have the authority to enforce, such reasonable rules and regulations as may be necessary in making effective the provisions of this chapter, but such rules and regulations shall not be contrary to nor inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1066, ch. 792. II, § 1.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER AND COUNCIL

Section 402(277) of Reorg. Plan 3, of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the function of the Board of Commissioners of making rules and regulations necessary in making effective the provisions of this chapter under this section, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of the Plan, set out in the appendix to title 1. Section 401 of the Plan transferred all other functions of the Board of Commissioners under this section to the Commissioner of the District of Columbia.

§ 35-1305. Certificate of authority—Necessity for—Expiration—Requirements.

It shall be the duty of the superintendent to issue a certificate of authority to a company when it shall have complied with the requirements of the laws of the District so as to be entitled to do business therein. The superintendent may, however, satisfy himself by such investigation as he may deem proper or necessary that such company is duly qualified under the laws of the District to transact business therein, and may refuse to issue or renew any such certificate to a company if the issuance or renewal of such certificate would adversely affect the public interest. In each case the certificate shall be issued under the seal of the superintendent authorizing and empowering the company to transact the kind or kinds of business specified in the certificate, and each such certificate shall be made to expire on the 30th day of April next succeeding the date of its issuance. No company shall transact any business in or from the District until it shall have received a certificate of authority as authorized by this section, and no company shall transact any business not specified in such certificate of authority. No domestic mutual company shall transact any business in the District until it has bona fide applications for insurance covering not less than two hundred separate risks in not less than twenty policies to be issued to not less than twenty members, and has received the cash premium therefor, and has a surplus of not less than the amount provided under sections 35-1315, 35-1316. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS

License requirements

Insurer who seeks licenses under the Life Insurance Act and the Fire and Casualty Act bears responsibility of satisfying the more stringent requirement regardless of which statute prescribes it, and if two certificates are issued, each must stand on its own feet. Travelers Insurance Co. v. A. F. Jordan, Dept. of Insurance etc. (1961, 287 F. 2d 347, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

Life Insurance Act of District of Columbia and Fire and Casualty Act do not prohibit issuance of certificate or certificates authorizing a single insurer to do both life and casualty insurance business. Id.

§ 35-1306. Revocation and suspension of certificate of authority—Grounds for—Notice and hearing.

The Superintendent shall have power to revoke or suspend the certificate of authority to transact business in the District of any company which has failed or refused to comply with any provision or requirement of this chapter, or which—

(a) is impaired in capital or surplus;

(b) is insolvent;

(c) is in such a condition that its further transaction of business in the District would be hazardous to its policyholders or creditors, or to the public;

(d) has refused or neglected to pay a valid final judgment against such company within thirty days after such judgment shall have become final either by expiration without appeal within the time when such appeal might have been perfected, or by final affirmance on appeal;

(e) has violated any law of the District or has in the District violated its charter or exceeded its corporate powers;

(f) has refused to submit its books, papers, accounts, records, or affairs to the reasonable inspection or examination of the Superintendent, his deputies, or duly appointed examiners;

(g) has an officer who has refused upon reasonable demand to be examined under oath touching its affairs;

(h) fails to file with the Superintendent a copy of an amendment to its charter or articles of association within thirty days after the effective date of such amendment;

(i) has had its corporate existence dissolved or its certificate of authority revoked in the State in which it was organized;

(j) has had all its risks reinsured in their entirety in another company, without prior approval of the Superintendent; or

(k) has made, issued, circulated, or caused to be issued or circulated any estimate, illustration, circular, or statement of any sort misrepresenting either its status or the terms of any policy issued or to be issued by it, or the benefits or advantages promised thereby, or the dividends or shares of the surplus to be received thereon, or has used any name or title of any policy or class of policies misrepresenting the true nature thereof.

The Superintendent shall not revoke or suspend the certificate of authority of any company until he has given the company not less than thirty days' notice of the proposed revocation or suspension and of the grounds alleged therefor, and has afforded the company an opportunity for a full hearing: Provided, That if the Superintendent shall find upon examination that the further transaction of business by the company would be hazardous to the public or to the policyholders or creditors of the company in the District, he may suspend such authority without giving notice as herein required: Provided further, That in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for causes enumerated in this section after hearing as herein provided, the Superintendent may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 when in his judgment he finds that public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company. The amount of any such penalty shall be paid by the company through the office of the Superintendent to the Collector of Taxes, District of Columbia. At any hearing provided by this section, the Superintendent shall have authority to administer oaths to witnesses. Anyone testifying falsely after having been administered such an oath shall be subject to the penalties of perjury. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1066, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 3; Apr. 22, 1944, 58 Stat. 192, ch. 173, § 1; Feb. 22, 1958, 72 Stat. 21, Pub. L. 85-334, § 4.)

AMENDMENTS

1944—Act April 22, 1944, added the proviso at the end thereof relating to the penalty of a fine in lieu of revocation or suspension.

If a company fails or refuses to make such a report or to pay the tax imposed upon it as required by law, it shall be liable to the District for the amount of such taxes, plus a penalty of 8 per centum per month for each month or part thereof during which such taxes remain unpaid. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1067, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 4.)

§ 35-1308. Receivership—Grounds for—Injunction—Hearing—Liquidation by Superintendent—Title to property—Notice to be recorded in office of recorder of deeds—Appointment and compensation of clerks and special deputies—Expenses—Bond of receiver.

The superintendent may, through the corporation counsel of the District, apply to the court having jurisdiction of civil actions wherein the amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 for a rule directing any company organized under the laws of the District or any company in the course of organization to show why the superintendent should not take possession of its property and conduct its business as the nature of the case and the interests of the policyholders, creditors, stockholders, or the public may require, whenever any such company is—

(a) Insolvent; or

(b) Has neglected or refused to observe a lawful order of the superintendent to make good any deficiency in its capital or surplus; or

(c) Has by contract of reinsurance or otherwise transferred or attempted to transfer substantially its entire property or business, or has entered into any transaction, the effect of which is to merge substantially its entire property or business in the property or business of any other company, without having first obtained the written approval of the superintendent; or

(d) Is found after an examination by the superintendent to be in such condition that its further transaction of business would be hazardous to its policyholders; or

(e) Has violated its charter; or

(f) Is carrying on activities against public policy.

Upon such application, such court may, in its discretion, issue an injunction restraining such company from the transaction of its business or disposition of its property pending further order of the court. On the return of such rule to show cause, the court shall hear, try, and determine the issues forthwith, and shall either deny the application or direct the superintendent to take possession of the property and conduct the business of such company and retain such possession and conduct such business until on the application either of the superintendent, the corporation counsel representing him, or the company, it shall, after a like hearing, appear to the court that the ground for the order directing the superintendent to take possession has been removed, and that the company can properly resume the possession of its property, and the conduct of its business. If on the like application and rule to show cause, and after a hearing, the court shall order the liquidation of the business of such company, such liquidation shall be made by and under the direction of the superintendent, who may deal with the property and business of such company in his own name as superintendent, or in the name of the company, as the court may direct, and shall be vested by operation of law with title to all of the property, contracts, and rights of action of such company as of the date of the order so directing him to liquidate. The filing or recording of such order in the office of the recorder of deeds for the District shall impart the same notice that a deed, bill of sale, or other evidence of title duly filed or recorded by such company would have imparted. For the purpose of this section, the superintendent shall have power to appoint under his hand and official seal one or more special deputy superintendents, and to employ clerks and assistants as may by him be deemed necessary. The fair and reasonable compensation of such special deputies, clerks, and assistants, and all the expenses of taking possession of and conducting the business of any such company shall, subject to the approval of the court, be paid out of the funds or assets of such company. The court may require a corporate surety bond or bonds from the superintendent in such amount as it may deem necessary. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1067, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 5; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 29, 1970; Pub. L. 91-358, § 168(g), title I, 84 Stat. 589.)

The superintendent, his deputy, or any examiner designated by the superintendent, may examine under oath the officers and agents of such company, and all persons deemed to have material information regarding the company's property or business. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS

License requirements

Insurer who seeks licenses under the Life Insurance Act and the Fire and Casualty Act bears responsibility of satisfying the more stringent requirement regardless of which statute prescribes it, and if two certificates are issued, each must stand on its own feet. Travelers Insurance Co. v. A. F. Jordan, Dept. of Insurance etc. (1961, 287 F. 2d 347, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

Life Insurance Act of District of Columbia and Fire and Casualty Act do not prohibit issuance of certificate or certificates authorizing a single insurer to do both life and casualty insurance business. Id.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 35-1317, 35-1326.

Doing business

Activity of insurer, not licensed to do business in the District of Columbia, in issuing policy to resident of district, who entered into contract in district, was sufficient "doing business" to authorize substituted service on Superintendent of Insurance in insured's subsequent action against insurer, and such service was valid. United States Liability Ins. Co. v. A. Handy (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 208).

§ 35-1328. Names of mutual or reciprocal companies—Requirements—Exceptions.

Except as otherwise provided in section 35-1317, no mutual company shall be authorized to transact business in the District unless the name of such company shall include the word "mutual," and no reciprocal or interinsurance exchange shall be authorized to transact business in the District unless the name or designation under which reciprocal or interinsurance contracts are to be exchanged shall include the words "reciprocal" or "interinsurance exchange," or be supplemented by the following words immediately below the name or designation under which such contracts are exchanged: "A reciprocal" or "an interinsurance exchange." (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1076, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 24.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 35-1317.

§ 35-1329. Premiums of mutual companies—Maximum required to be stated—Contingent premiums.

The maximum premium shall be expressed in the policy of a mutual company, and it may be solely a cash premium, or may be a cash premium and an additional contingent premium, which contingent premium shall be not less than the cash premium, but no mutual company, except as otherwise provided in section 35-1317, shall issue any policy for a cash premium without an additional contingent premium until and unless it possesses a surplus of not less than $300,000. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1076, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 25.)

§ 35-1330. Reserves, computation.

In determining the financial condition of companies authorized under this chapter, allowance shall be made for proper and adequate reserves for liabilities, including reserves for—

(a) Unpaid losses and the expenses of the adjustment thereof;

(b) Unearned premiums;

(c) Commissions, taxes, and all other legal obligations, contingent or otherwise, of which the company has knowledge.

The computation of such reserves shall be in accordance with the provisions of the form of annual statement required under section 35-1311, and every authorized company shall maintain such reserves at all times. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1076, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 26.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Computation of unearned premium reserves, see § 35-1107.

§ 35-1331. Policy forms filed with the Superintendent—Power to disapprove.

The superintendent may require that all policy forms used by every authorized company covering risks in the District be filed with the superintendent. The superintendent shall have authority to disapprove the use in the District of any policy form which is inequitable, or does not comply with the requirements of the law of the District. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1076, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 27.)

CROSS REFERENCE

General powers of superintendent, see § 35-1304.

Generally

The Superintendent of Insurance is required to regulate insurance carriers, to see that they maintain adequate reserves, to scrutinize their costs and fix their rates, all policy forms used by fire, liability and marine insurance companies must be filed with him, and he may disapprove use of any form which is inequitable or which does not comply with requirements of law. Bennett v. Amalgamated Cas. Ins. Co. (1953, 200 F. 2d 129, 91 U.S. App. D. C. 279).

The duty of Superintendent of Insurance is to see that form of taxicab liability policies accurately and equitably meet requirements of Public Utilities Commission. Id.

Construction of policies

Words used in automobile insurance policy should be given their common, ordinary, or "popular" meaning, rather than meaning of lexicographers or those skilled in niceties of language. Unkelsbee v. Homestead Fire Ins. Co. of Baltimore (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 168).

The maxim "expressio unius est exclusio alterius" as applied to an automobile insurance policy is an aid to construction of policy and not a rule of law, and is not to be arbitrarily applied. Id.

§ 35-1332. Accident and health policies, required provisions.

The Superintendent may require that the provisions and conditions contained in any policy of insurance against loss or damage from sickness or bodily injury or death of the insured by accident issued by any company authorized by this chapter to transact business in the District be made to conform to the requirements prescribed under section 35-712. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1076, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 28.)

CROSS REFERENCES

Benefits from health and accident insurance are not subject to claims of creditors, see § 35-717.

Minors may contract for health and accident insurance, see § 35-430.

§ 35-1333. Discriminations prohibited.

Discrimination between individual risks of the same class or hazard in the amount of premiums or rates charged for any policy, or in the benefits or amount of insurance payable thereon, or in any of the terms or conditions of such policy, or in any other manner whatsoever, is prohibited, and the superintendent is empowered after investigation to order removed at such time and in such manner as he shall specify any such discrimination which his investigation may reveal. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1077, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 29.)

§ 35-1334. Agents and brokers—Policies to be executed by licensed and authorized agents—All agreements contained in policy—Rebates prohibited—List of agents to be filed—Payment of premium to broker—Soliciting agent may not sign policy—Life, title, and ocean marine agents excepted.

No company authorized to do business in the District shall, by its representatives or otherwise, make, write, issue, or deliver any contract of insurance, surety, or indemnity, except title and ocean marine insurance, on any person, property, business activity, or insurable interest within the District except through regularly constituted policy-writing agents or authorized salaried employees licensed in the District as provided in this chapter.

No such contract covering persons, property, business activities, or insurable interests in the District, except contracts of title and ocean marine insurance, shall be written, issued, or delivered by any authorized company or by any of its representatives unless such contract is duly countersigned in writing by a person who is licensed as provided in this chapter to countersign such contracts, and no salaried officer, manager, or other salaried employee of any authorized company, unless he be licensed as provided in this chapter, shall write, issue, or countersign any such contract.

No company, agent, or salaried company employee shall make any agreement as to a policy other than that which is plainly expressed in the policy issued.

No company, agent, salaried company employee, or broker shall pay or offer to pay or allow as an inducement to any person to insure any rebate of premium or any special favor or advantage whatever in the dividends to accrue thereon, or any inducement whatever not specified in the policy.

Every company authorized by this chapter to do business in the District shall file annually with the Superintendent on or before the fifteenth day of April, and at such other times as they may be appointed, a list of agents and salaried employees of said company who are authorized to solicit, write, effect, issue, or deliver policies for such company in the District, except that the names of soliciting agents may be filed either by the company or by the policy-writing agent.

Any policy-writing agent or salaried company employee authorized by any company to solicit, negotiate, bind, write, or issue policies or applications therefor shall, in any controversy between the insured or his representative and the said company, be held to be the agent of the company which issued or effected the policy solicited or so applied for, anything in the application or policy to the contrary notwithstanding.

Any payment made by or on behalf of the insured to any broker for policies issued to such broker for delivery to the insured or issued directly to the insured on the order of such broker, shall, in controversies between the insured and the company, be deemed to have been paid to the company.

No soliciting agent shall have any authority to countersign any policy. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1077, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 30; Feb. 22, 1958, 72 Stat. 22, Pub. L. 85-334, § 5.)

AMENDMENT

1958—Act Feb. 11, 1958, removed life insurance from the enumerated exceptions to the prohibition against doing business except through regularly constituted policy writing agents or authorized salaried employees, and with the contract countersigned by someone licensed to do so.

Construction

This section providing that "Any policywriting agent or salaried company employee authorized by any company to solicit * * * policies or applications therefor shall * * * be held to be the agent of the company which issued or effected the policy solicited or so applied for, anything in the application or policy to the contrary notwithstanding" does not exclude the possibility of a dual agency relationship; accordingly, since in instant case insurance agency acted both as insurer's agent and as insureds' broker, payment of insurance premium refunds to the agency by the insurer constituted payment to the insureds. Jonathan Woodner Co. et al. v. Aetna Insurance Company (1971, 442 F. 2d 754, 143 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

§ 35-1335. Commissions to unlicensed persons prohibited.

No company, policy-writing agent, soliciting agent, broker, or salaried employee shall pay any money or commission or brokerage or give or allow any valuable consideration to any person for or because of service in the District in negotiating or effecting a policy on any person, property, business activity, or insurable interest in the District, unless said person is duly licensed in conformity with this chapter as a broker or as an agent or salaried employee of the company issuing the policy. This section shall not apply to contracts of reinsurance, and shall not apply to persons and kinds of insurance exempted under section 35-1342. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1077, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 31.)

§ 35-1336. Agents and brokers, license—Form of application—Request by company or agent, form and contents—Bond of brokers—Written examination—Requirements for license—Waiver of examination—Issuance to individuals or firms—License for own business prohibited.

Any person hereafter desiring to engage in business in the District as a policy-writing agent, soliciting agent, broker, or salaried company employee, as defined by this chapter shall, before engaging in such business, secure from the Superintendent a license authorizing him to engage in such business.

The person to whom the license may be issued shall file sworn answers, subject to the penalties of perjury, to such interrogatories as the Superintendent may require. Before the Superintendent shall issue or renew a license to any policywriting agent, soliciting agent, or salaried company employee, he shall require the company or policywriting agent desiring the appointment of such person to certify—

(a) That the person to be appointed, if not a salaried company employee, is a resident of this District, or that his principal office for the conduct of such business is in or will be maintained in the District;

(b) That he is personally known to the person making the certification;

(c) That he has had experience or instructions necessary to the proper conduct of the kind or kinds of business to which the license is to extend;

(d) That he has a good business reputation, is trustworthy, and is worthy of a license.

Resident and nonresident brokers shall, as a prerequisite to the issuance of a license, file with the Superintendent a corporate surety bond in an amount not less than $1,000 for the benefit of any person who may suffer loss resulting from fraud or dishonesty on the part of said resident or nonresident broker. Before the Superintendent shall issue a license to any policy-writing agent, soliciting agent, salaried company employee, or resident broker, who has not previously been licensed under this chapter, he shall personally, or through his deputy or any person regularly employed in the department, within a reasonable time, and in a designated place within the District, subject each such person to a personal written examination relating to such person's knowledge of the kind or kinds of business to which the license may extend and his competency to act as such policy-writing agent, soliciting agent, broker, or salaried company employee. The Superintendent may in his discretion limit the scope of such examination to such particular kind or kinds of business in which the person to be licensed is to be principally engaged. The Superintendent shall issue or renew such license as may be applied for when he is satisfied that the person to be licensed is (a) competent and trustworthy and intends to act in good faith in the capacity involved by the license applied for, and that not more than 25 per centum of his commission income from business to which the license applies will result from policies the premiums on which are paid or are to be paid in the manner set forth in paragraph (f) of section 35-1340 and (b) that he has a good business reputation and has had experience, training, or education, or is otherwise qualified in the line or lines of business in which the license would entitle him to engage, and, except in the case of a nonresident broker or salaried company employee, is a resident of the District, or maintains his principal office for the conduct of such business in the District; and (c) is reasonably familiar with the insurance laws of the District, and with the provisions, terms, and conditions of the policies he is proposing to solicit, negotiate, or effect, and is worthy of a license. In the case of a nonresident applying for a broker's license, the Superintendent may waive the examination requirement and accept in lieu thereof evidence that the applicant holds a license as broker or agent in the State where his principal business is conducted. The Superintendent may also waive the examination requirement in the case of any person who has been licensed in the District prior to the effective date of this chapter. The examination requirement shall be waived in the case of any applicant for a license under this section who holds a license under section 35-425, if the company desiring the appointment of such applicant certifies in writing to the Superintendent that such applicant will solicit only accident and health insurance on its behalf. Licenses may be issued in the names of individuals, or in the names of firms, partnerships, or corporations, including banks, trust companies, real-estate offices, and building and loan associations: Provided, That on such licenses in addition to the name of the applicant, there shall be listed the name of every member or officer of such firm, partnership, or corporation who solicits insurance or who countersigns policies: Provided further, That such named persons as well as the licensee shall be subject to all requirements of this chapter, and that the Superintendent shall have authority at any time to require the applicant fully to disclose the identity of all stockholders, partners, officers, and employees, and he may in his discretion refuse to issue or renew a license in the name of any firm, partnership, or corporation if he is not satisfied that any officer, employee, stockholder, or partner thereof who may materially influence the applicant's conduct, meets the standards of this section applicable to persons applying as individuals. No person shall be licensed as agent, broker, or salaried company employee when it appears to the Superintendent that said license is sought primarily for the purpose of obtaining commissions on policies on which he on his own account pays or is to pay the premiums, or on which the premiums are paid or are to be paid by any person who receives or is to receive any benefit, direct or indirect, from the commissions obtained, or on which the premiums are paid or are to be paid by any partnership, association, or corporation of which he is a member. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1073, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 32; Apr. 22, 1944, 58 Stat. 192, ch. 173, § 3; June 30, 1953, 67 Stat. 120, ch. 168; Feb. 22, 1958, 72 Stat. 23, Pub. L. 85-334, § 6; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 76, Pub. L. 88-57, § 2.)

AMENDMENTS

1963—Act July 8, 1963, amended the second sentence by adding thereto the words "subject to the penalties of perjury".

1958—Act Feb. 22, 1958, substituted "Provided further, That such named persons as well as the licensee shall be subject to all requirements of this chapter, and that the Superintendent shall have authority at any time to require the applicant fully to disclose the identity of all stockholders, partners, officers, and employees, and he may in his discretion refuse to issue or renew a license in the name of any firm, partnership, or corporation if he is not satisfied that any officer, employee, stockholder, or partner thereof who may materially influence the applicant's conduct, meets the standards of this section applicable to persons applying as individuals" for "And provided further, That such named persons shall be subject to all requirements of this chapter, and that no officer or employee of such organizations other than those specifically named in such license shall be required to comply with this section, unless the duties of such officers or employees include soliciting or the countersigning of policies", inserted "who has not previously been licensed under this chapter" following "or resident broker," "in addition to the name of the applicant", following "Provided, That on such licenses", and deleted "on forms furnished by the Superintendent" following "interrogatories as the Superintendent may require", and "Following such examination", preceding "the Superintendent shall issue or renew."

1953—Act June 30, 1953, inserted immediately after "prior to the effective date of this chapter" the following: "The examination requirement shall be waived in the case of any applicant for a license under this section who holds a license under section 26 of the Life Insurance Act (§ 35-425), if the company desiring the appointment of such applicant certifies in writing to the Superintendent that such applicant will solicit only accident and health insurance on its behalf."

1944—Act Apr. 22, 1944, substituted "$1,000" for "$5,000."

EFFECTIVE DATE

Chapter effective 30 days after Oct. 9, 1940, see section 48 of act Oct 9, 1940, set out as a note under section 35-1301.

OFFICE OR AGENCY ABOLISHED BY REORGANIZATION PLAN NUMBER 5 OF 1952

References in act Feb. 22, 1958, to any office or agency abolished by Reorg. Plan No. 5 of 1952 are deemed to refer to the Commissioners of the District, or to any office, officer or agency designated by them, see note under § 35-404.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 35-1339, 35-1345.

Building and loan associations

This chapter specifically authorizes building and loan associations to be licensed and to act as insurance agents and brokers. L. S. Goodman et al. v. Perpetual Building Association et al. (1970, 320 F. Supp. 20).

Building and loan association would not be "primarily" obtaining license for purpose of obtaining commissions on policies on which it is paying premiums or on which premiums are paid by person who receives any benefit direct or indirect from commission, since any benefits to individual members of association, who paid insurance premiums on hazard insurance used to protect association's security, was so remote as to be inconsequential and since the Superintendent of Insurance had, in its license application form, interpreted primary to be 25 percent. Id.

Construction

Interpretation of statute by agency charged with administering it is entitled to great weight. L. S. Goodman et al. v. Perpetual Building Association et al. (1970, 320 F. Supp. 20).

District of Columbia statutes governing organization and powers of building and loan association, object of Home Loan Bank Board, objects of building and loan association and licensing of agents and brokers for hazard insurance do not preclude building and loan association from obtaining license for and conducting business of, insurance agent or broker with respect to insurance on property securing loans, as incident to its primary business. Id.

Change in language of this section from, "no person, firm, or corporation shall act * * *", to "licenses may be issued in the name of individuals, or in the name of firms, partnerships, or corporations including * * * building and loan associations * * *" was merely in clarification of previous ambiguous language and did not constitute change in law to include building and loan associations. Id.

This section authorizes the Superintendent of Insurance to issue a license in name of building and loan association, notwithstanding proviso that no person shall be licensed when it appears that license is sought primarily for purpose of obtaining commissions on which he is to pay premium because of indirect benefit to members of association by virtue of increase of association's income. Id.

This section, providing that no person shall be licensed when it appears that license is sought primarily for purpose of obtaining commission on which he is to pay premiums, does not preclude issuing license in all instances when the license is sought to obtain commissions on policies on which premiums are paid or to be paid by person who receives direct or indirect benefit, but only when such license is primarily sought for restrictive purpose. Id.

Powers of superintendent of insurance

However desirable it might be for superintendent of insurance for the District of Columbia to be empowered to act at all times in public interest in insurance field, neither superintendent nor courts could supply powers which Congress had never conferred. Atlantic Insurance Agency, Inc. v. Jordan, Superintendent of Insurance (1956, 229 F. 2d 758, 97 U. S. App. D. C. 184).

Insurance superintendent is not authorized to deny renewal of license as insurance broker in District of Columbia to corporation which in every respect has originally been found by him to be qualified under, and to have complied with, statutes, even though it later develops that an ownership interest in corporation has been acquired by person deemed by superintendent to be untrustworthy. Id.

Purpose

Purpose of District of Columbia statutes governing licensing of fire and casualty agents and providing that no person shall be licensed when it appears that license is primarily sought for purpose of obtaining commissions on policies on which he is to pay premiums or premiums are to be paid by person who receives direct or indirect benefit from commissions is to outlaw rebates, not to exclude building and loan associations from obtaining licenses and collecting commissions on insurance covering property securing association's loans. L. S. Goodman et al. v. Perpetual Building Association et al. (1970, 320 F. Supp. 20).

Qualification of corporate broker

To extent that corporation is to act as insurance broker in District of Columbia, it is not the corporate entity but its personnel actually performing functions of broker that are to be examined, and if license is to be issued to corporation, names of individual, competent qualified personnel must appear thereon. Atlantic Insurance Agency, Inc. v. Jordan, Superintendent of Insurance (1956, 229 F. 2d 758, 97 U. S. App. D. C. 184).

Renewal of license

District of Columbia Insurance Commissioner's authority to refuse to renew insurance broker's license and considerations to govern his action with regard to renewal are not the same, and are not to be exercised for the same reasons, as his authority to deny original application. Atlantic Insurance Agency, Inc. v. Jordan, Superintendent of Insurance (1956, 229 F. 2d 758, 97 U. S. App. D. C. 184).

If license as insurance broker in District of Columbia is to be issued to corporation, superintendent, when passing upon original application, must satisfy himself that corporation is trustworthy, taking into account such factors as its financial solvency, its standing with tax authorities, its relationship with insurance companies it will represent, their standing to do business in district, and similar criteria upon which his judgment may be based; but once superintendent has found corporation trustworthy and has issued license, presumption of trustworthiness continues, though license renewal application will be subject to conditions of § 35-1339 specifying when renewal may be denied. Id.

§ 35-1337. Effective dates of licenses and proration of fees.

All licenses issued under this chapter shall date from the first of the month in which the application for license is made, and shall expire on the 30th day of April next succeeding, and payment of the fees for such licenses shall be prorated accordingly. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1079, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 33.)

CROSS REFERENCE

License fees, see § 35-1345.

§ 35-1338. Temporary transfer of licenses—Renewal.

In the event of the death or disability of any person licensed as a policy-writing agent, soliciting agent, or salaried company employee, the Superintendent may transfer such license to another person without the payment of an additional fee, and may renew such license: Provided, however, That no person shall act as policy-writing agent, soliciting agent, or salaried company employee under any transferred license or renewal thereof for a period in excess of six consecutive months. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1079, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 34.)

§ 35-1339. Renewal of licenses—Written notice of refusal to renew—Hearing—Application to court for leave to continue business pending appeal.

Upon application for renewal of an expiring license and the payment of the applicable fee prescribed in section 35-1345, the Superintendent shall issue the license applied for when he is satisfied that the applicant therefor meets the conditions set forth in sections 35-1336 and 35-1340. Before the Superintendent shall refuse to renew any such license he shall give to the applicant an opportunity to be fully heard and to introduce evidence in his behalf. If the Superintendent shall refuse to renew any such license he shall give the applicant written notice thereof and he shall not, for a period of ten days from the date of that notice, take any action to stop the applicant from continuing in business, within which period the applicant may apply to any court as provided in section 35-1349, for leave, in the discretion of the court, to continue in business until an appeal from such refusal is decided.

Any applicant who, in connection with such application for renewal of an expiring license, willfully files with or otherwise submits to the Superintendent, orally or in writing, any material statement under oath, knowing such statement to be false, shall, in addition to any other penalty prescribed by law, be guilty of perjury and subject to the penalties thereof. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1079, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 35; Feb. 22, 1958, 72 Stat. 25, Pub. L. 85-334, § 7; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 76, Pub. L. 88-57, § 3.)

AMENDMENTS

1963—Act July 8, 1963, amended the section by adding the last sentence.

1958—Act Feb. 22, 1958, provided for a hearing, and for a ten-day written notice before any action is taken to stop the applicant from continuing in business during which time he may seek leave of court to continue in business until an appeal from such refusal is decided.

OFFICE OR AGENCY ABOLISHED BY REORGANIZATION PLAN NUMBER 5 OF 1952

References in act Feb. 22, 1958, to any office or agency abolished by Reorg. Plan No. 5 of 1952 are deemed to refer to the Commissioners of the District, or to any office, officer or agency designated by them, see note under § 35-404.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 35-1365.

License requirements

Insurer who seeks licenses under the Life Insurance Act and the Fire and Casualty Act bears responsibility of satisfying the more stringent requirement regardless of which statute prescribes it, and if two certificates are issued, each must stand on its own feet. Travelers Insurance Co. v. A. F. Jordan, Dept. of Insurance etc. (1961, 287 F. 2d 347, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 308).

Life Insurance Act of District of Columbia and Fire and Casualty Act do not prohibit issuance of certificate or certificates authorizing a single insurer to do both life and casualty insurance business. Id.

Misrepresentation

Where evidence amply supported finding that policy-writing agent for insurance company violated insurance laws by failing to furnish policies or comparable evidence of insurance to which insured persons were entitled and that agent represented that it had authority to solicit and procure policies of insurance when it had no license to do so, refusal of Superintendent of Insurance to renew agent's license was proper. Columbia Auto Loan v. Jordan (1952, 196 F. 2d 568, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 222).

Powers of superintendent of insurance

However desirable it might be for superintendent of insurance for the District of Columbia to be empowered to act at all times in public interest in insurance field, neither superintendent nor courts could supply powers which Congress had never conferred. Atlantic Insurance Agency, Inc., v. Jordan, Superintendent of Insurance (1956, 229 F. 2d 758, 97 U. S. App. D. C. 184).

If license as insurance broker in District of Columbia is to be issued to corporation, superintendent, when passing upon original application, must satisfy himself that corporation is trustworthy, taking into account such factors as its financial solvency, its standing with tax authorities, its relationship with insurance companies it will represent, their standing to do business in district, and similar criteria upon which his judgment may be based; but once superintendent has found corporation trustworthy and has issued license, presumption of trustworthiness continues, though license renewal application will be subject to conditions of this section specifying when renewal may be denied. Id.

Qualification of corporate broker

To extent that corporation is to act as insurance broker in District of Columbia, it is not the corporate entity but its personnel actually performing functions of broker that are to be examined, and if license is to be issued to corporation, names of individual, competent qualified personnel must appear thereon. Atlantic Insurance Agency, Inc., v. Jordan, Superintendent of Insurance (1956, 229 F. 2d 758, 97 U. S. App. D. C. 184).

Insurance superintendent is not authorized to deny renewal of license as insurance broker in District of Columbia to corporation which in every respect has originally been found by him to be qualified under, and to have complied with, statutes, even though it later develops that an ownership interest in corporation has been acquired by person deemed by superintendent to be untrustworthy. Id.

District of Columbia Insurance Commissioner's authority to refuse to renew insurance broker's license and considerations to govern his action with regard to renewal are not the same, and are not to be exercised for the same reasons, as his authority to deny original application. Id.

Trial de novo

Where Superintendent of Insurance of the District of Columbia refused to renew license of policy-writing agent for an insurance company, and agent, in bringing suit in federal district court to review the action of the Superintendent chose to frame his complaint broadly and seek the fullest measure of relief, court did not err in conducting a de novo trial which explored grounds beyond those on which the Superintendent rested his refusal to renew. Columbia Auto Loan v. Jordan (1952, 196 F. 2d 568, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 222).

Due process of law did not entitle policy-writing agent to a formal hearing before Superintendent of Insurance of the District of Columbia when Superintendent refused to renew agent's license, in view of the fact that administrative action could be challenged in federal court in any or every respect in which the order might be invalid, and in view of the fact that agent had right to de novo hearing to explore evidence on which Superintendent acted, and reasons and calculations on which he reached his conclusions. Id.

§ 35-1340. Revocation and suspension of licenses— Grounds for—Notice and hearing—Evidence.

The Superintendent may revoke or suspend the license of any policy-writing agent, soliciting agent, broker, or salaried company employee when and if, after investigation, it appears to the Superintendent that any license issued to such person was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation, or that such person has otherwise shown himself untrustworthy or incompetent to act in any of the foregoing capacities, or that such person has—

(a) violated any of the provisions of the insurance laws of the District; or

(b) has failed within a reasonable time to remit to any company all moneys which he has collected, and to which the company is entitled; or

(c) has been guilty of rebating or has misrepresented the provisions of the policies which he is selling, or the policies of other companies;

(d) has countersigned policies in blank; or that

(e) more than 25 per centum of his commission income from business to which the license applies results from policies the premiums on which are paid or are to be paid in the manner set forth in paragraph (f) of this section; or that

(f) said license is being used primarily for the purpose of obtaining commissions on policies on which he, on his own account, pays or is to pay the premiums, or on which the premiums are paid or are to be paid by any person who receives or is to receive any benefit, direct or indirect, from the commissions obtained, or on which the premiums are paid or are to be paid by any partnership, association, or corporation of which he is a member.

Before the Superintendent shall revoke or suspend the license of any such person he shall give to such person an opportunity to be fully heard, and to introduce evidence in his behalf: Provided, That in lieu of revoking or suspending the license of any policy-writing agent, soliciting agent, broker, or salaried company employee for causes enumerated in this section after hearing as herein provided, the Superintendent may subject such person to a penalty of not more than $200 when in his judgment he finds that public interest would be best served by the continued operation of such person. The amount of any such penalty shall be paid by such person through the office of the Superintendent to the Collector of Taxes, District of Columbia. At any hearing provided by this section, the Superintendent shall have authority to administer oaths to witnesses. Anyone testifying falsely after having been administered such an oath shall be subject to the penalties of perjury. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1079, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 36; Apr. 22, 1944, 58 Stat. 192, ch. 173, § 2; Feb. 22, 1958, 72 Stat. 25, Pub. L. 85-334, § 8.)

AMENDMENTS

(a), authorized the Superintendent to administer oaths to witnesses, and provided that false testimony after such oath shall be subject to the penalties of perjury.

1944—Act Apr. 22, 1944, added the proviso to last paragraph relating to the imposition of an alternate penalty of a fine.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Defenses

Accused charged with soliciting insurance for company unauthorized to do business in District of Columbia could not defend on ground that company had been granted permits to do business where such permits were not perpetual. Stover v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 32 A. 2d 536).

Evidence

In prosecution for soliciting insurance for company unauthorized to do business in District of Columbia, evidence which had a direct bearing on solicitation was properly admitted. Stover v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 32 A. 2d 536).

In prosecution for soliciting insurance for company unauthorized to do business in District of Columbia, evidence that company once had permit to do business as a fraternal organization was properly excluded as immaterial in view of inclusion of fraternal organizations in section 35-1342 on which prosecution was based. Id.

Instructions

In prosecution for soliciting insurance for company unauthorized to do business in District of Columbia, instruction to acquit if accused did not personally solicit was properly refused, since Congress never intended that liability should be limited to those who personally solicit. Stover v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 32 A. 2d 536).

Prosecution, pending proceedings as bar

The trial judge properly refused to continue prosecution for soliciting insurance business for an unauthorized company, pending trial of suit by company to enjoin officials from interfering with its business. Stover v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 32 A. 2d 536).

Each agent or broker so licensed shall pay to the collector of taxes, through the superintendent, on February 1 and August 1 of each year, a sum equal to 2 per centum of the amount of the gross premiums upon all kinds of policies procured by him during the immediately preceding six months' period ending December 31 and June 30, respectively, and, in default of such payment, the superintendent, through the corporation counsel, may bring suit to recover the same. Each agent or broker so licensed to procure policies from unauthorized companies shall keep a separate account of the business transacted thereunder, which shall be open at all times to the inspection of the superintendent. The license provided for in this section may be revoked or renewal thereof refused for failure to pay the tax or to file the affidavit specified herein, or if the agent or broker procured policies from unauthorized companies without exercising diligent effort to secure the required business in duly authorized companies, or if the agent or broker procured policies from unauthorized companies whose standards of solvency and management do not meet the requirements necessary for the protection of the policyholders, or if the agent or broker has placed with any unauthorized company any risk which could be placed with an authorized company except for abnormal provisions of the policy, or if the agent or broker has procured from an unauthorized company any policy which covers a risk of a class generally covered in the District by authorized companies and which authorized companies would cover at a rate not higher than that charged by authorized companies on other District risks of the same class. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1080, ch. 972, Ch. II, § 40; Apr. 22, 1944, 58 Stat. 192, ch. 173, § 4.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Hearing

Due process of law did not entitle policy-writing agent to a formal hearing before Superintendent of Insurance of the District of Columbia when Superintendent refused to renew agent's license, in view of the fact that administrative action could be challenged in federal court in any or every respect in which the order might be invalid, and in view of the fact that agent had right to de novo hearing to explore evidence on which Superintendent acted, and reasons and calculations on which he reached his conclusions. Columbia Auto Loan v. Jordan (1952, 196 F. 2d 568, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 222).

Insurer has right of appeal

§ 35-1350. Separability of provisions.

Should any section or provision of this chapter be held unconstitutional or invalid, the validity of the chapter as a whole, or of any part thereof, other than the part decided to be unconstitutional or invalid, shall not be affected. (Oct. 9, 1940, 54 Stat. 1083, ch. 792, Ch. II, § 47.)

§ 35-1364. Action by Superintendent on application.

(a) Upon the filing of an application and the payment of the license fee the Superintendent shall make an investigation of each applicant and shall issue a license if the applicant is qualified in accordance with this subchapter. If the Superintendent does not so find, he shall, within thirty days after he has received such application, at the request of the applicant, give the applicant a full hearing.

(b) The Superintendent shall issue or renew a license as may be applied for when he is satisfied that the person to be licensed—

(1) is competent and trustworthy and intends to act in good faith in the capacity involved by the license applied for,

(2) has a good business reputation and has had experience, training, or education so as to be qualified in the business for which the license is applied for, and

(3) if a corporation, is a corporation incorporated under the laws of the District or a foreign corporation authorized to transact business in the District.

(Oct. 9, 1940, ch. 792, Ch. III, § 54, as added Apr. 18, 1966, 80 Stat. 126, Pub. L. 89-403, § 1.)

§ 35-1365. Revocation and suspension of licenses.

(a) The Superintendent may revoke or suspend the license of any premium finance company when and if after investigation it appears to the Superintendent that—

(1) any license issued to such company was obtained by fraud,

(2) there was any misrepresentation in the application for the license,

(3) the holder of such license has otherwise shown himself untrustworthy or incompetent to act as a premium finance company,

(4) such company has violated any of the provisions of this subchapter, or

(5) such company has been rebating part of the service charge as allowed and permitted herein to any insurance agent or any employee of an insurance agent or to any other person as an inducement to the financing of any insurance policy with the premium finance company.

(b) Before the Superintendent shall revoke, suspend, or refuse to renew the license of any premium finance company, he shall give to such person an opportunity to be fully heard and to introduce evidence in his behalf. In lieu of revoking or suspending the license for any of the causes enumerated in this section, after hearing as herein provided, the Superintendent may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each offense when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would not be harmed by the continued operation of such company. The amount of any such penalty shall be paid by such company through the office of the Superintendent to the District of Columbia Treasurer. At any hearing provided by this section, the Superintendent shall have authority to administer oaths to witnesses. Anyone testifying falsely, after having been administered such oath, shall be subject to the penalty of perjury.

(c) If the Superintendent refuses to issue or renew any license or if any applicant or licensee is aggrieved by any action of the Superintendent, said applicant or licensee shall have the right to a hearing and court proceeding as provided for in sections 35-1339, 35-1348, and 35-1349. (Oct. 9, 1940, ch. 792, Ch. III, § 55, as added Apr. 18, 1966, 80 Stat. 126, Pub. L. 89-403, § 1.)

(3) set forth the following items where applicable:

(A) the total amount of the premiums,

(B) the amount of the downpayment,

(C) the principal balance (the difference between items (A) and (B)),

(D) the amount of the service charge,

(E) the balance payable by the insured (sum of items (C) and (D)), and

(F) the number of installments required, the amount of each installment expressed in dollars, and the due date or period thereof.

(b) The items set out in clause (3) of subsection (a) of this section need not be stated in the sequence or order in which they appear in such clause, and additional items may be included to explain the computations made in determining the amount to be paid by the insured. (Oct. 9, 1940, ch. 792, Ch. III, § 58, as added Apr. 18, 1966, 80 Stat. 126, Pub. L. 89-403, § 1.)

§ 35-1369. Maximum service charge.

(a) A premium finance company shall not charge, contract for, receive, or collect a service charge other than as permitted by this subchapter.

(b) The service charge is to be computed on the balance of the premiums due (after subtracting the downpayment made by the insured in accordance with the premium finance agreement) from the effective date of the insurance coverage, for which the premiums are being advanced, to and including the date when the final installment of the premium finance agreement is payable.

(c) The service charge shall be a maximum of $6 per $100 per year plus an additional charge of $10 per premium finance contract which need not be refunded upon cancellation or prepayment. (Oct. 9, 1940, ch. 792, Ch. III, § 59, as added Apr. 18, 1966, 80 Stat. 126, Pub. L. 89-403, § 1.)

(Oct. 9, 1940, ch. 792, Ch. III, § 60, as added Apr. 18, 1966, 80 Stat. 126, Pub. L. 89-403 § 1.)

§ 35-1371. Cancellation of insurance contract upon default.

(a) When a premium finance agreement contains a power of attorney enabling the premium finance company to cancel any insurance contract or contracts listed in the agreement, the insurance contract or contracts shall not be canceled by the premium finance company unless such cancellation is effectuated in accordance with this section.

(b) Not less than ten days' written notice shall be mailed to the insured of the intent of the premium finance company to cancel the insurance contract unless the default is cured within such ten-day period.

(c) After expiration of such ten-day period, the premium finance company may thereafter request in the name of the insured, cancellation of such insurance contract or contracts by mailing to the insurer a notice of cancellation, and the insurance contract shall be canceled as if such notice of cancellation had been submitted by the insured himself, but without requiring the return of the insurance contract or contracts. The premium finance company shall also mail a notice of cancellation to the insured at his last known address.

(d) All statutory, regulatory, and contractual restrictions providing that the insurance contract may not be canceled unless notice is given to a governmental agency, mortgagee, or other third party shall apply where cancellation is effected under the provisions of this section. The insurer shall give the prescribed notice in behalf of itself or the insured to any governmental agency, mortgagee, or other third party on or before the second business day after the day it receives the notice of cancellation from the premium finance company and shall determine the effective date of cancellation taking into consideration the number of days notice required to complete the cancellation.

(e) Whenever an insurance contract is cancelled in accordance with this section, the insurer shall return whatever gross unearned premiums are due under the insurance contract to the premium finance company effecting the cancellation for the account of the insured or insureds.

(f) In the event that the crediting of return premiums to the account of the insured results in a surplus over the amount due from the insured, the premium finance company shall refund such excess to the insured provided that no such refund shall be required if it amounts to less than $1. (Oct. 9, 1940, ch. 792, Ch. III, § 61, as added Apr. 18, 1966, 80 Stat. 126, Pub. L. 89-403, § 1.)

CHAPTER REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This chapter is referred to in section 35-1502.

§ 35-1401. Definitions.

In this chapter, unless the context otherwise requires—

“District” means the District of Columbia;

“Superintendent” means the superintendent of insurance of the District of Columbia;

“Company” means any insurer, whether stock, mutual, reciprocal, interinsurer, Lloyd's, or any other form or group of insurers;

“Agent” means and shall include any individual, co-partnership, or corporation acting in the capacity of or licensed as a "policy-writing agent", "soliciting agent", or "salaried company employee", as defined under section 35-1303; and

"Broker" means any person who for a consideration acts or aids in any manner in the solicitation or negotiation on behalf of the assured of contracts of insurance. (June 1, 1944, 58 Stat. 267, ch. 224, § 1.)

REPEAL OF INCONSISTENT PROVISIONS

Section 10 of act June 1, 1944, provided that: "All laws or parts of laws, insofar as they relate to business affected hereby and in conflict with any of the provisions of this Act [§§ 35-1401 to 35-1409], are hereby repealed."

SEPARABILITY OF PROVISIONS

Section 11 of act June 1, 1944, provided that: "Should any section or provision of this Act [§§ 35-1401 to 35-1409] be decided by the courts to be unconstitutional or invalid, the validity of the Act as a whole, or of any part thereof, other than the part decided to be unconstitutional, shall not be affected."

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

See note under § 35-101.

§ 35-1402. Rates included in and excluded from regulation.

The provisions of this chapter shall apply to insurance in the District of Columbia against loss of or damage to property or any valuable interest therein by or as a consequence of fire, lightning, tornado, windstorm, and explosion, or any one or more of such hazards, including all supplemental, additional, or extended forms of coverage written in connection with fire insurance, and including any policy which insures property, while it is at a permanent location, against the hazard of fire, lightning, tornado, windstorm, or explosion; but this chapter shall not apply to ocean marine, transportation, boiler and machinery, or motor-vehicle insurance, nor to insurance covering the property of interstate common carriers, nor to any form of insurance designated by the Superintendent as inland marine insurance. (June 1, 1944, 58 Stat. 267, ch. 224, § 2.)

§ 35-1403. Adjustment of rates—Powers and duties of Superintendent—Removal of discriminations—Appeal from Superintendent's rulings.

The Superintendent is empowered to investigate the necessity for an adjustment of the rates on any or all risks or classes of risks within the scope of this chapter, and to order an adjustment of such rates whenever he determines, after investigation of the experience showing premiums and losses for a period of not less than five years next preceding such investigation, that the rates for any one or more classes of risks are excessive, inadequate, or unreasonable. In determining the necessity for an adjustment of rates, the Superintendent shall give consideration to all factors reasonably attributable to the risks, to the conflagration or catastrophe hazard, both within and without the District, and to a reasonable profit. The Superintendent is also empowered, after investigation, to order removed, at such time and in such manner as he shall specify, any unfair discrimination existing between individual risks or classes of risks.

Any person, firm, or corporation aggrieved by any order, ruling, proceeding, or action of the Superintendent, or any person acting in his behalf and at his instance, may appeal to the Commissioner of the District, or contest the validity of such order, ruling, proceeding, or action in any court of competent jurisdiction by appeal or through any other appropriate proceedings, as provided under sections 35-1348 and 35-1349. (June 1, 1944, 58 Stat. 267, ch. 224, § 3.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan and § 35-101.

CROSS REFERENCES

Administrative procedure, see § 1-1501 et seq.

Judicial review, see §§ 1-1510, 11-722.

Appropriate proceedings

Under this section providing that any person aggrieved may contest validity of superintendent's order fixing insurance rates in any court of competent jurisdiction by appeal or through any other "appropriate proceeding", a civil action for injunction is an appropriate proceeding. Jordan v. American Eagle Fire Ins. Co. (1948, 169 F. 2d 281, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Contest validity

Under this section providing that any person aggrieved may "contest validity" of superintendent's order fixing insurance rates in any court of competent jurisdiction by appeal or through any other appropriate proceedings, the quoted clause means to test validity in every or any respect in which order might be invalid and includes right to present evidence and to explore evidence on which superintendent acted and the reasons and calculations upon which he reached his conclusions. Jordan v. American Eagle Fire Ins. Co. (1948, 169 F. 2d 281, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Under this section requiring that insurance superintendent must find that existing insurance rates are excessive, inadequate, or unreasonable before adjusting rates and that he must give consideration to all factors reasonably attributable to conflagration or catastrophe hazards, and to reasonable profit and permitting aggrieved person to contest order in any court of competent jurisdiction, the superintendent's findings as to such factors can be tested. Id.

Due process

Where insurance companies had right under this section to file bill in equity court, to seek therein an injunction of enforcement of order fixing insurance rates and as a necessary incident to such procedure to have, upon proper preliminary showing, a stay of enforcement of order pendente lite, to participate in trial de novo on issue of validity of order and to have court decide that issue, if such statutory rights were satisfied, the insurance companies could not claim procedural contravention of the due process clause. Jordan v. American Eagle Fire Ins. Co. (1948, 169 F. 2d 281, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Function of district court

Under this section authorizing any person aggrieved by insurance superintendent's rate order to contest validity of order in any court of competent jurisdiction, function of District Court is not that of a federal court acting on a state-made order, but is one of the functions which it possesses as local court of general jurisdiction. Jordan v. American Eagle Fire Ins. Co. (1948, 169 F. 2d 281, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

The congressional plan for determination of local insurance rates in District of Columbia can include the District Court as part of the procedure. Id.

Hearings

This section authorizing insurance superintendent to adjust insurance rates whenever he determines after "investigation" that rates are excessive, inadequate, or unreasonable, does not require that a quasi-judicial hearing be conducted. Jordan v. American Eagle Fire Ins. Co. (1948, 169 F. 2d 281, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Even if requirement of this section that there be an investigation before establishment of insurance rates by superintendent could not be satisfied in absence of hearing, such requirement as an element of investigation, without more, was satisfied by hearing at which insurance companies were given an opportunity to state and support their objections to report and rate order, already issued. Id.

This section providing that any person aggrieved by insurance superintendent's order adjusting rates may contest validity of order in any court of competent jurisdiction gives complete right to full hearing de novo upon which court will determine validity of order in all respects in which it is contested, and, therefore, mere lack of quasi-judicial hearing before superintendent is not fatal. Id.

Insurer has right of appeal

Insurer could appeal from action of Superintendent of Insurance of District of Columbia in approving applications of other insurers for deviation in fire and extended coverage rates. National Capital Ins. Co. et al. v. Jordan, Sup't of Ins. et al. (D.C.D.C. 1956, 148 F. Supp. 317).

Person aggrieved

Fire insurer had standing to sue, as a "person aggrieved", the Superintendent of Insurance of the District of Columbia and other fire insurers to contest validity of superintendent's approval of other insurers' application for downward deviation in fire and extended coverage rates. National Capital Ins. Co. et al. v. Jordan, Sup't of Ins. et al. (D.C.D.C. 1956, 148 F. Supp. 317).

Remand

In action to enjoin enforcement of insurance superintendent's order fixing insurance rates, where trial court in opinion stated that court reached conclusion that insurance companies had not sustained their contention that rates fixed by superintendent were confiscatory but findings of fact and conclusions of law were silent on that issue, the trial court had not determined such issue, so that, where trial court was in error in view on which it rested judgment, that order was invalid, case would be remanded in order that complete determination of issues might be made. Jordan v. American Eagle Fire Ins. Co. (1948, 169 F. 2d 281, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Standing to sue doctrine

Statutory right to sue, which is based upon this section authorizing person aggrieved by action of Superintendent of Insurance of District of Columbia to appeal to District Commissioners or contest the validity of such action by appeal or other appropriate proceeding in a court of competent jurisdiction, enlarges the "standing-to-sue doctrine," which forbids suits by parties who are merely taxpayers, who are interested in obtaining government contracts, desirous of preventing competition caused by government activity, etc. National Capital Ins. Co. et al. v. Jordan, Sup't of Ins. et al. (D.C.D.C. 1956, 148 F. Supp. 317).

§ 35-1404. Organization of rating bureau—Membership—Powers and duties—Apportionment of expenses.

Within one hundred and twenty days after June 1, 1944, and under the supervision of the Superintendent, the insurance companies authorized to effect insurance in the District against the risk of loss or damage by hazards within the scope of this chapter shall organize a rating bureau for the purpose of administering rates for such insurance, and all such companies now or hereafter authorized to transact such business in the District shall be members of such bureau. The government of the rating bureau shall be vested in its members and it shall not be subject to the direction or control of any other bureau, association, corporation, company, individual, or group of individuals. The rating bureau shall have power to establish reasonable agreements and bylaws for its governance, and shall be permitted to adopt reasonable rules and regulations necessary to carry out its functions, but such agreements, bylaws, rules, and regulations shall not be inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter, and the same and amendments thereto shall be approved by the District of Columbia Council before becoming effective. The rating bureau, subject to the approval of the Superintendent, shall apportion the expenses of its operation among its members in proportion to the premium income on risks in the District. (June 1, 1944, 58 Stat. 268, ch. 224, § 4.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNCIL

Section 402(278) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the function of the Board of Commissioners of approving agreements and bylaws established by the rating bureau for its governance, approving rules and regulations adopted by the rating bureau to carry out its functions, and approving amendments to such agreements, bylaws, rules, and regulations under this section, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of the Plan, set out in the appendix to title 1.

§ 35-1405. Standard provisions required in policies—Deviations—Duration of deviation—Rate in excess of standard.

No company, agent, or broker shall issue or deliver, or offer to issue or deliver, or knowingly permit the issuance or delivery of, any policy of insurance in the District which does not conform to the requirements approved by the Superintendent: Provided, however, That a company may deviate from such requirements if the company has filed with the rating bureau and with the Superintendent the deviation to be applied, and provided such deviation is approved by the Superintendent. If approved, the deviation shall remain in force for a period of one year from the date of approval by the Superintendent, unless such approval is withdrawn by the Superintendent for cause after notice to the insurer, or withdrawn by the insurer with the approval of the Superintendent.

It is further provided that a rate in excess of that promulgated by the rating bureau may be charged, provided such higher rate is charged with the knowledge and written consent of the insured and the Superintendent. (June 1, 1944, 58 Stat. 268, ch. 224, § 5.)

Deviation

Insurer could appeal from action of Superintendent of Insurance of District of Columbia in approving applications of other insurers for deviation in fire and extended coverage rates. National Capital Ins. Co. et al. v. Jordan, Sup't of Ins. et al. (D.C.D.C. 1956, 148 F. Supp. 317).

Fire insurer had standing to sue, as a "person aggrieved", the Superintendent of Insurance of the District of Columbia and other fire insurers to contest validity of superintendent's approval of other insurers' application for downward deviation in fire and extended coverage rates. Id.

§ 35-1406. Rating bureau records—Agency records.

The rating bureau shall keep a record of all rates, schedules, and proceedings. Every agent shall keep a record of every policy contract issued by or through his agency. (June 1, 1944, 58 Stat. 268, ch. 224, § 6.)

§ 35-1407. Examination by Superintendent—Consolidated reports of classified experience by rating bureau.

The Superintendent, his deputy, or duly authorized examiner, is authorized and empowered to examine all records of the rating bureau, companies, and agents, and to require every company to furnish statistical reports of premiums and losses in such form and according to such classifications as the Superintendent shall prescribe and any other information which the Superintendent may deem necessary for the administration of this chapter. The Superintendent may require the rating bureau to consolidate the reports of classified experience. (June 1, 1944, 58 Stat. 269, ch. 224, § 7.)

§ 35-1408. Effectiveness of rates, rating methods, rules, policy forms, etc., dependent upon filing with and approval of Superintendent.

No rate, premium, schedule, rating method, rule, bylaw, agreement, or regulation shall become effective or be charged, applied, or enforced in the District by the rating bureau, or by any company, agent, or broker governed by the provisions of this chapter, until it shall have been first filed with and approved by the Superintendent: Provided, That a rate or premium used or charged in accordance with a schedule, rating method, or rule previously approved by the Superintendent need not be specifically approved by the Superintendent. No company, agent, or broker shall issue any form of policy, clause, warranty, rider, or endorsement until such form shall have been filed with and approved by the Superintendent. (June 1, 1944, 58 Stat. 269, ch. 224, § 8.)

§ 35-1409. Penalties.

Any company or any agent or broker guilty of violating any of the provisions of this chapter shall be subject to the provisions of sections 35-1306 and 35-1340. (June 1, 1944, 58 Stat. 269, ch. 224, § 9.)

(a) Rates for insurance within the scope of this chapter shall not be excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory.

(b) Due consideration shall be given to past and prospective loss experience within and outside the District, to physical hazards, to safety and loss prevention factors, to underwriting practice and judgment, to catastrophe hazards, if any, to a reasonable margin for underwriting profit and contingencies; to dividends, savings, or unabsorbed premium deposits allowed or returned by companies to their policyholders, members, or subscribers; to past and prospective expenses both country-wide and those specially applicable to the District; to whether classification rates exist generally for the risks under consideration; to the rarity or peculiar characteristics of the risks; and to all other relevant factors within and outside the District.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be taken to prohibit as unfairly discriminatory the establishment of classifications or modifications of classifications of risks based upon the size, expense, management, individual experience, location or dispersion of hazard, or any other reasonable considerations attributable to such risks provided such classifications and modifications apply to all risks under the same or substantially similar circumstances or conditions.

(d) Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to require uniformity in insurance rates, classifications, rating plans, or practices.

(e) Nothing in this chapter shall abridge or restrict the freedom of contract of companies, agents, brokers, or employees with reference to the commissions or salaries to be paid to such agents, brokers, or employees by companies.

(f) Rates may become effective immediately upon filing or at such future time as the company or rating organization making them may specify. They shall thereafter remain in effect unless and until changed by the company or rating organization making them, or adjusted by order of the Superintendent in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. Rates for contracts or policies described in the last sentence of subsection (c) of section 35-1504 may become effective when made and filing thereof shall be made promptly thereafter.

(g) No company, agent, or broker shall make, issue, or deliver, or knowingly permit the making, issuance, or delivery of any policy of insurance within the scope of this chapter contrary to pertinent filings which are in effect for the company as provided in this chapter, except that upon the written application of the insured stating his reasons therefor, filed with and approved by the Superintendent, a rate in excess of that provided by a filing otherwise applicable may be used on any specific risk. (May 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 243, ch. 324, § 3.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

§ 35-1504. Supervision of rates.

(a) On and after July 1, 1948, every company shall file with the Superintendent, either directly or through a licensed rating organization of which it is a member or subscriber, except as to rates on inland marine risks which are not made by a rating organization and which by general custom of the business are not written according to manual rates or rating plans, all rates and rating plans, rules, and classifications which it uses or proposes to use in the District.

(b) Whenever it shall be made to appear to the Superintendent, either from his own information or from complaint of any party alleging to be aggrieved thereby, that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the rates on any or on all risks or classes of risks or kinds of insurance within the scope of this chapter are not in accordance with the terms of this chapter, it shall be his duty, and he shall have the full power and authority, to investigate the necessity for an adjustment of any or all such rates.

(c) After such an investigation of any such rates, the Superintendent shall, before ordering any appropriate adjustment thereof, hold a hearing upon not less than ten days' written notice specifying the matters to be considered at such hearing, to every company and rating organization which filed such rates, provided the Superintendent need not hold such hearing in the event he is advised by every such company and rating organization that they do not desire such hearing. If after such hearing the Superintendent determines that any or all of such rates are excessive or inadequate, he shall order appropriate adjustment thereof. Pending such investigation and order of the Superintendent, rates shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with the terms of this chapter. No order of adjustment shall affect any contract or policy made or issued prior to the effective date of such order unless (i) the adjustment to be effected is substantial and exceeds the cost to the companies of making the adjustment and (ii) the order is made after the prescribed investigation and hearing and within thirty days after the filing of rates affected. In no event shall an order of adjustment affect an existing contract or policy other than one of workmen's compensation or automobile liability insurance required by law, order, rule, or regulation of a public authority, or a contract or policy of any type as to which the rates are not, by general custom of the business or because of rarity and peculiar characteristics, written according to normal classification or rating procedure.

(d) In determining the necessity for an adjustment of rates, the Superintendent shall be bound by all of the provisions of section 35-1503.

(e) The Superintendent is further empowered to investigate and to order removed at such time and in such manner as he shall specify any unfair discrimination existing between individual risks or classes of risks. (May 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 243, ch. 324, § 4.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 35-1503.

§ 35-1505. Cooperative and concerted action authorized.

Subject to the provisions of this chapter, two or more companies may cooperate or act in concert with each other—

(a) as a rating organization, for the purpose of making rates, rating plans, or rating systems. No company shall be deemed to be a rating organization;

(b) as an advisory organization, for the purpose of preparing policy forms, making underwriting rules, surveys, or inspections incident to but not including the making of rates, rating plans, or rating systems, or collecting and furnishing to companies or rating organizations loss or expense statistics or other statistical data, and acting in an advisory as distinguished from a rate making capacity;

(c) as a group or fleet of companies operating under the same general management and control, for the purpose of conducting a complete insurance service;

(d) as a group, association, or other organization for the purpose of joint underwriting or joint reinsurance, or of equitable apportionment and proper rating of insurance which may be afforded applicants who are in good faith entitled to but who are unable to procure such insurance through ordinary methods.

No company shall be required by this chapter to be a member or subscriber of any rating organization. (May 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 244, ch. 324, § 5.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 35-1506.

§ 35-1506. Cooperative and concerted action regulated.

(a) Every group, association, or other organization of companies authorized to act as such under the terms of this chapter, except groups or fleets described in subsection (c) of section 35-1505, shall file with the Superintendent (1) a copy of its constitution, its articles of agreement or association, or its certificate of incorporation, and of its bylaws, rules, and regulations governing the conduct of its business; (2) a list of its members and subscribers, if any; (3) the name and address of a resident of the District upon whom notices or orders of the Superintendent or process affecting it may be served; and shall notify the Superintendent promptly of any change in the foregoing.

(b) No group, association, or organization shall engage in any unfair or unreasonable practice in the conduct of its business.

(c) No rating organization shall conduct its business with respect to insurance on risks located within the District without a license from the Superintendent. To obtain such a license, a rating organization shall, in addition to the matters specified in subsection (a) of this section, supply to the Superintendent a statement relating to its qualifications as a rating organization and its ability adequately to administer the rates, rules, and regulations which it may make in behalf of its members and subscribers.

If the Superintendent finds that the applicant is competent, trustworthy, and otherwise qualified to act as a rating organization, he shall forthwith issue a license specifying the kinds of insurance and subdivisions thereof for which the applicant is authorized to act as a rating organization, but, if the Superintendent does not so find within thirty days after he has received such application, he shall, at the request of the applicant, give the applicant a full hearing.

Licenses issued pursuant to this section shall remain in effect until suspended or revoked by the Superintendent unless voluntarily surrendered by the rating organization. The fee for said license shall be $250 and shall be paid by the applicant through the Superintendent to Collector of Taxes,

District of Columbia. Licenses issued pursuant to this section may, at the request of the rating organization, be amended by the Superintendent so as to include authority with respect to additional kinds of insurance and subdivisions thereof, provided the rating organization satisfies the Superintendent that such amendment would not in any way be contrary to or inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter: Provided, That an additional fee in the amount of $50 shall be charged for such amendment.

The license of any rating organization may be suspended or revoked by the Superintendent for failure to comply with this chapter or for incompetence or untrustworthiness. The Superintendent shall not revoke or suspend the license of any rating organization until he has given it not less than thirty days' notice of the proposed revocation or suspension and of the grounds alleged therefor and has afforded the rating organization an opportunity to be heard. In lieu of revoking or suspending the license of any rating organization after hearing and for the causes named herein, the Superintendent may subject such rating organization to a penalty of not more than $250 when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the rating organization. The amount of any such penalty shall be paid by the rating organization through the Superintendent to Collector of Taxes, District of Columbia.

(d) Every licensed rating organization shall, subject to reasonable rules and regulations, permit any company not a member to be a subscriber to its rating services for any kind of insurance or subdivision thereof for which it is authorized to act; shall give notice of changes in such rules and regulations to its subscribers; and shall furnish its rating service without discrimination to its members and subscribers.

(e) No licensed rating organization shall adopt any rule, effect any agreement, or take any action contrary to or inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter or which would have the effect of prohibiting, restricting, or regulating the payment or allowance by any of its members or subscribers of dividends, savings, or unabsorbed premium deposits; nor practice or sanction any plan or act of boycott, coercion, or intimidation; nor enter into or sanction any contract or act by which any person is restrained from lawfully engaging in the business of insurance.

(f) Every member of or subscriber to a licensed rating organization shall adhere to the filings made on its behalf by such organization except that any such member or subscriber may deviate from such filings if it has filed with the rating organization and with the Superintendent the deviation to be applied and information necessary to justify the deviation and provided such deviation is approved by the Superintendent. If approved, the deviation shall remain in force until such approval is withdrawn by the Superintendent after notice to the company or withdrawn by the company with the approval of the Superintendent. The Superintendent shall approve any such deviation unless he finds that the deviation to be applied would not be uniform in its application or would be inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter, but unless he approves the deviation within thirty days he shall, within a reasonable time, grant a hearing to the applicant at the applicant's request. (May 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 245, ch. 324, § 6.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

The Office of the Collector of Taxes was abolished and the functions thereof transferred, see note under § 47-301.

§ 35-1507. Information to be furnished by companies.

(a) Every rating organization and every company which makes its own rates shall, within a reasonable time after receiving written request therefor and upon payment of such reasonable charge as it may make, furnish to any insured affected by a rate made by it, or to the authorized representative of such insured, all pertinent information as to such rate.

(b) Every rating organization and every company which makes its own rates shall provide within the District reasonable means whereby any person aggrieved by the application of its rating system may be heard, in person or by his authorized representative, on his written request to revise the manner in which such rating system has been applied in connection with the insurance afforded him. If the rating organization or company fails to grant or reject such request within thirty days after it is made, the applicant may proceed in the same manner as if his application had been rejected. Any party affected by the action of such rating organization or such company on such request may, within thirty days after written notice of such action, appeal to the Superintendent, who, after a hearing held upon not less than ten days' written notice to the appellant and to such rating organization or company, may affirm or reverse such action.

(c) No company, agent, broker, or rating organization may willfully withhold required information from or give false or misleading information to the Superintendent.

(d) No company, agent, or broker shall fail to furnish to an insured any policy or comparable evidence of insurance to which the insured is entitled. (May 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 246, ch. 324, § 7.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence of insurance

Where evidence amply supported finding that policy-writing agent for insurance company violated insurance laws by failing to furnish policies or comparable evidence of insurance to which insured persons were entitled and that agent represented that it had authority to solicit and procure policies of insurance when it had no license to do so, refusal of Superintendent of Insurance to renew agent's license was proper. Columbia Auto Loan v. Jordan (1952, 196 F. 2d 568, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 222).

§ 35-1508. Authority and duty of Superintendent.

In addition to any powers hereinbefore expressly enumerated in this chapter, the Superintendent shall have full power and authority, and it shall be his duty, to enforce by regulations made and promulgated by the District of Columbia Council, by orders, or otherwise all and singular, the provisions of this chapter, and the full intent thereof. In particular he shall have the authority and power—

(a) to examine all records of companies and rating organizations and to require any or every company, agent, broker, and rating organization to furnish under oath such information as he may deem necessary for the administration of this chapter. The expense of such examination shall be paid by the company or rating organization examined. In lieu of such examination the Superintendent may, in his discretion, accept a report of examination made by any other insurance supervisory authority;

(b) the District of Columbia Council shall have the authority and power to make, and the Superintendent shall have the authority and power to enforce, such reasonable orders, rules, and regulations as may be necessary in making this chapter effective, but such orders, rules, and regulations shall not be contrary to or inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter;

(c) to issue an order, after a full hearing to all parties in interest requiring any group, association, or organization of companies and the members thereof to cease and desist from any unfair or unreasonable practice;

(d) The Superintendent may designate one or more rating organizations or other agencies to assist him in gathering statistical data and in making such compilations thereof as may be necessary for the proper administration of this chapter. Such compilations shall be made available, subject to reasonable rules promulgated by the District of Columbia Council, to companies and rating organizations.

The Superintendent shall have no authority at any hearing to compel the attendance of witnesses and he shall not be required to adhere to formal rules of pleading or evidence. At the request of a party or parties in interest made prior to any hearing, he shall administer oaths to witnesses and shall permit such party or parties, at the cost and expense of one who so requests, to have made a record of the hearing, which record upon request of such party or parties the Superintendent shall certify. (May 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 246, ch. 324, § 8.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER AND COUNCIL

Section 402(279) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the functions of the Board of Commissioners of making and promulgating (i) regulations governing the enforcement of the provisions of this chapter (providing for regulation of casualty and other insurance rates), (ii) regulations necessary in making this chapter effective, and (iii) rules for making compilations of statistical data available to companies and rating organizations under this section, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of the Plan, set out in the appendix to title 1. Section 401 of the Plan transferred all other functions of the Board of Commissioners under this section to the Commissioner of the District of Columbia.

§ 35-1509. Penalties.

Any company, broker, or agent guilty of violating any of the provisions of this chapter or any order, rule, or regulation issued pursuant to this chapter, shall be subject to the provisions of sections 35-1306 and 35-1340, respectively. (May 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 247, ch. 324, § 9.)

§ 35-1510. Judicial review.

Any person, firm or corporation aggrieved by any order, ruling, proceeding, or action of the Superintendent may contest the validity of such order, ruling, proceeding, or action in any court of competent jurisdiction by appeal or through any other appropriate proceedings, as provided under section 35-1349. (May 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 247, ch. 324, § 10.)

(a) The amount of credit life insurance shall not exceed the initial indebtedness however the indebtedness may be repayable: Provided, however, That nothing contained herein shall be deemed to supersede or repeal the limitation on the amount of group insurance specified in section 35-710(2) (d). In cases where an indebtedness is repayable in substantially equal installments, the amount of insurance shall at no time exceed the scheduled amount of unpaid indebtedness in the case of any individual policy or the actual amount of the unpaid indebtedness in the case of any group policy.

(b) The amount of indemnity payable by credit accident and health insurance in the event of disability, as defined in the policy, shall not exceed the

Where evidence of insurability is required and such evidence is furnished more than thirty days from the date when the debtor becomes obligated to the creditor, the term of the insurance may commence on the date on which the insurance company determines the evidence to be satisfactory, and in such event there shall be an appropriate refund or adjustment of any charge to the debtor for insurance. The term of such insurance shall not extend more than fifteen days beyond the scheduled maturity date of the indebtedness except when extended without additional cost to the debtor. If the indebtedness is discharged due to renewal or refinancing prior to the scheduled maturity date, the insurance in force shall be terminated before any new insurance may be issued in connection with the renewal or refinanced indebtedness. In all cases of termination prior to scheduled maturity, a refund shall be paid or credited as provided in section 35-1608. (Sept. 25, 1962, 76 Stat. 581, Pub. L. 87-686, § 5.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 35-1606.

§ 35-1606. Provisions of policies and certificates of insurance—Disclosure to debtors.

(a) All credit life insurance and credit accident and health insurance shall be evidenced by an individual policy or in the case of group insurance by a group policy and individual certificates of insurance.

(b) Each individual policy or certificate of credit life insurance, each individual policy or certificate of credit accident and health insurance, and each individual policy or certificate of credit life insurance and credit accident and health insurance shall, in addition to other requirements of law, set forth the name and home office address of the insurance company, and the identity by name or otherwise of the person insured, the rate or amount of payment, if any, by the debtor separately in connection with credit life insurance and credit accident and health insurance, a description of the coverage, including the amount and term thereof (which in the case of group insurance may be by description rather than stated amount and term), any exceptions, limitations, or restrictions, and shall state that the benefits shall be paid to the creditor to reduce or extinguish the unpaid indebtedness and, whenever the amount of insurance may exceed the unpaid indebtedness, that any such excess shall be payable to a beneficiary, other than the creditor, named by the debtor or to his estate.

(c) Except as hereinafter provided, an individual policy or certificate of insurance shall be delivered to the insured debtor at the time the indebtedness is incurred.

(d) If a debtor makes a separate payment for credit life or credit accident and health insurance and an individual policy or certificate of insurance is not delivered to the debtor at the time the indebtedness is incurred, a copy of the application for such policy or a notice of proposed insurance shall be delivered at such time to the debtor by the creditor. The copy of the application for or notice of proposed insurance shall be signed by the debtor and shall set forth the identity by name or otherwise of the person insured; the rate or amount of payment by the debtor separately for credit life insurance and credit accident and health insurance; and a statement that within thirty days, if the insurance is accepted by the insurance company, there will be delivered to the debtor an individual policy or certificate of insurance containing the name and home office address of the insurance company, and a description of the amount, term, and coverage including any exceptions, limitations, and restrictions. The copy of the application for, or notice of, proposed insurance shall refer exclusively to insurance coverage, and shall be separate and apart from the loan, sale, or other credit statement of account, instrument, or agreement unless the information required by this subsection is prominently set forth in such statement of account, instrument, or agreement. If a debtor does not make a separate payment for credit life or credit accident and health insurance, an application need not be taken or a notice of proposed insurance given. In any case, upon acceptance of the insurance by the insurance company, and within thirty days of the date upon which the term of the insurance commences, the insurance company shall cause the individual policy or certificate of insurance to be delivered to the debtor. Said application or notice of proposed insurance shall state that, upon acceptance by the insurance company, the insurance shall become effective as provided in section 35-1605. (Sept. 25, 1962, 76 Stat. 581, Pub. L. 87-686, § 6.)

§ 35-1607. Filing, approval, and withdrawal of forms.

(a) All forms of policies, certificates of insurance, notices of proposed insurance, applications for insurance, binders, endorsements and riders delivered or issued for delivery in the District and the premium rates pertaining thereto shall be filed with the Superintendent by the insurance company, in such manner and together with such supporting information as the Superintendent may reasonably require. In any case where a group policy is made for a group in the District and the policy is neither delivered nor issued for delivery in the District, the form of policy and all other forms and premium rates referred to in the preceding sentence shall be filed with the Superintendent by the insurance company.

(b) The Superintendent may, within thirty days after the filing of any form of policy, certificate of insurance, notice of proposed insurance, application for insurance, binder, endorsement or rider, disapprove any such form if the premium rates charged or to be charged appear by reasonable assumptions to be excessive in relation to benefits paid or to be paid, or if the form contains provisions which are unjust, unfair, inequitable, misleading, or deceptive. In determining whether to disapprove any such form the Superintendent may give due consideration to past and prospective loss experience within and outside the District, to underwriting practice and judgment to the extent appropriate, and to all other relevant factors within and outside the District, and he may take into account the experience of the individual company.

(c) If the Superintendent notifies the insurance company that the form does not comply with the requirements of this chapter, it shall be unlawful thereafter for such insurance company to issue or use such form. In such notice, the Superintendent shall specify the reason for his disapproval and state that a hearing will be granted promptly upon request in writing by the insurance company. No such policy, certificate of insurance, notice of proposed insurance, application for insurance, binder, endorsement, or rider shall be issued or used until the expiration of thirty days after it has been so filed, unless the Superintendent shall give his prior written approval thereto.

(d) The Superintendent may, at any time after a hearing, held after not less than twenty days' written notice to the insurance company, withdraw his approval of any such form if it does not meet the requirements of this chapter.

(e) The insurance company shall not issue such forms or use them after the effective date of such withdrawal of approval.

(f) The insurance company may revise such forms and the premium rates pertaining thereto from time to time, and such revised forms and premium rates shall be filed with the Superintendent and shall be subject to all the preceding requirements of this section, in like manner as though they were original filings with the Superintendent. (Sept. 25, 1962, 76 Stat. 582, Pub. L. 87-686, § 7.)

§ 35-1608. Refunds.

(a) Each individual policy or certificate of credit life insurance or credit accident and health insurance shall provide that in the event of termination of the insurance prior to the scheduled maturity date of the indebtedness, any refund of an amount paid by the debtor for insurance shall be paid or credited promptly to the person entitled thereto:

Provided, That the Superintendent shall prescribe a minimum refund and no refund which would be less than such minimum need be made. The formula to be used in computing refunds shall be filed with the Superintendent who may disapprove such formula if he finds that it is unjust or unreasonable.

(b) If a creditor requires a debtor to make a payment in connection with credit life insurance or credit accident and health insurance and an individual policy or certificate of insurance is not issued, the creditor shall promptly give written notice to such debtor and shall promptly make an appropriate credit to the account.

(c) The amount charged to a debtor for credit life or credit accident and health insurance shall not exceed the premium rate charged by the insurance company at the time the charge to the debtor is determined. (Sept. 25, 1962, 76 Stat. 583, Pub. L. 87-686, § 8.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 35-1605.

§ 35-1609. Claims.

(a) All claims shall be paid either by draft drawn upon the insurance company or by check of the insurance company to the order of the claimant to whom payment of the claim is due pursuant to the policy provisions, or upon direction of such claimant to one specified, and every insurance company shall be held to strict settlement of all such claims.

(b) It shall be unlawful for any creditor, having received any such check or draft from such insurance company, to fail to correctly credit the account, pay to or upon the direction of, or otherwise correctly account to the claimant to whom payment is due for the full amount of such check or draft, less any lawful deductions therefrom.

(c) No plan or arrangement shall be used whereby any person, firm, or corporation other than the insurance company or its designated claim representative shall be authorized to settle or adjust claims. The creditor shall not be designated as claim representative for the insurance company in adjusting claims, nor, in the case of an individual creditor, shall the spouse of such creditor or any relative of the creditor or spouse within the third degree of consanguinity be so designated, nor shall any officer or employee of a corporate creditor or any spouse or relative of such officer, employee, or spouse within the third degree of consanguinity be so designated: Provided, That a group policyholder may, by arrangement with the group insurance company, draw drafts or checks in payment of claims due to the group policyholder subject to audit and review by the insurance company. (Sept. 25, 1962, 76 Stat. 584, Pub. L. 87-686, § 9.)

§ 35-1610. Existing insurance—Choice of insurer.

(b) In the case of any violation of this chapter by a creditor or by any other person not licensed in the District as an insurance agent, solicitor, or broker, regardless of the fact that such creditor or other person is not required by law to be so licensed, the penalties and the procedure for their imposition shall be as set forth in section 35-1347. (3) The term "environmental hazard" means any hazardous condition that might give rise to loss under an insurance contract, but which is beyond the control of the property owner.

REFERENCE IN TEXT

Part B of title XII of the National Housing Act, consists of sections 1221 to 1224, as added by section 1103 of the act of Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90-448, sections 1749bbb-7 et seq., title 12, U.S. Code.

Authority of Superintendent of Insurance

District of Columbia Superintendent of Insurance has statutory authority to issue order including "crime lines" within definition of basic property insurance under this chapter even though the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development has not incorporated those lines into the definition of essential property insurance under the national insurance development programs, but the authority is qualified by substantive constitutional requirements of due process. District of Columbia Insurance Placement Facility v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 45.)

§ 35-1703. Industry placement facility.

(a) Within thirty days after August 1, 1968 all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, basic property insurance or any component thereof in multiperil policies, shall establish an Industry Placement Facility. The Facility shall formulate and administer a program, subject to disapproval by the Commissioner in whole or in part, to seek the equitable apportionment amount such insurers of basic property insurance which may be afforded applicants in the District of Columbia whose property is insurable in accordance with reasonable underwriting standards and who individually or through their insurance agent or broker request the aid of the Facility to procure such insurance. The Facility shall seek to place insurance with one or more participating companies up to the full insurable value of the risk, if requested, except to the extent that deductibles, percentage participation clauses, and other underwriting devices are employed to meet special problems of insurability.

(b) The Facility may, subject to the approval of the Commissioner, provide as part of its program for the equitable distribution of commercial risks and dwelling risks among insurers.

(c) Each insurer licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, basic property insurance or any component thereof in multiperil policies shall participate in the Industry Placement Facility program in accordance with the established rules of the program as a condition of its authority to transact such kinds of insurance in the District of Columbia, except that, in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for any failure to comply with any of the established rules of the program, the Commissioner may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each such failure to so comply when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company in the District of Columbia. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90-448, § 1204, title XII, 82 Stat. 568.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Due process

Order of District of Columbia Superintendent of Insurance including "crime lines" within definition of basic property insurance under this chapter denied due process since it was issued without giving Insurance Placement

Facility, which was established to implement federal program of establishing and effectuating plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements, notice or opportunity for hearing. District of Columbia Insurance Placement Facility v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 45.)

§ 35-1704. Fair access to insurance requirements.

(a) The Industry Placement Facility shall on its own motion, or within thirty days after a request by the Commissioner, submit to the Commissioner such proposed rules and regulations applicable to insurers, agents, and brokers deemed necessary to assure all property owners fair access to basic property insurance through the normal insurance markets, including rules and regulations concerning—

(1) the manner and scope of inspections of risk by an inspection bureau;

(2) the preparation and filing of inspection reports and reports on actions taken in connection with inspected risks, and summaries thereof;

(3) the operation of the Facility, including rules and regulations concerning—

(A) the basic property insurance coverages to be provided through the Facility;

(B) the reasonable effort to obtain insurance in the normal commercial market required of an applicant before recourse to the Facility; and

(C) the appeals procedure within the Facility for any applicant for insurance regarding any ruling, action, or decision by or on behalf of the Facility.

(b) The Commissioner may adopt such of the rules and regulations submitted pursuant to subsection (a) of this section as he approves. If the Commissioner disapproves any proposed rule or regulation submitted, he shall state the reasons for so doing, and he shall require the Facility to submit a revision thereof within such time as he may designate, but no less than ten days. During such designated time, the Commissioner and the Facility shall consult regarding any such disapproved rule or regulation. If the Facility fails to submit a proposed rule or regulation, or revision thereof, within the designated time, or if a revised rule or regulation is unacceptable to the Commissioner, the Commissioner may make such rules and regulations covering the proposed general subject matter as he shall deem necessary to carry out the purposes of this chapter. Any rule or regulation adopted or made under this section shall be consistent with the requirements of part A of title XII of the National Housing Act. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90-448, § 1205, title XII, 82 Stat. 569.)

REFERENCE IN TEXT

Part A of title XII of the National Housing Act, consists of sections 1211 to 1214, as added by section 1103 of the act of Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90-448, sections 1749bbb-3 et seq., title 12, U.S. Code.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 35-1702.

Authority of District Council

District of Columbia City Council does not have authority under either its police power or the Insurance Code to pass insurance regulations designed to prohibit geographic discrimination and arbitrary cancellation of policies within the District. Firemen's Insurance Company of

Washington v. W. E. Washington et al. (1971, 333 F. Supp. 951).

Where Congress provided for the equitable distribution of responsibility for insuring qualified property within the District of Columbia for which insurance could not be obtained through the normal market by passing this chapter, the City Council of the District could not thereafter regulate the same type of high risk coverage by passing regulation designed to prohibit geographic discrimination. Id.

Authority of Superintendent of Insurance

District of Columbia Superintendent of Insurance has statutory authority to issue order including "crime lines" within definition of basic property insurance under this chapter even though the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development has not incorporated those lines into the definition of essential property insurance under the national insurance development program, but the authority is qualified by substantive constitutional requirements of due process. District of Columbia Insurance Placement Facility v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 45).

Construction

The provision in § 35-1704(b) that the Superintendent of Insurance may not adopt procedures conflicting with minimum administrative procedures for the operation of the fair plans is not to be construed as preventing Superintendent from proceeding toward an expansion of insurance coverage as provided in § 35-1702(3). District of Columbia Insurance Placement Facility v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 260 A. 2d 45).

Due process

Order of District of Columbia Superintendent of Insurance including "crime lines" within definition of basic property insurance under this chapter denied due process since it was issued without giving Insurance Placement Facility, which was established to implement federal program of establishing and effectuating plans to assure fair access to insurance requirements, notice or opportunity for hearing. District of Columbia Insurance Placement Facility v. W. E. Washington, Commissioner, et ano. (D.C. App. 1970, 269 A. 2d 45).

§ 35-1705. Joint Underwriting Association.

(a) The Commissioner is authorized to establish by order a joint underwriting association if he finds, after notice and hearing, that such association is necessary to carry out the purposes of this chapter. Such joint underwriting association shall consist of all insurers licensed to write and engaged in writing in the District of Columbia, on a direct basis, such basic property insurance as may be designated by the Commissioner or any component thereof in multiperil policies.

(b) Every such insurer shall be and remain a member of the association and shall comply with all requirements of membership as a condition of its authority to transact such kinds of insurance in the District of Columbia, except that in lieu of revoking or suspending the certificate of authority of any company for any failure to comply with any of the requirements of membership, the Commissioner may subject such company to a penalty of not more than $200 for each such failure to so comply when in his judgment he finds that the public interest would be best served by the continued operation of the company in the District of Columbia.

(c) (1) Within sixty days following the effective date of the order of the Commissioner under this section the association shall submit to him a proposed plan of operation, consistent with the provisions of this chapter, which shall provide for economical, fair, and nondiscriminatory administration of the association and for the prompt and efficient provision of reinsurance, without regard to environmental hazards, for such basic property insurance as may be designated by the Commissioner. The plan of operation shall include provisions for—

(A) preliminary assessment of all members for initial expenses necessary to commence operations;

(B) establishment of necessary facilities;

(C) management and operation of the association;

(D) assessment of members to defray losses and expenses;

(E) commission arrangements;

(F) reasonable underwriting standards;

(G) assumption and cessation of reinsurance; and

(H) such other matters as the Commissioner may designate.

(2) The plan of operation shall not take effect until approved by the Commissioner. If the Commissioner disapproves the proposed plan of operation (or any part thereof), he shall state the reasons for so doing, and the association shall within thirty days thereafter submit for his review an appropriately revised plan of operation. During such time, the Commissioner and the association shall consult regarding the disapproved plan or part thereof. If the association fails to submit a revised plan of operation, or if the revised plan so submitted is unacceptable to the Commissioner, the Commissioner shall promulgate a plan of operation.

(3) The association may, on its own initiative, amend such plan, subject to approval by the Commissioner, and shall amend such plan at the direction of the Commissioner if he finds such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this chapter.

(d) All members of the association shall participate in its writings, expenses, profits, and losses, or in such categories thereof as may be separately established by the association, subject to approval by the Commissioner, in the proportion that the premiums written by each such member during the preceding calendar year bear to the aggregate premiums written in the District of Columbia by all members of the association, or in accordance with such other formula as the association may devise with the approval of the Commissioner. Such participation by each insurer in the association shall be determined annually on the basis of such premiums written during the preceding calendar year as disclosed in the annual statements and other reports filed by the insurer with the Commissioner.

(e) The association shall be governed by a board of eleven directors, elected annually by cumulative voting by the members of the association, whose votes in such election shall be weighted in accordance with the proportionate amount of each member's net direct premiums written in the District of Columbia during the preceding calendar year. The first board shall be elected at a meeting of the members or their authorized representatives, which shall be held within thirty days after the effective date of the order under this section establishing the association, at a time and place designated by the

§ 35-1706. Examination by Commissioner.

The operation of any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, and the joint underwriting association shall at all times be subject to the supervision and regulation of the Commissioner. The Commissioner shall have the power of visitation of and examination into such operations and free access to all the books, records, files, papers, and documents that relate to such operations, may summon and qualify witnesses under oath, and may examine directors, officers, agents, employees or, any other person having knowledge of such operations. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90-448, § 1207, title XII, 82 Stat. 571.)

§ 35-1707. Waiver of liability.

There shall be no liability on the part of, and no cause of action of any nature shall arise against, insurers, any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, the joint underwriting association, the agents or employees of such bureau, Facility, or association, or any officer or employee of the District of Columbia, for any statements made in good faith by them concerning the insurability of property (A) in any reports or other communications, (B) at the time of the hearings conducted in connection therewith, or (C) in the findings with respect thereto required by the provisions of this chapter. The reports and communications of any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, and the joint underwriting association with respect to individual properties shall not be open to inspection by, or otherwise available to, the public. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90-448, § 1208, title XII, 82 Stat. 571.)

§ 35-1708. Annual reports by Joint Underwriting Association.

The joint underwriting association shall file with the Commissioner, annually on or before the 1st day of March, a statement which shall contain information with respect to its transactions, condition, operations, and affairs during the preceding year. Such statement shall contain such matters and information as are prescribed by the Commissioner and shall be in such form as is approved by him. The Commissioner may at any time require the association to furnish him with additional information with respect to its transactions, condition, or any matter connected therewith which he considers to be material and which will assist him in evaluating the scope, operation, and experience of the association. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90-448, § 1209, title XII, 82 Stat. 571.)

§ 35-1709. Appeals.

(a) Any applicant for insurance and any affected insurer may appeal to the Commissioner within ninety days after any final ruling, action, or decision by or on behalf of any inspection bureau, the Industry Placement Facility, or the joint underwriting association, following exhaustion of remedies available within such bureau, Facility, or association.

(b) All final orders or decisions of the Commissioner made under this chapter shall be subject to review by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals under the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, secs. 1-1501 to 1-1510). (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90-448, § 1210, title XII, 82 Stat. 571; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 163(d), 84 Stat. 583.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 163(d) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out "section 11-742 of the District of Columbia Code" and inserting in lieu thereof "the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, secs. 1-1501 to 1-1510)".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

§ 35-1710. Reimbursement for reinsurance provided under National Insurance Development Program.

(a) In order to carry out the purposes of this chapter and to make available to insurers who participate hereunder the reinsurance afforded under part B of title XII of the National Housing Act against losses to property resulting from riots or civil disorders, the Commissioner is authorized to assess each insurance company authorized to do business in the District of Columbia an amount, in the proportion that the premiums earned by each such company in the District of Columbia, on lines reinsured in the District of Columbia by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, during the preceding calendar year bear to the aggregate premiums earned on those lines in the District of Columbia by all insurance companies, sufficient to provide a fund to reimburse the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development in the manner set forth in section 1223(a) (1) of such part B. Such fund may be added to or such fund may be created by moneys appropriated therefor by the Congress.

(b) Insurers shall add to the premium rate an amount, to be approved by the Commissioner, sufficient to recover, within not more than three years, any amounts assessed under subsection (a) of this section during the preceding calendar year. Such amount shall be a separate charge to the insured in addition to the premium to be paid and shall be reflected as such in the policy of insurance. No commission shall be paid thereon to any agent or broker producing or selling the policy of insurance wherein such amount is added. (Aug. 1, 1968, Pub. L. 90-448, § 1211, title XII, 82 Stat. 572.)

§ 36-121. Purposes of chapter.

It is the purpose of this chapter to open to young people in the District of Columbia the opportunity to obtain training that will equip them for profitable employment and citizenship; to set up, as a means to this end, a program of voluntary apprenticeship under approved apprenticeship agreements providing facilities for their training and guidance in the arts and crafts of industry and trade, with parallel instruction in related and supplementary education; to promote employment opportunities for young people under conditions providing adequate training and reasonable earnings; to relate the supply of skilled workers to employment demands; to establish standards for apprentice training; to establish an apprenticeship council; to provide for the establishment of local joint trade apprenticeship committees to assist in effectuating the purposes of this chapter; to provide for a director of apprenticeship within the District of Columbia; to provide for reports to the Congress and to the public regarding the status of apprenticeship in the District of Columbia; to establish a procedure for the determination of apprenticeship agreement controversies; and to accomplish related ends. (May 21, 1946, 60 Stat. 204, ch. 267, § 1.)

§ 36-122. Apprenticeship Council—Membership—Term—Compensation.

Without regard for any other provision of law with respect to the appointment of officers and employees of the United States or the District of Columbia, the Commissioner of the District of Columbia shall appoint an Apprenticeship Council, composed of three representatives each from employer and employee organizations, respectively. The Superintendent of Schools in the District of Columbia or, if he shall so designate, his representative in charge of trade and industrial education, and the Director of the District of Columbia Employment Center shall, ex officio, be members of said council, without vote. The terms of office of the members of the Apprenticeship Council first appointed by the Commissioner shall expire as designated by them at the time of making the appointment: One representative each of employers and employees being appointed for one year; one representative each of employers and employees being appointed for two years; and one representative each of employers and employees for three years. Thereafter, each member shall be appointed for a term of three years. Any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term of his predecessor shall be appointed for the remainder of said term. The compensation of each member may be fixed without regard to the provisions of the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, and each member of the council, not otherwise compensated by public money, shall be paid not more than $10 per day for each day spent in attendance at meetings of the Apprenticeship Council. (May 21, 1946, 60 Stat. 204, ch. 267, § 2.)

REFERENCE IN TEXT

The exception from "the Classification Act of 1923, as amended" is obsolete. Sections 1202 and 1204 of the Classification Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 972, 973) repealed the 1923 Act and all laws or parts of laws inconsistent with the 1949 Act. While § 1106(a) of the 1949 Act provided that references in other laws to the 1923 Act should be held and considered to mean the 1949 Act, it did not have the effect of continuing the exception contained in this section because of § 1106(b) that provided that the application of the 1949 Act to any position, officer, or employee shall not be affected by § 1106(a). The Classification Act of 1949 was repealed by Act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a), 80 Stat. 632 (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law). Section 5102 of title 5, U.S.C., now contains the applicability provisions of the 1949 Act.

§ 36-123. Director of Apprenticeship—Assistance furnished.

The Secretary of Labor shall appoint a Director of Apprenticeship who shall serve without compensation and who shall have no vote. In case such evidence is not furnished to such person within ten days after such demand, the employer shall not thereafter continue to employ such minor or permit or suffer such minor to work in such establishment. The court may, instead of immediate commitment, suspend the imposition or execution of judgment of commitment, or may, after partial hearing and instead of proceeding to judgment, suspend further proceedings without judgment, with the consent of the parent, guardian, or custodian of said minor, and in either event may assign a probation officer of the Family Division of the Superior Court to exercise probationary supervision over said minor, said probationary supervision to continue in force and the said minor to remain under the jurisdiction and control of the court as a ward of the court until said minor attains the age of seventeen years, or unless sooner discharged by order of the court or committed to said Board of Public Welfare, the court hereby being given power to withdraw said case from said probationary supervision at any time during said probation period, and after a hearing may commit said minor at once to the said board if, in the opinion of the court, the best interests and welfare of said minor shall so require. #### SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 36-304 to 36-308.

Evidence

In prosecution against employer for working employees in violation of this chapter, oral testimony of inspector for Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board as to contents of payroll record prepared by employer was inadmissible, where payroll record was the best and only source of knowledge of the violations charged, record was kept pursuant to § 36-305 and was quasi-public in character and open to government inspection and so could have been used by government without violating constitutional prohibition against self-incrimination, and the records were actually in court and immediately accessible to the prosecution. Anderson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 710).

In prosecution against employer for failure to keep proper time records of hours worked by employees in violation of § 36-305, testimony of inspector for Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, based on owner's admission and not on inspection by witness, as to total absence of such records, was admissible without regard to the parol evidence rule. Id.

Imprisonment

A defendant convicted for violation of § 36-305 could be sentenced to prison in event of default in payment of fines, notwithstanding that this section provided for fines only, in view of § 11-606 authorizing commitment of defendant in default of payment of fine imposed. Anderson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 710).

Inspectors' failure to report

The failure of inspector who inspected records of employer to make daily reports to Commissioners of District of Columbia, as required by § 36-308, did not preclude prosecution of employer for working employees in violation of this chapter and for failure to keep the time records of hours worked by employees as required by § 36-305. Anderson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 710).

§ 36-309a. Exceptions as to requirements of certain sections, and as to keeping records of hours worked.

The requirements of sections 36-301, 36-303, and 36-304, and so much of section 36-305 as relates to keeping records of hours worked, shall not be applicable in the case of a person employed in a bona fide executive, administrative, or professional capacity, or in the capacity of an outside salesperson, as such terms may from time to time be defined in regulations which the District of Columbia Council is hereby authorized to adopt and promulgate, except that this sentence shall not be construed as relieving an employer from keeping records relating to the compensation paid any such person. (Feb. 24, 1914, ch. 28, § 10 as added Oct. 15, 1966, 80 Stat. 970, Pub. L. 89-684, § 3.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNCIL

Section 402(280) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the function of the Board of Commissioners of adopting and promulgating regulations defining terms under this section, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of the Plan, set out in the appendix to title 1.

§ 36-310. Employers to furnish seats for female employees.

All persons who employ females in stores, shops, offices, or manufactories as clerks, assistants, operatives, or helpers in any business, trade, or occupation carried on or operated by them in the District of Columbia, shall be required to procure and provide proper and suitable seats for all such females and shall permit the use of such seats, rests, or stools, as may be necessary, and shall not make any rules, regulations, or orders preventing the use of such stools or seats when any such female employees are not actively employed in their work in such business or employment. (Mar. 2, 1895, 28 Stat. 964, ch. 192, § 1.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

§ 36-311. Penalty.

If any employer of female help in the District of Columbia, shall neglect or refuse to provide seats, as provided in sections 36-310 and 36-311, or shall make any rules, orders, or regulations in his shop, store, or other place of business, requiring females to remain standing when not necessarily employed in service or labor therein, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction shall be liable to a fine therefor in a sum not to exceed twenty-five dollars, with costs, in the discretion of the court. (Mar. 2, 1895, 28 Stat. 964, ch. 192, § 2.)

CODIFICATION

The District of Columbia Minimum Wage Law for women and minors, act of Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 960, ch. 174, prior to the designation of its then existing provisions by act Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 2, as "Title I" of such 1918 act, and long before its general amendment by act Oct. 15, 1966, 80 Stat. 961, Pub. L. 89-684, § 1, which in effect established a new minimum wage law for the District of Columbia, was held unconstitutional in the case of Atkins v. Children's Hosp. (1923) 261 U.S. 525, 43 S. Ct. 394, 67 L. Ed. 785, 24 A.L.R. 1238. In 1937 the decision in that case was expressly overruled and a law of similar import, enacted by the State of Washington, was declared constitutional, the case of Morehead v. New York ex rel. Tipaldo (1936) 298 U.S. 587, 56 S. Ct. 918, 80 L. Ed. 1347, 103 A.L.R. 1445, being distinguished. West Coast Hotel Co. v. Parrish (1937) 300 U.S. 379, 57 S. Ct. 578, 81 L. Ed. 703, 108 A.L.R. 1330.

On the theory that the last-mentioned case revitalized the said act of Sept. 19, 1918, it was incorporated in this Code, and now, as amended, constitutes this subchapter. As stated, the effect of the general amendment by act Oct. 15, 1966, was to establish a new minimum wage law for the District. See 1966 amendment note below.

AMENDMENT

1966—Act Oct. 15, 1966, 80 Stat. 961—970, Pub. L. 89-684, § 1, amended generally title I of act Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 960—964, ch. 174, classified, except for § 7 of that act, to §§ 36-401 to 36-422 of this Code, primarily to extend the minimum wage coverage to men, to embrace occupations not theretofore covered, to establish minimum and overtime wage rates, and to fix an ultimate workweek of 40 hours. The amendment reduced the number of sections in this subchapter from 22 to 19, the latter classified as §§ 36-401 to 36-419 herein, and the effect of the amendment was to substitute a new minimum wage law for the provisions that were contained in said title I of the act of Sept. 19, 1918. Sections 36-401 to 36-422, containing said title I of the act of Sept. 19, 1918, as amended, but prior to its amendment by said act Oct. 15, 1966, are set out in note below.

Following those sections set out in note form, §§ 36-401 to 36-419, as generally amended by said act Oct. 15, 1966, and stating the present law on the subject of minimum wages in the District, are set out.

Sections 36-420 to 36-422 were omitted in the general amendment by such act.

§ 36-401. Definitions.

Where used in this subchapter—

The term "Board" means the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board created by section 36-402;

The term "commissioners" means the commissioners of the District of Columbia;

The term "woman" includes only a woman of eighteen years of age or over;

The term "minor" means a person of either sex under the age of eighteen years;

The term "occupation" includes a business, industry, trade, or branch thereof, but shall not include domestic service. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 960, ch. 174, title I, § 1; Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 733, ch. 438, § 1.)

§ 36-402. Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board—Members—Quorum.

There is hereby created a board to be known as the "Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board," to be composed of three members to be appointed by the commissioners of the District of Columbia. As far as practicable, the members shall be so chosen that one will be representative of employees, one representative of employers, and one representing the public.

The commissioners shall make their first appointments hereunder within thirty days after September 19, 1918, and shall designate one of the three members first appointed to hold office until January 1, 1919; one to hold office until January 1, 1920; and one to hold office until January 1, 1921. On or before the first day of January of each year, beginning with the year 1919, the commissioners shall appoint a member to succeed the member whose term expires on such first day of January, and such new appointee shall hold office for the term of three years from such first day of January. Each member shall hold office until his successor is appointed and has qualified; and any vacancy that may occur in the membership of the board shall be filled by appointment by the commissioners from the unexpired portion of the term.

A majority of the members shall constitute a quorum to transact business, and the act or decision of such a majority shall be deemed the act or decision of the board; and no vacancy shall impair the right of the remaining members to exercise all the powers of the board. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 961, ch. 174, title I, § 2; Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 1.)

[The Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, created by these former provisions of this section, was abolished and its functions transferred to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, who in turn re-established the Board by reorganization order (and delegated to it certain of their functions so transferred. See 1952 Reorg. Plan No. 5, set out in app. I to title I of this Code, and Reorg. Order No. 36 of the Commissioners, June 16, 1953, as amended, set out in app. II to such title.)]

§ 36-403. Officers—Compensation.

The first members appointed shall, within twenty days after their appointment, meet and organize the board by electing one of their number as chairman and by choosing a secretary, who shall not be a member of the board; and on or before the 10th day of January of each year thereafter the board shall elect a chairman and choose a secretary for the ensuing year. The chairman and the secretary shall each hold office until his successor is elected or chosen; but the board may at any time remove the secretary. The secretary shall perform such duties as may be prescribed. The compensation of the secretary and all other employees of the board shall be fixed in accordance with the provisions of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. None of the members shall receive any salary as such. The board shall have power to employ agents and such other assistants as may be necessary for the proper performance of its duties: Provided, That until further authorization by Congress, the sum which it may expend, including the salary of the secretary, shall not exceed the sum of $5,000. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 961, ch. 174, title I, § 3; June 16, 1938, 52 Stat. 758, ch. 474; Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 972, ch. 782, title XI, § 1106(a).)

§ 36-404. Authority to take testimony—Subpoenas.

At any public hearing held by the board any person interested in the matter being investigated may appear and testify. Any member of the board shall have power to administer oaths and the board may require by subpoena the attendance and testimony of witnesses, the production of all books, registers and other evidence relative to any matters under investigation, at any such public hearing or at any session of any conference held as herein after provided. In case of disobedience to a subpoena the board may invoke the aid of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence. In case of contumacy or refusal to obey a subpoena the court may issue an order requiring appearance before the board, the production of documentary evidence, and the giving of evidence touching the matter in question, and any failure to obey such order of the court may be punished by such court as a contempt thereof. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 961, ch. 174, title I, § 4; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127.)

§ 36-405. Regulations.

The board is hereby authorized and empowered to make rules and regulations for the carrying into effect of this subchapter, including rules and regulations for the selection of members of the conferences hereinafter provided for and the mode of procedure thereof. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 962, ch. 174, title I, § 5.)

§ 36-406. Annual report.

The board shall, on or before the 1st day of January of the year 1919, and of each year thereafter, make a report to the commissioners of its work and the proceedings under this subchapter. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 962, ch. 174, title I, § 6.)

[In the original, that is, in the act of Sept. 19, 1918, ch. 174, there followed, after § 6 (§ 36-406, above), § 7 of such act (40 Stat. 962), which was not classified to this Code, and which provided as follows: "Sec. 7. That there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of the revenues of the District of Columbia, for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, the sum of $5,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to carry into effect the provisions of this Act."]

§ 36-407. Authority concerning wages of women and minors.

The board shall have full power and authority: (1) To investigate and ascertain the wages of women and minors in the different occupations in which they are employed in the District of Columbia; (2) to examine, through any member or authorized representative, any book, pay roll or other record of any employer of women or minors that in any way appertains to or has a bearing upon the question of wages of any such women or minors; and (3) to require from such employer full and true statements of the wages paid to all women and minors in his employment.

Every employer shall keep a register of the names of the women and minors employed by him in any occupation in the District of Columbia, of the hours worked by each, and of all payments made to each, whether paid by the time or by the piece; and shall, on request, permit any member or authorized representative of the Board to examine such register.

To assist the Board in carrying out this chapter the Commissioners shall at all times give it any information or statistics in their possession under sections 36-301 to 36-309. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 962, ch. 174, title I, § 8.)

§ 36-408. Standards of wages to be declared.

The Board is hereby authorized and empowered to ascertain and declare, in the manner hereinafter provided, the following things: (a) Standards of minimum wages for women in any occupation within the District of Columbia, and what wages are inadequate to supply the necessary cost of living to any such women workers to maintain them in good health and to protect their morals; and (b) standards of minimum wages for minors in any occupation within the District of Columbia, and what wages are unreasonably low for any such minor workers. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 962, ch. 174, title § 9.)

§ 36-409. Conference on inadequate wages.

If, after investigation, the Board is of opinion that any substantial number of women workers in any occupation are receiving wages inadequate to supply them with the necessary cost of living and maintain them in health and protect their morals, it may call and convene a conference for the purpose and with the powers of considering and inquiring into and reporting on the subject investigated by the Board and submitted by it to such conference. The conference shall be composed of not more than three representatives of the employers in such occupation, of an equal number of representatives of the employees in such occupation, of not more than three disinterested persons representing the public, and of one or more members of the Board. The Board shall name and appoint all the members of the conference and designate the chairman thereof. Two-thirds of the members of the conference shall constitute a quorum, and the decision or recommendation or report of the conference on any subject submitted shall require a vote of not less than a majority of all its members.

The Board shall present to the conference all the information and evidence in its possession or control relating to the subject of the inquiry by the conference, and shall cause to be brought before the conference any witnesses whose testimony the Board deems material. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 962, ch. 174, title I, § 10.)

After completing its consideration of and inquiry into the subject submitted to it by the Board, the conference shall make and transmit to the Board a report containing its findings and recommendations on such subject, including recommendations as to standards of minimum wages for women workers in the occupation under inquiry and as to what wages are inadequate to supply the necessary cost of living to women workers in such occupation and to maintain them in health and to protect their morals.

In its recommendations on a question of wages the conference (1) shall, where it appears that any substantial number of women workers in the occupation under inquiry are being paid by piece rates as distinguished from time rate, recommend minimum piece rates as well as minimum time rate and recommend such minimum piece rates as will, in its judgment, be adequate to supply the necessary cost of living to women workers in such occupation of average ordinary ability and to maintain them in health and protect their morals; and (2) shall, when it appears proper or necessary, recommend suitable minimum wages for learners and apprentices in such occupation and the maximum length of time any woman worker may be kept at such wages as a learner or apprentice, which wages shall be less than the regular minimum wages recommended for the regular women workers in such occupation. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 963, ch. 174, title I, § 11.)

§ 36-411. Action of Board—Public hearings.

Upon receipt of any report from any conference, the Board shall consider and review the recommendations, and may approve or disapprove any or all of such recommendations, and may resubmit to the same conference, or a new conference, any subject covered by any recommendations so disapproved.

If the Board approves any recommendations contained in any report from any conference, it shall publish a notice, once a week, for four successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation printed in the District of Columbia, that it will, on a date and at a place named in the notice, hold a public hearing at which all persons in favor of or opposed to such recommendations will be heard.

After such hearing the Board may, in its discretion, make and render such an order as may be proper or necessary to adopt such recommendations and carry them into effect, requiring all employers in the occupation affected thereby to observe and comply with such order. Such order shall become effective sixty days after it is made. After such order becomes effective, and while it is effective, it shall be unlawful for any employer to violate or disregard any of its terms or provisions, or to employ any woman worker in any occupation covered by such order at lower wages than are authorized or permitted therein.

The Board shall, as far as is practicable, mail a copy of such order to every employer affected thereby; and ever employer affected by any such order shall keep a copy thereof posted in a conspicuous place in each room in his establishment in which women workers are employed. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 963, ch. 174, title I, § 12.)

§ 36-412. Licenses for less than time-rate standard.

For any occupation in which only a minimum time-rate wage has been established, the board may issue to a woman whose earning capacity has been impaired by age or otherwise, a special license authorizing her employment as such wage less than such minimum time-rate wage as shall be fixed by the Board and stated in the license. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 963, ch. 174, title I, § 13.)

§ 36-413. Determination of minimum wages for minors.

The board may at any time inquire into wages of minors employed in any occupation in the District of Columbia, and determine suitable wages for them. When the board has made such determination it may make such an order as may be proper or necessary to carry such determination into effect. Such order shall become effective sixty days after it is made; and after such order becomes effective and while it is effective it shall be unlawful for any employer in such occupation to employ a minor at less wages than are specified or required in or by such order. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 963, ch. 174, title I, § 14.)

§ 36-414. Separate inquiries.

Any conference may make a separate inquiry into and report on any branch of any occupation, and the board may make a separate order affecting any branch of any occupation. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 964, ch. 174, title I, § 15.)

§ 36-415. Investigations.

The board shall from time to time investigate and ascertain whether or not employers in the District of Columbia are observing and complying with its orders, and shall report to the corporation counsel of the District of Columbia all violations of this chapter. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 964, ch. 174, title I, § 16.)

§ 36-416. Decisions of fact by board final—Appeals on questions of law.

All questions of fact arising under the foregoing provisions of this subchapter shall, except as otherwise herein provided, be determined by the board, and there shall be no appeal from the decision of the board on any such question of fact; but there shall be a right of appeal from the board to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia from any ruling or holding on a question of law included or embodied in any decision or order of the board; and, on the same question of law, from such court to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. In all such appeals the corporation counsel shall appear for and represent the board. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 964, ch. 174, title I, § 17; June 7, 1934, 48 Stat. 926, ch. 426; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127.)

§ 36-417. Penalties for violations.

Whoever violates this subchapter, whether an employer or his agent, or the director, officer, or agent of any corporation, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100 or by imprisonment not less than ten days nor more than three months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 964, ch. 174, title I, § 18.)

§ 36-418. Penalties for discrimination by employer against employee who testifies.

Any employer and his agent, or the director, officer, or agent of any corporation who discharges or in any other manner discriminates against any employee because such employee has served or is about to serve on any conference or has testified or is about to testify, or because such employer believes that said employee may serve on any conference or may testify in any investigation or proceedings under or relative to this subchapter shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 964, ch. 174, title I, § 19.)

§ 36-419. Employers responsible for acts of agents.

Any act which, if done or omitted to be done by any agent or officer or director acting for such employer, would constitute a violation of this subchapter, shall also be held to be a violation by the employer and subject such employer to the liability provided for by this subchapter. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 964, ch. 174, title I, § 20.)

§ 36-420. Jurisdiction of District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Prosecutions for violations of this subchapter shall be on information filed in the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions by the corporation counsel. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 964, ch. 174, title I, § 21; April 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1.)

§ 36-421. Civil action to recover if less than minimum wage paid.

If any woman worker is paid by her employer less than the minimum wage to which she is entitled under or by virtue of an order of the board, she may recover in a civil action the full amount of such minimum wage, less any amount actually paid to her by the employer, together with such reasonable attorney's fees as may be allowed by the court; and any agreement for her to work for less than such minimum wage shall be no defense to such action. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 964, ch. 174, title I, § 22.)

§ 36-422. Short title—Purpose.

This chapter shall be known as the "District of Columbia Minimum-Wage Law." The purposes of the subchapter are to protect the women and minors of the District from conditions detrimental to their health and morals, resulting from wages which are inadequate to maintain decent standards of living; and the chapter in each of its provisions and in its entirety shall be interpreted to effectuate these purposes. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 964, ch. 174, title I, § 23.)

SUBCHAPTER I.—MINIMUM WAGES

Sections 36-401 et seq., as generally amended by act Oct. 15, 1966, Pub. L. 89-684, and stating the present law relating to minimum wages in the District, are set out below.

SUBCHAPTER REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This subchapter is referred to in section 36-433.

§ 36-401. Findings and declaration of policy.

(a) The Congress hereby finds that there are persons employed in some occupations in the District of Columbia at wages insufficient to provide adequate maintenance and to protect health. Such employment impairs the health, efficiency, and well-being of the persons so employed, constitutes unfair competition against other employers and their employees, threatens the stability of industry, reduces the purchasing power of employees, and requires in many instances, that their wages be supplemented by the payment of public moneys for relief of other public and private assistance. Employment of persons at these insufficient rates of pay threatens the health and well-being of the people of the District of Columbia and injures the overall economy.

(b) It is hereby declared to be the policy of this subchapter to correct and as rapidly as practicable to eliminate the conditions referred to above. (Sept.

19, 1918, 40 Stat. 960, ch. 174, title I, § 1; Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 1; Oct. 5, 1966, 80 Stat. 961, Pub. L. 89-684, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

1966—Act Oct. 15, 1966, substituted entirely different provisions. See 1966 amendment note preceding this section. Former provisions (§ 1 of 1918 act) set out definitions.

1941—Act Oct. 14, 1941, changed name of Minimum Wage Board to Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, in former provisions of this section. See 1966 amendment note above, also 1966 amendment note preceding this section.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1966 AMENDMENT

Section 4 of act Oct. 15, 1966, 80 Stat. 971, Pub. L. 89-684, provided:

For short title of this subchapter, see § 36-419.

DELEGATION OF FUNCTIONS

Section 2 of act Oct. 15, 1966, 80 Stat. 970, Pub. L. 89-684, provided: "No amendments made by this Act [amending this subchapter generally (see 1966 amendment note preceding this section) and enacting § 36-309a] shall be construed so as to affect the authority vested in the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia by Reorganization Plan Numbered 5 of 1952 (66 Stat. 824) [set out in appendix I to title I of this Code]. The performance of any function vested by this Act or by amendments made by this Act in the Board of Commissioners or in any office or agency under the jurisdiction and control of said Board of Commissioners may be delegated by said Board of Commissioners in accordance with section 3 of such plan, except the function of making and adopting regulations to carry out the purposes of this Act or of any amendment made by this Act."

For abolishment of Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, created under former provisions of § 36-402, and transfer of its functions to Commissioners of District of Columbia, and re-establishment of such Board and delegation to it of some of the functions so transferred, see 1952 Reorg. Plan No. 5, set out in the appendix to title 1 of this Code, Commissioners' Reorg. Order No. 36, June 16, 1953, as amended, and Commissioner's Order [Org. ### NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

The Minimum Wage Law of the District of Columbia contemplates issuance of orders by the Minimum Wage Board on an occupational basis. Chambers v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 89 A. 2d 636).

A statute which authorizes a commission, after hearing representatives of employers and employees together with disinterested persons representing the public, to establish such minimum standards of wages and conditions of labor for women and minors as it shall consider reasonable and not detrimental to health and morals and which shall be sufficient for the decent maintenance of women; and to grant special licenses for the employment of apprentices and women who are physically defective or crippled by age or otherwise at less than the prescribed minimum wage is not unconstitutional. West Coast Hotel Co. v. Parrish (1937, 57 S. Ct. 578, 300 U.S. 379, 81 L. Ed. 703, 108 A.L.R. 1330).

Appeals

Where defendants were found guilty on 18 counts of information for violation of Minimum Wage Law, and fine of $25 was imposed under each count, but fines under 14 counts were made concurrent with fines under other counts, so that result was that fines totaled $100, action of Municipal Court would be deemed the entering of one judgment in excess of $50, and therefore it was not necessary for defendants to comply with statute providing that reviews of judgments in criminal branch of Municipal Court, where penalty imposed is less than $50, shall be by application for allowance of appeal within 3 days from date of judgment. Chambers v. District of Columbia (1952, 194 F.2d 336, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 153).

Basis of orders

Classification of occupations

Order of the Minimum Wage Board of the District of Columbia covering certain named occupations as well as a "miscellaneous" category is invalid under Minimum Wage Law of the District of Columbia, prescribing an occupational basis for classification of workers. District of Columbia v. Chambers et al. (1953, 207 F.2d 14, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 296).

The Minimum Wage Board of the District of Columbia may use its discretion in the classification of occupations under the Minimum Wage Law so long as there is a reasonable basis for such classification, but a lumping together of all unclassified or miscellaneous occupations as one occupation is not a reasonable classification. Chambers v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 89 A.2d 636).

Order of the Minimum Wage Board under the Minimum Wage Law of the District of Columbia placing in one class stenographers, bookkeepers, typists, clerks, cashiers, checkers, professional's assistants and attendants, laboratory mechanics and technicians, messengers, ushers, telegraph and telephone operators, and all similar workers is too broad in its coverage and is invalid. Id.

Constitutionality

A Supreme Court decision that District of Columbia Minimum Wage Law is unconstitutional did not repeal or abolish such law, which became effective, without reenactment by Congress, when effect of such decision was removed by Supreme Court's subsequent decision holding similar law of State of Washington constitutional and expressly overruling previous decision. Jawish v. Morlet (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A.2d 96).

Construction

The District of Columbia Minimum Wage Act [this subchapter] was intended to cover wages and hours of individuals working in transportation field solely within the District of Columbia, but does not apply to bus drivers who were engaged in interstate commerce, spending on the average 37.6 percent of working time in the District. K. C. Williams et al. v. W.M.A. Transit Company (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A.2d 261).

Construction

The District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board is entitled to use median wage level rather than entry-level income paid to those entering particular labor market as reference point in establishing minimum wage. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A.2d 307).

The District of Columbia Minimum Wage Act [this subchapter] was intended to cover wages and hours of individuals working in transportation field solely within the District of Columbia, but does not apply to bus drivers who were engaged in interstate commerce, spending on the average 37.6 percent of working time in the District. K. C. Williams et al. v. W.M.A. Transit Company (D.C. App. 1970, 268 A.2d 261).

§ 36-403. Minimum wage and overtime compensation—Workweek—Wage orders.

(a) (1) Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection, every employer shall pay to each of his employees (A) the wage established for each such employee in a wage order issued under this subsection, or (B) wages at the following rates:

(i) not less than $1.25 an hour during the year beginning February 1, 1967,

(ii) not less than $1.40 an hour during the year beginning February 1, 1968, and

(iii) not less than $1.60 an hour thereafter, whichever is higher.

(2) Every employer shall pay to each of his employees whose wage rates are governed by Minimum Wage Order Numbered 10 (effective August 15, 1964), as revised under subsection (c)(2) of this section, wages at the following rates:

(A) not less than $1.25 an hour during the year beginning August 1, 1967,

(B) not less than $1.40 an hour during the year beginning August 1, 1968, and

(C) not less than $1.60 an hour thereafter.

(b) (1) Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (2), no employer shall employ any of his employees—

(A) for a workweek longer than forty-two hours during the six month period beginning six months after the date of enactment of this subsection, or

(B) for a workweek longer than forty hours thereafter, unless such employee receives compensation for his employment in excess of the hours above specified at a rate not less than one and one-half times the regular rate at which he is employed.

(2) In the case of an employer whose employees' wage rates are governed by Minimum Wage Order Numbered 10 (effective August 15, 1964), as revised under subsection (c)(2) of this section, during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this paragraph and ending August 14, 1968, such employer shall compensate each such employee for employment in excess of forty hours in any workweek at the rate specified in such Wage Order. Beginning August 15, 1968, such employer shall compensate such employees for employment in excess of forty hours in any workweek at the rate established by the Commissioner after public hearing, which rate may be established without regard to the rate specified in paragraph (1) of this subsection.

(3) No employer shall be deemed to have violated subsection (b)(1) of this section by employing any employee of a retail or service establishment for a workweek in excess of the applicable workweek specified therein, if (A) the regular rate of pay of such employee is in excess of one and one-half times the minimum hourly rate applicable to him under subsection (a)(1) of this section, and (B) more than half his compensation for a representative period (not less than one month) represents commissions on goods or services. In determining the proportion of compensation representing commissions, all earnings resulting from the application of a bona fide commission rate shall be deemed commissions on goods or services without regard to whether the computed commissions exceed the draw or guarantee.

(c) (1) Each minimum wage order issued prior to February 1, 1967, shall remain in full force and effect. Except as provided in paragraph (2) of this subsection, the Commissioner shall by order revise each such wage order as follows:

(A) Effective February 1, 1967, each such wage order shall be revised to make it applicable to men as well as women employees.

(B) Effective February 1, 1967, each such wage order which provides for the payment of minimum wages below those prescribed in subsection (a)(1) of this section shall be revised to provide for the payment of minimum wages in accordance with such subsection.

(C) Effective six months from the date of enactment of the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Amendments Act of 1966, each such wage order which does not provide for the payment of overtime compensation, or which does not require the payment to an employee of at least one and one-half his regular rate for his employment in excess of forty-two hours in a workweek, shall be revised to provide for the payment of overtime compensation in accordance with subsection (b)(1) of this section.

(2) The Commissioner shall modify Minimum Wage Order Numbered 10 (effective August 15, 1964), effective February 1, 1967, to apply to men as well as women employees. The Commissioner shall further modify such Wage Order to provide for the payment of minimum wages and overtime compensation in accordance with paragraph (2) of subsection (a) of this section and paragraph (2) of subsection (b) of this section.

(d) (1) For those occupations with respect to which, on the date of enactment of the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Amendments Act of 1966, there is no existing minimum wage order, the Commission shall order, effective February 1, 1967, providing for the payment of minimum wages as prescribed by subsection (a)(1) of this section and for the payment of overtime compensation as prescribed in subsection (b)(1) of this section.

(2) For those occupations with respect to which on the date of the enactment of the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Amendments Act of 1966 there is no existing minimum wage order, the Commissioner shall, with or without reference to an ad hoc advisory committee, make one or more wage orders which may include unrelated occupations. Such a wage order shall include (A) the minimum wage and overtime provisions prescribed in subsections (a) (1) and (b) (1) of this section, and (B) such definitions and regulations as the Commissioner may prescribe, in accordance with section 36-408, to prevent the circumvention or evasion of such order and to safeguard the minimum wage rates and overtime provisions established in this subchapter. The Commissioner shall publish a notice once a week, for four successive weeks, in a newspaper of general circulation printed in the District of Columbia, stating that he will, on a date and at a place named in the notice, hold a public hearing on such order at which all interested persons will be given a reasonable opportunity to be heard. Such notice shall contain a summary of the major provisions of such order. Within thirty days after such hearing, the Commissioner may issue such wage order as may be proper or necessary to effectuate the purposes of this subchapter. Notice of such order shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation printed in the District of Columbia and such order shall take effect upon the expiration of sixty days after the date on which such order was issued by the Commissioner, but not before February 1, 1967.

(e) The minimum wage orders issued by the Commissioner prior to February 1, 1967, shall be modified by the Commissioner on or after such date in order to include such regulations as the District of Columbia Council may prescribe in accordance with section 36-408. Such regulations shall take effect upon the expiration of thirty days after the date on which they were made by the Council, but not before February 1, 1967.

(f) A wage order under this subchapter may establish at any one time only one wage rate for the occupation or the classification of employees within an occupation, as the case may be, to which the wage order applies. § 36-406. Reconsideration and revision of wage orders—Ad hoc committees—Committee reports of findings and recommendations—Failure to report.

(a) At any time after a wage rate within a wage order has been in effect for one year the Commissioner may on his own motion reconsider such wage rate set in such wage order. If, after investigation, the Commissioner is of the opinion that any substantial number of workers in the occupation covered by such wage order are receiving wages insufficient to provide adequate maintenance and to protect health he may convene an ad hoc advisory committee for the purpose of considering and inquiring into and reporting to the Commissioner on the subject investigated by the Commissioner and submitted by him to such committee.

(b) The committee shall be composed of not more than three persons representing the employers in such occupation, of an equal number representing employees in such occupation, and of not more than three persons representing the public. The chairman of the agency designated by the Commissioner to administer this subchapter shall be an ex officio member of the Committee. Such agency shall name and appoint all the members of the committee and designate its chairman. Two-thirds of the members of the committee shall constitute a quorum, and any decision, recommendation, or report of the committee on the subject submitted to it shall require an affirmative vote of not less than a majority of all its members.

(c) The Commissioner shall present to the committee such information as he might have relating to the subject he submitted to the committee, and may cause to be brought before the committee any witnesses whose testimony the Commissioner considers material.

(d) Within sixty days after the convening of the committee by the Commissioner, the committee shall make and transmit to the Commissioner a report containing its findings and recommendations on the subject submitted to it by the Commissioner.

(e) The committee report shall include a recommendation for minimum wages for the employees in the occupation under consideration, but the minimum wage rates recommended shall not be less than those prescribed in subsection (a) (1) of section 36-403. In making such recommendation the committee shall take into consideration (1) the amount of wages sufficient to provide adequate maintenance and to protect health, (2) the fair and reasonable value of the work performed, and (3) the wages paid in the Washington metropolitan region by fair employers for work of like or comparable character. The committee report shall also include recommendations for reasonable allowances for board, lodging, or other facilities or services, customarily furnished by the employer to the employees, or reasonable allowances for gratuities customarily received by employees in any occupation in which gratuities have customarily and usually constituted and have been recognized as a part of the remuneration for hiring purposes. The committee report may also recommend suitable minimum wages for learners and apprentices in the occupation under consideration, where it appears proper or necessary, and may recommend the maximum length of time any such employee may be kept at such wages as a learner or apprentice. The minimum wages recommended for learners and apprentices may be less than the minimum wages recommended for other employees in such occupation. The committee may make a separate inquiry into and report on any branch of any occupation and may recommend different minimum wages for such branch of employment in the same occupation.

(f) If such committee fails to submit a report to the Commissioner within the period specified in subsection (d) of this section, the Commissioner may (1) discharge such committee from further consideration of the subject submitted to it and convene a new committee for the purpose of considering such subject, or (2) consider the subject without the recommendations of an ad hoc advisory committee and prepare and publish a revised wage order for the occupation in accordance with the procedure specified in section 36-407 and after taking into consideration the matters referred to in the second sentence of subsection (e). (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat.

AMENDMENTS

1971—Section 703(c) of Act Jan. 5, 1971, Pub. L. 91-650, amended section as follows:

(1) The first sentence of subsection (a) of such section is amended (A) by striking out "wage order" the first time it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "wage rate within a wage order", and (B) by striking out "the wage rates" and inserting in lieu thereof "such wage rate".

(2) The first sentence of subsection (b) of such section is amended (A) by inserting "and" immediately after "occupation," the second time it occurs, and (B) by striking out ", and one or more representatives of the agency designated by the Commissioners to administer this subchapter." and inserting in lieu thereof a period and the following: "The chairman of the agency designated by the Commissioner to administer this subchapter shall be an ex officio member of the committee."

(3) Clause (3) of the second sentence of subsection (e) of such section is amended by striking out "District of Columbia" and inserting in lieu thereof "Washington metropolitan region".

(4) Subsection (f) of such section is amended by inserting immediately before the period at the end thereof the following: "and after taking into consideration the matters referred to in the second sentence of subsection (e)".

1966—Act Oct. 15, 1966, substituted entirely different provisions. See 1966 amendment note preceding § 36-401. Former provisions (§ 6 of 1918 act) related to submission of annual reports by Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board to Board of Commissioners of District of Columbia.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 36-402, 36-407.

Construction

The District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board is entitled to use median wage level rather than entry-level income paid to those entering particular labor market as reference point in establishing minimum wage. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

It is the wage order and not the wage rate that must be in effect for one year before Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board may reconsider existing wage rate. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

Discretion

The establishment of lower minimum wage rate for handicapped, apprentice and minor employees is within the discretion of District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

Evidence—Sufficiency

The findings of the District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board that wage rate adopted was required to provide adequate maintenance to protect health, and that rate was commensurate with fair and reasonable value of work performed and with that paid in District of Columbia by fair employers for work of like or comparable character were supported by substantial evidence. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

Jurisdiction

The Court held that the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board was not without jurisdiction to reconsider wage rate of existing wage order by reason of fact that such rate had been in effect less than one year. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

Sufficiency of findings of fact

The court held that all interested parties are entitled to know and District of Columbia Court of Appeals, on review, must know basis and reasons for action of Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board in issuing wage order. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

In this case the findings of fact consisting of only finding relating to general minimum weekly wage of $81.28 as sufficient to provide adequate maintenance and to protect health and finding that minimum wage in retail trade occupation should not be less than $2.00 an hour based on prescribed 40-hour work week were insufficient to support wage order issued by Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board. Id.

§ 36-407. Issuance of revised wage orders—Notice and hearing—Notice and effective date of orders—Contents of orders—Restrictions.

(a) Upon receipt of the report from the ad hoc advisory committee, or upon the discharge of such committee, in accordance with section 36-406(f), the Commissioner may prepare a proposed revised wage order for the occupation, giving due consideration to any recommendations contained in the report of such committee. In such order the Commissioner shall provide, among other things, such allowances as are recommended in the report. The Commissioner shall publish a notice once a week, for four successive weeks, in a newspaper of general circulation printed in the District of Columbia, stating that he will, on a date and at a place named in the notice, hold a public hearing at which all interested persons will be given a reasonable opportunity to be heard. Such notice shall contain a summary of the major provisions of the proposed revised wage order.

(b) Within thirty days after such hearing, the Commissioner may make such an order as may be proper or necessary to effectuate the purposes of this subchapter. Notice of such order shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation printed in the District of Columbia and such order shall take effect upon the expiration of sixty days after the date on which such order was made by the Commissioner.

(c) A wage order issued under this section shall define the occupation and classifications to which it is to apply, and shall contain such terms and conditions as the Commissioner finds necessary to (1) carry out the purposes of such order, (2) to prevent the circumvention or evasion of it, and (3) to safeguard the minimum wage rates and overtime compensation established in it.

(d) Nothing in this subchapter shall be construed so as to authorize the Commissioner to establish a minimum weekly wage which would require an employer to pay an employee in any week an amount greater than the amount such employer would have to pay such employee under section 36-403 for the hours worked in such week. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 962, ch. 74, title I, § 7; Oct. 15, 1966, 80 Stat. 966, Pub. L. 89-684, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

1966—Act Oct. 15, 1966, substituted entirely different provisions. See 1966 amendment note preceding § 36-401. Former provisions (§ 7 of 1918 act, which was not classified to Code) authorized maximum appropriation of $5,000 for fiscal year 1919, to carry into effect provisions of that act. Former provisions of this section (§ 8 of 1918 act) related to power of Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board to investigate and ascertain wages of women and minors, to the keeping of registers by employers, and to the furnishing of information and statistics by Board of Commissioners of District of Columbia. In former provisions of § 36-401, women had been defined as including only women of 18 years of age or over, and minors had been defined as persons of either sex under the age of 18 years.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1966 AMENDMENT

See note under § 36-401.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

CROSS REFERENCE

Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board created under former provisions of § 36-402, abolishment and transfer of functions to Commissioners, re-establishment and delegation thereto of certain functions so transferred, see Delegation of Functions note under § 36-401.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 36-402, 36-406.

Authority of Board

The current wage order containing sections covering definitions, minimum wage and overtime compensation, employees compensated by commissions, workers under age of 18, handicapped workers, apprentices, adult learners, minimum daily wages, split shifts, uniforms, travel expenses, deductions, allowances for meals and lodging, basis of payment, time of payment, required records and issuance of wage statements were not regulations and Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board did not exceed authority in issuing such order. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

Construction

This District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board need not supply the same evidence or review its experience with previous wage orders to re-establish the various abuses and means of circumvention previously proscribed each time it issues a new minimum wage order. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

The specific expression, in sections 36-408 (b) and (c) of matter for regulations to be made by Commissioners cannot be taken as an indication by Congress that such matters cannot also be subject of a wage order. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

"Order" and "regulations" defined

An "Order" under section 36-407 is used to establish basic minimum level of income for an occupation and classification with additional provisions to insure its compliance, whereas "regulations" are used to make certain that there is coordination between all other government agencies or to secure inter-occupational uniformity. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1969, 261 A. 2d 826).

Review

Since the employers did not challenge terms and conditions of minimum wage order before the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board, employers will not be heard to complain on judicial review of the order. L. Allentuck, t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

Validity of wage order

To be valid, the terms and conditions of minimum wage order need only be supported by determination of necessity. L. Allentuck t/a etc. and Larimer's, Inc. v. District of Columbia Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board (D.C. App. 1970, 264 A. 2d 307).

§ 36-408. Regulations of Council—Contents—Notice and hearing—Effective date.

(a) The District of Columbia Council shall make and revise such regulations, including definitions of terms, as it may deem appropriate to carry out the purposes of this subchapter or necessary to prevent its circumvention or evasion and to safeguard the minimum wage rates and the overtime provisions established in this subchapter.

(b) The Council shall make regulations—

(1) providing reasonable allowances for board, lodging, or services customarily furnished by employers to employees,

(2) providing reasonable allowances for gratuities in any occupation in which gratuities have customarily and usually constituted and have been recognized as part of the remuneration for hiring purposes, and

(3) providing allowances for such other special conditions or circumstances which may be usual in a particular employer-employee relationship.

(c) The Council may make regulations—

(1) defining and governing the employment of handicapped workers and workers under the age of 18 and providing minimum wages for such workers at a rate lower than that specified in section 36-403(a) (1),

(2) governing piece rates, bonuses, and commissions in relation to time rates,

(3) governing part-time rates,

(4) governing minimum daily wages,

(5) relating to wage provisions governing split shift and excessive spread of hours, and

(6) governing uniforms, tools, travel, and other items of expense incurred by employees as a condition of employment.

(d) Regulations or revisions thereof issued by the Council pursuant to this section shall be made only after a public hearing by the Council, subsequent to publication of a notice of the hearing at which interested persons may be heard. Such regulations or revisions shall, except as may otherwise be provided by the Council, take effect upon the expiration of thirty days after the date on which such regulations and revisions were made by the Council. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 962, ch. 174, title I, § 8; Oct. 15, 1966, 80 Stat. 966, Pub. L. 89-684, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

1966—Act Oct. 15, 1966, substituted entirely different provisions. See 1966 amendment note preceding § 36-401. Former provisions of this section (§ 9 of 1918 act) related to ascertainment and declaration of standards of wages for women and minors. For former provisions of § 8 of the 1918 act, see 1966 amendment note under § 36-407.

(a) Any person aggrieved by an order of the Commissioner issued under this subchapter may obtain a review of such order in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals by filing in such court, within sixty days after the issuance of such order, a written petition praying that the order of the Commissioner be modified or set aside in whole or in part. The review shall be governed by the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, secs. 1-1501 to 1-1510).

(b) The commencement of proceedings under subsection (a) shall not, unless specifically ordered by the court, operate as a stay of the Commissioner's order. The court shall not grant any stay of the order unless the person complaining or such order shall file in court an undertaking with a surety or sureties, satisfactory to the court, for the payment to the employees affected by the order, in the event such order

§ 36-415. Employee remedies—Liability of employer—Liquidated damages—Actions—Parties—Attorney fees and costs—Defenses—Assignment of claim—Supervision of payment—Waiver.

(a) Any employer who pays any employee less than the wage to which such employee is entitled under this subchapter or any order or regulation issued thereunder, shall be liable to such employee in the amount of such unpaid wages, and in an additional equal amount as liquidated damages, except that if, in any action commenced to recover such unpaid wages or liquidated damages, the employer shows to the satisfaction of the court that the act or omission giving rise to such action was in good faith and that he had reasonable grounds for believing that his act or omission was not a violation of this subchapter, the court may, in its sound discretion, award no liquidated damages, or award any amount thereof not to exceed the amount specified in this section. Action to recover such liability may be maintained in any court of competent jurisdiction in the District of Columbia by any one or more employees for and in behalf of himself or themselves and other employees similarly situated. No employee shall be a party plaintiff to any such action unless he gives his consent in writing to become such a party and such consent is filed in the court in which such action is brought. The court in such action shall allow a reasonable attorney's fee to be paid by the defendant, and costs of the action. Any agreement between an employer and an employee to work for less than the wages to which such employee is entitled under this subchapter or any order or regulation issued thereunder shall be no defense to any action to recover such unpaid wages or liquidated damages.

(b) At the written request of any employee paid less than the wage to which such employee is entitled under this subchapter or any order or regulation issued thereunder, the Commissioner may take an assignment of such wage claim in trust for the assigning employee and may bring any legal action necessary to collect such claim. In such an action, the defendant shall be required to pay the costs and such reasonable attorney's fees as may be allowed by the court.

(c) The Commissioner is authorized to supervise the payment of the unpaid wages owing to any employee under this subchapter or any order or regulation issued thereunder, and the agreement of any employee to accept such payment shall upon payment in full constitute a waiver by such employee of any right he may have under subsection (a) of this section to such unpaid wages and an additional equal amount as liquidated damages. (Sept. 19, 1918, 40 Stat. 964, ch. 174, title I, § 16; Oct. 15, 1966, 80 Stat. 969, Pub. L. 89-684, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

Former provisions of this section (§ 16 of 1918 act) directed Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board to investigate from time to time and ascertain if employers in the District were observing and complying with Board's orders, and to report all violations to Corporation Counsel. NOTES TO DECISIONS*Jurisdiction of court

District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, with a jurisdictional ceiling of $10,000 on actions for damages, did not have jurisdiction of action by District of Columbia against employer to recover $42,129.40 in wage claims assigned to it by employees assertedly aggrieved by failure of their employers to pay them compensation to which they were entitled under the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Act, notwithstanding claim that multiple claims should not be aggregated in determining jurisdictional amount where plaintiff is acting as assignee of claimants merely for purpose of collection, since the claims itemized were based on investigation of appropriate municipal agency and upon records retained by such agency, so that District government was much more than a nominal plaintiff. District of Columbia v. Diener's Linoleum and Tile Co., Inc. et ano. (D.C. App. 1971, 278 A. 2d 684).

District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, with a jurisdictional ceiling of $10,000 on actions for damages, did not have jurisdiction of action by District of Columbia government against employer to recover $12,299.68 in wage claims assigned to it by employees assertedly aggrieved by failure of employers to pay them compensation to which they were entitled under the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Act, but since the total and unpaid minimum and overtime wages was only $6,149.84, a figure well below jurisdictional maximum, case would be remanded to allow determination of question whether inclusion of liquidated damages in complaint was justified and, if unjustified, to allow District government to cure jurisdictional defect on motion to amend complaint by striking liquidated damages item. Id.

§ 36-416. Statute of limitations.

Any action commenced on or after the effective date of the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Amendments Act of 1966 to enforce any cause of action for unpaid wages or liquidated damages under this subchapter or any order or regulation issued thereunder may be commenced within three years after the cause of action accrued, and every such action shall be forever barred unless commenced within three years after the cause of action accrued. ## TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COUNCIL

Section 402(283) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the functions of the Board of Commissioners of (i) determining and fixing standards of safety in employment, places of employment, in the use of devices and safeguards, and in the use of practices, means, methods, operations, and processes of employment, and (ii) promulgating general rules and regulations and fixing minimum safety requirements, under this section to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of the Plan, set out in the appendix to title 1.

In general

Congress has power to impose on employer in District of Columbia duty to ascertain at his peril whether his equipment, used by employees, complies with set minimum safety standards. Davis v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 59 A. 2d 208).

Coverage of regulation

A regulation of District of Columbia Industrial Safety Board that general slope of cross grain in side rails of portable ladders should not exceed one inch in fifteen inches was directed to employers using ladders in district rather than ladder manufacturers or retailers who might be located in any part of nation. Davis v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 59 A. 2d 208).

Validity of regulations

A regulation of District of Columbia Industrial Safety Board that general slope of cross grain in wood side rails of portable ladders built to minimum dimensions should not exceed one inch in fifteen inches was not unreasonable, either in general or as applied to employer using or causing his employees to use a ladder having greater slope of grain. Davis v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 59 A 2d 208).

Unreasonableness of requirement in regulation of District of Columbia Industrial Safety Board as to ladders that wood used in side rails thereof be dried to not more than specified moisture content did not render entire regulation, including provision as to maximum general slope of cross grain in such rails, unreasonable. Id.

§ 36-434. Rules and regulations—Public hearing—Publication—Effective date.

Before any rules or regulations of the District of Columbia Council shall become effective a public hearing shall be held by the Council for the purpose of investigating reasonable standards of safety in employment, places of employment, in the use of devices and safeguards, and in the use of practices, means, methods, operations, and processes of employment, and any person interested in the matter being investigated may appear and testify. If, after investigation, the Council is of the opinion that minimum standards of safety requirements are necessary to protect or safeguard the lives or health of employees covered by this subchapter, it may adopt and promulgate such rules and regulations as it may deem advisable, which shall become effective thirty days after publication of notice at least once in a newspaper of general circulation in the District of Columbia that they have been adopted and copies are available to the public at the office of the Commissioner of the District of Columbia. (Sept. 19, 1918, ch. 174, title II, § 4, as added Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 4, and amended June 14, 1944, 58 Stat. 279, ch. 258.)

AMENDMENT

1944—Act June 14, 1944, amended section by deleting "they have been published at least once in two of the daily newspapers of general circulation in the District of Columbia.", and inserting in lieu thereof "publication of notice * * * office of the Board."

Filing and publishing of rules, see § 1-1506.

Violation of safety regulations

Evidence sustained conviction for violations of certain safety regulations in connection with construction of a storm water sewer, based on defendant's failure to adequately shore a trench more than 15 feet in depth and 10 feet in length, in violation of safety standards. East River Construction Corp. v. Dist. of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 160 A. 2d 389).

§ 36-435. Authority to take testimony—Subpoena.

Any member of the Board shall have power to administer oaths and the Board may require by subpoena the attendance and testimony of witnesses, the production of all books, registers, and other evidence relative to any matters under investigation, at any public hearing, or at any session or any conference held by the Board. In case of disobedience to a subpoena the Board may invoke the Superior Court of the District of Columbia in requiring the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documentary evidence. In the case of contumacy or refusal to obey a subpoena, the court may issue an order requiring appearance before the Board, the production of documentary evidence and the giving of evidence touching the matter in question, and any failure to obey such order of the court may be punished by such court as a contempt thereof. (Sept. 19, 1918, ch. 174, title II, § 5, as added Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 3, and amended June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 232(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(c) (38), 84 Stat. 572.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, as amended by act May 24, 1949, substituted "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" for "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia."

§ 36-436. Variations by employers from regulations.

The Board may, upon written application of any employer affected by such rule or regulation, permit variations from any provisions thereof if it shall find that the application of such provision would result in unnecessary hardship or practical difficulty, and notwithstanding such variance, that the protection afforded by such rule or regulation will be provided. The Board may grant a hearing open to the public on such application upon request of the applicant or other interested party or parties, or on its own initiative. The Board's decision thereon shall be subject to review by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals upon petition of the applicant or other affected party or parties. The Board shall keep a properly indexed record of all variations permitted from any rule or regulation, which shall be open to public inspection. (Sept. 19, 1918, ch. 174, title II, § 6, as added Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 3; Jan. 5, 1971, Pub. L. 91-650, title V, § 501(3), 84 Stat. 1936.)

AMENDMENT

1971—Section 501(3) of act Jan. 5, 1971, Pub. L. 91-650, amended section generally. For provisions of section before this amendment, see 1967 edition of the code.

SEPARABILITY, AUTHORITY OF COMMISSIONER AND COUNCIL, DELEGATION OF FUNCTIONS, AND SAVINGS PROVISIONS OF PUB. L. 91-650

§ 36-437. Employment of Director of Industrial Safety—Compensation—Duties.

The Board is hereby authorized to employ a Director of Industrial Safety, who shall not be a member of the Board and whose compensation shall be fixed in accordance with chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]. The Director shall perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Board in administering the provisions of this subchapter. (Sept. 19, 1918, ch. 174, title II, § 7, as added Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 3, and amended Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 972, ch. 782, title XI, § 1106(a).)

CODIFICATION

The reference in this section to "chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]" was substituted for "the Classification Act of 1949, as amended", on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, set out in note under § 1-251. The Classification Act of 1949, as amended (Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 954, ch. 782, as amended), was repealed by act Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a) (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law), and is now covered by the provisions of title 5, U.S.C., cited.

AMENDMENT

1949—Act Oct. 28, 1949, § 1106(a), which was a part of the Classification Act of 1949, and which has since been repealed, substituted "Classification Act of 1949" for "Classification Act of 1923". See codification note above.

§ 36-438. Employers' duties—Furnish safe place of employment—Furnish required information—Report employees' injury, death, or disease—Record of employees.

(a) Every employer shall furnish a place of employment which shall be reasonably safe for employees, shall furnish and use safety devices and safeguards, and shall adopt and use practices, means, methods, operations, and processes which are reasonably safe and adequate to render such employment and place of employment reasonably safe.

(b) Every employer shall furnish to the Board any information which the Board is authorized to require and shall make true and specific answers to all questions.

(c) Every employer shall submit to the Board within ten days from the date of any injury or death, or from the date that the employer has knowledge of any disease or infection resulting from any injury, a duplicate copy of the report provided for in section 930 of title 33, U.S. Code, as made applicable to the District of Columbia by sections 36-501 and 36-502.

(d) Every employer shall keep an accurate record of every person employed by him so as to be able in case of accident immediately to give an accurate record relative to same. (Sept. 19, 1918, ch. 174, title II, § 8, as added Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 3.)

§ 36-439. Authority to examine place of employment.

(a)<sup>1</sup> The Board, or any officer or employee acting under its authority, shall have the authority, at any reasonable time, to enter any place where an employment covered by this subchapter is being carried on, and to examine any structure, tool, appliance, machinery, or process used in or connected with such employment. No employer or other persons shall refuse to admit any member of the Board or its authorized representative to any such place or to permit any such examination. (Sept. 19, 1918, ch. 174, title II, § 9, as added Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 3.)

§ 36-440. Office space and supplies for Board.

The Commissioner of the District of Columbia shall furnish the Board with such office space, furniture and equipment, stationery, books, books of reference, and other supplies as are necessary for the discharge of its duties under this subchapter. (Sept. 19, 1918, ch. 174, title II, § 10, as added Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 3.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

§ 36-441. Annual report to Commissioner.

The Board shall annually, on or before the 1st day of July, file with the Commissioner of the District of Columbia a report covering its activities under this subchapter. (Sept. 19, 1918, ch. 174, title II, § 11, as added Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 3.)

§ 36-442. Penalties for violations of subchapter—Jurisdiction.

Whoever violates any of the provisions of this subchapter, or any rules or regulations promulgated hereunder, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 or more than $600, or by imprisonment of not exceeding ninety days. Prosecutions for violations of this subchapter shall be in the name of the District of Columbia on information filed in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia by the corporation counsel or one of his assistants. (Sept. 19, 1918, ch. 174, title II, § 12, as added Oct. 14, 1941, 55 Stat. 738, ch. 438, § 3, and amended Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 155(a), 84 Stat. 570; Jan. 5, 1971, Pub. L. 91-650, title V, § 501(4), 84 Stat. 1936.)

AMENDMENTS

1971—Section 501(4) of act Jan. 5, 1971, Pub. L. 91-650, struck out "more than $300" and inserted in lieu thereof "less than $100 or more than $600".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding § 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

"Municipal Court for the District of Columbia" was substituted for "police court of the District of Columbia" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the Police Court and the Municipal Court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "Municipal Court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof

The burden is on employer, charged with violation of District of Columbia Industrial Safety Board's regulation, with its general authority, as to slope of cross grain in wood side rails of ladders, to demonstrate clearly that regulation is beyond board's delegated authority or so unreasonable as to be void. Davis v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 59 A. 2d 208).

Scienter

Since Congress used no words bearing on specific intent in penalty provision of this section governing industrial safety of wage earners, the government was not required to prove that excavation corporation, charged with violating District of Columbia construction safety regulations requiring self-propelled equipment to be equipped with reverse signal alarm and requiring overhead protection to be provided for operator when equipment is used when falling or flying objects are a hazard, knew of such violations. Hutchison Brothers Excavation Co., Inc. v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1971, 278 A. 2d 318).

Witnesses

One who had been an inspector for industrial safety board of District of Columbia for over five years, had previously been employed as carpenter, iron worker and rigger for large construction company for over thirty years, and was member of carpenters' and iron workers' unions, was qualified to testify as expert that side rail of ladder showed cross grain of one inch in five inches in violation of board's regulation that slope of cross grain should not exceed one inch in fifteen inches. Davis v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 59 A. 2d 208).

Chapter 5.—WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Sec.

36-501. Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act made applicable to District of Columbia.

36-502. Exceptions.

The provisions of chapter 18 of title 33, U.S. Code, including all amendments that may hereafter be made thereto, shall apply in respect to the injury or death of an employee of an employer carrying on any employment in the District of Columbia, irrespective of the place where the injury or death occurs; except that in applying such provisions the term "employer" shall be held to mean every person carrying on any employment in the District of Columbia, and the term "employee" shall be held to mean every employee of any such person. (May 17, 1928, 45 Stat. 600, ch. 612, § 1.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 3 of act May 17, 1928, provided that: "This Act [adding this section and section 36-502] shall take effect July 1, 1928."

CROSS REFERENCE

Action for wrongful death, generally see § 16-2701 et seq.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 36-438, 46-303.

Abatement

Where all matured installments had been paid at the date of compensation claimant's death without dependents the unmatured portion of the award abated. Turner v. Christian Heurich Brewing Co. (1948, 169 F. 2d 681, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 333).

Accidental injury

Death of employee, who worked in mailing department of magazine publisher and who suffered from angina pectoris and whose work involved dragging heavy mail bags about 25 feet, "arose out of and in the course of his employment" and was due to "an accidental injury" within the meaning of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. M. T. Hancock, etc. v. C. Einbinder, Deputy Commissioner, etc. (1962, 310 F. 2d 872, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 67).

"Accidental injury" includes any injury which is unexpected or not designed, and just as much includes injury sustained by an employee subject to physical infirmities as injury to one who is strong and robust. Commercial Casualty Ins. Co. v. Hoage (1935, 75 F. 2d 677, 64 App. D. C. 158).

The evidence, particularly the testimony of the physician, justified the deputy commissioner in ruling that the paralysis was the natural result of the accidental injury. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. v. Hoage (1934, 69 F. 2d 575, 63 App. D. C. 89).

Action at law

Where employer fails to secure workmen's compensation coverage and the employee files an action at law to recover for injuries sustained in course of his employment, the statute abolishes the ordinarily available defenses of contributory negligence, assumption of risk of employment, or that the cause was a fellow-employee's negligence, but beyond that there is no change in common-law rights and liabilities. Howard v. Lightner (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A. 2d 474).

An employee who elects to bring action at law against employer who failed to secure payment of compensation as required by section 932 of title 33, U. S. Code as authorized by section 905 of such title has affirmative duty of showing negligence equally as great as in any other tort action. Garcia v. De Leon (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 59 A. 2d 637).

Aggravation of illness

Aggravation of a pre-existing condition may constitute compensable accidental injury under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Deputy commissioner's findings that injury of September 29, 1958 caused aggravation of pre-existing osteoarthritis of right hip of claimant who had received a subsequent injury on February 4, 1961 and that need for subsequent injections into hip joint was due to injury of September 29, 1958 were not supported by substantial evidence. Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Co., et al. v. C. Einbinder, Deputy Commissioner etc. (1965, 343 F. 2d 338, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

In suit by widow to set aside denial of benefits for death of husband who had been awarded compensation as having been totally and permanently disabled while on job by unexpected overexertion which materially aggravated preexisting aneurysm of abdominal aorta, evidence established that exertion materially aggravated diseased aortic condition, and that disabling effect of injury continued until death, and aggravation of preexisting aneurysm of abdominal aorta, caused by unexpected overexertion, constituted "accidental injury" within meaning of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. Friend v. Britton (1955, 220 F. 2d 820, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 139, certiorari denied 76 S. Ct. 72, 350 U. S. 836, 100 L. Ed. 745).

Where deceased's conduct demonstrates a sudden change in a pre-existing illness, the question arises whether that illness had been aggravated by the employment; and where upon a truck driver's return from a long and arduous trip he suddenly became obsessed with idea that he was being pursued by mob, with result that he was confined in jail, and was thereafter shot by police officer whom truck driver had violently attacked, wherein there was evidence of pre-existing nervous disorder, evidence was sufficient to warrant conclusion that death arose out of and in the course of employment. Robinson v. Bradshaw (1953, 206 F. 2d 435, 92 U. S. App. D. C. 216, certiorari denied 74 S. Ct. 226, 346 U. S. 899, 98 L. Ed. 399).

If an illness which itself is unrelated to the employment is nevertheless aggravated thereby and death is result, then the death is the result of an injury within the meaning of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, which is the compensation statute applicable in District of Columbia. Id.

Application of statute

A workmen's compensation statute must be liberally construed and applied in favor of the workman. Great American Indemnity Co. et al. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 186 F. Supp. 938).

Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act is to be construed with view to its beneficent purposes, and doubts, including the factual, are to be resolved in favor of the employee or his dependent family. Friend v. Britton (1955, 220 F. 2d 820, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 139, certiorari denied 76 S. Ct. 72, 350 U. S. 836, 100 L. Ed. 745).

Workmen's compensation acts are remedial statutes and must be liberally construed in favor of injured employees or deceased employees' dependent families. Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. et al. v. Donovan et al. (D.C.D.C. 1954, 124 F. Supp. 320).

Congress did not, by enactment of wrongful death statute and compensation act applicable to District of Columbia, intend to create two separate and independent causes of action for wrongful death, and there was no intention to allow a widow of an injured employee to recover from the employer under both acts. Ciarrocchi v. James Kane Co. et al. (D.C.D.C. 1954, 116 F. Supp. 848).

Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act is remedial in character and is to be liberally construed, with doubts being resolved in favor of the employee or his dependent family. Robinson v. Bradshaw (1953, 206 F. 2d 435, 92 U. S. App. D. C. 216, certiorari denied 74 S. Ct. 226, 346 U. S. 899, 98 L. Ed. 399).

Death benefits under amendatory provision of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act which increased benefits payable and which stipulated that increase should be applicable only to injuries or death occurring on or after effective date of amendment, were payable for death of employee which occurred after effective date but which resulted from injury which happened prior to effective date. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Toner et al. (1951, 190 F. 2d 30, 89 U. S. App. D. C. 77, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 48, 342 U. S. 826, 96 L. Ed. 624).

Where subcontractor and its employee, who were both residents of the District of Columbia, entered into a contract of employment in the District of Columbia, and employee was injured in Virginia because of alleged negligence of general contractor, and employee and subcontractor's insurer, which had paid workmen's compensation to employee, sought recovery in Virginia from general contractor, on ground that general contractor negligently caused employee's injuries, courts in Virginia, including federal tribunals, could treat the District of Columbia Compensation Law with its privilege of suing the general contractor as a constituent of employee's contract of employment. Liberty Mutual Ins. Co. v. Goode Const. Co. (D.C.D.C. 1951, 97 F. Supp. 316).

Where subcontractor and its employee, who were both residents of the District of Columbia, entered into a contract of employment in the District of Columbia, and employee was injured in Virginia because of alleged negligence of general contractor, employee and subcontractor's insurer which had paid workmen's compensation to employee, were entitled to maintain action in federal district court in Virginia against general contractor, on ground that general contractor negligently caused employee's injuries, though such action was not maintainable under Virginia compensation law. Id.

Where appellant was injured while working in appellee's car barn, he could not recover under § 44-401 of the Code since this section has become the applicable workman's compensation act for the District and appellee was not a common carrier by railroad and is excepted from the operation of this section. Keffer v. Capital Transit Co. (1950, 183 F. 2d 808, 87 U. S. App. D. C. 13).

New York authorities interpreting New York Compensation Act, McKinney's Workmen's Compensation Law § 1 et seq., are particularly important in construing section 901 et seq. of title 33, U. S. Code, since former Act served as model for latter, which was made applicable to District of Columbia by this section. Garcia v. De Leon (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 59 A. 2d 637).

Generally, employer must compensate workman for consequences of an accident although his previous defects cooperated in producing them, and a statute creating exceptions to that general principle should be narrowly construed. National Homeopathic Hospital Ass'n of Dist. of Col. v. Britton (1945, 147 F. 2d 561, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 309, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1185, 325 U. S. 857, 89 L. Ed. 1977).

Where salesman's office was in District of Columbia, though his selling contacts were largely outside and his time was nearly equally divided between the two, this section affording him protection for injuries while traveling outside the district in connection with his employment was valid and within power of Congress. B. F. Goodrich Co. v. Britton (1944, 139 F. 2d 362, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 221).

Whether employer was at time of injury engaged in business in District of Columbia and whether deceased was an employee within District in carrying on of the business, and when injured was performing services in connection with the employment, were important considerations in determining whether this section was applicable. Id.

An intent to bar compensation claims before they arise cannot fairly be imputed to Congress. Potomac Elec. Power Co. v. Cardillo (1940, 107 F. 2d 962, 71 App. D. C. 163).

Under the United States Employees' Compensation Act an injured employee of the United States has his sole remedy. Posey v. Tennessee Valley Authority (C.C.A. 5, 1938, 93 F. 2d 726).

There is no substantial reason for denying the District the right to enforce its own law in its own courts, and that in the circumstances the full faith and credit clause does not require that the statutes of Alabama be given effect. United States Casualty Co. v. Hoage (1935, 77 F. 2d 542, 64 App. D. C. 284).

To bring the case within the terms of the Employers' Liability Act, the defendant must have been at the time of the injury engaged as a common carrier in interstate commerce or commerce solely within the District, and the plaintiff-employee must have been employed by a carrier in such commerce or in work so closely related to it as to be practically a part of it. Poff v. Washington Terminal Co. (1934, 69 F. 2d 572, 63 App. D. C. 86).

Apportionment

Where death was validly found to have been attributable equally to two successive injuries occurring within scope of employment by different employers, liability was properly to be apportioned equally between employers and their respective insurers insofar as death benefits and medical and funeral expenses were concerned. United Painters & Decorators et al. v. T. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (1962, 301 F. 2d 560, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 236).

Assumption of risk

A ride by employee on running board of dump truck was not so obviously dangerous or risky a method of traveling a few hundred feet that employee assumed risk of injury. Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp. v. Britton (1946, 152 F. 2d 17, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 260).

Award

Claimant who had lost use of right hand for all but lightest work, and who was permanently totally disabled, is not limited, under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act, to the scheduled award for loss of hand. American Mutual Insurance Company of Boston et ano. v. W. B. Jones (1970, 426 F. 2d 1263, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 269).

Where employee fell in course of his work and fractured right kneecap, but previous accidents, none of them connected with any employment, had fractured same kneecap and had led to amputation of left leg and left arm, and the fracture caused by the fall, combined with the previous fracture and amputations, caused permanent total disability, the employee was properly awarded compensation based on permanent total disability and on his earning capacity at time of the fall. National Homeopathic Hospital Ass'n of Dist. of Col. v. Britton (1945, 147 F. 2d 561, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 309, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1185, 325 U. S. 857, 89 L. Ed. 1977).

When employee had hernia which caused disability, at first apparently temporary but later becoming permanent, this change is sufficient to support the modification of an award. New Amsterdam Casualty Co. v. Cardillo (1940, 108 F. 2d 492, 71 App. D.C. 172).

Medical and similar benefits which the employer is required to furnish are not to be counted in applying the $7,500 limit of "total compensation" payable for death or injury, and it follows that compensation acts are to be "construed liberally in furtherance of the purpose for which they were enacted." Cardillo v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1939, 101 F. 2d 254, 69 App. D. C. 330).

Wage-earning capacity of the employee was diminished by reason of the injuries sustained by him in the course of and arising out of his employment. Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. v. Hoage (1936, 85 F. 2d 420, 66 App. D. C. 163).

Basis for rejection of claim

The rejection of a workmen's compensation claim for the death of an employee occurring during the course of employment cannot be supported as matter of law unless record contains substantial evidence showing that the death did not arise out of employment. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Burden of proof

Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act places burden on employer to go forward with evidence to meet presumption that injury or illness occurring during employment was caused by that employment. J. F. Butler v. District Parking Management Co., et al. (1966, 363 F. 2d 682, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 195).

Burden of proof imposed on employer of going forward with evidence to meet presumption that injury or illness occurring during employment was caused by that employment was not met by employer which offered no substantial evidence that employee's mental breakdown was not related to work as parking lot attendant. Id.

Causal relationship

Fact that workman's death from coronary thrombosis occurred shortly after attack of chest pains was evidence of causal relationship between attack and death, as was strenuous nature of work prior to fatal attack. Vendemia v. Cristaldi et al. (1955, 221 F. 2d 103, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 230).

For purposes of compensation under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, to hasten death is to cause it. Id.

Change in physical condition

There was, within the meaning of this section, a change in the injured person's physical condition in relation to the injury, since the condition, which was temporary at one time, had become permanent. New Amsterdam Casualty Co. v. Cardillo (1940, 108 F. 2d 492, 71 App. D. C. 172).

Commissioner's finding of fact

Findings by Department of Labor that complaints received by clerical employee, rejection of a suggestion made by her, and an increase in amount of work employee was to perform aggravated employee's underlying obsessive and compulsive state, precipitated a marked worsening in a long-existing emotional condition, and required employee to cease work and receive institutionalized psychiatric care, which constituted an injury arising out of and in course of her employment at Institute, and entitled her to compensation benefits under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act were supported by substantial evidence. Urban Land Institute et al. v. J. Garrell (1972, 346 F. Supp. 699).

Deputy Commissioner of United States Department of Labor, Bureau of Employees' Compensation, who rejected claim that worker sustained a ruptured disc while employed as a freight handler, on grounds that worker failed to establish that injury was sustained on dates alleged, that worker failed to give written notice of injury to employer or Deputy Commissioner within 30 days, and that there was a failure to establish a causal relationship between the injury and worker's employment, should have stated whether he gave proper consideration to the possibility that worker's failure to give timely notice as required by statute was excusable for some satisfactory reason. C. C. Bartges v. E. D. Woodworth, Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1971, 452 F. 2d 1383, 147 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

The findings of a deputy commissioner in proceedings under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act must be accepted as true unless they are not supported by substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole and may be set aside only if not in accordance with law. A. E. Van Devander and W. L. Massey v. Heller Electric Co., Inc., et al. (1968, 405 F. 2d 1108, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

Deputy commissioner's conclusion that claim was not compensable under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act was controlling, where there was factual and legal support for the conclusion. Wolff etc. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner, etc. (1964, 328 F. 2d 181, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 209).

In proceeding to obtain workmen's compensation for death of manager-cook, of lunch counter at drugstore, who was shot by customer whom manager-cook had ejected from drugstore, evidence sustained deputy commissioner's conclusion that deceased's death came within coverage of this section. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 187 F. Supp. 359).

Evidence sustained deputy commissioner's findings that musicians who were individually paid by proprietor of restaurant were employees of proprietor, notwithstanding facts that proprietor made no deductions from their compensation for social security and income taxes and no premiums for workmen's compensation were paid with regard to them. Great American Indemnity Co. et al. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 186 F. Supp. 938).

Evidence sustained deputy commissioner's findings that musicians who were paid $10 wages a night, five days a week and who received tips had average wage of $65 per week. Id.

Evidence sustained deputy commissioner's finding that decedent's mother was dependent upon him. Id.

Deputy commissioner, in a proceeding under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, need not disclose his reasoning processes in reaching a conclusion, but court should have, to extent possible, deputy commissioner's views so as to be able to follow and appraise his application of law to the evidence. Vendemia v. Cristaldi et al. (1955, 221 F. 2d 103, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 230).

In proceeding under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, neither the District Court nor the Court of Appeals is a trier of facts. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Britton (1951, 188 F. 2d 674, 88 U. S. App. D. C. 293).

Finding of Deputy Commissioner that injuries sustained by stenographer, who was struck by taxicab while on way to lunch, did not arise out of and in course of employment, was supported by evidence and was not inconsistent with law. Wetzel v. Britton (1948, 170 F. 2d 285, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 327).

In proceeding under this chapter, Deputy Commissioner's findings as to jurisdiction are entitled to great weight and will be rejected only where there is apparent error. Cardillo v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1947, 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U. S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 1028).

The deputy commissioner's findings of fact, if supported by evidence, are conclusive. Employers Liability Assur. Corp. v. Hoage (1934, 69 F. 2d 227, 63 App. D. C. 53). See, also, Malone v. Hoage (1935, 73 F. 2d 855, 64 App. D. C. 38); Maryland Casualty Co. v. Cardillo (1940, 107 F. 2d 959, 71 App. D. C. 160); London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Britton (1944, 138 F. 2d 932, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 195).

Where district court determined that evidence did not support deputy commissioner's finding that at time of employee's death widow was living apart for justifiable cause, failure of district court to remand case to deputy commissioner for possible finding either that widow was dependent for support on employee or that she was living with him was not error where evidence would not have supported either finding. Weeks v. Behrend (1943, 135 F. 2d 258, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 341).

In workmen's compensation case, findings of a deputy commissioner, if supported by substantial evidence, are conclusive on court regardless of whether findings result in the grant or denial of a claim to compensation. Carson v. Cardillo (1943, 132 F. 2d 604, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 82).

In proceeding under this chapter, deputy commissioner's finding of fact is subject to review and reversal by a court only in a case in which the findings are not supported by substantial evidence. Gudmundson v. Cardillo (1942, 126 F. 2d 521, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 230).

Cases in which an order of the Commissioner may be set aside as "not in accordance with law" are only those in which it appears that there is an error of law, or in which the order of the Commissioner is not supported by substantial evidence, as well, of course, in those in which it is arbitrary and unreasonable. Whitfield v. Hoage (1934, 71 F. 2d 690, 63 App. D. C. 237). See, also, Groom v. Cardillo (1941, 119 F. 2d 697, 73 App. D. C. 358).

Deputy commissioner and the District Court were within their discretion in finding, in effect, that declarations concerning the injury were corroborated. Associated General Contractors v. Cardillo (1939, 106 F. 2d 327, 70 App. D. C. 303).

Deputy commissioner is authorized to award compensation using as the basis for his average annual earnings such sum as shall reasonably represent the annual earning capacity of the injured employee in the employment in which he was working at the time of the injury, having regard to "the previous earnings of the injured employee and of other employees of the same or most similar class." Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. v. Hoage (1936, 85 F. 2d 411, 66 App. D. C. 154).

Chain of causation, beginning with the inhalation of the gas and ending in his death, as found by the deputy commissioner, is satisfactorily shown by the evidence. National Casualty v. Hoage (1936, 73 F. 2d 850, 64 App. D. C. 33).

Deputy commissioner, when passing upon the extent of injured person's vision, should not have excluded from consideration the assistance which he could receive from the use of glasses. Washington Terminal Co. v. Hoage (1935, 79 F. 2d 158, 65 App. D. C. 33).

Testimony supports the deputy commissioner's finding that the employee was "mentally incompetent" from the time of his injury to the time when his committee was appointed. Hoage v. Terminal Refrigerating & Warehousing Co. (1935, 78 F. 2d 1009, 65 App. D. C. 5).

Findings of the deputy commissioner upon the facts in compensation case are final and conclusive when supported by competent evidence. The act does not authorize the court to reweigh the evidence when more than one inference can be drawn for the purpose of arriving at a different conclusion from the deputy commissioner. Fulton v. Hoage (1935, 77 F. 2d 110, 64 App. D. C. 232).

When evidence sustained the deputy commissioner's finding of suicide as opposed to accident, the court should not have disturbed an order denying compensation. Del Vecchio v. Bowers (1935, 56 S. Ct. 190, 296 U. S. 280, 80 L. Ed. 229).

Conclusion reached by deputy commissioner upon the facts found by him was contrary to law, and the claim of appellant should have been sustained when he was an employee at the time of the accident, at his place of duty, and engaged in his employment. Scott v. Hoage (1934, 73 F. 2d 114, 63 App. D. C. 391).

Deputy commissioner was justified in concluding that the death of the deceased arose at least in substantial part from his employment. London Guarantee & Acc. Co. v. Hoage (1934, 72 F. 2d 191, 63 App. D. C. 323).

As the question is solely the fact of employment, and, as this fact is an essential condition precedent to the right to make the claim, the proceeding in the court below was entirely proper, and Supreme Court will not overrule lower court unless findings are clearly wrong. Metropolitan Casualty Ins. Co. v. Hoage (1934, 72 F. 2d 175, 63 App. D. C. 307).

Compensation and compensation damages

Under Workmen's Compensation Act, "compensation" means money relief afforded according to scale established under the statute as differentiated from "compensatory damages" recoverable in an action at law for breach of contract or for a tort. Howard v. Lightner (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A. 2d 474).

Conflict of laws

Maryland Workmen's Compensation Act, relieving principal contractor of common law liability to employees of his subcontractors if he has workmen's compensation insurance for their benefit, would be a bar to District of Columbia tort action brought against principal contractor by electrician employed in District of Columbia by subcontractor but injured while working on principal employer's project in Maryland. Jonathan Woodner Co. v. Mather (1954, 210 F. 2d 868, 93 U. S. App. D. C. 234, certiorari denied 75 S. Ct. 39, 348 U. S. 824, 99 L. Ed. 650).

State of employment can give workmen's compensation even though injury occurred in another jurisdiction which would provide workmen's compensation, on basis said to be exclusive; and state in which injury occurred can provide workmen's compensation even though state where contract of employment was made would also provide workmen's compensation, on a purportedly exclusive basis. Id.

Consolidation of claims

Where claimant had been injured on September 29, 1958 and subsequently on February 4, 1961, two different insurance carriers were involved and diseased condition of claimant's hip was common to both claims and, if aggravation theory was adopted, either injury or both could have aggravated the disease, the two claims should have been considered on a fully consolidated basis and findings of fact should have been made and orders entered as to both injuries. Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Co., et al. v. C. Einbinder, Deputy Commissioner etc. (1965, 343 F. 2d 338, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

Constitutionality

The provision in Longshoremen's Compensation Act that employer's liability for benefits under the act is exclusive and in place of all other liability of employer to employee and anyone else entitled to recover damages from employer does not cover damages from employer on account of such injuries does not deny due process to electric company barred by such provision from recovering contribution in third party action from gas company for injuries received by employee, to whom compensation had been paid, when gas company's crane came in contact with electric company's overhead high voltage power line. Coates v. Potomac Electric Power Co. (D.C.D.C. 1951, 95 F. Supp. 779).

This chapter, construed as applying to case where there is some substantial connection between the District and the particular employee-employer relationship regardless of place of work or injury, fully satisfies any constitutional question of due process or full faith and credit. Cardillo v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1947, 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U. S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 1028).

This chapter, which makes factual decision of deputy commissioner final, does not violate the "due process of law" provision of U. S. Const. Amend. 5. Gudmundson v. Cardillo (1942, 126 F. 2d 521, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 230).

This section does not violate constitutional provision for jury trial. Rowlette v. Rothstein Dental Laboratories, (1933, 63 F. 2d 150, 61 App. D. C. 373, certiorari denied 53 S. Ct. 657, 289 U. S. 736, 77 L. Ed. 1484).

Construction

The term "injury", in section of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act requiring a claim for compensation to be filed within one year after injury, encompasses physical harm of a kind that is unknown to the employee at time of accident but which is later revealed such as an occupational disease or a latent wound. G. E. Stancil v. W. L. Massey, Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1970, 436 F. 2d 274, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act are required to be construed liberally in favor of employees and their dependents and it is in their favor that doubts, including the factual, are to be resolved. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Administrative findings in workmen's compensation case will not be sustained merely because they are substantiated by some isolated evidence and court's review must take account of settled rule that Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act is to be construed with view to its beneficent purposes. Id.

In order to bring a claimant within ambit of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act affording compensation for accidental injury or death arising out of and in course of employment there is a requirement that there be a continuity of cause, combined with continuity in time and space. A. E. Van Devander and W. L. Massey v. Heller Electric Co., Inc., et al. (1968, 405 F. 2d 1108, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

Workmen's Compensation Acts are to be liberally construed. J. F. Wynn, Jr. v. A. P. Kelley, et al. (1963, 223 F. Supp. 875).

Contribution

Where two alleged employers of claimant, insurer of first alleged employer, and claimant were parties in compensation proceeding, and Bureau of Employees' Compensation determined that employers were jointly and severally liable, and insurer of first paid total amount of compensation and brought action against second for contribution, determination of Bureau that employers were joint employers is res judicata in subsequent action for contribution. Merchants Mutual Insurance Company v. M. E. Richardson (D.C. App. 1971, 273 F. 2d 652).

Since neither first alleged employer of claimant nor insured of first alleged employer intervened in action by second alleged employer to vacate portion of compensation order of Bureau adverse to second, the order is pertinent to motion presented in court to compel contribution by alleged second employer, not as res judicata, but to show that joint obligation established by administrative award is no longer vulnerable to judicial overturn. Id.

Where Bureau rendered an order directing two alleged employers jointly and severally to pay compensation award to claimant, but insurer of first alleged employer paid entire award, insurer is entitled to contribution of one-half from second alleged employer. Id.

Contribution to a tort-feasor

Since employers covered by workmen's compensation statutes are not liable in tort to their injured employees, other tort-feasors are not entitled to contribution from negligent employers, but under Murray decision a person against whom employee was awarded damages in a tort action can reduce judgment by 50% if he can show that employer's negligence contributed to the injury. R. L. Dawson et al. v. Contractors Transport Corp. (1972, 467 F. 2d 727, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 401).

Defendant, who is sued, for negligence, by subcontractor's employee who had received workmen's compensation, has no claim against subcontractor for credit against possible verdict adverse to such moving defendant, on ground that employee's injuries were caused in whole or in part by subcontractor-employer's negligence. G. Turner et al. v. Excavation Construction, Inc., et al. (1971, 324 F. Supp. 704).

Private employers in District of Columbia whose employees are within protection of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act may not be compelled to contribute to a tort-feasor held liable to the employee. J. S. Murray v. United States (1968, 405 F. 2d 1361, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 91).

Contributory negligence

Contributory negligence of employee is no defense under section 904 (b) of title 33, U. S. Code, and this section. Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp. v. Britton (1946, 152 F. 2d 17, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 260).

Course of employment

Accidents and death occurring while an employee is on his way to or from toilet facilities or while he is engaged in relieving himself, generally arise within course of employment for workmen's compensation purposes, subject to possible question of reasonableness of means or place chosen. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Record supported determinations that employee's death, occurring when employer's truck, driven by employee, crashed some five hours after last customer call, arose out of and in course of employment, and that death was not occasioned solely by intoxication. Phoenix Assurance Co. of N.Y. v. T. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (1961, 289 F. 2d 784, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 118).

Death in the course of employment

In proceeding to recover compensation for deaths of musicians who were performing in a restaurant and who were shot and killed by persons who had been ejected as intoxicated and disorderly patrons but who had returned with firearms, in view of showing that musicians had completed their performance and had been paid off before the occurrence but that they had sat around the restaurant for their own personal purposes instead of immediately leaving, there was no substantial evidence justifying finding that they were murdered in course of their employment. Great American Indemnity Co. et al. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner, etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 186 F. Supp. 938).

Where musicians engaged to perform in restaurant had completed their performance for the evening and had been immediately paid but they remained at the restaurant for their own personal purposes for about a period of a half hour before persons who had been ejected during the evening as disorderly patrons returned and shot them to death, at the time they were shot, they were not on premises in course of their employment and were not in employment status under this section, and their deaths were not compensable thereunder. Id.

Findings of deputy commissioner, in proceeding under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as to whether death of an employee arose out of and in the course of his employment, are to be accepted unless they are unsupported by substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole. Robinson v. Bradshaw (1953, 206 F. 2d 435, 92 U. S. App. D. C. 216, certiorari denied 74 S. Ct. 226, 346 U. S. 899, 98 L. Ed. 399).

"Course of employment" within section 902 (2) of title 33, U.S. Code, may include incidents of social character, the correct criterion being involvement of the incident in the employment. Hurley v. Lowe (1948, 168 F. 2d 553, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 123, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1338, 334 U. S. 828, 92 L. Ed. 1756).

"Course of employment" on a specified errand or business trip, ordered by an employer, to a place different from the regular place of employment, includes all the ordinary incidents of the errand, such as the eating of meals in ordinary places at ordinary times which the employer would normally contemplate as occurring in the course of errand. Id.

Where attorney employed by law firm in District of Columbia was sent by firm on business trip to another city and during course of dinner with his father and mother at restaurant in that city sustained an injury from which he died, conclusion of deputy commissioner that dinner was of a social character and that therefore injury was not sustained in "course of employment" was not "forbidden by law" or without any reasonable legal basis, and hence could not be disturbed by reviewing court, though contrary to court's opinion. Id.

Where contract between employer and union required employer to furnish transportation for work outside District of Columbia and employer performed its contractual obligation by paying travel costs and allowing employees to select transportation method, Deputy Commissioner's finding that fatal injury, received by employee while driving his automobile homeward after terminating day's work, "arose out of and in course of employment", was justified even though employee was not being paid wages at time of accident. Cardillo v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1947, 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U.S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 1028).

Heat stroke causing death of parking lot attendant was compensable as "arising out of and in course of employment." Davison v. Cardillo (1944, 143 F. 2d 154, 79 U.S. App. D. C. 121).

Where lease, occupancy permit, and insurance against fire and theft were all in name of operator of parking lot alone, both before and after making of "partnership agreement" with deceased parking lot attendant which contained no provision for distribution of profits, deceased was not a "partner," but an "employee," and his death was compensable. Id.

Where salesman was fatally injured in automobile accident while on way back to his office in District of Columbia from a business trip in Pennsylvania, the salesman's death was compensable since it "arose out of employment." B. F. Goodrich Co. v. Britton (1944, 139 F. 2d 362, 78 U.S. App. D. C. 221).

This section creates a right of action against employer on account of death of employee arising out of and in course of employment, but it does not create a cause of action for wrongful death against any other person. Webster v. Clodfelter (1942, 130 F. 2d 434, 76 U.S. App. D. C. 171, 143 A. L. R. 280).

Butcher's death which was caused by the violent wrench suffered by him when handling the calf permitting the escape of colon bacilli causing pus, and finally involving the lower lobe of the left lung resulting in pneumonia, was accidental. Employer's Liability Assur. Corp. v. Hoage (1937, 91 F. 2d 318, 67 App. D. C. 245).

In determining whether death arose out of employment, when store manager was accidentally killed by gunshot wound, evidence that his possession of pistol was reasonably necessary for performance of his duties was admissible. Del Vecchio v. Bowers (1934, 67 F. 2d 751, 62 App. D. C. 327).

Dependency

For dependency within Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, there must be a legal or a voluntarily created status where the contributions are made for the purpose and have the result of maintaining or helping to maintain the dependent in his customary standard of living. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Trust Co. v. Britton (1951, 188 F. 2d 674, 88 U.S. App. D. C. 293).

Compensation benefits rest solely upon statutory authority and the rights of beneficiaries are dependent upon and limited by the terms of section 901 et seq. of title 33, U. S. Code, the purpose of which is to protect a disabled employee and his dependents. Turner v. Christian Heurich Brewing Co. (1948, 169 F. 2d 681, 83 U.S. App. D. C. 333).

The term "justifiable cause," in Longshoremen's Compensation Act, section 902 (16) of title 33, U. S. Code, defining widow, is used in its legal sense and ordinarily a wife who lives apart from her husband does so for what is called "justifiable cause" only when she does so because of her husband's matrimonial misconduct. Weeks v. Behrend (1943, 135 F. 2d 258, 77 U.S. App. D. C. 341).

Where employee and wife lived apart by mutual consent, so that employee would be eligible for relief, wife made no objection to employee's leaving and no attempt to rejoin him, and employee made no regular contributions to wife's support, the wife was not entitled to compensation under this chapter for death of employee on theory that she was living apart for "justifiable cause." Id.

Where employee and wife lived apart by mutual consent, employee made no regular contributions to wife's support, and wife testified in effect that she earned a modest living by running a rooming house which she and her brother owned, while her husband was on relief, evidence would not sustain award of compensation under this chapter on theory that the wife was "dependent for support" on the employee or that she was "living with" the employee. Id.

Partial dependency will sustain an award of compensation under the Longshoremen's Compensation Act, 33 section 901 et seq. of title 33, U. S. Code, but occasional contributions will not sustain a finding of partial dependency unless they are necessary and relied on. Id.

Disability, definition of

In construing statutory provision that if an employee receive an injury which of itself would only cause permanent partial disability but which, combined with a previous disability, does in fact cause permanent total disability, the employer should provide compensation only for disability caused by the subsequent injury, the relevant parts of the statutory definitions of "disability" and "injury" must be read in the place of the defined word "disability", so that the statutory phrase "combined with a previous disability" becomes "combined with a previous incapacity because of accidental injury arising out of and in course of employment". National Homeopathic Hospital Ass'n of Dist. of Col. v. Britton (1945, 147 F. 2d 561, 79 U.S. App. D. C. 309, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1185, 325 U.S. 857, 89 L. Ed. 1977).

Election of remedies

Where an employer fails to provide workmen's compensation coverage, injured employee is authorized to either pursue his claim for benefits under compensation law or to file an action at law against his employer for damages. Howard v. Lightner (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A. 2d 474).

Where widow had accepted award of benefits under Workmen's Compensation Act, all rights to damages had been superseded by provisions of act, and she could not maintain action against employer for loss of consortium for death of husband. Brown v. Curtin & Johnson, Inc. (1955, 221 F. 2d 106, 95 U.S. App. D. C. 234).

Workmen's Compensation Act applicable to District of Columbia, providing in part that liability of an employer under act shall be exclusive and in place of all other liability, would have precluded employee from maintaining action for heart injury suffered while moving a piano in the course of his employment by defendant, if the injury had not resulted in death and thus his widow and children, who had accepted benefits of Compensation Act, could not maintain action under wrongful death statute making right of action dependent on whether decedent would have been able to maintain action for injury if death had not ensued. O'Neil v. Shelton Bros. Trucking Co. (D.C.D.C. 1954, 116 F. Supp. 654).

An injured employee's mere acceptance of compensation payments from his employer without an award under Longshoremen's Compensation Act does not preclude him from thereafter electing to sue a third-party tort-feasor for damages. Jordan v. District of Columbia (D.C.D.C. 1954, 116 F. Supp. 559).

In action against District of Columbia for personal injuries, defense that plaintiff waived right to recover damages from District by receiving compensation payments from his employer without an award under Longshoremen's Compensation Act was legally insufficient, where plaintiff filed notice of election to recover damages from District, instead of receiving compensation under act. Id.

The alternative remedy against an employer who fails to secure payment of compensation as required by section 901 et seq. of title 33, U. S. Code, provided by section 905 of title 33, U. S. Code, authorizing an election to claim compensation or to maintain action in law or in admiralty for damages on account of injury or death of employee is elective. Garcia v. De Leon (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 59 A. 2d 637).

Standard workmen's compensation and employers' liability policy obligating insurer to pay promptly any person entitled to payment under the compensation law, and providing that all provisions of the law covered should remain part of policy, secured compensation to minor injured in course of employment while allegedly employed contrary to Child Labor Law, § 36-201 et seq., for any claim properly cognizable under the law, so that minor's remedy for workmen's compensation was exclusive, and minor could not maintain a common-law suit against employer for injuries, notwithstanding provision of policy obligating insurer to indemnify employer against loss by reason of liability imposed on him by law on account of injuries of employees "legally employed". Mellen v. Hirsch (D. C. Md. 1948, 8 F. R. D. 250, affirmed 171 F. 2d 127).

Under this chapter, which entitles injured employee to receive from his employer any excess over reimbursement which employer recovers from third party wrongdoer, injured employee's acceptance of compensation operates as an absolute transfer to the employer of substantive rights of injured employee against the wrongdoer and strips the employee of any further right until the employer recovers an amount in excess of his expenditures and only then a new right arises against the employer for the excess. Moore v. Heckinger (1942, 127 F. 2d 746, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 391).

Employers' duties controlling

Employers' duty

It was responsibility of employer to deny liability for compensation and medical benefits if it knew that claimant was not employee and to notify carrier accordingly so that compensation payments would not be started, and where employer did not do so, carrier had no duty to require formal hearing before starting compensation payments, and its failure to do so could not affect its right to recover premiums based on such payments. Gilbert Slaughterers, Inc. v. United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co. (D. C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 560).

Insurer's record containing computation of premiums due under policy was, under Federal Shop Book Rule, admissible in evidence in its action to recover premiums from insured. Id.

Employers' liability

Where an employer maintains compensation insurance or otherwise provides for payment of benefits, his liability for injuries sustained by an employee in course of employment is as prescribed by the statute and is exclusive and in place of all other liability to the employee. Howard v. Lightner (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A. 2d 474).

An employer is responsible in the particulars and to the extent specified by the Workmen's Compensation Act for all legitimate consequences flowing from a compensable injury, but the liability so imposed measures an employee's entitlement. Lindsay et al. v. George Washington University (1960, 279 F. 2d 819, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 44).

The liability of an employer who is insured under the Workmen's Compensation Act is limited to the amount of damages prescribed. Brown v. Curtin & Johnson Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1954, 117 F. Supp. 830, affirmed 221 F. 2d 106, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 234).

Employment outside state

In compensation proceeding under this chapter, evidence that offer of employment was made by employer's foreman in District of Columbia, that workman was not hired until he was put to work in Maryland, and that injury occurred in Maryland sustained deputy commissioner's finding that the employment relationship was created in Maryland and not in the District of Columbia and that the deputy commissioner did not have jurisdiction to make an award. Gudmundson v. Cardillo (1942, 126 F. 2d 521, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 230).

Employment relationship

While employee must have a reasonable time within which to leave employer's premises after his duties are finished for the day, if, for his own purposes, he tarries for some time after working hours, he is no longer in employment status under this section and any injuries sustained during that period are not compensable. Great American Indemnity Co. et al. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 186 F. Supp. 938).

In workmen's compensation proceeding, evidence supported commissioner's findings that defendants were claimant's "employers" within meaning of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. Harris v. Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1955, 218 F. 2d 45, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 32).

Under this chapter, right to compensation depends on existence of relation of master and servant at time of injury. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cardillo (1946, 154 F. 2d 529, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 72, reversed on other grounds 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U. S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 1028).

Liability under this chapter is based, not on any act or omission of employer, but upon existence of relationship which employee bears to employment because of and in course of which he has been injured. Id.

Error in award

Absent fault by employer, award to employee of damages for injuries suffered in service station robbery was error, but such judgment must be affirmed where employer did not attack it by cross appeal. Howard v. Lightner (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A. 2d 474).

Evidence

Evidence, consisting of doctor's statement that claimant could "probably" perform "suitable employment," does not support finding of Deputy Commissioner of Department of Labor that claimant, who was of limited intelligence, and who, due to fractures of right arm, lost use of right hand for all but lightest work, is not permanently totally disabled under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act. American Mutual Insurance Company of Boston et al. v. W. B. Jones (1970, 426 F. 2d 1263, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 269).

There was sufficient evidence to support the findings of deputy commissioner, in proceedings under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act, that injuries suffered by claimant when he fell asleep from fatigue while driving home after work were attributable to claimant's lack of sleep due to unusually long hours of work installing heavy electrical equipment and that such injuries arose out of and in the course of his employment. A. E. Van Devander and W. L. Massey v. Heller Electric Co., Inc., et al. (1968, 405 F. 2d 1108, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

Evidence sustained finding that employer was not negligent in operation of his service station in which employee was injured during course of robbery. Howard v. Lightner (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A. 2d 474).

Although deference is usually accorded to findings of deputy commissioners in proceeding for compensation under Longshoremen's Compensation Act, they are not controlling unless supported by substantial evidence in record considered as a whole. Pistorio v. Einbinder (1965, 351 F. 2d 204, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Order of deputy commissioner modifying prior order awarding compensation under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, based on permanent partial disability rating of 50% could not be sustained on record evidence respecting change in condition as ground. Id.

Evidence sustained finding that employee's fall, in which he sustained fatal injuries, was not caused by his slipping or tripping on substances or objects associated with employment. Wolff, etc. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner, etc. (1964, 328 F. 2d 181, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 209).

In proceeding on claim for compensation under provisions of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, deputy commissioner of bureau of employees' compensation improperly admitted into evidence police record of claimant disclosing not only prior criminal convictions but also prior convictions of crimes not within the meaning of statute regarding the admission of evidence to affect credibility of a witness who has been convicted of a crime and arrests which did not result in convictions. Colter v. C. Einbinder, Deputy Commissioner, etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 184 F. Supp. 523).

Evidence sustained award of Deputy Commissioner to claimant under the District of Columbia Workmen's Compensation Act, incorporating by reference the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, on ground that claimant sustained permanent partial disability as result of injury sustained in course of employment. Gilbane Building Company v. Britton (1959, 264 F. 2d 574, 105 U. S. App. D. C. 101).

In prosecution of employer for failing to secure payment of compensation as required under the Workmen's Compensation Act, employer's payroll books, which had been legally obtained from former employees of employer, were properly admitted in evidence as one link in chain of evidence to prove that employer was an employer during period alleged in information, however incriminating books might be. Tyree v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A. 2d 914).

Conclusions of deputy commissioner that employee's tuberculosis was contracted during employment and out of the employment because of aggravated risk resulting from employee's being sent by employer to work in Japan, which has a comparatively high incidence rate of tuberculosis, were reasonably supported by evidence. Travelers Insurance Co. v. Donovan (D.C.D.C. 1955, 125 F. Supp. 261, affirmed 221 F. 2d 886, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

A finding of Deputy Commissioner of District of Columbia Bureau of Employees' Compensation that death of night watchman as result of coronary occlusion arose out of his employment within Longshoremen's Compensation Act, applicable as District's workmen's compensation law, was supported by substantial evidence, whether such occlusion occurred immediately before or after deceased slipped and fell down stairway in course of his employment. Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. et. al. v. Donovan et al. (D.C.D.C. 1954, 124 F. Supp. 320).

In action to review award of compensation under Longshoremen's Compensation Act, applicable as District of Columbia workmen's compensation law, for employee's death, District Court may not substitute its own judgment for finding of Deputy Commissioner of District Bureau of Employees' Compensation, supported by substantial evidence, that death arose out of decedent's employment. Id.

In proceeding under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, the evidence sustained finding of Deputy Commissioner that employee's mother, sister and brother were dependents within meaning of Act. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Trust Co. v. Britton (1951, 188 F. 2d 674, 88 U. S. App. D. C. 293).

Appellant's contention that the act was not applicable since the employer had not obtained insurance covering his injury as required by the act, is clearly contrary to the evidence presented. Mellen v. Hirsch (D.C. Md. 1948, 8 F.R.D. 250, affirmed 171 F. 2d 127).

Evidence supported finding that claimant, who was injured when brushed from running board of truck, had observed his fellow workers riding on the running board of truck. Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp. v. Britton (1946, 152 F. 2d 17, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 260).

In workmen's compensation proceeding presenting question whether this section was applicable to injuries sustained in Virginia, evidence sustained finding that employer, which had main office in New York, was engaged in construction work under three separate contracts, two located in the District and one in Virginia, that employer had an office in the District, that injured workmen's contract of employment was made in the District, and that no separate contract of employment was made when he was transferred from one job to another. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Cardillo (1944, 141 F. 2d 364, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 394).

Where employee sustained toe injury in October which was followed by protracted infection, debility, and lowered resistance, and carbuncle appeared in June following, in workmen's compensation proceeding, fact that expert opinion regarding the links before the carbuncle was not unanimous might have detracted from its weight as evidence, but it did not destroy its substantiality. Great American Indemnity Co. v. Cardillo (1943, 135 F. 2d 241, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 306).

Where employee sustained toe injury in October which was followed by protracted infection, debility, and lowered resistance, and carbuncle appeared in June following, and causal relation between carbuncle, subsequent hip injury, osteomyelitis, and osteoporosis, which caused temporary total disability, was admitted, evidence that causal relation existed between the toe injury and the temporary total disability supported an award of compensation. Id.

The weight of the evidence is for the deputy commissioner and not for the courts under the Compensation Act. Potomac Elec. Power Co. v. Cardillo (1940, 107 F. 2d 962, 71 App. D. C. 163).

To justify an award there must have been some substantial connection between the alleged accident and the employment. Hoage v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1935, 78 F. 2d 874, 64 App. D. C. 395).

Where an employee within the provisions of this act is found dead and the evidence on the issue of accident or suicide is evenly balanced, the presumption created by section 20 (d) of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act that the death was not suicidal, has not the quality of affirmative evidence, and the presumption may be invoked only where there is an entire lack of competent evidence. Del Vecchio v. Bowers (1935, 56 S. Ct. 190, 296 U.S. 280, 80 L. Ed. 229).

Evidence showed quite clearly that the possession of the pistol was reasonably necessary in the duty which deceased owed to protect his employer's property and his own life. Del Vecchio v. Bowers (1933, 67 F. 2d 751, 62 App. D. C. 327).

Exclusiveness of remedy

Workmen's compensation law was exclusive remedy of employees against employer for injuries sustained while employee was being driven home by another employee's husband, in accordance with arrangement made by employer. M. H. Shreve v. Hot Shoppes, Inc., et ano. (1961, 292 F. 2d 761, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 268).

Exclusive remedy provision of the Workmen's Compensation Act barred a suit by an employee, against his employer, for damages for alleged malpractice at employer's hospital in treatment of a compensable injury, and fortuity that employer operated the hospital where the professional services complained of were rendered was immaterial. Lindsay et al. v. George Washington University (1960, 279 F. 2d 819, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 44).

In District of Columbia, Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act is the exclusive remedy for injuries occurring in course of employment. Reeves v. Hot Shoppes, Inc., and C. Kittredge (D.C.D.C. 1960, 184 F. Supp. 436).

Defense that injury in District of Columbia occurred in course of employment is not an affirmative defense which may be treated or waived, but goes to jurisdiction of court. Id.

The compensation provided by officers' mess for injuries to civilian employees of the mess was employee's exclusive remedy against the United States and he could not recover under Tort Claims Act though private insurance carrier was compensation insurer of the mess. Aubrey v. United States (1959, 254 F. 2d 768 103 U. S. App. D. C. 65).

Where gas company employee recovered longshoremen's compensation for injuries, electric company sued by employee for injuries received when gas company's crane came in contact with electric company's overhead high voltage power line was barred from recovering contribution from gas company in third party action by provision in Longshoremen's Compensation Act that employer's liability for benefits under the Act is exclusive and in place of all other liability of employer to employee and to anyone else entitled to recover damages from employer on account of such injuries. Coates v. Potomac Electric Power Co. (D.C.D.C. 1951, 95 F. Supp. 779).

Exposure to hazards

It does not matter, for purposes of workmen's compensation award, that decedent employee was exposed to no more than ordinary hazards of working and living at the time he sustained fatal heart attack or that same kind of injury might have occurred wherever he might have been. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Extent of stress required

Unusual stress is not required for an award for injury sustained by an employee during the course of his employment and award should be granted so long as death or injury results from activity in course of his employment. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Federal jurisdiction

Where Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act had been made applicable in District of Columbia as a workmen's compensation law, suit by employer's insurer as statutory assignee under Act against third party tort-feasors would involve a federal question under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act and Act was a law of United States within meaning of statute authorizing federal jurisdiction if cause of action arises under federal statute. City Stores Company v. Shull (D.C.D.C. 1958, 161 F. Supp. 459).

Finality of award

Trial court's action in dismissing defendant's suit to set aside supplementary order, declaring amount in default in workmen's compensation proceeding, and in entering judgment for amount in default was not error where defendants were notified of application for such supplementary order and failed to respond thereto. Harris v. Deputy Commissioner etc. et al. (1955, 218 F. 2d 45, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 32).

General contractor as "third person"

Since the District of Columbia Compensation Law is an adaptation of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, it will by analogy be interpreted to render a general contractor suable as a "third person" by an employee of a subcontractor. Liberty Mutual Ins. Co. v. Goode Const. Co. (D.C.D.C. 1951, 97 F. Supp. 316).

Impaired annual earning capacity

In determining impaired annual earning capacity of an injured employee under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act as made applicable to the District of Columbia, "general earnings" are not restricted to employments or types of employment but rather extend to individual earnings. Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner et al. (1956, 233 F. 2d 699, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 208, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 214, 352 U.S. 918, 1 L. Ed. 2d 122).

In workmen's compensation proceedings for injuries sustained by employee when he fell some 45 feet during installation of an elevator, evidence sustained finding of employee's impaired earning capacity. Id.

In awarding workmen's compensation based on impaired capacity to earn, previous earnings from a job other than the one in which the injury was sustained were properly considered along with previous earnings of the injured employee in the employment in which he was working at the time of the injury, even though the job at which employee was injured was full year-round employment. Id.

Increased coverage

Maryland statute providing for the exclusiveness of workmen's compensation remedies did not prevent Maryland employer from undertaking, in a union contract, to provide the increased coverage which would be applicable under District of Columbia law. J. Nelson and R. M. Smith v. Victory Electric Works, Inc. (1964, 227 F. Supp. 404).

Maryland's employer's project manager at construction site had at least apparent authority to execute an agreement for the employment of union carpenters under which corporate employer undertook to provide increases in Maryland workmen's compensation benefits to bring them up to levels provided under District of Columbia law. Id.

Injury—Definition

Any attack of an occupational disease, whether an initial one or one following a symptom-free period, if it arises naturally out of the employment, is an "injury" within definition of term in Longshoremen's Compensation Act. Cadwalader v. Sholl (1952, 196 F. 2d 14, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 285, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 1061, 343 U. S. 966, 96 L. Ed. 1363).

Under provision of section 902 (2) of title 33, U. S. Code, that injury means accidental injury or death arising out of and in course of employment, "injury" comprises alternative events, and it is not necessary that both "accidental injury" and "death" occur in order that "injury" occur. National Homeopathic Hospital Ass'n of Dist. of Col. v. Britton (1945, 147 F. 2d 561, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 309, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1185, 325 U. S. 857, 89 L. Ed. 1977).

Injury—In the course of employment

Where, in course of performance of his duties, or in protection of employer's property, employee uses excessive force as result of bad judgment or recklessness, such circumstance does not deprive employee of benefits of this section. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 187 F. Supp. 359).

Where employee is injured solely as result of act which employee commits with a willful intention to injure or kill another, no workmen's compensation is payable. Id.

Generally, an injury sustained by an employee while traveling to and from work is not within scope of workmen's compensation law, but, in District of Columbia, where employer has agreed to, and does furnish, employee with transportation, transportation becomes incident of contract of employment, and any injuries to employee while traveling are within course of employment and within scope of compensation law. Shreve v. Hot Shoppes, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 184 F. Supp. 436).

Where employer had agreed to transport employee home, injury sustained by employee while being driven by person to whom employer had delegated this duty was not, as a matter of law, outside the District of Columbia Workmen's Compensation Law. Id.

Where coworker on third floor level was handing down to employee on ground planks weighing some 90 pounds each and employee collapsed while on the job, and it was found that he had suffered a paralysis of his right side due to occlusion of a cerebral vessel and that his "strenuous work" as found by deputy commissioner had accelerated a severe pre-existing, but symptom-free, diastolic hypertension, and also diagnosed was a sclerosis of the cerebral arteries, findings of district court that employee's injury arose out of and in course of his employment did not lack substantial support in the evidence. General Accident Fire & Life Assurance Corp. et al. v. Donovan, Deputy Commissioner, etc. (1958, 251 F. 2d 915, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 204, reconsideration denied 251 F. 2d 961, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 207).

An employee's injury, occurring on employer's premises during employee's working hours, is presumed to have arisen out of his employment within Longshoremen's Compensation Act applicable as District of Columbia workmen's compensation law, unless contrary is shown. Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. v. Donovan (D.C.D.C. 1954, 124 F. Supp. 320).

While presumption that employee's injury, occurring on employer's premises, arose out of employment within Longshoremen's Compensation Act, applicable as District of Columbia workmen's compensation law, is not evidence, it shifts burden of going forward with evidence to overcome presumption. Id.

Injury sustained while an employee is going to or from lunch does not as a positive rule of law, without reference to particular facts, arise out of and in course of employment within section 902 (2) of title 33, U. S. Code. Wetzel v. Britton (1948, 170 F. 2d 285, 83 U.S. App. D. C. 327).

Under this chapter, the presence or absence of control by employer over acts and movements of employee during transportation to or from work is a factor to be considered in determining whether injury during transportation arose out of and in course of employment, but is not decisive. Cardillo v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1947, 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U. S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 610).

Generally, injuries sustained by employees when going to or returning from their regular place of work do not "arise out of and in course of employment", but exception exists where employer requires employees to travel on highways, where employer contracts to and does furnish transportation to and from work, where employee is subject to emergency calls, or where employee uses highway to do something incidental to his employment, with knowledge and approval of employer. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Cardillo (1946, 154 F. 2d 529, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 72, reversed on other grounds 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U. S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 1028).

Where employee stepped on running board of dump truck, intending to hitch a ride on way to exit from employer's premises after work but employee was brushed from running board by a support post and was injured, evidence supported finding that injury arose out of and in course of employment. Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp. v. Britton (1946, 152 F. 2d 17, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 260).

An injury arises "out of employment" when it occurs in the course of employment and as a result of risk involved in or incidental to the employment or to conditions under which it is required to be performed. Ackerman v. Cardillo (1944, 140 F. 2d 348, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 310).

Where employee was an ice technician working at public skating rink and stadium, his duties required that he be on job during the night, and for his and his employer's convenience he slept in small room underneath stadium seats and while in room was assaulted and injured, and where explanations of the injury which were consistent with liability were just as plausible as those which would avoid liability, court would not reverse finding that injury arose out of employment. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Cardillo (1944, 140 F. 2d 10, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 255).

Where injuries occurred while employee was on premises in connection with his employment, presumption existed that injuries arose out of his employment, unless contrary was shown. Id.

Where store manager sent employee to get lunch for all three employees to save time on exceptionally busy day, and employee was struck by automobile while carrying out manager's direction, the employee's fatal injury arose "out of and in course of employment." London Guarantee & Accident Co. v. Britton (1944, 138 F. 2d 932, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 195).

Where employer arranged to furnish employee transportation to and from work in employer's truck which regularly passed employee's home in lieu of a requested increase in salary and employee was struck by another vehicle while crossing road to where employer's approaching truck would stop, employee's injuries "arose out of and in course of employment" since the risks attendant on employee's crossing the road were incident to transportation in the truck and were assumed for the mutual convenience of the parties. Ward v. Cardillo (1943, 135 F. 2d 260, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 343).

The general rule that injuries sustained by employee when going to or returning from regular place of work are not deemed to "arise out of and in course of employment" is subject to exceptions, one of which is where the employer contracts to and does furnish transportation to and from work. Id.

To justify an award under the Longshoremen's Compensation Act, section 901 et seq. of title 33, U. S. Code, there must be a direct causal connection between the employment and the injury, whether it is the result of accident or disease. Groom v. Cardillo (1941, 119 F. 2d 697, 73 App. D. C. 358).

An injury "arises out of employment" within Longshoremen's Compensation Act, section 901 et seq. of title 33, U. S. Code, if it is caused by the environment, whether inanimate, animal, or human, to which the employment exposes the employee, and it does not matter whether he is struck by a machine, a mule or a man so long at least as he does not provoke the attack, and an assault by a stranger or a fellow employee clearly "arises out of the employment" where the employment provides the motive for the assault. Penker Const. Co. v. Cardillo (1941, 118 F. 2d 14, 73 App. D. C. 168).

Where one employed in a produce warehouse was engaged in loading a truck, and a checker, his superior, addressed him repeatedly as "Shorty" which the loader resented and called his superior a vile name, for which the superior assaulted him, inflicting injuries, the employee is entitled to compensation, the injury having arisen out of, and in course of, his employment. Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. v. Cardillo (1940, 112 F. 2d 11, 71 App. D.C. 330).

Injury sustained by driver-employee while returning from lunch arose out of and in the course of employment. Cardillo v. Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. (1940, 109 F. 2d 674, 71 App. D. C. 330).

Injury which the employee received was a direct result of the position in which he was placed by the order of his superior and it therefore arose out of his employment. Williams v. American Employers Ins. Co. (1940, 107 F. 2d 953, 71 App. D. C. 153).

Injuries sustained by employee while driving automobile owned and kept by employer for employer's personal use, such driving being under the exclusive supervision and control of employer, were injuries arising out of and in the course of employment. Id.

An unexpected attack upon a cook in a restaurant who was killed by a bus boy during altercation regarding boy's work "arose out of the employment." Maryland Casualty Co. v. Cardillo (1938, 99 F. 2d 432, 69 App. D. C. 199).

Evidence that claim adjuster handled more than 250 cases a month, being a great many in excess of adjuster's monthly capacity, and as a result suffered a severe spasm of angina pectoris which in turn resulted in coronary thrombosis, it was an accidental injury which is any injury unexpected or not designed. Hoage v. Royal Indem. Co. (1937, 90 F. 2d 387, 67 App. D. C. 142).

When a chef was stabbed by a crazed stranger, the injuries "arose out of and in the course of his employment." Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. v. Hoage (1936, 85 F. 2d 417, 66 App. D.C. 160).

Although there were instructions by superior that employee should not touch anything alive, it was not sufficient to prevent action as one "arising out of and in the course of employment," when employee was electrocuted while repairing cylinder on street car. Capital Transit Co. v. Hoage (1936, 84 F. 2d 235, 65 App. D.C. 382).

Injury suffered by an insurance agent, on the way home, when superior ordered him home, was compensable as occurring in and arising out of the course of employment. Proctor v. Hoage (1936, 81 F. 2d 555, 65 App. D. C. 153).

An injury "arises out of" the employment within the meaning of the Compensation Act when it occurs in the course of the employment and as the result of a risk involved in or incidental to the employment or to the conditions under which it is required to be performed, and the mere fact that the injury is contemporaneous or coincident with the employment is not a sufficient basis for an award. Speaks v. Hoage (1935, 78 F. 2d 208, 64 App. D.C. 324).

Newspaper solicitor, when in the course of his employment has to pass along the public streets and thereby sustains an accident by reason of the risks incident to the streets, the accident "arises out of" as well as "in the course of" his employment. New Amsterdam Casualty Co. v. Hoage (1933, 62 F. 2d 468, 61 App. D. C. 306).

Evidence held sufficient to show that warehouse manager was injured in the course of his employment, when injury occurred while he was on his way to the warehouse on Sunday. Voehl v. Indemnity Ins. Co. (1933, 53 S. Ct. 380, 288 U. S. 162, 77 L. Ed. 676).

In a claim for compensation on ground of relationship of employer and employee, evidence warranted finding that relation was that of partnership. Georgia Casualty Co. v. Hoage (1932, 59 F. 2d 870, 61 App. D. C. 195).

Garage employee proved by sufficient evidence to be employee and entitled to compensation for injury. Lumbermens Mut. Casualty Co. v. Hoage (1932, 58 F. 2d 1072, 61 App. D. C. 171).

Injury—Outside scope of employment

A finding of Deputy Commissioner that employee's disability because of Parkinson's disease was not caused by automobile collision while he was driving to work was supported by substantial evidence, so that Deputy Commissioner properly denied employee's claim for compensation under Longshoremen's Compensation Act. Richardson v. Britton (1951, 192 F. 2d 423, 89 U. S. App. D. C. 391, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 676, 343 U.S. 920, 96 L. Ed. 1334).

In workmen's compensation proceeding, evidence sustained finding that following removal of last load of freight from railroad box car claimant lifted fellow worker off floor, that in ensuing struggle both fell and that claimant's resulting injury was not sustained in course of employment. Ackerman v. Cardillo (1944, 140 F. 2d 348, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 310).

Where following removal of freight from railroad box car claimant lifted coworker from floor and in ensuing struggle both fell to floor with resulting injury to claimant and claimant during same morning and against remonstrances of intended victim had indulged in similar prank, the injury did not "arise out of and in course of employment." Id.

The mere fact that an injury is contemporaneous or coincident with the employment is not a sufficient basis for an award under the Longshoremen's Compensation Act, section 901 et seq. of title 33, U. S. Code. Groom v. Cardillo (1941, 119 F. 2d 697, 73 App. D. C. 358).

Injuries sustained by an employee in a personal difficulty with another employee of the same employer, having no relation to the employment itself and in which there is no causal connection between the injury and the employment, are not compensable. Fazio v. Cardillo (1940, 109 F. 2d 835, 71 App. D. C. 264).

When employee went on roof of building during lunch hour for a rest and fresh air, but fell into a ventilator shaft the injury did not arise "out of the employment." Monahan v. Hoage (1937, 90 F. 2d 419, 87 App. D.C. 174).

Deputy commissioner was right in holding that the injury sustained did not occur in the course of the deceased's employment, when he was not at the time of the occurrence performing any service which he was required to do by virtue of his employment as financial secretary of the lodge. Morgan v. Hoage (1934, 72 F. 2d 727, 63 App. D. C. 355).

Injury—Psychological

Psychological injury should be included within purview of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, notwithstanding fact that doctors cannot yet point to a physiological situs of injury, since such fact may only reflect current state of knowledge about human mind and personality. Urban Land Institute et al. v. J. Garrell (1972, 346 F. Supp. 699).

Insurance coverage

Bridge constructor's employee's electrocution, as result of crane's coming into contact with power line after lifting beam from assured's truck but prior to placing beam in position which it was eventually to occupy in new structure, occurred during the "unloading" of assured's truck, for purposes of "loading and unloading" clause or automobile liability policy. Indemnity Insurance Company of N. A. v. Old Dominion Hoisting Service (1958, 251 F. 2d 382, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 141).

Judgment, affirmance of

Absent fault by employer, award to employee of damages for injuries suffered in service station robbery was error, but such judgment must be affirmed where employer did not attack it by cross appeal. R. L. Howard v. C. F. Lightner, etc. (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A. 2d 474).

Jurisdiction

In proceeding under District of Columbia Workmen's Compensation Act, Deputy Commissioner's findings as to jurisdiction are entitled to great weight and will be rejected only where there is apparent error. United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co. v. Donovan (1954, 221 F. 2d 515, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 377).

To give Deputy Commissioner jurisdiction to award compensation, employee killed or injured need not have been working at time within the District of Columbia, and he would be within the intent and design of the statute when employer's office, the place of hiring, the employee's residence and other factors provide substantial connection between the district and the particular employee-employer relationship. Id.

The District Court had jurisdiction of action by administrator for balance due on compensation award to plaintiff's decedent although amount owing at time of decedent's death was less than $3,000. Turner v. Christain Heurich Brewing Co. (1948, 169 F. 2d 681, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 633).

Under this chapter, Deputy Commissioner had jurisdiction to entertain a claim by widow of an employee who had been a resident of District, who had been employed by a District employer, and who had been subject to work assignments in the District, although employee was assigned to work outside District at time fatal injury was received. Cardillo v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1947, 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U. S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 1028).

Jury trial

Where credit claim under Murray decision that a person against whom employee is awarded damages in tort action could reduce judgment by 50% if he could show that employer's negligence contributed to the injury was equitable in character and no legal claims underlay defendant's cross claim against injured employee's employer and there were no factual issues common to both legal and equitable claims in the suit and judge's determination of equitable issues in no way precluded any party's right to determination of the legal issues, trial judge was empowered to hear and resolve cross complaint without intervention of the jury. R. L. Dawson et al. v. Contractors Transport Corp. (1972, 467 F. 2d 727, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 401).

Fact that issue of employer's negligence was relevant to cross claim by defendant against injured employee's employer did not convert the action under Murray decision, that a person against whom employee is awarded damages in a tort action can reduce judgment by 50% if he can show that employer's negligence contributed to the injury, into an essentially legal action that would support demand for jury trial. Id.

Legality of employment

The Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act, section 901 et seq. of title 33, U. S. Code, made applicable in the District of Columbia as a workmen's compensation act, is applicable to illegally employed employees, as well as to legally employed employees. Mellen v. Hirsch (D. C. Md. 1948, 8 F. R. D. 250, affirmed 171 F. 2d 127).

Liability for medical service

The employer is liable for all legitimate consequences following an accident, including unskillfulness or error of judgment of the physician furnished as required, and the employee is entitled to recover under the schedule of compensation for the extent of his disability, based on the ultimate result of the accident, regardless of the fact that the disability has been aggravated and increased by the employer's selected physician, and this remedy is exclusive. Fernandez v. Gantz (D.C.D.C. 1953, 113 F. Supp. 763).

Where award of compensation was based upon the ultimate result of the accident, including results of malpractice of physician furnished by employer, employer and its insurance carrier were not answerable in damages beyond the award of compensation, when it was not alleged that there had been negligence in selection of the physician. Id.

Where physician called defendant's manager and asked if it was all right for him to treat an employee and manager said it was all right if patient would retain him, it constituted sufficient authorization rendering defendant liable for medical services rendered. Skolnick v. Swagart (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 66 A. 2d 523).

Liability for recurring injury

Where claimant contracted tuberculosis while serving as a visiting nurse during period of policy issued by prior compensation carrier, and disability occurred again 12 years later during term of policy issued by subsequent carrier, liability would be imposed upon the carrier which was on the risk at time of occurrence of injury bearing the requisite causal relationship to the disability giving rise to the claim. American Casualty Co. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner, etc. (1956, 227 F. 2d 16, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Limitation of action

That federal district court had appointed a committee of person and estate of employee who allegedly had improperly been paid compensation payments for hospital and/or institutional care did not give federal district court jurisdiction over compensation carrier's action to recover payments where compensation carrier's claim was time barred by Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Company v. M. O. Brooke et al. (D.C.D.C. 1963, 219 F. Supp. 80).

Where decedent's employer and employer's insurer to their own use and use of widow and use of executor of estate of decedent brought action for wrongful death of employee against third party tort-feasors and second amended complaint indicated that sole plaintiff was employer, allowance of reinstatement of employer's insurer as plaintiff in third amended complaint would not assert a new cause of action, but merely reassert a cause of action, the jurisdictional basis of which was the same, in part, alleged to have existed in original, amended, and second amended complaints and cause of action would not be barred by Statute of Limitations. City Stores Company v. Shull (D.C.D.C. 1958, 161 F. Supp. 459).

Where defendant caused death of employee of another under such circumstances that, if death had not ensued, the employee would have been entitled to maintain action against defendant or to recover compensation under this section, death action instituted under section 1201 of title 16, U. S. Code, within one year after appointment of guardian for employee's infant son but more than one year after death was barred by limitation of section 1202 of title 16, U. S. Code, notwithstanding employees' compensation act provision that one year limitation on right to compensation for death should not be applicable to infants until appointment of guardian. Webster v. Clodfelter (1942, 130 F. 2d 434, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 171, 143 A. L. R. 280, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 261, 317 U. S. 689, 87 L. Ed. 552).

Where action for wrongful death was not filed within one year after the death as provided by section 913 of title 33, U. S. Code, action was barred notwithstanding that decedent if he had lived would have been entitled to compensation from his employer or his employer's insurance carrier and action was brought within one year after appointment of guardian for decedent's infant son, which was timely under Longshoremen's Compensation Act, since cause of action against third persons was not affected by the compensation act. Id.

The limitation does not begin to run until the claim to compensation arises, the term "injury" being equivalent to "compensatable injury." Potomac Elec. Power Co. v. Cardillo (1940, 107 F. 2d 962, 71 App. D. C. 163).

Statute of limitations applicable to this case and action must be brought by the personal representative within one year from the date of the death, or the employer must have vested in him within one year from the date of the death of the employee the right of the personal representative to bring such action. Chapman v. Griffith-Consumers Co. (1940, 107 F. 2d 263, 71 App. D.C. 64).

Where a statute gives a right unknown to the common law, and limits the time within which an action shall be brought to assert it, the limitation defines and controls the right. Young v. Hoage (1937, 90 F. 2d 395, 67 App. D. C. 150).

Provisions relating to the time within which the claimant shall present and prosecute his claim are essential parts of the procedure, and the court accordingly cannot revive a claim when barred by the limitations contained in the act. Shugard v. Hoage (1937, 89 F. 2d 796, 67 App. D. C. 52).

When injured employee elected to sue a third person and obtained judgment against tort-feasor, which was reversed, the employee then tried to proceed without paying costs and not being successful tried in forma pauperis, and then discontinued action, it was held that the employee was not entitled to compensation for the statute of limitations had run and employee failed to pursue the third-party remedy to final judgment. Chapman v. Hoage (1935, 78 F. 2d 233, 64 App. D. C. 349).

Loss of consortium

Payment of compensation under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act barred claim of employee's wife against employer for loss of consortium. Thomas v. Central Linen Co. (1959, 263 F. 2d 495, 105 U. S. App. D. C. 49).

Wife of injured employee was barred by the Workmen's Compensation Act from maintaining an action against his employer for loss of consortium as result of injuries sustained by employee while working for employer, on ground that employer was negligent. Smither and Company v. Coles (1957, 242 F. 2d 220, 100 U. S. App. D. C. 68, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 1299, 354 U. S. 914, 1 L. Ed. 2d 1129).

Loss of services

Where plaintiff's husband elected to file suit against third-part tort-feasor thereby electing not to receive workmen's compensation and a settlement was reached in which the wife joined, wife was not entitled to recover against the husband's employer for loss of services resulting from the injury to the husband occurring in the course of his employment. Hilton v. Fifteen Hundred Mass. Ave. Inc. (1958, 261 F. 2d 377, 104 U. S. App. D. C. 259).

Negligence

Failure of service station lessee to keep workmen's compensation insurance in force did not constitute negligence which proximately contributed in any degree to employee's injuries suffered in robbery. Howard v. Lightner (D.C. App. 1965, 1965, 214 A. 2d 474).

Partial dependency

A partial dependency falls within the statute as well as a complete or total dependency. Harris v. Hoage (1933, 66 F. 2d 801, 62 App. D. C. 275).

Partial disability

The degree of disability, under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act, cannot be measured by physical condition alone, but the claimant's age, his industrial history, and the availability of that type of work which he can do must be considered. American Mutual Insurance Company of Boston et ano. v. W. B. Jones (1970, 426 F. 2d 1263, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 269).

Parties

Under rule providing that every action shall be prosecuted in name of the real party in interest, employer's compensation insurance carrier, that paid workmen's compensation benefits to injured employee without an award, is not a "real party in interest" in employee's suit against third-party tort-feasor and need not be joined. F. C. Joyner v. F & B Enterprises, Inc. (1971, 448 F. 2d 1185, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 262).

Payment of retirement and compensation benefits

Retirement benefits under pension system were payable over and above compensation awarded under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, where Act made invalid any agreement requiring employee to contribute to a fund for providing compensation or to waive his right to compensation, and pension plan provided that allowances were in addition to workmen's compensation benefits. W. Massey and W. G. White v. D.C. Transit System, Inc. (1967, 388 F. 2d 584, 128 U.S. App. D.C. 328).

Place of injury

Where employer, with main office in New York, maintained office and store yard in District of Columbia, workman's contract of employment was made in the District, employer was engaged in construction work under three contracts, two located in District and one in Virginia, and injured workman's contract of employment was made in the District but he was transferred from one job to another, injury sustained in Virginia was to an employee of an employer carrying on employment in the District so that this section was applicable even though the work was being performed on a federal job on land owned by the United States. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Cardillo (1944, 141 F. 2d 364, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 394).

Where resident of District of Columbia was employed by construction company which had its principal office in the District and at time of injury and prior thereto was engaged in construction work in the District and in immediate vicinity, the employer was carrying on employment in the District and this section was applicable even though work being done at time of injury was on a federal job on property owned by the United States in Maryland. Travelers Ins. Co. v. Cardillo (1944, 141 F. 2d 362, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 392).

Even though the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, section 901 et seq. of title 33, U. S. Code, was adopted as the Compensation Law of the District of Columbia, section 903 (a) of said Act excluding jurisdiction of injuries compensable under state law, has no place in this section, which expressly extends its provisions to cases of injury or death, irrespective of the place where either occurred. Id.

Where salesman's office was in District of Columbia, though his selling contacts were largely outside and his time was nearly equally divided between the two, and he was fatally injured while traveling in Pennsylvania in connection with his employment, this section was applicable. B. F. Goodrich Co. v. Britton (1944, 139 F. 2d 362, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 221).

As respects liability of employer carrying on any employment in the District of Columbia to injured employee under this section, it was immaterial that injury occurred in Maryland. Moyer v. Cardillo (1941, 119 F. 2d 785, 73 App. D. C. 261).

Power of commission

The Federal Government may confer upon administrative agencies, such as Deputy Commissioner United States Employees' Compensation Commission, created to aid in performance of governmental functions the determination of questions of fact, including existence of master and servant relation, the test being whether the delegation concerns the exercise of judicial power in enforcing constitutional limitations. Gudmundson v. Cardillo (1942, 126 F. 2d 521, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 230).

Presumptions

If statutory presumption that a claim comes within provisions of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act applies to a death that results in course of employment when a preexisting internal disorder takes a sudden turn for the worse, it must also apply equally to cases involving nonfatal injuries as well, since death and injury are placed on a par in the Act. Urban Land Institute et al. v. J. Garrell (1972, 346 F. Supp. 699).

The fact that injury or death occurs in course of employment strengthens presumption that it arises out of employment, with doubts resolved in claimant's favor. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Under the circumstances, evidence that tuberculosis rate in Japan was five times that in District of Columbia supported award of compensation to employee who was assigned to work in Japan and who there contracted the disease, in absence of substantial evidence to rebut statutory presumption that disability arose from employment. Travelers Insurance Co. v. Donovan, Deputy Commissioner etc. (1955, 221 F. 2d 886, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

Provision of section 901 et seq. of title 33, U. S. Code, that in proceeding thereunder jurisdiction is to be presumed in absence of substantial evidence to contrary applies with equal force to proceedings under this chapter. Cardillo v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1947, 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U. S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 1028).

Where employee was on his employer's premises and was on his way to an exit within a reasonable time after quitting work, presumption existed that he was in course of his employment and that injury sustained at that time and place arose out of his employment. Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp. v. Britton (1946, 152 F. 2d 17, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 260).

— Rebuttal of

Testimony of employer's doctors, neither of whom had ever seen the decedent, neither of whom had any personal knowledge of his work, and who, in response to a hypothetical set of facts that told them only that the decedent was performing a usual laboring job when he collapsed, opined that there was a reasonable medical probability that death was not work-related, did not constitute substantial evidence to dispel presumption that claim by widow of the decedent, who, shortly before he died of a cerebral vascular accident, had picked up masonry blocks weighing approximately 25 pounds in each hand and carried them a distance of about 25 feet, came within provisions of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. W. M. Mitchell et al. v. E. D. Woodworth, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1971, 449 F. 2d 1097, 146 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

The evidence did not dispel the statutory presumption that an employee, who was shown by autopsy report to have been suffering from marked arteriosclerotic heart disease, whose death resulted from myocardial insufficiency and who collapsed after urinating outside employer's building in cold weather, came within provisions of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner, etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Previous disability

Mental deficiency of the claimant, whose intelligence quotient on Wechsler-Bellvue scale was measured at 69, whose disability due to that deficiency was not shown to have been "manifest," and who as result of the mental deficiency and loss of use of right hand was permanently totally disabled, was not "previous disability" within Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act provision to effect that if employee receives injury, which of itself is only cause of permanent partial disability but which, combined with previous disability, does in fact cause permanent total disability, employer is required to provide compensation only for disability caused by subsequent injury. American Mutual Insurance Company of Boston et al. v. W. B. Jones (1970, 426 F. 2d 1263, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 269).

It is immaterial, under Act provision to effect that if employee receives injury, which of itself would only cause permanent partial disability but which, combined with previous disability, does in fact cause permanent disability, employer is required to provide compensation only for disability caused by subsequent injury, whether disability is result of previous work-connected injury, injury not connected with employment, congenital defect, or perhaps even disability resulting from social and economic causes. Id.

Purpose of Act provision to effect that if employee receives injury, which of itself would only cause permanent partial disability but which, combined with previous disability, does in fact cause permanent total disability, employer is required to provide compensation only for disability caused by subsequent injury is to remove that aspect of discrimination against disabled that would otherwise be encouraged by the Act. Id.

Prior recovery

Under full faith and credit clause of federal constitution, Maryland award of workmen's compensation benefits for death of employee engaged in extrahazardous employment of plumbing, being a determination of all rights against employer and insurer growing out of employee's fatal injury, barred recovery of additional benefits allowable under District of Columbia Workmen's Compensation Act. Gasch et al. v. Britton (1953, 202 F. 2d 356, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 64).

Progression of disease

Where subsequent recurrence of tuberculosis in claimant was result of natural progression of the disease unaffected by any intervening work-connected cause, compensation carrier which had granted coverage at time of claimant's original, compensable disability from tuberculosis, not subsequent carrier granting coverage at time of subsequent disability, would be liable for the subsequent disability. American Casualty Co. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner, etc. (1956, 227 F. 2d 16, 97 U. S. App. D. C. 1).

Purpose

The purpose of the Workmen's Compensation Act is to provide not only for employees a remedy which is both expeditious and independent of proof of fault, but also for employers a liability which is limited and determinative. Smither and Company, Inc. v. Coles (1957, 242 F. 2d 220, 100 U. S. App. D. C. 68, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 1299, 354 U. S. 914, 1 L. Ed. 2d 1129).

The purpose of the Workmen's Compensation Act is to substitute fixed payments for personal injuries sustained or death caused in the course of employment for the common-law cause of action for damages. Brown v. Curtin & Johnson Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1953, 117 F. Supp. 830, affirmed 221 F. 2d 106, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 234).

A prime purpose of this chapter is to provide residents of the District with a practical and expeditious remedy for their industrial accidents and to place on District of Columbia employers a limited and determinate liability. Cardillo v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1947, 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U. S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 1028).

Questions of law

Applicability of workmen's compensation law is question of law, for court, which erred in submitting question to jury. M. H. Shreve v. Hot Shoppes, Inc., et ano. (1961, 292 F. 2d 761, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 268).

Where baker's contact with flour caused dermatitis and between first attack and its recurrence there was an interval during which she did not appear to have dermatitis, whether the recurrence was an injury within provision of Longshoremen's Compensation Act requiring claim to be filed within one year after injury or one year after last payment made without an award was question of law for court to decide, in absence of any specific elements that might differentiate baker's recurrence of dermatitis from other recurrences of occupational diseases. Cadwallader v. Sholl et al. (1952, 196 F. 2d 14, 89 U. S. App. D. C. 285, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 1061, 343 U. S. 966, 96 L. Ed. 1363).

Meaning of "course of employment" within section 902 (2) of title 33, U. S. Code, apart from any particular set of facts, is a question of law. Hurley v. Lowe (1948, 168 F. 2d 553, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 123, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1338, 334 U. S. 828, 92 L. Ed. 1756).

Record on appeal

Record in this case did not adequately present question whether consent judgment awarding petitioner damages against third person evidenced a "compromise" subject to provision of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act governing compensation for injuries where third persons are liable, or an award of damages "determined * * * by the independent evaluation of a trial judge," not subject to Act, and writ of certiorari, granted petitioner following affirmance of summary judgment in favor of employer and insurance carrier in review proceeding, would be dismissed as improvidently granted. A. McClanahan v. Morauer & Hartzell, Inc. (1971, 92 S. Ct. 170, 404, U.S. 16).

Recurrence of disability

Longshoremen's Act provision, barring right to compensation for disability unless claim therefor was filed within one year after injury, barred claim for compensation for recurrence of disability where claim was filed more than one year after injury responsibility for disability, even though such claim was filed within one year from date when disability recurred. Henriot v. General Accident Fire and Life Assurance Corp. (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 374).

Where baker's contact with flour caused dermatitis which disabled her from July, 1944 to October, 1946, during which period employer paid her compensation without claim or award, and in December, 1946 she suffered a recurrence which wholly disabled her from January, 1947, and between first attack and its recurrence there was an interval during which she did not appear to have dermatitis, compensation claim filed in November, 1947 within one year after disease recurred was timely under Longshoremen's Compensation Act providing that right to compensation is barred unless a claim therefor is filed within one year after injury or one year after last payment made without award, whether baker resumed work during interval and thereby brought about recurrence or whether baker did not resume work in which case the second attack was a consequence of the previous work that had caused the previous attack. Cadwallader v. Sholl et al. (1952, 196 F. 2d 14, 89 U. S. App. D. C. 285, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 1061, 343 U. S. 966, 96 L. Ed. 1363).

Reimbursement of carrier

Where employee, after receiving compensation benefits, sued third party tort-feasor and effected settlement netting him amount in excess of what he would have been entitled under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, carrier was entitled to be reimbursed for payments to employee without being required to pay legal fees to law firm which negotiated settlement with third party tort-feasor. Ashcraft and Gerel v. Liberty Mutual Ins. Co. (1965, 343 F. 2d 333, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Remand

Where question whether Deputy Commissioner had jurisdiction over claim under this chapter was considered and determined by Deputy Commissioner, who was in turn sustained by District Court, and facts pertinent to that issue were not seriously disputed and matter had been fully briefed and argued before Supreme Court, even though Court of Appeals had not determined that issue, a remand for determination thereof was not required, but Supreme Court could consider the jurisdictional issue. Cardillo v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1947, 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U. S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 1028).

Res judicata

Where minor's contention, made in common-law action in the District of Columbia, that minor had right to sue at law rather than make a claim for workmen's compensation because employed contrary to Child Labor Law, section 36-201 et seq., of District of Columbia, was definitely adjudicated against minor, contention was not open to further controversy in subsequent action in federal court in Maryland. Mellen v. Hirsch (D. C. Md. 1948, 8 F. R. D. 250, affirmed 171 F. 2d 127).

Decision of court in District of Columbia that minor had no cause of action in a suit at common-law against employer for injuries because compensation law, section 905 of title 33, U. S. Code, provided exclusive remedy, and that such law was not rendered inapplicable because of employer's alleged violation of the Child Labor Law, section 36-201 et seq. was not ineffective as to minor in subsequent common-law suit against employer in Maryland, on ground that the suit in the District of Columbia was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. Id.

Review

Scope of review of findings of deputy commissioner is narrow. United Painters & Decorators et al. v. T. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (1962, 301 F. 2d 560, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 236).

Scope of judicial review in workmen's compensation cases is strictly limited and statutory action to set aside award of compensation does not contemplate a trial de novo but merely a judicial review of administrative action on the administrative record, and the only questions which court may consider are, first, whether award is contrary to law and second, where administrative findings of fact are supported by substantial evidence. Great American Indemnity Co. et al. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 186 F. Supp. 938).

The substantial evidence necessary to sustain administrative findings when workmen's compensation award is challenged in statutory action is more than a scintilla of evidence but the court may not consider the weight of the evidence and is limited to determining merely whether there is substantial evidence in record sustaining findings of fact and the fact that countervailing evidence may have more probative value will not warrant overruling findings. Id.

In statutory action to set aside award of workmen's compensation, the court may not set aside inferences drawn by administrator from evidence that he chooses to believe if such inferences are reasonably possible and have a rational basis. Id.

Where employer, who was convicted of failing to secure payment of compensation as required by Workmen's Compensation Act, contended on appeal that trial court erred in admitting in evidence two payroll books, on ground that they had been obtained and seized illegally from persons other than the employer, and record was not clear whether employer made a motion to suppress books, and record was only a partial stenographic transcript without supporting statement of proceedings and evidence, Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia was required to hold, because of sketchy record, that the government did not obtain books as result of illegal search or seizure. Tyree v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A. 2d 914).

A deputy employees' compensation commissioner's determination sustained by District Court, fixing injured employee's wage-earning capacity, on which award of compensation for permanent partial disability was based, at smaller sum per week than wages actually received by him before and after injury, pursuant to finding that his post-injury wages did not reasonably represent his wage-earning capacity, will not be disturbed by Court of Appeals. Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. et al. v. Britton et al. (1957, 243 F. 2d 659, 100 U. S. App. D. C. 236).

On appeal from summary judgment for defendants in suit by widow to set aside denial of benefits for death of husband under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, reviewing court's task was to ascertain whether Deputy Commissioner's findings were supported by substantial evidence on record considered as a whole, and reviewing court would not sustain administrative findings merely because they were substantiated by some isolated evidence. Friend, surviving widow v. Britton, Commissioner et al. (1955, 220 F. 2d 820, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 139, certiorari denied 76 S. Ct. 72, 350 U. S. 836, 100 L. Ed. 745).

In action to review Deputy Commissioner's order denying claim for compensation under Longshoremen's Compensation Act pursuant to finding that plaintiff's disability was not caused by accident, question is whether such finding is supported by substantial evidence on record considered as whole. Richardson v. Britton et al. (1951, 192 F. 2d 423, 89 U. S. App. D. C. 391, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 676, 343 U. S. 920, 96 L. Ed. 1334).

Reviewing court is limited to determining whether Deputy Commissioner's conclusion in compensation case is forbidden by law or without any reasonable basis. Wetzel v. Britton (1948, 170 F. 2d 285, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 327).

Court reviewing compensation order must review to determine, not whether principles of law applied by deputy commissioner are correct, but merely whether they are forbidden by law, or without any reasonable legal basis, or are invalidated by some formal principle of law. Hurley v. Lowe (1948, 168 F. 2d 553, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 123, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1338, 334 U. S. 828, 92 L. Ed. 1756).

In proceeding under this chapter, even if inference made by Deputy Commissioner involves application of broad statutory term or phrase to specific set of facts and is considered more legal than factual in nature, reviewing court's function is exhausted when it becomes evident that Deputy Commissioner's choice has substantial roots in evidence and is not forbidden by law. Cardillo v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1947, 67 S. Ct. 801, 330 U. S. 469, 91 L. Ed. 1028).

Where employer arranged to furnish employee transportation to and from place of work in employer's truck which regularly passed employee's home, and employee was struck by another vehicle while crossing road to where employer's approaching truck would stop, and deputy commissioner concluded that injury did not arise out of and in course of employment, principle that deputy commissioner's findings when supported by substantial evidence are not subject to review was inapplicable since the question presented was a "question of law" not a "question of fact." Ward v. Cardillo (1943, 135 F. 2d 260, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 343).

In workmen's compensation case, function of United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia is limited to determining whether the finding of the deputy commissioner is supported by substantial evidence. Great American Indemnity Co. v. Cardillo (1943, 135 F. 2d 241, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 306).

In workmen's compensation case, the United States Court of Appeals for District of Columbia cannot sit as reappraisers of the evidence. Id.

Fact that evidence was taken and certified in disregard of technical rules of procedure does not invalidate it or render it any the less entitled to consideration on an appeal when no request was made for a trial de novo. Georgia Casualty Co. v. Hoage (1932, 59 F. 2d 870, 61 App. D.C. 195).

Right of action

Widow, who was receiving compensation under Workmen's Compensation Act for husband's death as a result of defendant employer's claimed negligence, was not entitled to recover as against employer for loss of consortium. Brown v. Curtin & Johnson Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1953, 117 F. Supp. 830, affirmed 221 F. 2d 106, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 234).

Regardless of whether employer secures payment of compensation either by taking out insurance or providing for paying such compensation directly, employer remains liable, and employee is entitled to institute proceedings for an award before deputy commissioner and then before United States District Court for collection of the award. Garcia v. De Leon (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 59 A. 2d 637).

Under section 933 of title 33, U.S. Code, providing that acceptance of compensation under an award shall operate as an assignment to employer of all rights of injured employee to recover damages against third person causing injury, the right to maintain an action against a third person causing injury is in the employee if he does not elect to receive compensation and is in the employer if employee elects to receive compensation, and an employee cannot follow both courses. Moore v. Hechinger (D.C.D.C. 1941, 39 F. Supp. 427, affirmed 127 F. 2d 746, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 391).

Since claimant was an independent contractor, he is not entitled to claim under the Compensation Act as an employee. Cardillo v. Mockabee (1939, 102 F. 2d 620, 70 App. D.C. 16).

Record clearly shows that the agent of the insurance carrier was a privy to all the proceedings leading to the bringing of the damage suit and its settlement, and it would also be inequitable to permit the employer and carrier to change their position to the prejudice of the claimant who had acquiesced in their position. Metro-politan Casualty Ins. Co. v. Hoage (1937, 89 F. 2d 798, 67 App. D.C. 54).

Rights of carrier

Where compensation benefits are paid without an award, and the employee commences a third-party action, the employer's workman's compensation carrier's only remaining substantive right is to be compensated out of employer's recovery. F. C. Joyner v. F & B Enterprises, Inc. (1971, 448 F. 2d 1185, 145 U.S. App. D.C. 262).

Rights of employer

When a person asserts a claim under the workmen's compensation law, the employer or his insurance carrier should be afforded a prompt opportunity to examine the claimant at the earliest possible time, especially when conditions of the heart are involved. Good Impressions, Inc., et al. v. Britton (D.C.D.C. 1958, 169 F. Supp. 866).

Under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act which provided that insurance carrier shall be subrogated to all rights of employer, fact that premium paid by decedent's employer for policy year in which injury and death occurred was materially increased by reason of a compensation claim paid by employer's insurer and fact that future premiums would be based upon experience rating of employer for prior years and would also be increased did not entitle employer to bring wrongful death action as sole plaintiff. City Stores Company v. Shull (D.C.D.C. 1958, 161 F. Supp. 459).

Under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act which provided that the insurance carrier shall be subrogated to all rights of the employer, as between carrier and employer, carrier was, as statutory assignee, the sole recipient of all right of the person entitled to compensation to recover damages against one liable in damages other than the employer. Id.

Sickness and disease

Employee's death was not compensable where employee died of massive cerebral edema caused when employee leaped upward and backward and then fell, striking back of his head, during a convulsive seizure while employee was on employer's premises during working hours. Wolff etc. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioners, etc. (1964, 328 F. 2d 181, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 209).

Where employee, on day of death, was engaged in carrying hod up one flight of stairs, and in course of his work he complained of being ill, collapsed, and was taken to hospital where he died because of coronary occlusion, evidence sustained deputy commissioner's denial of compensation on ground that employee did not sustain an injury "arising out of and in course of employment." Carson v. Cardillo (1943, 132 F. 2d 604, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 82).

Evidence that pre-existing spinal arthritis was aggravated by back injury sustained by employee in 1930 and that after similar injury in 1935 employee became totally disabled from carrying out any type of gainful occupation justified an award of compensation on ground of "total disability" resulting from 1935 injury. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. v. Cardillo (1942, 127 F. 2d 334, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 342).

That an employee is diseased does not bar his right to recover compensation for an accidental injury. Id.

From an examination of the testimony, and the presumption of verity which the law accords the findings of fact by the deputy commissioner, the appellant has failed to establish a claim within the Compensation Act, as pneumonia causing death of taxicab driver was not occupational disease. Anderson v. Hoage (1934, 70 F. 2d 773, 63 App. D.C. 169).

When there is evidence of a positive nature, and wholly uncontradicted, which definitely and conclusively traces the cause of death and places it wholly at the door of a fatal disease from which the employee was suffering and wholly away from any relation to the work, then, in such a case, the inference must yield to the actual and deputy commissioner's determination must be set aside. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Hoage (1933, 65 F. 2d 822, 62 App. D.C. 189).

Employee not entitled to compensation because contracting tuberculosis while working in a restaurant. Ayers v. Hoage (1933, 63 F. 2d 364, 61 App. D.C. 388).

Death from "injuries in the course of employment" is proved by evidence of an epileptic seizure of employee while using hot water hose, which inflicted burns. Georgetown College v. Stone (1932, 59 F. 2d 875, 61 App. D.C. 200).

Findings of fact by deputy commissioner that injury to hip of employee was not proximate cause of pulmonary tuberculosis must be accepted as conclusive if supported by evidence. Powell v. Hoage (1932, 57 F. 2d 766, 61 App. D.C. 99).

Status to award

Provision of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act authorizing new compensation order on ground of change in conditions or because of mistake in determination of fact by deputy commissioner accords no different status to award evolved by agreement than to one determined after hearing. Pistorio v. Einbinder (1965, 351 F. 2d 204, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

Subrogation

In case there is more than one dependent and one only elects to accept workmen's compensation and the other dependent or dependents elect to bring an action under the wrongful death statute, then the employer is not entitled to sue as a subrogee but the action must be brought by the personal representative of the decedent, the employee having the right to demand that such action be brought and that he share in the recovery. Doleman v. Levine (1935, 55 S. Ct. 741, 295 U.S. 221, 79 L. Ed. 1402).

An employer or an insurance carrier who has paid compensation to the only beneficiary or beneficiaries entitled to receive the same and who has a right of subrogation may bring the subrogation action against the third person who caused the death of the employee, and the action need not be brought by the personal representative of the decedent. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Moses (1931, 53 S. Ct. 231, 287 U.S. 530, 77 L. Ed. 477).

Subsequent injury

Provision of section 908(f) of title 33, U.S. Code, that if an employee receive an injury which of itself would only cause permanent partial disability but which, combined with a previous disability, does in fact cause permanent total disability, the employer shall provide compensation only for disability caused by the subsequent injury, deals with accidental injury and does not deal with death. National Homeopathic Hospital Ass'n of Dist. of Col. v. Britton (1945, 147 F. 2d 561, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 309, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1185, 325 U.S. 857, 89 L. Ed. 1977).

Sufficiency of notice

Claim of injured employee was not barred for failure to give notice where there was no evidence that employer lacked knowledge of employee's illness or that employer had been prejudiced by lack of a formal written notice. Butler v. District Parking Management Co. (1966, 363 F. 2d 682, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 195).

Where only alleged notice given employer of heart attack allegedly sustained by claimant in the course of his employment was a telephone call by claimant's wife to employer on the following day, in which she informed employer that claimant had been ill the night before and that the doctor said he had a heart attack, and that he was in the hospital, and no further notice was given until approximately one year later, employer was deprived of timely notice of the claim asserted, and such failure to give timely notice barred claimant's right to compensation. Good Impressions, Inc., et al. v. Britton (D.C.D.C. 1958, 169 F. Supp. 866).

Summary judgment

Where injured employee had received hospital treatment and compensation under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, and brought action against employer to recover damages apart from compensation statute, but set forth no cause of action against employer in which there was any genuine issue of material fact bearing upon claim for damages other than amounts due under compensation statute, summary judgment was properly entered for employer. Thomas v. Central Linen Co. (1959, 263 F. 2d 495, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 49).

Sunstroke

Heat prostration is compensable as accidental injury if suffered while delivering groceries. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Hoage (1933, 63 F. 2d 818, 62 App. D.C. 6).

Death of laborer from sunstroke while working in sunny street was compensable. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Burris (1932, 59 F. 2d 1042, 61 App. D.C. 228).

Third party compromise

Under provision of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act governing compensation for injuries where third persons are liable, an employer is not obligated to pay compensation to an employee who, without employer's written approval, settles a claim against a third person for an amount less than the compensation to which employee is entitled under the Act. A. McClanahan v. Morauer & Hartzell, Inc. (1971, 92 S. Ct. 170, 404 U.S. 16).

Consent judgment, which the claimant obtained against third-party tort-feasor, which was not result of judge's independent finding of value of claim after full presentation of evidence, but was at most informal exploratory attempt to determine possibilities for private settlement, the suggested figure of which claimant was free to reject, could not be considered a judicial determination, but rather was a "compromise" within section of Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act providing that if a compromise is made with a third person by claimant in an amount less than compensation to which claimant would be entitled, the employer would be liable for compensation only if compromise was made with his written approval, and thus in view of fact that no written consent to compromise was secured from employer, claimant's subsequent claim for additional compensation is barred. Morauer & Hartzell, Inc., et al. v. E. D. Woodworth, Deputy Commissioner etc. (1970, 439 F. 2d 550, 142 U.S. App. D.C. 40; cert.

Third party, injury by

Question whether general contractor was a "third person" suable at common law by employee of subcontractor whose employees were covered by Workmen's Compensation Act was debatable law question where Court of Appeals had never decided question, and question had been resolved differently in other jurisdictions with similar statutes, and general contractor's settlement of personal injury claim of subcontractor's employee would not preclude indemnification from subcontractor on ground that employee's exclusive remedy was under Act. Moses-Ecco Company, Inc. v. Roscoe-Ajax Corporation; Roscoe-Ajax Corporation v. Detwiler (1963, 320 F. 2d 685, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

Where injured employee has accepted compensation under this chapter so that right to recover damages from third party wrongdoer has been transferred to employer, employer's insurer or the employer may bring action in his own name to his own use and to the use of the injured employee. Moore v. Hechinger (1942, 127 F. 2d 746, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 391).

Under this chapter, where an injury is sustained through the wrongful act of a third party, the employee must elect between compensation from his employer and suit against the wrongdoer and he cannot have both. Id.

Time for filing claim

In enacting the section of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act requiring a claim for compensation to be filed within one year after the injury, Congress did not wish to penalize an employee who reasonably does not know that he has suffered harm that will, or may well, reduce his earning capacity. G. E. Stancil v. W. L. Massey, Deputy Commissioner etc. et al. (1970, 436 F. 2d 274, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

Where in January 1959 employee sustained back injury, shortly after accident employee was examined by a physician designated and paid by employer's workmen's compensation carrier and his condition was diagnosed as a mild back strain, employee was treated for his condition until May 1959 at which time he was discharged and informed that he had no further disability, employee thereafter suffered recurring back pains and was admitted to a hospital in 1962 for new treatment, and surgery performed in December of that year revealed that he was suffering from herniated or ruptured discs caused by 1959 accident, his claim for compensation under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, filed on June 20, 1963, was timely filed. Id.

Total disability

Even relatively minor injury must lead to finding of total disability under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act if that injury prevents the employee from engaging in only type of gainful employment for which he is qualified. American Mutual Insurance Company of Boston et ano. v. W. B. Jones (1970, 426 F. 2d 1263, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 269).

Usual course of business

Mere fact that something unexpectedly goes wrong within human frame will not bar recovery under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act if injury, otherwise compensable, occurs when employee is engaged in his unusual and ordinary work. Wolff etc. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioners, etc. (1964, 328 F. 2d 181, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 209).

Tort principles or common law concepts of scope of employment are not controlling in determining recoverability under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. Id.

Words "usual course" refer to normal operations constituting the regular business of the employer. Hoage v. Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. (1935, 77 F. 2d 381, 64 App. D.C. 258).

Visible injury

An accidental injury may occur, within workmen's compensation law notwithstanding the injured employee has been engaged in his usual and ordinary activity and injury need not be external but it is enough if something unexpectedly goes wrong within the human frame. M. R. Wheatley v. H. Adler, Deputy Commissioner etc., et al. (1968, 407 F. 2d 307, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

Widow

Common-law marriage is recognized in District of Columbia. E. Matthews v. T. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (1962, 303 F. 2d 408, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 397).

If parties agreed to be husband and wife in ignorance of impediment to lawful matrimony, removal of impediment results in common-law marriage between parties if they have continued to cohabit and live together as husband and wife; the same result obtains even if parties have knowledge of impediment at time that they agree to be married. Id.

If man and woman agree to be married before impediment was removed and continued thereafter to cohabit and live together as husband and wife, a common-law union between man and woman was effected when woman's prior spouse was awarded divorce. Id.

To be entitled to workmen's compensation award as widow, woman must have continued to live as deserted wife of employee who has deserted her, and there must be bond in reality between husband and wife in their relation to one another, essential ingredient in her claim being her real status factually, not existing legal formalities of relationship. Liberty Mutual Ins. Co. et al. v. Donovan (1955, 218 F. 2d 860, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 49).

A woman must be a "widow" as defined by the Longshoremen's Compensation Act, section 902(16) of title 33, U.S. Code, in order to be entitled to compensation as a "surviving wife" during "widowhood." Weeks v. Behrend (1943, 135 F. 2d 258, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 341).

Zone of special danger

Obligations or conditions of employment must create a "zone of special danger" out of which injury arose if there is to be recovery under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. Wolff etc. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner, etc. (1964, 328 F. 2d 181, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 209).

§ 36-502. Exceptions.

This chapter shall not apply in respect to the injury or death of (1) a master or member of a crew of any vessel; (2) an employee of a common carrier by railroad when engaged in interstate or foreign commerce or commerce solely within the District of Columbia; (3) an employee subject to the provisions of subchapter I of chapter 81 of title 5, U.S. Code; and (4) an employee engaged in agriculture, domestic service, or any employment that is casual and not in the usual course of the trade, business, occupation, or profession of the employer; and (5) any secretary, stenographer, or other person performing any services in the office of any Member of Congress or under the direction, employment, or at the request of any Member of Congress, within the scope of the duties performed by secretaries, stenographers, or such employees of Members of Congress. (May 17, 1928, 45 Stat. 600, ch. 612, § 2; June 15, 1938, 52 Stat. 689, ch. 392.)

CODIFICATION

The reference to "subchapter I of chapter 81 of title 5, U.S. Code" was substituted for "chapter 15 of title 5, U.S. Code", on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, set out in note under § 1-251. The act of Sept. 7, 1916 (39 Stat. 742, ch. 458), as amended, which was the Federal Employees' Compensation Act, was repealed by act Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a) (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law), and is now covered by the provisions of titles 5 and 18, U.S.C., cited.

AMENDMENT

1938—Act June 15, 1938, added clause (5) to include persons performing services for members of Congress.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Application of statute

Where appellant was injured while working in appellee's car barn, he could not recover under § 44-401 of the Code since § 36-501 has become the applicable workman's compensation act for the District and appellee was not a common carrier by railroad and is excepted from the operation of § 36-501. Keffe v. Capital Transit Co. (1950, 183 F. 2d 808, 87 U.S. App. D.C. 13).

Casual employment

Statutory provision excepting from workmen's compensation coverage those engaged in casual employment not in usual course of trade, business, occupation or profession of employer could not be invoked to exclude coverage for musicians temporarily employed by restaurant proprietor since music was furnished in restaurant in usual course of business. Great American Indemnity Co. et al. v. Britton, Deputy Commissioner etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 186 F. Supp. 938).

Death of ornamental ironworker resulting from accident while repairing door in grillwork was while engaged in "casual employment," and not in usual course of employer's business. Hoage v. Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. (1935, 77 F. 2d 381, 64 App. D.C. 258, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 128, 296 U.S. 609, 80 L. Ed. 432).

Employees' duties controlling

Where main duty of deckhand employed on a stripper dredge was to coal up dredge from scow, and coal was used to fire engine which operated scoop shovel, deckhand was not a "member of a crew," and hence his claim for injuries was covered by the Longshoremen's Compensation Act, section 901 et seq. of title 33, U.S. Code, as made applicable to a District of Columbia employer and not by the Merchant Marine Act, section 688 of title 46, U.S. Code. Beddoe v. Smoot Sand & Gravel Corporation (1942, 128 F. 2d 608, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 38).

Second injury

Where deputy commissioner originally awarded compensation for temporary total disability, stipulated intermediate order finding temporary partial disability was made subject to deputy's right of review when claimant's condition might change, and compensation was paid after a second injury within less than one year of claim based on total disability, even if original award was suspended during reemployment of claimant, and claimant became only partially disabled, that classification did not prejudice claimant's rights to recover for total disability resulting from second injury. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. v. Cardillo (1942, 127 F. 2d 334, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 342).

§ 38-101. Mechanic's lien.

Every building erected, improved, added to, or repaired by the owner or his agent, and the lot of ground on which the same is erected, being all the ground used or intended to be used in connection therewith, or necessary to the use and enjoyment thereof, to the extent of the right, title, and interest, at that time existing, of such owner, whether owner in fee or of a less estate, or lessee for a term of years, or vendee in possession under a contract of sale, shall be subject to a lien in favor of the contractor with such owner or his duly authorized agent for the contract price agreed upon between them, or, in the absence of an express contract, for the reasonable value of the work and materials furnished for and about the erection, construction, improvement, or repair of or addition to such building, or the placing of any engine, machinery, or other thing therein or in connection therewith so as to become a fixture, though capable of being detached: Provided, That the person claiming the lien shall file the notice herein prescribed. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1384, ch. 854, § 1237.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

The provision of the code with respect to mechanic's liens is "fundamentally the same as in the former statute." Lipscomb v. Hough (1923, 286 F. 775, 52 App. D. C. 313).

Agreement not to claim lien

Where plasterer subcontractor finished the job and wrote letters to the building owner and to supplier of materials stating the balance due on subcontract and a willingness to refrain from filing a mechanic's lien against the property if owner and material supplier would acknowledge that they would protect subcontractor, and owner and supplier signed requested acknowledgements, there was a meeting of the minds, consideration for such agreement, and breach of agreement imposes on owner and supplier liability for loss flowing from subcontractor's forbearance. Kidwell & Kidwell, Inc. v. W. T. Galliher & Bro., Inc. et ano. (D.C. App. 1971, 282 A. 2d 575).

Contract of lessee

"A builder contracting with the lessee of premises to furnish labor and material thereon, with notice that he is dealing with the lessee and not the owner, is estopped to complain of ignorance of the terms of the lease, where as here, it was a matter of public record." Lipscomb v. Hough (1923, 286 F. 775, 52 App. D. C. 313).

Lessee was agent of lessor, in ordering improvements, so as to charge interest of lessor in land. McLean v. Nolan (1915, 44 App. D.C. 1).

"Nor does a covenant in the lease, vesting in the lessor title in the buildings, and improvements erected on the premises at the termination of the lease, create the relation of principal and agent between the lessor and lessee." Lipscomb v. Hough (1923, 286 F. 775, 52 App. D. C. 313). See, also, Albaugh v. Litho-Marble Decorating Co. (1899, 14 App. D.C. 113); Langley v. D'Audigne (1908, 31 App. D.C. 409).

Contract of owner

"In the latter case, the statutes relative to mechanics' liens * * * are reviewed at length with the conclusion that a lien upon the premises can only be imposed where the building is erected or repaired at the instance of the owner or his agent. If the work is done and materials furnished at the instance of a lessee, or tenant for life, or years, or a person having an equitable interest therein, the lien can only extend to the interest of the lessee, tenant, or equitable owner." Lipscomb v. Hough (1923, 286 F. 775, 52 App. D. C. 313).

Owner's rights

Subcontractor who filed mechanic's lien for value of certain equipment he installed recognized that property owner's right to immediate possession of such equipment was superior to his own. National Brick and Supply Co. Inc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc.; A. Grunstein etc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc. (1962, 299 F. 2d 454, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 73).

Contract for making alterations and additions to church building did not authorize contractor or subcontractor to remove and not replace materials where progress payment had been made in reliance on presence of such equipment. Id.

Pleading

Under this section providing that a mechanic's lien may be placed on property not only for work done but also for materials furnished, complaint for removal of lien alleging that contractor did no work on one of 2 lots was insufficient where it failed to allege that no materials were furnished for improvement of such lot. Clarke v. Huff (1948, 165 F. 2d 247, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 38).

Preferential treatment

Enforcement of claim of heating contractor for amount due on contract with owners to complete work begun by contractor under subcontract with defaulting building corporation did not contravene public policy reflected in mechanics' lien law on theory that heating contractor would receive preferential treatment over building corporation's other subcontractors. W. E. Baylor et al. v. H. Bortolussi et c. (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 653).

Status of parties

The status of the parties at the time of the contract determines the question of the right to a lien. Deming v. Wardman Constr. Co. (1930, 39 F. 2d 504, 59 App. D.C. 254).

Statutory construction

In determining whether a right to a lien exists, the statute should be strictly construed; but where the right to a lien is clear and the question is whether the claimant has proceeded properly, the statute should be liberally construed in his favor. Deming v. Wardman Constr. Co. (1930, 39 F. 2d 504, 59 App. D.C. 254).

A mechanic's lien is purely a creature of statute. "The performance of the work, or the furnishing of the materials, gives merely a right to acquire a lien. The statute prescribes the steps necessary to perfect it. These requirements relate to the remedy rather than the right." "In determining whether a right to a lien exists, the statute should be strictly construed against one claiming such right, * * * but * * * where the right to a lien clearly appears, and the sole question to be determined is whether the claimant has proceeded properly to acquire and establish his lien, the statute should be liberally construed in his favor." Fidelity Storage Corp. v. Trussed Concrete Steel Co. (1910, 35 App. D.C. 1). See, also, James B. Lambie Co. v. Bigelow (1909, 34 App. D.C. 49); Columbia Brick Co. v. District of Columbia (1893, 1 App. D.C. 351); Alfred Richards Brick Co. v. Atkinson (1900, 16 App. D.C. 462); Alfred Richards Brick Co. v. Trott (1904, 23 App. D.C. 284).

Substantial performance

In a proceeding to foreclose a mechanic's lien, a contractor who intentionally fails to perform the contract according to its terms, and refuses to remedy the defect, is not entitled to the benefit of the doctrine of substantial performance. Turner v. Henning (1920, 262 F. 637, 49 App. D.C. 183).

Waiver

Taking of security generally operates as waiver of right to mechanic's lien, but a mere agreement to take such security, not carried into effect, does not operate as a waiver. McMurray v. Brown (1875, 91 U. S. 257, 1 Otto 257, 23 L. Ed. 321).

§ 38-102. Notice.

Any such contractor wishing to avail himself of the provision aforesaid, whether his claim be due or not, shall file in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia during the construction or within three months after the completion of such building, improvement, repairs, or addition, or the placing therein or in connection therewith of any engine, machinery, or other thing so as to become a fixture, a notice of his intention to hold a lien on the property hereby declared liable to such lien for the amount due or to become due to him, specifically setting forth the amount claimed, the name of the party against whose interest a lien is claimed, and a description of the property to be charged, and the said recorder of deeds shall file said notice and record the same in a book to be kept for the purpose. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1384, ch. 854, § 1238; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 5, 1966, 80 Stat. 265, Pub. L. 89-493, § 15(a)(b).)

AMENDMENT

1966—Act July 5, 1966, § 15(a), substituted "Recorder of Deeds of" for "clerk of the United States District Court for"; and § 15(b) of such act substituted "Recorder of Deeds" for "clerk".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1966 AMENDMENT

Amendment of this section by act July 5, 1966, as effective on first day of first month which is at least ninety days after July 5, 1966, see § 21 of such act, set out in note under § 1-504.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1936, substituted "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia" for "Supreme Court of the District of Columbia."

Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, as amended by act May 24, 1949, substituted "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" for "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia."

APPROPRIATIONS

Appropriations authorized to carry out purposes of act July 5, 1966, which amended this section, see § 20 of such act, set out in note under § 1-504.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Completion

The abandonment of the work by the original contractor is deemed in law to be a completion of it for the purpose of filing mechanics' liens by subcontractors and materialmen. Harper v. Galliher & Huguely (1929, 29 F. 2d 452, 58 App. D. C. 252, certiorari denied 49 S. Ct. 185, 278 U. S. 657, 73 L. Ed. 565).

Question of completion or noncompletion should be determined by what the common intelligence and the common usage regard as completion, always, of course, with reference to the provisions of the building contract. At the same time no amount of work is too small, the completion of which is required to prevent the consummation of a fraud. Riggs Fire Ins. Co. v. Shedd (1900, 16 App. D.C. 150).

Distinct and separate notices

Two or more distinct and separate notices of lien may be comprised in one single instrument of writing; and two or more notices of lien may be enforced in one and the same proceeding in equity where the parties may be the same. Dicta in Alfred Richards Brick Co. v. Trott (1904, 23 App. D.C. 284).

"Elevator" defined

Electric passenger elevator is both an engine and machine; and whether its motive power be electricity, water or steam, can make no difference in the contemplation of the statute, subjecting building to a lien under Mechanics' Lien Law. Lefler v. Forsberg (1893, 1 App. D.C. 36).

Interest in property

All persons concerned or interested in the estate are to be at least constructively notified of the interest in the property and the name against which the lien is claimed. Chamberlain Metal Weather Strip Co. v. Karrick (1932, 53 F. 2d 928, 60 App. D.C. 316).

Naming wrong person

Where a lienor has named as alleged owner one who has no interest in the property or the wrong person, notice of mechanic's lien is fatally insufficient. Hartford Acc. & Ind. Co. v. A.B.C. Cleaning Contractors, Inc. (1965, 350 F. 2d 430, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

Mere fact that mechanic's lien undertaking had been offered and filed did not estop surety sued on personal judgment obtained against its insured from denying its insured's ownership of premises in question. Id.

Personal judgment obtained by contractor against purported owner, which expressly reserved a ruling with respect to validity of mechanic's lien, could not serve as basis of judgment against surety under its mechanic's lien undertaking in view of failure to show purported owner's interest in property in question. Id.

Notice of mechanic's lien naming wrong person as owner is invalid. Chamberlain Metal Weather Strip Co. v. Karrick (1932, 53 F. 2d 928, 60 App. D.C. 316).

Purpose

The purpose of mechanic's lien laws is to protect by the property those who contribute to its value by labor or materials, and it is only by compliance with statutory requirements that this can be accomplished. Chamberlain Metal Weather Strip Co. v. Karrick (1932, 53 F. 2d 928, 60 App. D.C. 316).

Requisites

"It is apparent that, under the statute, three essential averments are necessary to constitute a valid notice. These are, first, the amount claimed; second, the name of the party against whose interest the lien is claimed; and, third, a description of the property to be charged." Fidelity Storage Corp. v. Trussed Concrete Steel Co. (1910, 35 App. D.C. 1).

Time for filing

A mechanic's lien, if filed by an original contractor, must be filed either during the construction of the improvement or within three months after its completion. Harper v. Galliher & Huguely (1929, 29 F. 2d 452, 58 App. D.C. 252, certiorari denied 49 S. Ct. 185, 278 U.S. 657. 73 L. Ed. 565).

§ 38-103. Subcontractor.

Any person directly employed by the original contractor, whether as subcontractor, material man, or laborer, to furnish work or materials for the completion of the work contracted for as aforesaid, shall be entitled to a similar lien to that of the original contractor upon his filing a similar notice with the Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia to that above mentioned, subject, however, to the conditions set forth in sections 38-104 to 38-122. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1384, ch. 854, § 1239; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 5, 1966, 80 Stat. 265, Pub. L. 89-493, § 15(a).)

AMENDMENT

1966—Section 15(a) of act July 5, 1966, substituted "Recorder of Deeds of" for "clerk of the United States District Court for".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1966 AMENDMENT

Amendment of this section by act July 5, 1966, as effective on first day of first month which is at least ninety days after July 5, 1966, see § 21 of such act, set out in note under § 1-504.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1936, substituted "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia" for "Supreme Court of the District of Columbia."

Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, as amended by act May 24, 1949, substituted "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" for "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia."

Appropriations authorized to carry out purposes of act July 5, 1966, which amended this section, see § 20 of such act, set out in note under § 1-504.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Prior to code, see Leitch v. Emergency Hosp. (1895, 6 App. D.C. 247). See, also, Herrell v. Donovan (1895, 7 App. D.C. 322); Sommerville v. Williams (1898, 12 App. D.C. 520); Riggs Fire Ins. Co. v. Shedd (1900, 16 App. D.C. 150).

Agreement not to claim lien

Where plasterer subcontractor finished the job and wrote letters to the building owner and to supplier of materials stating the balance due on subcontract and a willingness to refrain from filing a mechanic's lien against the property if the owner and material supplier would acknowledge that they would protect subcontractor, and owner and supplier signed requested acknowledgments, there was a meeting of the minds, consideration for such agreement, and breach of agreement imposes on owner and supplier liability for loss flowing from subcontractor's forbearance Kidwell & Kidwell, Inc. v. W. T. Galliher & Bro., Inc. et ano. (D.C. App. 1971, 282 A. 2d 575).

Contractor paid in full

Mechanic's lienors were not entitled to satisfy their liens out of sums which owner had paid prime contractor before liens were filed and before owner learned that prime contractor had abandoned contract. National Brick and Supply Co. Inc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc.; A. Grunstein etc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc. (1962, 299 F. 2d 454, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 73).

Knowledge of terms

"The subcontractor should acquaint himself with the terms and conditions of the building contract. This information is made available by statute * * *. In the absence of anything to the contrary, we must assume that the plaintiff possessed this information." Winter v. Hazen-Latimer Co. (1914, 42 App. D.C. 469).

Materialmen as contractors

Materialmen held to be contractors under § 1237 (§ 38-101), and not subcontractors under this section. McLean v. Nolan (1915, 44 App. D.C. 1).

Payment into court of sum equal to lien

"The evident purpose of sections 1254 and 1255 (§§ 38-118, 38-119) is to enable the owner, against whose building or fixtures a lien has been asserted, to be relieved of the embarrassment of the lien through the payment into court of a sum equal to the amount of the lien with interest and costs, or the filing of an undertaking to cover that amount. Where, admittedly an amount is due the principal contractor, and the lien is asserted by a subcontractor, there is no contest between the owner and the subcontractor; the issue being restricted to the contractor and subcontractor. If the owner does not take advantage of these provisions of the code for the release of the lien, the statute imposes upon him no duty to notify the contractor of the pendency of the subcontractor's suit." Woodward v. Union Trust Co. (1920, 262 F. 627, 49 App. D.C. 173).

Sub-subcontractor

Under this section, a subcontractor but not a sub-subcontractor has right to file a mechanic's lien. Battista v. Horton, Myers & Raymond (1942, 128 F. 2d 29, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Where general contractors and subcontractor had entered into written agreements with owners not to permit or suffer any mechanic's liens to be filed against property but contract between subcontractor and sub-subcontractor did not specifically impose that condition on the sub-subcontractor, it was entitled under its contract to retain all its legal rights until payment or a valid tender of payment. Id.

Subcontractor's rights

Where subcontractor had filed mechanic's lien for value of equipment he had replaced, his subsequent removal of such equipment was tortious, and in absence of showing why owner could not enforce right to require subcontractor to replace such equipment or pay damages, amount paid by owner for having him replace equipment was not deductible from unpaid balance which was due prime contractor and in which other subcontractors who had filed mechanic's liens were entitled to share. National Brick and Supply Co. Inc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc.; A. Grunstein etc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc. (1962, 299 F. 2d 454, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 73).

Waiver

Subcontractors who waive their remedy under the mechanic's lien statute at the instance of the owner, who refuses to pay the contractor until such releases are executed, cannot, in the absence of fraud, have the release set aside and the lien reinstated, when it appears that the amount paid the contractor was insufficient to pay the subcontractors in full. Stevens v. Gordon (1919, 48 App. D.C. 604).

§ 38-104. Conditions.

All such liens in favor of parties so employed by the contractor shall be subject to the terms and conditions of the original contract except such as shall relate to the waiver of liens and shall be limited to the amount to become due to the original contractor and be satisfied, in whole or in part, out of said amount only; and if said original contractor, by reason of any breach of the contract on his part, shall be entitled to recover less than the amount agreed upon in his contract, the liens of said parties so employed by him shall be enforceable only for said reduced amount, and if said original contractor shall be entitled to recover nothing said liens shall not be enforceable at all. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1384, ch. 854, § 1240.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Lienholder's rights

Trial judge's findings as to balance of contract price which remained unexpended after owner had completed work following prime contractor's abandonment of work before completion, and against which subcontractors could enforce their mechanic's liens, were not clearly erroneous, in view of conflicting evidence supporting findings. National Brick & Supply Co., Inc., etc. and A. Grunstein et al. v. W. E. Baylor etc. (1963, 324 F. 2d. 892, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

Payments made by owner to other subcontractors through general contractor, after plaintiff-subcontractor's filing of lien, were considered payments to general contractor, within statute requiring owner to withhold such payment in favor of lienholder. J. C. Spencer v. Old Stein Grill et al. (D.C.D.C. 1961, 194 F. Supp. 274).

Owners liability to subcontractor

Where 23% of each progress report certified by architect was chargeable against down payment and note to be delivered and to begin to be due when warehouse construction work was completed and lender paid remaining 77% of amounts shown on the first ten of eleven certified progress requisitions and where owners terminated the contract, the down payment and note at least negated further obligations of owners in those amounts, and owners thus owed general contractor nothing when subcontractors filed mechanics' liens, after termination of contract, pursuant to District of Columbia statute providing in effect that if owner owes general contractor nothing subcontractors can collect nothing by mechanics' liens. Washington Concrete Sales Corporation, Inc., and R. L. Walutes etc. v. A. E. Morrisette et al. (1966, 377 F. 2d 137, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 252).

Evidence supported finding that owners, sued by subcontractors for enforcement of mechanics' liens filed under District of Columbia statute providing in effect that if owner owes general contractor nothing subcontractors can collect nothing, had completed building at cost higher than original contract price after terminating the contract. Id.

Rights of supplier lienor

Supplier lienor had right to enforce its lien up to amount owner paid contractor after notice of supplier's lien, notwithstanding degree to which owner may have discharged obligation running to contractor under the contract. S. Ritzenberg, et al. v. Noland Co., Inc. (1966, 364 F. 2d 667, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 274).

§ 38-105. Notice to owner.

The said subcontractor or other person employed by the contractor as aforesaid, besides filing a notice with the Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia as aforesaid, shall serve the same upon the owner of the property upon which the lien is claimed, by leaving a copy thereof with said owner or his agent, if said owner or agent be a resident of the District, or if neither can be found, by posting the same on the premises; and on his failure to do so, or until he shall do so, the said owner may make payments to his contractor according to the terms of his contract, and to the extent of such payments the lien of the principal contractor shall be discharged and the amount for which the property shall be chargeable in favor of the parties so employed by him reduced. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1385, ch. 854, § 1241; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 5, 1966, 80 Stat. 265, Pub. L. 89-493, § 15(a).)

§ 38-106. Owner's duty.

After notice shall be filed by said party employed under the original contractor and a copy thereof served upon the owner or his agents as aforesaid, the owner shall be bound to retain out of any subsequent payments becoming due to the contractor a sufficient amount to satisfy any indebtedness due from said contractor to the said subcontractor, or other person so employed by him, secured by lien as aforesaid, otherwise the said party shall be entitled to enforce his lien to the extent of the amount so accruing to

Mechanic's lienors were not entitled to satisfy their liens out of sums which owner had paid prime contractor before liens were filed and before owner learned that prime contractor had abandoned contract. National Brick and Supply Co., Inc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc.; A. Grunstein etc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc. (1962, 299 F. 2d 454, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 73).

Where the owner pays the contractor in full, without notice of subcontractor's right, the subcontractor has no lien upon moneys subsequently accruing to contractor's surety who completes the work under the power reserved to it in the bond. Winter v. Hazen-Latimer Co. (1914, 42 App. D.C. 469).

Limitation of rights

"The statute limits the right of a subcontractor to a lien upon money due the contractor from the owner at the time notice is given the owner." Winter v. Hazen-Latimer Co. (1914, 42 App. D.C. 469).

Purpose of statute

Purpose and effect of statute are not to expose owner to liability to lienors greater than that owed to contractor. S. Ritzenberg, et al. v. Noland Co., Inc. (1966, 364 F. 2d 667, 274 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

Subcontractor's knowledge of terms

"The subcontractor should acquaint himself with the terms and conditions of the building contract. This information is made available by statute * * *. In the absence of anything to the contrary, we must assume that the plaintiff possessed this information." Winter v. Hazen-Latimer Co. (1914, 42 App. D.C. 469).

Subcontractor's rights

Where subcontractor had filed mechanic's lien for value of equipment he had replaced, his subsequent removal of such equipment was tortious, and in absence of showing why owner could not enforce right to require subcontractor to replace such equipment or pay damages, amount paid by owner for having him replace equipment was not deductible from unpaid balance which was due prime contractor and in which other subcontractors who had filed mechanic's liens were entitled to share. National Brick and Supply Co. Inc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc.; A. Grunstein etc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc. (1962, 299 F. 2d 454, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 73).

Payments made by owner to other subcontractors through general contractor, after plaintiff-subcontractor's filing of lien, were considered payments to general contractor, within statute requiring owner to withhold such payment in favor of lienholder. J. C. Spencer v. Old Stein Grill et al. (D.C.D.C. 1961, 194 F. Supp. 274).

Subcontractor's rights are "dependent on the contract between the owner and the builder and on the state of the accounts between them; and * * * the subcontractors were bound by all the terms and conditions of that contract." But the subcontractor is equally entitled to the benefits of the contract as far as it inures to his advantage. Riggs Fire Ins. Co. v. Shedd (1900, 16 App. D.C. 150).

§ 38-107. Subcontractor entitled to know terms of contract.

Any subcontractor or other person employed by the contractor as aforesaid shall be entitled to demand of the owner or his authorized agent a statement of the terms under which the work contracted for is being done and the amount due or to become due to the contractor executing the same, and if the owner or his agent shall fail or refuse to give the said information, or wilfully state falsely the terms of the contract or the amounts due or unpaid thereunder, the said property shall be liable to the lien of the said party demanding said information, in the same manner as if no payments had been made to the contractor before notice served on the owner as aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1385, ch. 854, § 1243.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 34-103.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence of notice to subcontractors

Evidence supported finding that owners had advised subcontractors seeking to enforce mechanics' liens as to terms of warehouse construction contract, status of payments, etc., in accordance with District of Columbia statute. Washington Concrete Sales Corporation, Inc., and R. L. Walutes etc. v. A. E. Morrisette et al. (1966, 377 F. 2d 137, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 252).

Subcontractor's knowledge of terms

Subcontractor was chargeable with notice of terms of general contract. National Brick and Supply Co. Inc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc.; A. Grunstein etc. v. W. E. Baylor et al., Trustees etc. (1962, 299 F. 2d 454, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 73).

"The subcontractor should acquaint himself with the terms and conditions of the building contract. This information is made available by statute * * *. In the absence of anything to the contrary, we must assume that the plaintiff possessed this information." Winter v. Hazen-Latimer Co. (1914, 42 App. D.C. 469).

§ 38-108. Advance payments.

If the owner, for the purpose of avoiding the provisions hereof, and defeating the lien of the subcontractor or other person employed by the contractor, as aforesaid, shall make payments to the contractor in advance of the time agreed upon therefor in the contract, and the amount still due or to become due to the contractor shall be insufficient to satisfy the liens of the subcontractors or others so employed by the contractor, the property shall remain subject to said liens in the same manner as if such payments had not been made. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1385, ch. 854, § 1244.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

Bad faith

In suit by subcontractors to establish liens against owners who had made advance payments to general contractor prior to filing of notice of liens by subcontractors, District Court's ruling that actual bad faith on owners' part need not be shown was erroneous. Merrill v. B. R. Acker Co. (1944, 142 F. 2d 102, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Where owner has made advances to general contractor in order to speed up the work, prior to filing of notice of liens by subcontractors, bad faith cannot be presumed from mere fact of advance payments, and something more is necessary to support such an inference, in order to establish owner's liability to subcontractors under this section. Id.

Evidence

In suit by subcontractors to establish liens against owners who had made advance payments to general contractor prior to filing of notice of liens by subcontractors, evidence did not disclose purpose by owner to defeat subcontractors' liens. Merrill v. B. R. Acker Co. (1944, 142 F. 2d 102, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Extent of lien

Where owners had, in good faith, made advance payments to general contractor and at time notice of lien was first filed by one of the subcontractors only a few dollars remained due from owners to general contractor, the subcontractors were not entitled to mechanic's liens in excess of amount remaining due when notice of lien was filed and served. Merrill v. B. R. Acker Co. (1944, 142 F. 2d 102, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Rights and remedies of subcontractors

Subcontractors have ample opportunity to protect themselves against advance payments by owner to general contractor under §§ 38-103, 38-105, 38-107 entitling subcontractors to require owner to disclose terms of general contract and state of account between himself and general contractor and to secure liens by filing them and giving notice to owner. Merrill v. B. R. Acker Co. (1944, 142 F. 2d 102, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Subcontractor's rights are "dependent on the contract between the owner and the builder and on the state of the accounts between them; and * * * the subcontractors were bound by all the terms and conditions of that contract." But the subcontractor is equally entitled to the benefits of the contract as far as it inures to his advantage. Riggs Fire Ins. Co. v. Shedd (1900, 16 App. D.C. 150).

§ 38-109. Priority of lien.

The lien hereby given shall be preferred to all judgments, mortgages, deeds of trusts, liens, and incumbrances which attach upon the building or ground affected by said lien subsequently to the commencement of the work upon the building, as well as to conveyances executed, but not recorded, before that time, to which recording is necessary, as to third persons; except that nothing herein shall affect the priority of a mortgage or deed of trust given to secure the purchase money for the land, if the same be recorded within ten days from the date of the acknowledgment thereof. When a mortgage or deed of trust of real estate securing advances thereafter to be made for the purpose of erecting buildings and improvements thereon is given, or when an owner of lands contracts with a builder for the sale of lots and the erection of buildings thereon, and agrees to advance moneys toward the erection of such buildings, the lien hereinbefore authorized shall have priority to all advances made after the filing of said notices of lien, and the lien shall attach to the right, title, and interest of the owner in said building and land to the extent of all advances which shall have become due after the filing of such notice of such lien, and shall also attach to and be a lien on the right, title, and interest of the person so agreeing to purchase said land at the time of the filing of said notices of lien. When a building shall be erected or repaired by a lessee or tenant for life or years, or a person having an equitable estate or interest in such building or land on which it stands, the lien created by this act shall only extend to and cover the interest or estate of such lessee, tenant, or equitable owners. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1385, ch. 854, § 1245.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

Mechanic's lien

The relation back preference of mechanic's lien does not affect the priority of a recorded purchase-money deed of trust, a priority that exceeds even that of a previous judgment. Guardian Federal Savings & Loan Association v. H. P. Suskind (D.C. App. 1970, 265 A. 2d 295).

Priority to surplus on foreclosure

In this case, the court held that the holder of purchase-money deed of trust (containing provision that it should be subordinate to any construction loan and all advances made under construction loan) is entitled, on foreclosure of first deed of trust held by construction lender, to priority with respect to surplus remaining after satisfaction of construction lender's debt and payment of foreclosure expenses, notwithstanding construction lender's claim to surplus to satisfy mechanic's lien it had paid against property. Guardian Federal Savings & Loan Association v. H. P. Suskind (D.C. App. 1970, 265 A. 2d 295).

When lien attaches

Mechanic's lien attaches at commencement of work and sale thereafter does not affect validity. Deland v. Wagner (1933, 64 F. 2d 552, 62 App. D.C. 54).

The mechanic's lien attached upon the property at the time of the commencement of the work upon the building, but was subordinate to two deeds of trust previously executed. Id.

§ 38-110. How lien enforced.

The proceeding to enforce the lien hereby given shall be a bill in equity, which shall contain a brief statement of the contract on which the claim is founded, the amount due thereon, the time when the notice was filed with the recorder of deeds, and a copy thereof served on the owner or his agent, if so served, and the time when the building or the work thereon was completed, with a description of the premises and other material facts; and shall pray that the premises be sold and the proceeds of sale applied to the satisfaction of the lien. If such suit be brought by any person entitled, other than the principal contractor, the latter shall be made a party defendant, as well as all other persons who may have filed notices of liens, as aforesaid. All or any number of persons having liens on the same property may join in one suit, their respective claims being distinctly stated in separate paragraphs; and if several suits are brought by different claimants and are pending at the same time, the court may order them to be consolidated. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1386, ch. 854, § 1246; July 5, 1966, 80 Stat. 265, Pub. L. 89-493, § 15(b).)

AMENDMENT

1966—Act July 5, 1966, in first sentence, substituted "Recorder of Deeds" for "clerk".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1966 AMENDMENT

Amendment of this section by act July 5, 1966, as effective on first day of first month which is at least ninety days after July 5, 1966, see § 21 of such act, set out in note under § 1-504.

APPROPRIATIONS

Appropriations authorized to carry out purposes of act July 5, 1966, which amended this section, see § 20 of such act, set out in note under § 1-504.

CROSS REFERENCE

One form of action in U.S. district courts, and in Superior Court of the District of Columbia, to be known as a civil action, see rule 2 of Fed. Rules of Civ. Proc., 28 U.S.C. App.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 38-103, 38-123.

In general

It has never been the practice for persons holding or claiming mechanics' liens, who have been made defendants, to take affirmative action as a prerequisite for their participation in the fund to be realized by the suit. Emack v. Campbell (1899, 14 App. D.C. 186).

Notices of lien should specifically set forth the amount claimed and not the items that go to make up that amount. Id.

To enforce mechanics' liens although a personal judgment can only be enforced against party who incurred debt, still a personal decree by subcontractors against the owner of the property as well as original contractor is proper, especially where record shows an unexpended balance in owner's hands more than enough to pay claims of subcontractors. Emack v. Rushenberger (1896, 8 App. D.C. 249).

If claim filed under law as it existed prior to act of Congress of 2d of July, 1884, it should have been made out against the former owner of the property with whom contract was made and not against subsequent purchaser. Lefler v. Forsberg (1893, 1 App. D.C. 36).

Arbitration

Where proceeding was commenced by bill in equity, and, when case was reached for trial, continuance was granted for cause shown that arbitration proceedings were in progress, and parties knew that court's judgment was suspended pending award of arbitrators, the arbitration agreement achieved status of a "stipulation" and would be enforced as a rule of court. John W. Johnson, Inc. v. 2500 Wisconsin Ave., Inc. (1956, 231 F. 2d 761, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 8).

Bill in equity

A bill in equity is proper proceeding to enforce mechanic's lien against trustees under deed of trust. Roth v. Eisinger Mill & Lbr. Co. (1934, 70 F. 2d 294, 63 App. D.C. 128).

Burden of proof

Burden is on plaintiffs to show by clear proof, when the buildings were commenced, the nature and character of the work and materials furnished and the time when the buildings were completed; and the failure to establish these facts, to a reasonable intent, will cause the plaintiffs to fail in their claim to a lien. Brown v. Waring (1893, 1 App. D.C. 378).

Clearly erroneous

In action to enforce a mechanic's lien for labor and materials in remodeling of defendant's property, finding of the district court that there was due the plaintiff $7,750 was not "clearly erroneous". J. W. Curtis v. R. A. Chambers (1962, 310 F. 2d 857, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 52).

Continuance

The Court of Appeals would take judicial notice of practice of the District Court that no case can be continued by the assignment commissioner but that continuance can be only upon order of assignment judge for cause shown. John W. Johnson, Inc. v. 2500 Wisconsin Ave., Inc. (1956, 231 F. 2d 761, 98 U. S. App. D. C. 8).

Evidence

There is no doubt of the right of the mortgagees and others acquiring an interest in the property against which the lien is sought to be enforced, to require and insist upon strict proof of everything that is essential to maintain the lien. Brown v. Waring (1893, 1 App. D.C. 378).

Filing

This section provides means for the enforcement of such liens only when filed within the limitations of the statutes. Harper v. Galliher Huguley (1929, 29 F. 2d 452, 58 App. D.C. 252, certiorari denied 49 S. Ct. 185, 278 U.S. 657, 73 L. Ed. 565).

Sworn answer of defendant made it necessary for complainant to prove all allegations of bill which includes filing of notice of lien in the manner and within time presented by statute. Landvoight v. Melovich (1893, 1 App. D.C. 498).

Judgment

Fact that judgment foreclosing subcontractor's lien against owners of leasehold interest was in less amount than claim against general contractor did not automatically reopen or validate judgment against general contractor, nor did fact that no lien at all was recognized in final judgment as against owner of fee. Redding & Company, Inc. v. Ruswine Construction Corporation (1972, 463 F. 2d 929, 150 U.S. App. D.C. 93).

Summary money judgment against general contractor in favor of subcontractor, premised upon clear violation of court order requiring deposit and entry of unquestioned default, and not dependent upon security or extent of any lien, was not arbitrary or capricious and was valid. Id.

Reinsurance agreements

Reinsurers are liable to materialmen upon the first reinsurance agreements. Bruckner-Mitchell v. Sun Indem. Co. (1936, 82 F. 2d 434, 65 App. D.C. 178).

Fact that payment, under the reinsurance agreements, is to be made to the District of Columbia is not conclusive that only such a default under the bond as would affect the District in its own right, as distinguished from such a default as affects materialmen, is intended to be covered by the reinsurance agreements. Id.

Subcontractor entitled to lien

Under § 1239 (§ 38-103) a subcontractor is entitled to a mechanic's lien, which must be enforced by a bill in equity. Woodward v. Union Trust Co. (1920, 262 F. 627, 49 App. D.C. 173).

§ 38-111. Decree of sale.

If the right of the complainant, or of any of the parties to the suit, to the lien herein provided for shall be established, the court shall decree a sale of the land and premises or the estate and interest therein of the person who, as owner, contracted for the erection, repair, improvement of, or addition to the building, as aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1386, ch. 854, § 1247.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

Establishment of agreement

Record failed to support claim of error in dismissal of complaint seeking to enforce mechanic's lien on ground that there was no testimony establishing that plaintiff's services had been engaged by agent of owner or that owner himself had agreed to pay for repairing and remodeling work done by plaintiff. H. Berenter v. R. E. Stagers, et al. (1966, 362 F. 2d 971, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 141).

§ 38-112. Subcontractor preferred to contractor.

If the original contractor and the persons contracting or employed under him shall both have filed notices of liens, as aforesaid, the latter shall first be satisfied out of the proceeds of sale before the original contractor, but not in excess of the amount due him, and the balance, if any, of said amount shall be paid to him. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1386, ch. 854, § 1248.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

§ 38-113. Distribution.

If one, or some only, of the persons employed under the original contractor shall have served notice on the owner, as aforesaid, before payments made by him to the original contractor, said party or parties shall be entitled to priority of satisfaction out of said proceeds to the amount of such payments; but, subject to this provision, if the proceeds of sale, after paying thereout the costs of the suit, shall be insufficient to satisfy the liens of said parties employed under the original contractor the said proceeds shall be distributed ratably among them to the extent of the payments accruing to the original contractor subsequently to the service of notice on the owner by said parties, as aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1386, ch. 854, § 1249.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

§ 38-114. Several buildings.

In case of labor done or materials furnished for the erection or repair of two or more buildings joined together and owned by the same person or persons, it shall not be necessary to determine the amount of work done or materials furnished for each separate building, but only the aggregate amount upon all the buildings so joined, and the decree may be for the sale of all the buildings and the land on which they are erected as one building, or they may be sold separately if it shall seem best to the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1386, ch. 854, § 1250.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*In general

A single mechanic's lien should cover no more than a single building, except in a case where there are two or more buildings joined together and owned by a single person. Alfred Richards Brick Co. v. Trott (1904, 23 App. D.C. 284).

Row of buildings

Where the contract to erect a row of buildings related to the row as an entirety and not to the particular buildings separately, the whole row was a building in the meaning of the mechanic's lien statute, from having been thus united by the parties in one contract, as one general piece of work, and the lien could be claimed on the whole row of buildings. Phillips v. Gilbert (1879, 101 U.S. 721, 11 Otto 721, 25 L. Ed. 833).

Separate notices

Where each lienor filed separate notices of lien, each in the full amount due, against each of the two lots, trustees under deed of trust were not prejudiced by release of the lien on one lot. Roth v. Eisinger Mill & Lbr. Co. (1934, 70 F. 2d 294, 63 App. D.C. 128).

§ 38-115. When suit to be commenced.

Any person, entitled to a lien, as aforesaid, may commence his suit to enforce the same at any time within a year from and after the filing of the notice aforesaid or within six months from the completion of the building or repairs aforesaid, on his failure to do which the said lien shall cease to exist, unless his said claim be not due at the expiration of said periods, in which case the action must be commenced within three months after the said claim shall have become due. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1387, ch. 854, § 1251.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

§ 38-116. Extent of ground bound by lien.

If there be any contest as to the dimensions of the ground claimed to be subjected to the lien aforesaid, the court shall determine the same upon the evidence and describe the same in the decree of sale. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1387, ch. 854, § 1252.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

§ 38-117. Entry of satisfaction.

Whenever any person having a lien by virtue hereof shall have received satisfaction of his claim and cost, he shall, on the demand, and at the cost of the person interested, enter said claim satisfied, in the clerk's office aforesaid, and on his failure or refusal so to do he shall forfeit fifty dollars to the party aggrieved, and all damages that the latter may have sustained by reason of such failure or refusal. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1387, ch. 854, § 1253.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

§ 38-118. Payment into court and release.

In any suit to enforce a lien hereunder, the owner of the building and premises to which such lien may have attached, as aforesaid, may be allowed to pay into court the amount claimed by the lienor, and such additional amount, to cover interest and costs, as the court may direct, or he may file a written undertaking, with two or more sureties, to be approved by the court, to the effect that he and they will pay the judgment that may be recovered and costs, which judgment shall be rendered against all the persons so undertaking. On the payment of said money into court, or the approval of such undertaking, the property shall be released from such lien, and any money so paid in shall be subject to the final decree of the court. No such undertaking shall be approved by the court until the complainant shall have had at least two days' notice of the defendant's intention to apply to the court therefor, which notice shall give the names and residences of the persons intended to be offered as sureties and the time when the motion for such approval will be made, and such sureties shall make oath, if required, that they are worth, over and above all debts and liabilities, double the amount of said lien. The complainant may appear and object to such approval. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1387, ch. 854, § 1254.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 5-925, 38-103.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Bond filed

Upon the filing and approval of the undertaking of the owner and his surety, the property was released from the operation of the mechanics' lien. Deland v. Wagner (1933, 64 F. 2d 552, 62 App. D.C. 54).

Where bond is filed by purchaser of realty, for release of mechanic's lien, the suit to foreclose the lien is properly dismissed. Maiatico v. Fletcher (1930, 39 F. 2d 295, 59 App. D.C. 250).

Notice not required

"It will be observed that no notice is required under section 1254 (this section), where a money payment is made by the owner; the theory evidently being that cash speaks for itself, and that no one possibly could be prejudiced by the substitution of cash for the obligation of the owner to pay the amount due under the contract. It was for this reason that section 1255 (§ 38-119) makes no mention of a cash payment." Woodward v. Union Trust Co. (1920, 262 F. 627, 49 App. D.C. 173).

Payment into court of sum equal to lien

"The evident purpose of sections 1254 and 1255 (this section and § 38-119) is to enable the owner, against whose building or fixtures a lien has been asserted, to be relieved of the embarrassment of the lien through the payment into court of a sum equal to the amount of the lien with interest and costs, or the filing of an undertaking to cover that amount. Where admittedly an amount is due the principal contractor, and the lien is asserted by a subcontractor, there is no contest between the owner and the subcontractor; the issue being restricted to the contractor and subcontractor. If the owner does not take advantage of these provisions of the code for the release of the lien, the statute imposes upon him no duty to notify the contractor of the pendency of the subcontractor's suit." Woodward v. Union Trust Co. (1920, 262 F. 627, 49 App. D.C. 173).

§ 38-119. Undertaking to discharge liens before suit.

Such an undertaking as above mentioned may be offered before any suit brought in order to discharge the property from existing liens, in which case notice shall be given as aforesaid to the parties whose liens it is sought to have discharged, and the same proceedings shall be had as above directed in relation to the undertaking to be given after the commencement of the suit, and said undertaking shall be to the effect that the owner and his said sureties will pay any judgment that may be rendered in any suit that may thereafter be brought for the enforcement of said lien. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1387, ch. 854, § 1255.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Exclusive remedy

Where this section prescribed a specific method for removal of mechanic's liens from records by paying into court amount claimed plus interest and costs or by filing a bond, a direct action to remove the lien could not be maintained, notwithstanding plaintiff's contention that he was without funds either to pay amounts into court or to secure a bond and that delay incident to ordinary procedure would cause him irreparable damage, particularly where owner admitted that he had deposited sufficient money to cover lien with a title insurance company. Clarke v. Huff (1948, 165 F. 2d 247, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 38).

Judgment

Judgment which establishes a right to lien upon interest subject to lien is judgment which is secured by mechanic's lien undertaking. Hartford Acc. & Ind. Co. v. A.B.C. Cleaning Contractors, Inc. (1965, 350 F. 2d 430, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

Notice naming wrong person

Mere fact that mechanic's lien undertaking had been offered and filed did not estop surety sued on personal judgment obtained against its insured from denying its insured's ownership of premises in question. Hartford Acc. & Ind. Co. v. A.B.C. Cleaning Contractors, Inc. (1965, 350 F. 2d 430, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

Personal judgment obtained by contractor against purported owner, which expressly reserved a ruling with respect to validity of mechanic's lien, could not serve as basis of judgment against surety under its mechanic's lien undertaking in view of failure to show purported owner's interest in property in question. Id.

Obligation of surety

Surety's obligation under mechanic's lien undertaking is confined to purpose of mechanic's lien statute. Hartford Acc. & Ind. Co. v. A.B.C. Cleaning Contractors, Inc. (1965, 350 F. 2d 430, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

Substitute for interest in premises

Mechanic's lien undertaking, when approved by court, becomes a substitute for interest in the premises which was subject to a lien. Hartford Acc. & Ind. Co. v. A.B.C. Cleaning Contractors, Inc. (1965, 350 F. 2d 430, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

§ 38-120. Decree against sureties.

If such undertaking be approved before any suit brought, such suit shall be a suit in equity against the owner, to which the sureties may be made parties; if the undertaking be approved after suit brought, the said sureties shall ipso facto become parties to the suit, and in either case the decree of the court shall be against the sureties as well as the owner. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1387, ch. 854, § 1256.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Owner and surety, decree against

Where owner and his surety had filed an undertaking and had thereby released the mechanics' lien, the decree was properly rendered against said owner and surety. Deland v. Wagner (1933, 64 F. 2d 552, 62 App. D.C. 54).

§ 38-121. No action by subcontractor against owner.

No subcontractor, materialman, or workman employed under the original contractor shall be entitled to a personal judgment or decree against the owner of the premises for the amount due to him from said original contractor, except upon a special promise of such owner, in writing, for a sufficient consideration, to be answerable for the same. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1387, ch. 854, § 1257.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*In general

This section is applicable although the owner's contract with the contractor and the latter's contract with the subcontractor were to be performed in Maryland. Mathews v. Libbey (1914, 42 App. D.C. 272).

Liability to subcontractor

Where electrical contractor who initially undertook job at instance of general contractor could have quit the job because of general contractor's default, and he only agreed to continue in consideration of homeowner's personal new and direct agreement to pay for the work, homeowner was not relieved of obligation to pay, though his promise was merely verbal. Thomas v. Ehrmantraut (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 111 A. 2d 623).

A promise need not be in writing when it is an original or separate agreement to pay and not the mere assumption of another's debt. Id.

Personal obligation

Subcontractor is not entitled to personal judgment against owner of premises for money due him from general contractor, but a personal, new and direct promise by owner to pay for work, though not in writing, is enforceable and not violative of statute of frauds, provided such promise is supported by sufficient consideration, and such agreement is construed to be promise by owner to pay his own debt and not antecedent debt of contractor. Arthur Snowden Co., Inc. v. Meehan (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 118 A. 2d 687).

In subcontractor's action against owner of premises for reasonable value of work performed on houses, evidence would not sustain subcontractor's contention that owner had, after contractor's default on original contract, requested subcontractor to continue work and orally promised to pay him reasonable value thereof. Id.

Where principal contract did not cover additional work which owner, through general contractor requested plumbing subcontractor to perform for owner, subcontractor's claim against owner was based on owner's personal promise to pay owner's own debt and not debt of another, and authorizing subcontractor to recover amount owed by original contractor from owner who specially promises in writing for consideration to be answerable for such amount was inapplicable to subcontractor's claim against owner, and such claim was not within statute of frauds, § 12-302, requiring special promise to answer for debt of another person to be in writing. Jones v. Guice (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 57 A. 2d 190).

§ 38-122. Judgment for deficiency upon a sale.

In any suit brought to enforce a lien by virtue of the provisions aforesaid, if the proceeds of the property affected thereby shall be insufficient to satisfy such lien, a personal judgment for the deficiency may be given in favor of the lien or against the owner of the premises or the original contractor, as the case may be, whichever contracted with him for the labor or materials furnished by him, provided such person be a party to the suit and shall have been personally served with process therein. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1388, ch. 854, § 1258.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-103.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Former owners liable

Where property was sold under a deed of trust, it was properly held that a personal judgment for the deficiency should be rendered against the former owners who contracted for the repairs. Davidson v. E. F. Brooks Co. (1917, 46 App. D.C. 457, certiorari denied 38 S. Ct. 63, 245 U.S. 665, 62 L. Ed. 538). See, also, Emack v. Rushenberger (1896, 8 App. D.C. 249); McCarthy v. Holtman (1901, 19 App. D.C. 150).

§ 38-123. Wharves and lots.

Any person who shall furnish materials or labor in filling up any lot or in constructing any wharf thereon, or dredging the channel of the river in front of any wharf, under any contract with the owner, shall be entitled to a lien for the value of such work or materials on said lot and wharf upon the same conditions and to be enforced in the same manner as in the case of work done in the erection of buildings, as provided in section 38-110. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1388, ch. 854, § 1259.)

§ 38-124. Artisan's lien.

Any mechanic or artisan who shall make, alter, or repair any article of personal property at the request of the owner shall have a lien thereon for his just and reasonable charges for his work done and materials furnished, and may retain the same in his possession until said charges are paid; but if possession is parted with by his consent such lien shall cease. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1388, ch. 854, § 1260.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 38-125.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Enforcement in Municipal Court

Municipal Court for the District of Columbia had jurisdiction of action to enforce artisan's lien, notwithstanding that lien was enforced according to due course of proceedings in equity and that Municipal Court had no general equity jurisdiction, since action was essentially one to recover debt that did not exceed $3,000. N. Villacres v. E. G. Haddad et ano. (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 634).

Statute on liens of mechanics or artisans restates common-law lien and provides a means of enforcing it. Id.

§ 38-125. Enforcement by sale.

If the amount due and for which a lien is given by section 38-124 is not paid after the end of a month after the same is due, and the property bound by said lien does not exceed the sum of fifty dollars, then the party entitled to such lien, after demand of payment upon the debtor, if he be within the District, may proceed to sell the property so subject to lien at public auction, after giving notice once a week for three successive weeks in some daily newspaper published in the District, and the proceeds of such sale shall be applied, first, to the expenses of such sales and the discharge of such lien, and the remainder, if any, shall be paid over to the owner of the property.

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1388, ch. 854, § 1263; redesignated § 1261 and amended Dec. 8, 1970, Pub. L. 91-537, § 4(a), 84 Stat. 1397.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 4(a) of act Dec. 8, 1970, Pub. L. 91-537, redesignated section 1263 of the act of Mar. 3, 1901, as section "1261"; and struck out of the section redesignated as section 1261 the words "by any of the last three sections" and inserted in lieu thereof "by section 1260 [§ 38-124]".

§ 38-126. Enforcement by bill in equity.

If the value of the property so subject to lien shall exceed the sum of fifty dollars, the proceeding to enforce such lien shall be by bill or petition in equity, and the decree, which shall be rendered according to the due course of proceedings in equity, besides subjecting the thing upon which the lien was attached to sale for the satisfaction of the plaintiff's demand, shall adjudge that the plaintiff recover his demand against the defendant from whom such claim is due, and may have execution therefor as at law. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1388, ch. 854, § 1264; redesignated § 1262 Dec. 8, 1970, Pub. L. 91-537, § 4(a)(1), 84 Stat. 1397.)

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 4(a)(1) of act Dec. 8, 1970, Pub. L. 91-537, redesignated section 1264 of the act of Mar. 3, 1901, as section "1262". A previous section 1262 was repealed by Act June 3, 1952, see note under § 38-201.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR § 38-203

Conversion

Where garage owner after repairing conditional vendee's automobile turned the same over to the holder of conditional sales contract with permission of conditional vendee's son and collected his repair charges from holder, garage owner was not guilty of conversion in failing to follow the statutory requirements as to notice by repairers of automobile before enforcing lien for charges. Bullock v. Young (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 118 A. 2d 917).

§ 38-204. Lien of liverymen.

It shall be lawful for all persons keeping or boarding any animals at livery within the District, under any agreement with the owner thereof, to detain such animals until all charges under such agreement for the care, keep, or board of such animals shall have been paid: Provided, however, That before enforcing the lien hereby given notice in writing shall be given to such owner in person or by registered mail at his last-known place of residence of the amount of such charges and the intention to detain such animal or animals until such charges shall be paid. (June 3, 1952, 66 Stat. 96, ch. 361, § 1.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

§ 38-205. Lien for storage, repairs and supplies for motor vehicles.

(a) All persons storing, repairing, or furnishing supplies of or concerning motor vehicles including trailers shall have a lien for their agreed or reasonable charges for such storage, repairs, and supplies when such charges are incurred by an owner or conditional vendee or chattel mortgagor (including a grantor of deed of trust in lieu of mortgage) of such motor vehicle, and may detain such motor vehicle at any time they may have lawful possession thereof. Such lien shall have priority over every security interest and other lien or right in or to the vehicle except as hereinafter limited with respect to claims for storage. Before enforcing such lien, notice in writing shall be given to the title holder, every secured party and other lien holder shown by the certificate of title or registry of the vehicle, and any other persons known to claimant who have any interest in or lien upon the vehicle. Such notice shall be delivered personally or sent by registered mail to the last-known address of the person to whom given, shall state that a lien is claimed for the charges therein set forth or thereto attached, and shall demand payment thereof. There shall be incorporated in or attached to said notice a statement of particulars of the charge or charges for which a lien is claimed, to which may be added a claim for storage of the vehicle from the date of said notice to the date of payment or sale, which amount shall be set forth at a daily or weekly rate which shall not be in excess of charges prevailing at the time for similar storage, and shall not be in excess of $3 per day or $21 per week, which additional charge shall in no event cover a period in excess of ninety days.

(b) As used in this section, "security interest" and "secured party" have the same meanings as those given to the terms by sections 28:1-201 and 28:9-105(i), respectively, of the District of Columbia Code. (June 3, 1952, 66 Stat. 97, ch. 361, § 2; Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 770, Pub. L. 88-243, § 5.)

AMENDMENT

1963—Section 5 of act Dec. 30, 1963, amended section by striking the words "all other liens or rights" in the second sentence and substituting the words "every security interest and other lien or right", striking the words "all lien holders" in the third sentence and substituting the words "every secured party and other lien holder", and by adding a subsection (b) thereto.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Congress seems to have taken notice that motor vehicles are sold frequently upon conditional sale contracts, and accordingly provided for a lien in favor of garage keepers, where the charges are incurred either by the owner or the conditional vendee. Barrett v. Commercial Credit Co. (1924, 296 F. 996, 54 App. D.C. 249).

The very fact that the statute awards a lien for work done or material furnished at the instance of the conditional vendee, and in view of the further fact that the automobile business is largely conducted upon a credit basis, by which dealers protect themselves through conditional sales agreements, are indicative of the legislative intent to give such a lien priority over the conditional bill of sale. Id.

Authority of Director of Vehicles and Traffic

Sole function of Director of Vehicles and Traffic under automobile lien statute is to satisfy himself that lienor has complied with notice provisions thereof. Sanders v. Keneipp et al. (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 109 A. 2d 141).

Bankruptcy

Where garage keeper, having a subsisting lien upon bankrupt's automobile, lawfully regained and held possession of automobile before owner was adjudicated a bankrupt, garage keeper had a statutory lien valid against the trustee in bankruptcy, even though it arose and was perfected while the bankrupt was insolvent and within four months of filing of petition in bankruptcy. Gordon v. Sullivan (1951, 188 F. 2d 980, 88 U. S. App. D. C. 144).

Conversion

Where garage owner after repairing conditional vendee's automobile turned the same over to the holder of conditional sales contract with permission of conditional vendee's son and collected his repair charges from holder, garage owner was not guilty of conversion in failing to follow the statutory requirements as to notice by repairers of automobile before enforcing lien for charges. Bullock v. Young (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 118 A. 2d 917).

Damages from loss of lien

Automobile transmission repairer who did not establish extent to which value of garage keeper's lien was diminished by defendant's delivering possession of automobile to owner and who did not prove that he could not collect his bill from owner without resort to his lien did not sufficiently establish damage resulting from claimed loss of lien for charges in repairing transmission when owner left district without paying transmission work. L. Flanzbaum v. S. Gordon (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 135).

Automobile transmission repairer who refused to pay electrician's charges for repairs on automobile which transmission repairer had delivered to electrician and who said that owner would have to pay them and that owner could take automobile if he wanted it could not recover from electrician for amount of his charges when electrician pursuant to his instructions delivered automobile to owner who left District without paying transmission repairer. Id.

Extent of lien

Where automobile owner contracted with garage keeper for small repair job and, despite repeated promises to call for automobile, left it with garage keeper who was required to provide valuable space for its storage, a quasi contract or promise implied in law to pay for such storage was created and that obligation was recognizable under automobile lien statute. Sanders v. Keneipp et al. (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 109 A. 2d 141).

Notice of lien

Garage owner, who did not give notice of lien until he had stored automobile for six months after repairing it, did not lose his lien or his right to claim storage thereby even though automobile lien statute allowed such notice after 30 days. Sanders v. Keneipp et al. (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 109 A. 2d 141).

Possession

Independent garageman with whom conditional seller stored repossessed automobile had, in absence of proof of principal-agent relationship with seller, a lien for all reasonable charges for storage of automobile whether incurred by conditional buyer or by conditional seller, and had right to detain such automobile until storage charges had been paid. C. Jackson v. B. Greenfield (D.C. App., 1964, 198 A. 2d 916).

Where garage keeper performed repairs upon an automobile, and turned over automobile to its owner, but garage keeper subsequently resumed possession of automobile, garage keeper had a lien on automobile by operation of law and did not lose it by failing to give statutory notice. Gordon v. Sullivan (1951, 188 F. 2d 980, 88 U. S. App. D. C. 144).

Where garage keeper made repairs upon an automobile and turned it over to the owner, and garage keeper subsequently repossessed the automobile from a third party by paying storage charges on automobile, garage keeper's taking and retention of automobile were lawful and he was entitled to retain possession as against the owner's trustee in bankruptcy. Id.

Reinstatement of lien

Garage Keeper's lien is not lost by releasing automobile, but may be enforced thereafter if garage keeper should again obtain lawful possession. L. Flanzbaum v. S. Gordon (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 125).

After electrician, who had received possession of automobile from plaintiff who had repaired transmission, had delivered possession to owner, plaintiff's garage keeper's lien was in state of suspended animation and was not extinguished. Id.

§ 38-206. Enforcement of lien by sale.

If the amount due and for which a lien is given by section 38-204 or 38-205 hereof is not paid by the end of thirty days after the giving of notice, then the party entitled to such lien may proceed to sell the property so subject to lien at public auction, after giving notice once a week for three successive weeks in some daily newspaper published in the District. Said advertisement shall set forth the date, time, and place of sale, which shall not be less than fifteen days from date of the first publication of such notice, that the purpose of the sale is to satisfy a lien, the amount for which said lien is claimed, including storage to date of sale if allowable, the names of all interested parties, and a description of the chattel, including, in the case of vehicles, the make, type, year and model number, serial number and engine number, if any, and State or District license number and year.

Any person selling such property in order to satisfy a fraudulent, excessive, or unreasonable lien shall be guilty of a conversion of such property and liable to the owner in damages therefor. (June 3, 1952, 66 Stat. 97, ch. 361, § 3.)

Conversion

Where garage owner after repairing conditional vendee's automobile turned the same over to the holder of conditional sales contract with permission of conditional vendee's son and collected his repair charges from holder, garage owner was not guilty of conversion in failing to follow the statutory requirements as to notice by repairers of automobile before enforcing lien for charges. Bullock v. Young (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 118 A. 2d 917).

§ 38-207. Application of proceeds of sale.

The proceeds of such sale shall be applied, first, to the expenses of such sales and the discharge of such lien; second, to payment of other liens, if any, in the order of their priority; and, third, to the owner of the property. (June 3, 1952, 66 Stat. 97, ch. 361, § 4.)

§ 38-208. Limitation on lien for storage.

To the extent that any lien provided for in this chapter is based on a claim for storage of a motor vehicle in excess of $150, such lien shall be, as to such excess, inferior to the lien of a conditional vendor or chattel mortgagee (as defined in section 38-205) claiming under an instrument recorded on a date earlier than the period to which such charges are attributable. (June 3, 1952, 66 Stat. 97, ch. 361, § 5.)

§ 38-209. Liens acquired under prior law.

Section 38-201 is hereby repealed and sections 38-202 and 38-203 are hereby made inapplicable to liens provided for in sections 38-204 and 38-205 hereof: Provided, however, That any liens heretofore acquired under the provisions of said section 38-201, shall be unaffected by the repeal of said section and may be enforced either in the manner provided in said sections 38-202 and 38-203 or in the manner provided herein. (June 3, 1952, 66 Stat. 98, ch. 361, § 6.)

REFERENCE IN TEXT

Sections 38-202 and 38-203, referred to in the text, were in effect repealed by the provisions of section 4(a) (2) of act Dec. 8, 1970, Pub. L. 91-537.

Every association, corporation, or other institution, and any agency of the United States or the District of Columbia, maintaining a hospital in the District of Columbia, which shall furnish medical or other service to any patient injured by reason of an accident causing injuries not covered by the Employees' Compensation Act or the Workmen's Compensation Act, shall, if such injured party shall assert or maintain a claim against another for damages on account of such injuries, have a lien upon that part going or belonging to such patient, of any recovery or sum had or collected or to be collected by such patient, or by his heirs or personal representatives in the case of his death, whether by judgment or by settlement or compromise to the amount of the reasonable and necessary charges of such hospital for the treatment, care, and maintenance of such patient in such hospital up to the date of payment of such damages: Provided, That the lien herein set forth shall not be applied or considered valid against any one suffering injuries coming under the Employees' Compensation Act or the Workmen's Compensation Act in this District. (June 30, 1939, 53 Stat. 990, ch. 255, § 1; June 19, 1948, 62 Stat. 496, ch. 525, § 1.)

See, particularly, 5 U.S.C. § 6323.

Section 39-110, act May 12, 1917, 40 Stat. 72, ch. 12, as amended by acts July 1, 1947, 61 Stat. 238, ch. 192, § 1(a); July 9, 1952, 66 Stat. 506, ch. 608, pt. See, particularly, 5 U.S.C. § 3551.

§ 39-111. Disbanding companies below minimum strength.

When any company of the National Guard shall, for a period of not less than ninety days, contain less than the required number of enlisted men, or upon a duly ordered inspection, shall be found to have fallen below a proper standard of efficiency, the commanding general may, with consent of the President, either disband such company or consolidate it with any other company of the National Guard, and grant an honorable discharge to the supernumerary officers and noncommissioned officers produced by such consolidation. Officers and enlisted men discharged by reason of such disbanding or consolidation and at any time thereafter re-entering the service shall have allowed to them, as part of their term of service, the time already served. (Mar. 1, 1889, 25 Stat. 774, ch. 328, § 18; Feb. 18, 1909, 35 Stat. 630, ch. 146, § 12; June 3, 1916, 39 Stat. 200, ch. 134, § 68.)

CODIFICATION

In first sentence, words “, with the consent of the President,” were inserted after “the commanding general may” on authority of a proviso in § 68 of act June 3, 1916, cited as one of the sources of this section, which read: “Provided, That no organization of the National Guard, members of which shall be entitled to and shall have received compensation under the provisions of this act, shall be disbanded without the consent of the President, nor, without such consent, shall the commissioned or enlisted strength of any such organization be reduced below the minimum that shall be prescribed therefor by the President.” Section 68 was repealed in its entirety by act Aug. 10, 1956, 70A Stat. 641, ch. 1041, § 53, and, including the quoted proviso, is now covered by 32 U.S.C. § 104. See, particularly, subsec. (f) thereof.

Section 14 of act Mar. 1, 1889, 25 Stat. 774, ch. 328, fixed the minimum number of enlisted men in any company at forty. That section was repealed by act Feb. 18, 1909, 35 Stat. 630, ch. 146. It was considered that § 11 of act Mar. 1, 1889, 25 Stat. 774, as amended by act Feb. 18, 1909, 35 Stat. 629, which related to composition of the National Guard, was intended to supersede repealed § 14, but § 11 was later superseded by § 60 of act June 3, 1916, 39 Stat. 197, ch. 134 (National Defense Act). The latter, however, which was formerly classified to § 39-107 and to 32 U.S.C. former § 5, has been repealed and is now covered by 32 U.S.C. § 104. See note under former § 39-107.

AMENDMENTS

1916—Act June 3, 1916, provided that “no organization of the National Guard * * * shall be disbanded without the consent of the President, nor, without such consent, shall the commissioned or enlisted strength of any such organization be reduced below the minimum that shall be prescribed therefor by the President.”

1909—Act Feb. 18, 1909, did not amend the text of this section, but changed the section number from 18 to 12.

It shall consist of one adjutant-general, one inspector-general, one quartermaster-general, one commissary-general, one chief of ordnance, one chief engineer, one surgeon-general, one judge-advocate-general, and one inspector-general of rifle practice each with the rank of major; and four aids-de-camp, each with the rank of captain. ## CODIFICATION

As enacted by the act of Mar. 1, 1889, this section, after "President" at end of first sentence, contained the additional words: ", and hold office until their successors are appointed and qualified, but may be removed at any time by the President"; and, after "adjutant-general," near beginning of second sentence, contained the words: "with the rank of lieutenant colonel." These words were omitted from this section because apparently affected by a proviso in § 66 of act June 3, 1916, cited as one of the sources hereof, which read: "Provided, That the adjutants general of the Territories and of the District of Columbia shall be appointed by the President with such rank and qualifications as he may prescribe, and each adjutant general for a Territory shall be a citizen of the Territory for which he is appointed," and which was classified to 32 U.S.C. former § 12. § 66 of act June 3, 1916 was repealed in its entirety by act Aug. 10, 1956, 70A Stat. 641, ch. 1041, § 53, and is now covered by 32 U.S.C. § 314. ## CODIFICATION

Section, as enacted by act June 6, 1900, 31 Stat. 671, ch. 811, which was also classified to 10 U.S.C. former § 998, provided that the "President of the United States may detail as adjutant-general of the District of Columbia Militia any retired officer of the Army who may be nominated to the President by the brigadier-general commanding the District of Columbia Militia, said retired officer while so detailed to have the active service pay and allowances of his rank in the Regular Army." Although it was amended by act Sept. 2, 1957, 71 Stat. 596, Pub. L. 85-270, § 2, to substitute "commanding general of" for "brigadier-general commanding", it previously had been repealed by act Aug. 10, 1956, 70A Stat. 641, ch. 1041, § 53, having since been covered by 32 U.S.C. § 314(c), which also uses the term "commanding general", rather than the prior term "brigadier-general". As it is considered that the amendment of this repealed section by act Sept. 2, 1957, was an oversight, and that in any event this section is now covered by 32 U.S.C. § 314(c), this section is omitted from this Code.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR SECTION 39-401

In general

It is immaterial whether the arrest was made before or after the issue or the service of the writ to release minor son from military service. Ex Parte Foley (D.C. Ky. 1917, 243 F. 470).

Petitioner was not entitled to a discharge, and he could not be furloughed to the Reserve when he was in actual military service. Ex Parte Roach (D.C. Ala. 1917, 244 F. 625).

Effect of this section was at most to make the enlistment voidable by the parent. Reed v. Cushman (C.C.A. 1, 1918, 251 F. 872).

Contract of enlistment

Fact that minor is under 21 when he enlisted, or that the written consent of his parent or guardian was not given to such enlistment, or that he was an alien, who had not made a declaration of his intention to become a citizen, or that he had a mother dependent upon him for support does not make his contract of enlistment void. Ex Parte Dostal (D.C. Ohio 1917, 243 F. 664).

Enlisted into military service

It was not intended that the provision containing the expression "enlisted or mustered into the military service of the United States" should apply to only one branch of that service. Hoskins v. Dickerson (C.C.A. 5, 1917, 239 F. 275).

Trial by military authorities

Where petitioners were acting, under orders of the President in the discharge of a high duty, and might be ordered at any time to perform active military service, the State had no right to try the men for offense, but it was a case for the military authorities. In re Wulzen (D.C. Ohio 1916, 235 F. 362).

§ 39-404. Discharge without honor.

An enlisted man may be discharged without honor at any time by order of the commanding general on account of fraudulent enlistment, or on account of his being continuously absent without leave from his command for a period of not less than three months. (Mar. 1, 1889, ch. 328, as added Feb. 18, 1909, 35 Stat. 632, ch. 146, § 26.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See U.S. Code, title 32.

§ 39-405. Dishonorable discharge.

An enlisted man shall be dishonorably discharged by order of the commanding general upon conviction of felony in a civil court; upon discovery of re-enlistment after previous dishonorable discharge; or to carry out a sentence of a court-martial. (Mar. 1, 1889, ch. 328, as added Feb. 18, 1909, 35 Stat. 632, ch. 146, § 27.)

Rental of armory

Decision of the District of Columbia National Guard Armory Board refusing to rent armory to organization on ground that organization would be at the vortex of any civil disturbance that might arise necessitating mobilization of the National Guard and its direction from the armory is reasonable, and Board is not required to repeat past mistakes of renting armory to groups at time when Guard was mobilized, and the refusal to rent armory did not deny free speech and assembly or equal protection of the law. A. Jones et al. v. District of Columbia Armory Board et al. (1970, 438 F. 2d 138, 141 U.S. App. D.C. 297).

Rental of armory

Decision of the District of Columbia National Guard Armory Board refusing to rent armory to organization on ground that organization would be at the vortex of any civil disturbance that might arise necessitating mobilization of the National Guard and its direction from the armory is reasonable, and Board is not required to repeat past mistakes of renting armory to groups at time when Guard was mobilized, and the refusal to rent armory did not deny free speech and assembly or equal protection of the law. *A. #### ABOLITION OF DEPARTMENT AND TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

The Department of Vehicles and Traffic, including the Director, was abolished and the functions thereof transferred to the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia by Reorg. Plan No. 5 of 1952. The executive functions of the Board of Commissioners were transferred to the Commissioner of the District of Columbia by § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967.

Reorganization Order No. 54 of the Board of Commissioners dated June 30, 1953, as amended Sept. 1, 1953, and effective Aug. 15, 1953, established a Department of Vehicles and Traffic, headed by a Director; a Board of Revocation and Review of Hackers' Identification Cards; a Motor Vehicle Parking Agency; and a Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board; prescribed the functions thereof; and abolished the previously existing Department of Vehicles and Traffic, the Registrar of Titles and Tags, the Board of Revocation and Review of Hackers' Identification Cards, the Driver Improvement Section, and the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency. No. 105 continued the Department of Vehicles and Traffic (redesignated as the Department of Motor Vehicles by Commissioners' Order No. 58-919, dated June 10, 1958) and prescribed the functions thereof. Org. Ord. No. 106 continued the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency and prescribed the composition and functions thereof. Org. Ord. No. 107, relating to the Hackers' Board was redesignated as Org. Ord. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS

"Operate" defined

In view of statutory provisions dealing with registration of motor vehicles and defining terms "operate" and "operated" to include operating, moving, standing, or parking any motor vehicle or trailer on public highway, defendant, who had no operator's permit and who was manually pushing automobile, temporarily incapable of movement under its own power, along highway and controlling its direction by reaching through open window and manipulating steering wheel was guilty of violating regulation that no individual shall operate a motor vehicle without first having obtained an operator's permit. Richardson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 492).

Owners

There is sale where minds of buyer and seller have met on all essential terms of contract of sale and automobile is delivered by seller and unconditionally accepted by buyer despite any omission to comply strictly with law regulating transfer and recordation of title. F. M. Frei, Adm. of Estate, etc. v. S. Gordon, t/a Red's Sales, etc. (D.C. App. 1965, 215 A. 2d 488).

There was executed contract of sale between plaintiff and defendant's decedent, where there was meeting of minds between parties, decedent's execution of promissory note duly secured by chattel deed of trust, plaintiff's acceptance of trade-in automobile, and delivery of new automobile which decedent retained, despite plaintiff's neglect to deliver manufacturer's certificate of origin and certificate of title. Id.

Contract for sale of automobile was not illegal and contrary to public policy despite seller's failure to deliver certificate of origin and certificate of title, in absence of evidence of deliberate, intentional violation by parties of law governing transfer of title. Id.

Where there had been a meeting of minds of sellers and buyer, payment of purchase price by buyer and delivery of automobiles by sellers, sellers were not the "owners", and were not liable for damage caused by buyer's negligent operation of automobile, notwithstanding fact that notarization of assignment of title was defective and automobile was still registered in sellers' names. Burt and Mumford v. Cordover (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 117 A. 2d 116).

§ 40-102. Registration of motor vehicles and trailers—Certificates—Tags—Duplicates—Dealers—Fees—Official and foreign vehicles and trailers—Transfers—Regulations.

(a) No motor vehicle or trailer shall be operated (except motor vehicles or trailers operated by non-residents, exempted under the provisions of section 40-303, motor vehicles or trailers covered by a dealer's registration as provided in subsection (b) (1) of this section, and motor vehicles or trailers covered by a special use certificate as provided in subsection (b) (4) of this section) unless registered in the department of vehicles and traffic of the District of Columbia by the owner thereof. Upon receipt of an application from the owner of a motor vehicle or trailer and (except in the case of a motor vehicle or trailer covered by subsection (b) (2) of this section) payment of a registration fee computed as provided in section 40-103, and if there is in force with respect to such motor vehicle or trailer a valid certificate of title issued under section 40-603, the director shall issue to such owner a registration certificate and identification tags for such motor vehicle or trailer.

(b) The District of Columbia Council by regulation shall provide for the issuance by the director—

(1) annually to any dealer, upon payment of the fee prescribed in section 40-103, of a registration certificate and identification tags bearing a distinguishing dealer's mark, for interchangeable use on motor vehicles and trailers in accordance with regulations promulgated by the Council;

(2) annually, without charge, of certificates of registration and identification tags for all motor vehicles and trailers owned by the United States or by the District of Columbia, or officially used by any duly accredited representative of a foreign government;

(3) of duplicate registration certificates or duplicate identification tags, upon proof satisfactory to the director of loss, mutilation, or destruction thereon, upon payment of a fee of $2 for each set of duplicate tags or $1 for each duplicate registration certificate; and

(4) to any person, upon payment of a fee of $3, of a special use certificate and special use identification tags bearing a distinguishing mark, valid for a period not exceeding twenty days, for use on a motor vehicle or trailer in accordance with regulations promulgated by the Council except that in the event such certificate and tags are necessary for use in complying with vehicle inspection regulations made pursuant to the authority contained in section 40-207, prior to completion of the registration of such vehicle or trailer, the fee shall be $2: Provided, That if any person be convicted of a violation of such regulations, the director may refuse thereafter to issue a special use certificate and special use identification tags to such person for a period of one year: Provided further, That the issuance of a special use certificate and special use identification tags for a motor vehicle or trailer shall not constitute a registration of such motor vehicle or trailer for any purpose.

(c) Every registration made under this title shall expire at midnight on the last day of the registration year for which the registration was made, unless the time be extended by the Council. Any such registration may be renewed for the ensuing registration year upon application made by the owner during the months of February and March, and upon payment of the fees required by law. During the month of March it shall be lawful to operate a motor vehicle or trailer registered for the ensuing registration year. For the purposes of this chapter, a registration year shall be deemed to begin on April 1 and end on March 31.

(d) Upon the sale or other transfer to another owner of any motor vehicle or trailer registered under this title, the registration thereof shall expire. The owner selling or otherwise transferring such vehicle or trailer may register another motor vehicle or trailer for the unexpired portion of the registration year upon payment of a fee of $2 and a sum equal to the difference between the registration fee originally paid and the fee computed for such other motor vehicle or trailer under section 40-103, in case the latter is the greater. If a motor vehicle or trailer be registered in the name of an individual, the name of the spouse of such individual may be added to the registration as a joint owner, subject to applicable provisions of law relating to the titling of the motor vehicle or trailer. Upon the death of a joint owner of a motor vehicle or trailer registered under this chapter the registration thereof shall be transferred to the survivor or survivors and the fee for such transfer shall be $2. When the only assets of a decedent's estate requiring administration consist of not more than two motor vehicles, the Commissioner of the District of Columbia may upon proof satisfactory to him that all debts and taxes owed by the decedent have been paid or provided for, transfer the title to such motor vehicles to the person or persons entitled thereto or their nominee; and in such case, no administration of the decedent's estate, or other proceedings, need be had. In the event that any of the persons entitled to the transfer of title hereunder shall be a minor, the custodian or the legal guardian of said minor may nominate transferees on behalf of such minor.

(e) The District of Columbia Council is authorized to prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this title and the Commissioner of the District of Columbia shall prescribe such forms of application for registration and for a special use certificate, such forms of registration and special use certificate, such design of identification tags, and provide for the keeping of such records of registration and issuance of special use certificates and transfers of registration as will facilitate the identification and the regulation of motor vehicles and trailers operated in the District of Columbia.

(f) The District of Columbia Council is further authorized to prescribe regulations under which the director may revoke or suspend the registration of any dealer who shall cease to be a dealer as defined in this chapter, or who shall have violated the provisions of this chapter or the regulations promulgated thereunder by the Council, and the Commissioner is authorized to revoke or suspend and provide for the return to the director of all dealers' identification tags issued to such dealer, subject to review by the Commissioner under rules and regulations prescribed by the Council. Pending such review, any such order of revocation or suspension shall be stayed unless the Commissioner shall otherwise direct. No order of the director or the Commissioner hereunder shall be set aside or suspended by any court unless such order is arbitrary or capricious. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS

Purpose

Purpose of Vehicle Title and Registration Regulations was to make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, to perpetrate fraudulent automobile transfers. Chiplock v. Steuart Motor Co. (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 851).

Recording of lien

Where automobile dealer had a "floor plan" arrangement by which plaintiff would advance funds to dealer for purchase of automobiles and would take back chattel mortgages, and dealer had arrangement whereby finance company would purchase the conditional sales contracts executed by buyers of automobiles, and the buyer of an automobile gave conditional sales contract which was assigned to finance company but company never received title certificate because dealer had financial difficulties and never repaid plaintiff, plaintiff was estopped from asserting lien against buyer who had no actual knowledge of plaintiff's recorded chattel mortgage lien, and the buyer, not being in default, was entitled to use and enjoyment of automobile, and finance company was entitled to have its lien recorded on certificate of title. Smith, Kirkpatrick Co., Inc. v. Continental Autos. Ltd., et al. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 184 F. Supp. 764).

Violation

Where defendant was convicted for operating an automobile without identification tags, basic error was committed in convicting him of an offense for which he was not arrested or charged, and while great strictness should not be employed in construing an information in traffic cases, it is nevertheless the law that an information must state an offense. Smith v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 71 A. 2d 766).

§ 40-103. Fees classified and use of proceeds designated.

(a) There shall be levied, collected, and paid for each registration year for each motor vehicle or trailer required to be registered under this chapter, the registration fee provided in this section, except that in the event the District of Columbia Council prescribes and the Commissioner of the District of Columbia issues as the official identification tags for the District of Columbia tags treated with special reflective materials designed to increase the visibility and legibility of such tags, the Council may charge a fee not exceeding fifty cents in addition to all other fees which may be required, and in the event the markings on any such tag are specially ordered by the person to whom the tag is to be issued and such markings are other than those in a regular series, a reservation fee of $25 and an annual fee of $10, in addition to all other fees which may be required, shall be charged for such specially ordered tag.

(2) When wholly or partially equipped with other than pneumatic tires, double the above fees.

Class C. For each trailer, when the manufacturer's shipping weight of the chassis, plus the weight of the body, is less than five hundred pounds, $11; five hundred pounds or more but less than one thousand pounds, $16; one thousand pounds or more but less than one thousand five hundred pounds, $27; one thousand five hundred pounds or more but less than two thousand five hundred pounds, $43; two thousand five hundred pounds or more but less than three thousand five hundred pounds, $61; three thousand five hundred pounds or more but less than six thousand pounds, $80; six thousand pounds or more but less than eight thousand pounds, $99; eight thousand pounds or more but less than ten thousand pounds, $123; ten thousand pounds or more but less than twelve thousand pounds, $163; twelve thousand pounds or more but less than sixteen thousand pounds, $203; sixteen thousand pounds or more, $243: Provided, That in determining the total weight of a trailer subject to the provisions of this Class C, there shall be excluded, in computing such weight, the weight of any special equipment which is subject to taxation as tangible personal property under subsection (e) of this section.

registration fee, or the fee for issuance of dealers' identification tags shall be one-half the amount otherwise provided.

(d) Proceeds from fees payable under this chapter shall be divided between the General Fund and the Highway Fund. The Council is authorized and empowered to determine the percentage of all proceeds from fees payable under this chapter which shall be deposited to the credit of the General Fund of the District of Columbia: Provided, That the percentage of proceeds deposited to the credit of the General Fund shall be not less than forty-two per centum or more than forty-seven per centum of all proceeds from fees payable under this chapter. The remainder of such proceeds payable under this chapter, all moneys collected from the motor-vehicle-fuel tax, and fees charged for the titling of motor vehicles and trailers, including fees charged for the issuance of permits to operate motor vehicles, shall be deposited in a special account in the Treasury of the United States entirely to the credit of the District of Columbia and shall be appropriated and used solely and exclusively for the following purposes:

(1) For construction, reconstruction, improvement, and maintenance of public highways, including the necessary administrative expenses in connection therewith;

(2) For the expenses of the office of the director of vehicles and traffic incident to the regulation and control of traffic and the administration of the same; and

Where police officer, on foot patrol, saw a bag of trash thrown into a public street from left front window of automobile standing at curb with motor running, and where the automobile's occupant, after being approached by the officer and questioned about the bag, alighted from the automobile, picked up the bag and put it back inside the car, it could not be said that the incident was over and that it was unlawful for the officer to ask the occupant to produce his operator's permit and the registration card for the automobile, which inquiries resulted in discovery that the occupant's permit had been revoked and, later, that the automobile had been stolen. United States v. R. Weston (1972, 466 F. 2d 435, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

(a) (1) The Commissioner of the District of Columbia or his designated agent shall, upon application, the payment of a fee of $12, and compliance with such regulations as the District of Columbia Council or its designated agent may prescribe, issue a motor vehicle operator's permit valid for a period not in excess of four years, to any individual sixteen years of age or over who, after examination, in the opinion of the Commissioner or his designated agent, is mentally, morally, and physically qualified to operate a motor vehicle in such manner as not to jeopardize the safety of individuals or property. The Commissioner or his designated agent shall cause each applicant to be examined as to his knowledge of the traffic regulations of the District and shall require the applicant to give a practical demonstration, or produce evidence acceptable to the Commissioner or his designated agent, of his ability to operate a motor vehicle within a congested portion of the District, except that upon the renewal of any such operator's permit such examination and demonstration may be waived in the discretion of the Commissioner or his designated agent. Should the Commissioner or his designated agent believe that the issuance or reissuance of a permit in accordance with the provisions of this chapter may prove a menace to public safety, he or his agent may refuse the issuance or reissuance thereof. No operator's permit issued to any individual under eighteen years of age shall authorize the operation by such individual while he is under the age of eighteen years of any motor vehicle other than a passenger vehicle or motorcycle or motor bicycle, used solely for purposes of pleasure and not for compensation.

(2) The Commissioner or his designated agent may, upon application and the payment of a fee of $5, issue a learner's permit, valid for a period of sixty days, to any applicant for a motor vehicle operator's permit, sixteen years of age or over, who has successfully passed all parts of the examination other than the driving demonstration test. Such permit shall entitle the permittee, while having such permit in his immediate possession, to operate a passenger motor vehicle, used solely for purposes of pleasure and not for compensation, when accompanied by the holder of a valid motor vehicle operator's permit who is occupying a seat beside such permittee.

(3) Any pupil fifteen years of age or over enrolled in a high school or junior high school driver education and training course approved by the Commissioner or his designated agent may, without obtaining either an operator's or a learner's permit, operate a dual-control motor vehicle at such times as such pupil is under instruction and accompanied by a licensed motor-vehicle driving instructor: Provided, That such instructor shall at all times while he is engaged in such instruction have on his person a certificate from the principal or other person in charge of such school, stating that such instructor is officially designated to instruct pupils enrolled in such course, and whenever demand is made by a police officer such instructor shall display to him such certificate.

(4) In the event an operator's permit or a learner's permit issued under the authority of this section is lost or destroyed, or requires replacement for any reason other than through error or other act of the Commissioner not caused by the person to whom such permit was issued, such person may obtain a duplicate or replacement permit upon payment of a fee of $2.

(5) Enlisted men of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard shall be issued, without charge, a permit to operate Government-owned vehicles, while engaged in official business, upon the presentation of a certificate from their commanding officers to the effect that they are assigned to operate a Government vehicle and are qualified to drive, and upon proving to the satisfaction of the director of vehicles and traffic that they are familiar with the traffic regulations of the District of Columbia.

(6) Notwithstanding the provisions of this subsection, the Commissioner or his designated agent may, upon compliance with such regulations as the Council or its designated agent may prescribe, extend for a period not in excess of six years the validity of the operator's permit of any person who is a resident of the District and who is on active duty outside the District in the Armed Forces or the Merchant Marine of the United States and who was at the time of leaving the District the holder of a valid operator's permit.

(b) Each operator's permit shall state the name and address of the permittee, together with such other matter as the Council or its designated agent may by regulation prescribe, and shall bear the signature of the permittee.

(c) Any individual to whom has been issued a permit to operate a motor vehicle shall have such permit in his immediate possession at all times when operating a motor vehicle in the District and shall exhibit such permit to any police officer when demand is made therefor. Any individual failing to comply with the provisions of this subdivision shall upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than $2 nor more than $40: Provided, That this shall not apply to transient visitors from States in the Union which do not require drivers' permits.

(d) No individual shall operate a motor vehicle in the District, except as provided in section 40-303, without first having obtained an operator's permit or a learner's permit issued under the provisions of this chapter. Any individual violating any provision of this subdivision shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $300 or be imprisoned not more than ninety days.

Section 3 of the act added a new paragraph (6) to subsection (a).

Section 4 of the act amended subsection (b) so as to eliminate the requirement that judges make a notation of traffic violations on the permit.

Section 5 of the act repealed former subsection (d) and renumbered former subsection (e) and (f) as present subsections (d) and (e).

The act of April 20, 1948, amended subsec. (a) generally.

The act of Dec. 15, 1944, amended subsec. (a) by adding last two pars.

The act of Nov. 25, 1942, amended subsec. (e) of section by deleting proviso which provided that operators of Government-owned vehicles stationed outside of District were not required to have permits while operating within limits of District, and also provided that violation of subsec. (e) was punishable with $500 fine and/or imprisonment not more than six months.

The 1939 act added the proviso in paragraph (e).

The 1931 act inserted "commissioners or their designated agent" in lieu of "director." This act became effective July 1, 1931.

The 1929 act added the proviso to paragraph (a).

Prior to the 1926 amendment, this section provided for the annual renewal of operators' permits and prescribed fees of $1 and $2. The 1926 amendment also added the third sentence in paragraph (a); added "which do not require drivers' permits" at the end of paragraph (c); changed paragraph (d) which prior thereto related to the issuance without charge of temporary permits to expire on March 31, 1936, to persons holding permits issued prior to that act; and reduced the penalty in paragraph (e) from "not more than one year" to "not more than six months."

The act of 1926 also provided, "(g) This act shall become effective immediately upon passage, and promptly thereafter the director shall commence the call of outstanding permits and the reissuance thereof in accordance with the provisions of this act, and shall complete such reissuance within a period of one year."

(b), to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

In action by child and others against automobile owners, father and son, for injuries received when child was pinned to school bus from which she had just alighted by owners' automobile which was then being driven by father's employee without owners' permission, questions whether father was negligent in permitting employee to have access to the automobile and whether there was causal connection between such negligence and injury were for jury. Boland, etc. v. Love et al. (1955, 222 F. 2d 27, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 337).

In prosecution for driving without permit and leaving scene of collision, tried by court, erroneous admission of officer's testimony that persons who witnessed collision identified accused, in his presence, as driver of automobile involved in collision, was not cured by court's recognition of error and statement that such testimony was disregarded, where competent evidence of accused's guilt was far from conclusive. Penwell v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 891).

Arrest

Where pertinent municipal regulation authorized police to move an illegally parked automobile, conduct of officer, who observed the defendant parked in bus zone and who arrested defendant for failure to have driver's permit in his possession, in opening door of defendant's automobile after defendant had been placed in police car and in seizing pistol that was in plain view on floor of automobile was proper and pistol is admissible in prosecution for carrying pistol without a license. R. H. Banks v. United States (D.C. App. 1972, 287 A. 2d 85).

Actions of police officers in stopping automobile driven by defendant, who had prior narcotics offender record, to check whether he had valid driver's permit was authorized as routine police traffic investigation, and did not constitute an arrest. J. D. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1970, 263 A. 2d 659).

Stopping motorist to ascertain whether he possessed valid operator's permit was "routine interrogation" and was not an arrest. Mincy v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 218 A. 2d 507).

Arrest of motorist stopped for routine operator's permit check did not occur until motorist failed to exhibit his operator's permit and admitted that it had been revoked. Id.

Routine spot check of a motorist, to ascertain if he has complied with requirement of possession of valid operator's permit is neither unreasonable nor invalid, provided such check is not used as a substitute for search for evidence of some possible crime unrelated to possession of operator's permit. Id.

Change of residence

A person does not cease to be a legal resident of one jurisdiction for automobile operator's permit purposes by merely forming an intention of moving to another jurisdiction in which such person has never resided. Bush v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 78 A. 2d 234).

Collateral estoppel

Prior acquittal on charge of driving without operator's permit at time of defendant's arrest for criminal offenses did not estop government from contending in the criminal case that defendant was driving the automobile, where basis for acquittal was not shown. J. Moore v. United States (1965, 344 F. 2d 558, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 173).

Evidence

Evidence was sufficient to show that motorist having Maryland driver's permit and owning automobile having Maryland tags was District of Columbia resident required to have District operator's permit and was not resident of Maryland not required to have District permit to operate automobile in District. Bush v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 78 A. 2d 234).

Exclusive powers of Congress

Congress, as to the District of Columbia, has express power to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever, thus possessing the combined powers of a general and a state government in all cases where legislation is possible, and when and how it shall delegate or distribute authority to make detailed regulations under the police power are questions which Congress may determine for itself. LaForest v. Board of Comrs. of District of Columbia (1937, 92 F. 2d 547, 67 App. D.C. 396).

Fines

Fine of $275 with commitment to jail for sixty days on default of payment, was not excessive. Dorsey v. Peak (1928, 24 F. 2d 892, 58 App. D.C. 64).

Government employees

Traffic regulations apply to United States employees, driving government automobiles. Crosen v. District of Columbia (1925, 2 F. 2d 924, 55 App. D.C. 122).

There is no exception in favor of the vehicles of the Post Office Department, and the manifest purpose of the acts does not imply such an exception. White v. District of Columbia (1925, 4 F. 2d 163, 55 App. D.C. 197).

Illegal arrest

Offense of failure to exhibit operator's permit could not be upheld since it was directly traceable to illegal stopping in District of Columbia by Maryland state police officer and subsequent illegal arrest by the United States Park Police officer, even though committed within officer's presence. District of Columbia v. Perry (D.C. App. 1965, 215 A. 2d 845).

Jurisdiction

Jurisdiction of the Court of General Sessions extended to prosecution for carrying a dangerous weapon, possessing a prohibited weapon and driving a motor vehicle without an operator's license, notwithstanding contention that the trial court had jurisdiction only over offenses punishable by fine or imprisonment and that the offenses charged carried penalties of a fine, imprisonment, or both. W. P. Martin v. United States (D.C. App. 1971, 283 A. 2d 448).

Law governing

Law of Maryland, which was place of actionable wrong, governed in determining liability of mother who signed application for minor's driver's license from District of Columbia. M. P. Tsoy etc. v. L. MacFarland et ano. (D.C.D.C. 1963, 219 F Supp. 220).

Maryland statute imputing motor vehicle negligence of minor to person who signed his application for operator's permit applies only to one signing application for Maryland permit. Id.

Where, in personal injury action, which arose from automobile accident occurring in Virginia, but which was brought in Federal District Court in District of Columbia in which defendants resided, court was unable to determine from Virginia decisions standard of conduct to be required of the parties, District of Columbia law would be referred to to determine such standard. Boland etc. v. Love et al. (1955, 222 F. 2d 27, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 337).

Nonresidents

The exception of motorist not residing in District of Columbia and complying with automobile registration and driver's license laws of a State from statutory prohibition against operation of automobile in District without District operator's permit is a defense and not part of description of offense, and District law enforcement officers are not required to prove that motorist is not within exception but motorist must prove facts establishing that motorist is within exception. Bush v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 78 A. 2d 234).

"Operating" defined

A person found sitting behind the steering wheel of an automobile at the point of collision with another vehicle is "operating" such vehicle within this section requiring every person who operates a motor vehicle to have an operator's permit in his possession. H. I. Taylor v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 259 A. 2d 835).

Arresting officer who arrived at the scene of accident and observed defendant sitting behind steering wheel of an automobile which had collided with rear-end of a tractor-trailer, and where defendant was unable to produce an operator's permit, arrest of defendant was justified and pistol discovered on defendant's person in routine weapons check was admissible as incident to a lawful arrest. Id.

In view of provisions dealing with registration of motor vehicles and defining terms "operate" and "operated" to include operating, moving, standing, or parking any motor vehicle or trailer on public highway, defendant, who had no operator's permit and who was manually pushing automobile, temporarily incapable of movement under its own power, along highway and controlling its direction by reaching through open window and manipulating steering wheel was guilty of violating regulation that no individual shall operate a motor vehicle without first having obtained an operator's permit. Richardson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 492).

Permit in possession

Holder of a permit is required to have it in his immediate possession when operating a motor vehicle and exhibit the same to any police officer when demand is made therefor. Dorsey v. Peak (1928, 24 F. 2d 892, 58 App. D.C. 64).

Restoration of permit

Director of Motor Vehicles did not abuse his power when he denied application of petitioner, who had accumulated 17 points for traffic violations, for restoration of operator's permit. T. Thalís v. G. A. England, Director of Motor Vehicles etc. (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 855).

Restricted license

Driver whose operator's license was subject to restriction that he wear glasses and who operated automobile without glasses was guilty of operating automobile contrary to restricted license notwithstanding his own medical examination showing such glasses were no longer necessary. B. Reis v. District of Columbia (D.C., App. 1967, 230 A. 2d 487).

Suspension of permit

Failure to prove that the permit had not been restored before the date of arrest was immaterial, even though the information contained no averment of it, as such averment was mere surplusage, and the burden of proof respecting it did not rest on the prosecution. Chesevoir v. District of Columbia (1929, 29 F. 2d 798, 58 App. D.C. 268).

Action of the Commissioners in suspending petitioner's permit was not based upon illegally delegated power. LaForest v. Board of Comrs. of District of Columbia (1937, 92 F. 2d 547, 67 App. D.C. 396).

§ 40-302. Revocation or suspension of operators' permits—Procedure—New permit after revocation—Nonresidents—Penalty.

(a) Except where for any violation of this chapter revocation of the operator's permit is mandatory, the Commissioner or his designated agent may with or without a prior hearing revoke or suspend an operator's permit for any cause which he or his agent may deem sufficient: Provided, That in each case where a permit is revoked or suspended the reasons therefor shall be set out in the order of revocation or suspension: Provided further, That such order shall take effect five days after its issuance unless the holder of the permit shall have filed within such period, written application with the Commissioner of the District of Columbia for a review of his order or the order of his agent, and, if upon such review, the Commissioner shall sustain such order, the same shall become effective immediately: Provided further, That application to said Commissioner for a review shall not operate as a stay of such order of the Commissioner or his agent when the order has been issued revoking or suspending a permit on account of mental or physical incapacity, for driving under the influence of liquor or narcotic drugs; for manslaughter when an automobile is involved, or for operating a motor vehicle equipped with a smoke screen.

An individual whose permit is denied, suspended, or revoked by the Commissioner or his agent may, if application for a review by the Commissioner of an order for revocation or suspension is not filed, or if an application for review by him is filed, after the Commissioner's decision on the review, petition the District of Columbia Court of Appeals for a review of the order or decision in the manner provided by the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, secs. 1-1501 to 1-1510).

(b) In case the operator's permit of any individual is revoked no new permit shall be issued to such individual for at least six months after the revocation except in the discretion of the Commissioners or his designated agent.

(c) The Commissioner of the District of Columbia, or his designated agent, may suspend or revoke the right of any nonresident person as defined in section 40-303, to operate a motor vehicle in the District of Columbia, for any cause he or his agent may deem sufficient, and the proper authority at the place of issuance of the permit, or other authority to operate a motor vehicle shall be notified of such suspension and the reason therefor, immediately: Provided, That such order of suspension or revocation shall take effect ten days after its issuance, and the same be subject to review and appeal in the manner and under the same conditions as are provided for such matters in subsection (a) of this section.

(d) Any individual found guilty of operating a motor vehicle in the District during the period for which his operator's permit is revoked or suspended or for which his right to operate is suspended under this act shall, for each such offense, be fined not less than $100 nor more than $500, or imprisoned not less than 30 days nor more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1925, 43 Stat. 1125, ch. 443, § 13; July 3, 1926, 44 Stat. 814, ch. 739, § 3; Feb. 27, 1931, 46 Stat. 1424, 1428, ch. 317, §§ 2, 4; June 7, 1934, 48 Stat. 926, ch. 426; May 15, 1936, 49 Stat. 1273, ch. 393; Aug. 31, 1954, 68 Stat. 1048, ch. 1173, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 78, Pub. L. 88-60, § 6; Dec. 23, 1963.

77 Stat. 617, Pub. L. 88-241, § 8; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 163(g) (1), 84 Stat. 583.)

1926—Act July 3, 1926, amended paragraph (a) generally, and among other changes, provided for a hearing on revocation or suspension of operator's permit.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1931 AMENDMENT

Section 6 of act Feb. 27, 1931, provided that: "This Act [amending this section and §§ 40-303, 40-602, 40-603, 40-605, and 40-609] shall take effect July 1, 1931."

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 7, 1934, substituted "United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia" for "court of appeals of the District of Columbia."

"The Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia" was substituted for "any justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia" to conform to the provisions of act Aug. 31, 1954, which vested exclusive jurisdiction to review action of the Commissioners in revoking, suspending or denying a license under this section in the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. See § 11-742.

Act July 8, 1963, § 6, substituted "District of Columbia Court of Appeals" for "Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia". Provisions identical with those of said section 6 were contained in act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1172, Pub. L. 88-873, § 6, which was repealed by act Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 629, Pub. L. 88-241, § 21(a). See section 11-101.

Actual physical control

Where automobile, ownership of which was not disclosed, was parked facing east on north sidewalk of a one-way street, and defendant, whose operator's permit had been revoked, was sitting behind steering wheel, and motor was running, in absence of any explanatory testimony from defendant, trial court was justified in finding that defendant was in actual physical control of automobile, capable of putting it into movement or preventing its movement, and hence "operating" the automobile within meaning of statute prohibiting operation during period for which operator's permit has been revoked. Houston v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1959, 149 A. 2d 790).

Administrative action

Mere fact that proof tended to reveal at a suspension hearing before permit control officer of District of Columbia Department of Motor Vehicles that 17-year-old driver, whose license was suspended, was driving while under influence of alcohol did not thereby convert the proceedings, administrative in character, into a judicial proceeding of the kind Congress assigned exclusively to juvenile court. K. P. Murphy, a minor etc. v. W. D. Heath, Director, etc. (D.C. App. 1969, 256 A. 2d 421).

The court held that the exclusive jurisdiction in judicial proceedings conferred by Juvenile Court Act on the juvenile court is not a jurisdictional bar to the administrative action of suspending motor vehicle operator's permit of 17-year-old driver. Id.

Appeals

Where there was nothing in record on appeal by motorist from order of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia sustaining order suspending motor vehicle operator's permit of motorist, to support motorist's contention that prior to his election to forfeit collateral posted by him when he was charged with backing without caution and with being involved in an accident involving a pedestrian, there was a mutual understanding between him and office of Corporation Counsel that charge of an accident involving a pedestrian would be withdrawn, Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia could not consider that contention on appeal. Lambert v. Board of Commissioners of District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 116 A. 2d 926).

Arrest

Where police officer, on foot patrol, saw a bag of trash thrown into a public street from left front window of automobile standing at curb with motor running, and where the automobile's occupant, after being approached by the officer and questioned about the bag, alighted from the automobile, picked up the bag and put it back inside the car, it could not be said that the incident was over and that it was unlawful for the officer to ask the occupant to produce his operator's permit and the registration card for the automobile, which inquiries resulted in discovery that the occupant's permit had been revoked and, later, that the automobile had been stolen. United States v. R. Weston (1972, 466 F. 2d 435, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

Motorist's arrest while operating motor vehicle during period in which operator's permit has been revoked was legal where motorist was stopped for routine check for operator's permit and for no other purpose. Mincy v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 218 A. 2d 507).

Authority to revoke

Director of Motor Vehicles did not exceed his discretionary power in revoking driver's license on ground that licensee who had been convicted of housebreaking, larceny, and destroying movable property and who had previously been convicted of crimes in 1940, 1941, 1952, 1958, 1960 was morally unfit to operate a motor vehicle. S. W. James v. Director of Motor Vehicles, etc. (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 209).

Driver's crimes were not required to be connected with operation of motor vehicle to authorize finding that license should be revoked on ground that he was not morally qualified to drive. Id.

Driver's license is privilege which may be denied as long as danger exists that licensee will make unlawful use of automobile jeopardizing safety of persons or property. Id.

Proof of commission of a crime, regardless of its nature, is not sufficient to disqualify a person from holding a driver's license. Id.

Neither order of Commissioners of District of Columbia giving Director of Motor Vehicles full authority to act for Commissioners in suspension of operator's permit nor statute authorizing Commissioners or their designated agents to suspend operator's permit where there has been breach of usual and reasonable rules and regulations made concerning control of traffic authorized Director of Motor Vehicles to suspend operating permit of petitioner merely because petitioner violated regulation providing that no owner of motor vehicle shall allow it to be operated by any individual who is not duly licensed operator. F. Justin Mason v. Director of Motor Vehicles etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 186 A.2d 893).

Where driver had been convicted in Virginia of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquors and such conviction had been certified to the District of Columbia, and where, as a result of such certification, driver's total points under "point system" of regulation exceeded 12 thereby permitting revocation of driver's operator's permit, Director of Motor Vehicles did not abuse his discretion in allowing points to be assessed for conviction outside District, since, if incident had occurred in District of Columbia, it would have meant mandatory revocation of driver's permit without exercise of any discretion by Director, without a hearing and without reference to any point system. Council v. Director of Motor Vehicles, etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 159 A.2d 874).

Traffic hearing officer did not exceed his authority in revoking operator's permit of a motorist convicted of speeding in a school zone even though under the "point system" used in the District, only three points could be assessed for such violation, since notwithstanding such point system Director of Vehicles and Traffic was authorized to revoke operator's permit when, following lawful hearing, he concluded that motorist drove in such a manner as to show a flagrant disregard for the safety of persons or property. Tillman v. Director of Vehicles and Traffic of District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 144 A.2d 922).

Construction

Statute which permits the revocation or suspension of an operator's permit for any cause deemed sufficient was properly interpreted as permitting such revocation or suspension only for violations of usual and reasonable traffic regulations and, so construed, did not unconstitutionally delegate legislative authority. W. R. Franklin v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 248 A.2d 677).

Foreign registration after suspension

Where defendant's automobile operator's permit was revoked in the District of Columbia, his residence in Virginia and possession of a valid Virginia operator's permit did not bar his conviction for driving in the District of Columbia while his permit was revoked there, notwithstanding the reciprocal benefits conferred on nonresident operators by the Code. Hicks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 217 A.2d 309).

Even where period between revocation of operator's permit and apprehension of driver was more than three-year period for which District of Columbia operator's permits were validly issued, driver who had become resident of Virginia and had Virginia operator's permit could not lawfully operate motor vehicle in District of Columbia under reciprocal benefits conferred on nonresident motorists. Rickard v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A.2d 476).

Revocation of license to drive does not expire at same time license itself would expire, but continues until privilege has been restored by revoking authority. Id.

One whose operator's permit in the District of Columbia had been revoked was properly convicted of driving in the District during the suspension period though he had become a resident of Virginia and had obtained registration and operator's licenses from that state. District of Columbia v. Fred (1930, 50 S. Ct. 163, 281 U.S. 49, 74 L. Ed. 694).

Mandatory revocation

Where it was mandatory on the Commissioners to revoke the defendant's operator's permit when notified of his conviction of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, the defendant was not entitled to a hearing on the matter of revocation and administrative review. Oliver v. Silver (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A.2d 719).

In prosecution for operating a motor vehicle in the District of Columbia during period for which defendant's operator's permit had been revoked, charge that there was no dispute as to fact that defendant's permit had been revoked and that he had driven in the District was not erroneous in view of defendant's statement in final argument that prosecutor's statement that defendant was driving a motor vehicle on a street in the District was substantially true. Mathews v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A.2d 650).

In prosecution for operating a motor vehicle in District of Columbia during period for which defendant's operator's permit had been revoked, failure of court to charge that if the Government failed to prove each element of the offense beyond a reasonable doubt, the jury should find the defendant not guilty, was error but not prejudicial in view of defendant's failure to request such instruction and failure to object to charge as given and in view of charge that jury was sole judge of facts and that it was their duty as finders of the facts to reach a verdict on the testimony. Id.

Operating vehicle after revocation

Within the meaning of statute making it a misdemeanor for a person to operate a motor vehicle in the District of Columbia during the period for which his operator's permit is revoked or suspended or for which his right to operate is suspended, the defendant, when seated in automobile alone, behind steering wheel with ignition switch on and motor running, was "operating" an automobile. United States v. R. Weston (1972, 466 F.2d 435, 151 U.S. App. D.C. 264).

Although operating permit would have been restored to driver had he promptly applied for restoration at end of suspension period, driver who drove vehicle thereafter without obtaining official restoration was guilty of driving vehicle while operating privilege was suspended. J. L. Brown v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 170 A.2d 925).

Conviction for operating a motor vehicle after revocation of license was affirmed, and it was not necessary for the prosecution to show that no new permit had been issued. Chesevoir v. District of Columbia (1929, 29 F.2d 798, 58 App. D.C. 268).

"Operator" defined

Evidence supported finding that defendant, who had been seen behind wheel manipulating automobile's controls after collision had occurred, and who was charged with driving while permit was revoked, was "operator" of vehicle within statute providing penalty for driving while permit is revoked. D. W. Jackson, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 180 A.2d 885).

In view of Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act definition of driver or operator, and in view of regulation defining driver or operator as "every person who drives or is in actual physical control of a vehicle", an "operator" within this section, prohibiting operation of a motor vehicle during a period for which operator's permit has been revoked is one who is in actual physical control of a vehicle upon a public highway. Houston v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 149 A.2d 790).

Public sidewalk

Where automobile, ownership of which was not disclosed, was parked facing east on north sidewalk of a one-way street, and defendant, whose operator's permit had been revoked, was sitting behind steering-wheel, and motor was running, conviction of operating a motor vehicle during period for which his operator's permit had been revoked was not invalid on ground that traffic statutes and regulations were directed at operation of motor vehicles on public highways since a public sidewalk is part of the public highway. Houston v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1959, 149 A. 2d 790).

Reasonableness of regulation

Prohibition against motorist, whose privilege to drive had been revoked, again operating motor vehicle in District of Columbia until after some affirmative action on his part followed by official action by Department of Motor Vehicles was reasonable as purpose of revocation procedure was not to punish offending driver but to protect public. Rickard v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A. 2d 476).

Point system which provides for the assessment of points against the motorist for moving traffic violations and for suspension of the motorist's operating permit upon accumulation of eight points, is a reasonable regulation concerning the control of traffic and Board of Commissioners had the authority to enact such a system. Ritch, Jr. v. Director of Vehicles and Traffic of District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 124 A. 2d 301).

Statutory right of review

Where statute authorized the Board of Commissioners of District of Columbia to delegate any of its functions to other agencies and the Board did delegate its right to review action of Department of Vehicles and Traffic in revoking a motorist operator's permit to the Director of Vehicles and Traffic, motorist who had his operator's permit revoked was not denied statutory right of having his case reviewed by the commissioners when it was reviewed by the Board's legally delegated authority. Ritch, Jr. v. Director of Vehicles and Traffic of District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 124 A. 2d 301).

§ 40-303. Nonresidents exempt from registration—Period of exemption.

(a) The owner or operator of any motor vehicle who is not a legal resident of the District, and who has complied with the laws of any State, Territory, or possession of the United States, or of a foreign country or political subdivision thereof, in respect of the registration of motor vehicles and the licensing of operators thereof, shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be exempt from compliance with section 40-301 and with any provision of law or regulation requiring the registration of motor vehicles or the display of identification tags in the District. Such exemption shall cover the period immediately following the entrance of such owner or operator into the District equal to the period for which the Commissioner of the District of Columbia or his designated agent has previously found that a similar privilege is extended to legal residents of the District by such State, Territory, or possession of the United States, or foreign country or political subdivision thereof. The Commissioner or his designated agent shall from time to time ascertain such privileges and cause his findings to be promulgated. When the laws of any State, Territory, or possession of the United States or of a foreign country or of a political subdivision thereof contain a reciprocity provision similar to that hereinabove set forth, or the privilege extended to a legal resident of the District is for the remaining portion of the current District of Columbia registration year, then the owner of any motor vehicle who is a legal resident of such State, Territory, or possession of the United States, or of a foreign country or political subdivision thereof shall comply with the provisions of section 40-301 and with every other provision of law or regulation requiring the registration of motor vehicles and the display of identification tags in the District at the time of the expiration of the current motor vehicle registration issued to such owner by such State, Territory, or possession of the United States or a foreign country or political subdivision thereof, unless the Commissioner or his designated agent shall have entered into a reciprocal agreement or arrangement with the duly authorized representatives of such State, Territory, or possession of the United States or a foreign country or political subdivision thereof, further to limit or to extend the period of time during which the validity of the motor vehicle registration and identification tags of such State, Territory, or possession of the United States or foreign country or political subdivision thereof shall be recognized by the District. The Commissioner or his designated agent is hereby authorized and empowered to enter into reciprocal agreements and arrangements as aforesaid. The following persons shall, with respect to the registration of motor vehicles and the licensing of operators thereof, if they have complied with the laws of the State, Territory, or possession from which they have been elected or appointed, or of which they are legal residents, be exempt during their respective terms of office or during the period of their employment as administrative employees from compliance with section 40-301 and with any other provision of law or regulation requiring the registration of motor vehicles and the display of identification tags in the District: Senators and Representatives in Congress; Delegates to Congress; Resident Commissioners; administrative employees of Senators, Representatives, Delegates, and Resident Commissioners who are legal residents of the State, Territory, or possession from which said Senators, Representatives, Delegates, and Resident Commissioners have been elected or appointed; and officers of the executive branch of the Government of the United States who are not domiciled within the District of Columbia, whose appointment to the office held by them was by the President of the United States, subject to confirmation by the Senate, and whose tenure of office is at the pleasure of the President.

(b) Any operator of a motor vehicle who is not a legal resident of the District and who does not have in his immediate possession an operator's permit issued by a State, Territory, or possession of the United States, or foreign country or political subdivision thereof, having motor vehicle reciprocity relations with the District, shall not operate a motor vehicle in the District unless (1) the laws of the State, Territory, or possession of the United States, or foreign country or political subdivision thereof, under which the motor vehicle is registered do not require the issuance of a motor vehicle operator's permit or (2) he has submitted to examination within 72 hours after entering the District and obtained an operator's permit in accordance with the provisions of section 40-301. Any individual who violates any provision of this subdivision shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than $5 nor more than $50 or imprisoned not less than 30 days, or both. (Mar. 3, 1925, 43 Stat. 1123, ch. 443, § 8; Feb. 27, 1931, 46 Stat. 1424, ch. 317, § 2; Aug. 16, 1954, 68 Stat. 733, ch. 741, § 6.)

CODIFICATION

Section was enacted as part of the District of Columbia Traffic Act, 1925, which is classified generally to chapter 6 of title 40. For definitions applicable to this section, see § 40-602.

AMENDMENTS

1954—Act Aug. 16, 1954, amended subsection (a) to authorize the District to enter into reciprocity agreements on registration of vehicles and licensing of drivers and to clarify the application of laws in the case of similar reciprocity provisions.

Act Aug. 16, 1954, also added a new provision exempting certain Government officials from the requirement of registering personal motor vehicles and licensing operators in the District. The exemption was extended to administrative employees of Members of Congress, Delegates, and Resident Commissioners.

1931—Act Feb. 27, 1931, inserted "commissioners or their designated agent" in lieu of "director."

In general

Where bus passenger sued bus company for injuries arising from bus collision with automobile owned by District of Columbia and being operated by policeman, bus company could not maintain a third party action against District of Columbia for contribution notwithstanding provisions of the Financial Responsibility Act. Capital Transit Co. v. District of Columbia (1955, 225 F. 2d 38, 96 U. S. App. D. C. 199).

Change of residence

A person does not cease to be a legal resident of one jurisdiction for automobile operator's permit purposes by merely forming an intention of moving to another jurisdiction in which such person has never resided. Bush v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 78 A. 2d 234).

Construction

In the first part of this act the word "registration" is applied to the vehicle and the word "licensing" to the operator; and in the latter part the words "licensed or registered" should be treated as used in the same relation as their noun forms in the first part. King v. District of Columbia (1922, 277 F. 562, 51 App. D.C. 160). This case was in effect overruled on another point by District of Columbia v. Fred (1930, 50 S. Ct. 163, 281 U.S. 49, 74 L. Ed. 694).

The meaning of this act being doubtful, the District's interpretation thereof as evidenced by its agreement with Virginia as to operation of a motor vehicle in the District by a person of that State should prevail. This case was in effect overruled on another point by District of Columbia v. Fred (1930, 50 S. Ct. 163, 281 U.S. 49, 74 L. Ed. 694).

The exception of motorist not residing in District of Columbia and complying with automobile registration and driver's license laws of a state from statutory prohibition against operation of automobile in District without District operator's permit is a defense and not part of description of offense, and District law enforcement officers are not required to prove that motorist is not within exception but motorist must prove facts establishing that motorist is within exception. Bush v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 78 A. 2d 234).

Duty of nonresident to obey regulations

Where defendant's automobile operator's permit was revoked in the District of Columbia, his residence in Virginia and possession of a valid Virginia operator's permit did not bar his conviction for driving in the District of Columbia while his permit was revoked there, notwithstanding the reciprocal benefits conferred on nonresident operators by the Code. Hicks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 217, A. 2d 309).

Driver whose operator's permit was revoked by District of Columbia and who moved to Virginia and obtained valid resident operator's permit did not have privilege to operate motor vehicle in District of Columbia under reciprocal benefits conferred upon nonresident operators. Rickard v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A. 2d 476).

Revocation of license to drive does not expire at same time license itself would expire, but continues until privilege of operating has been restored by revoking authority. Id.

Even where period between revocation of operator's permit and apprehension of driver was more than three-year period for which District of Columbia operator's permits were validly issued, driver who had become resident of Virginia and had Virginia operator's permit could not lawfully operate motor vehicle in District of Columbia under reciprocal benefits conferred on nonresident motorists. Id.

This section does not exempt a nonresident from compliance with the laws of the District of Columbia when, while a resident of the District, his driver's permit was revoked under § 40-302 and he is subject to punishment under that section. District of Columbia v. Fred (1930, 50 S. Ct. 163, 281 U.S. 49, 74 L. Ed. 694).

This act does not relieve a nonresident operator of amenability to valid traffic regulations. King v. District of Columbia (1922, 277 F. 562, 51 App. D.C. 160). This case was in effect overruled on another point by District of Columbia v. Fred (1930, 50 S. Ct. 163, 281 U.S. 49, 74 L. Ed. 694).

Evasion of revocation

One may be convicted of operating a motor vehicle without a license who procures a Virginia license after his District license has been revoked, and drives in the District during its unexpired period. District of Columbia v. Fred (1930, 50 S. Ct. 163, 281 U.S. 49, 74 L. Ed. 694).

Evidence

Evidence was sufficient to show that motorist having Maryland driver's permit and owning automobile having Maryland tags was District of Columbia resident required to have District operator's permit and was not resident of Maryland not required to have District permit to operate automobile in District. Bush v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 78 A. 2d 234).

Owners

Where there had been a meeting of minds of sellers and buyer, payment of purchase price by buyer and delivery of automobiles by sellers, sellers were not the "owners", and were not liable for damage caused by buyer's negligent operation of automobile, notwithstanding fact that notarization of assignment of title, was defective and automobile was still registered in sellers' names. Burt and Mumford v. Cordover (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 117 A. 2d 116).

Purpose of revocation procedure

Prohibition against motorist, whose privilege to drive had been revoked, again operating motor vehicle in District of Columbia until after some affirmative action on his part followed by official action by Department of Motor Vehicles was reasonable as purpose of revocation procedure was not to punish offending driver but to protect public. R. W. Rickard v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1965, 214 A. 2d 476).

Constitutionality

Congress has reposed issuance and retraction of driver's licenses within discretion of the Commissioners and it may surround this grant with reasonable requisites and contingencies. J. F. Cheek et al. v. W. E. Washington et al. (1970, 311 F. Supp. 965).

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Designation of Director, Department of Motor Vehicles as agent of Commissioner, see Org. Ord. No. 105, as amended, set out in the appendix to title 1.

Chattel mortgagee

Chattel mortgagee is not an "owner" of an automobile, nor does he become such merely by virtue of a default by the mortgagor, though the right to possession may accrue immediately upon default, but something more than a lien on the automobile, though presently and summarily enforceable, is necessary. Mason v. Automobile Finance Co. (1941, 121 F. 2d 32, 73 App. D.C. 284).

Conditional sales

That codefendant in action for personal injuries resulting from automobile collision was seller under conditional sales contract with reservation of title clause did not establish him as owner as clause was intended to provide only means of achieving security for unpaid balance of purchase price. Herman v. Anacostia Chrysler-Plymouth, Inc. (1965, 350 F. 2d 781, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 403).

One who had sold and delivered taxicab to another on conditional sale contract and had retained legal title solely for security, was not the owner thereof nor liable for the property damage caused by negligence of another to whom purchaser had entrusted the taxicab and was not estopped to deny such ownership though his name appeared on taxicab. Gasque v. Saidman (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 537).

Joint enterprise

Whether the contributory negligence of the driver of a rented taxicab may be imputed to its owner must be based on the theory that both were engaged in a joint enterprise, but to establish such relationship there must exist not only a community of interest in the subject of the venture but also an equal right, express or implied, to direct and control the management and movement of the car. National Trucking and Storage Co. v. Driscoll (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 64 A. 2d 304).

To constitute a joint enterprise there must be not only joint or community of interest but also an equal right, express or implied, to direct and control the management and movement of the motor vehicle involved. Gasque v. Saidman (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 537).

"Operator" defined

In view of Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act definition of driver or operator, and in view of regulation defining driver or operator as "every person who drives or is in actual physical control of a vehicle", an "operator" within provision prohibiting operation of a motor vehicle during a period for which operator's permit has been revoked is one who is in actual physical control of a vehicle upon a public highway. Houston v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 149 A. 2d 790).

Owners and ownership

Where uncontradicted evidence was that automobile involved in collision was property of insured driver and that insured's sister held only the bare, legal, registration title, in absence of any finding on credibility of testimony regarding ownership of the automobile it was improper to impose liability on insured's sister. Bush v. Johnson (D.C. App. 1966, 215 A. 2d 850).

There is sale where minds of buyer and seller have met on all essential terms of contract of sale and automobile is delivered by seller and unconditionally accepted by buyer, despite any omission to comply strictly with law regulating transfer and recordation of title. F. M. Frei, Adm. of Estate, etc. v. S. Gordon, t/a Red's Sales, etc. (D.C. App. 1965, 215 A. 2d 488).

There was executed contract of sale between plaintiff and defendant's decedent, where there was meeting of minds between parties, decedent's execution of promissory note duly secured by chattel deed of trust, plaintiff's acceptance of trade-in automobile, and delivery of new automobile which decedent retained, despite plaintiff's neglect to deliver manufacturer's certificate of origin and certificate of title. Id.

Contract for sale of automobile was not illegal and contrary to public policy despite seller's failure to deliver certificate of origin and certificate of title, in absence of evidence of deliberate, intentional violation by parties of law governing transfer of title. Id.

Holding automobile registration certificate at the time of accident is not conclusive as to ownership within Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act, notwithstanding statutory definition of owner as one who holds legal title of a vehicle. H. Johnson et al. v. G. Keyes (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 2d 24).

To determine ownership of automobile for purpose of applying Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act, it is necessary to look to purpose of statute, namely, to place liability upon person in position immediately to allow or prevent use of vehicle and to do so by giving lawful and effective consent or prohibition as to its operation by others. Id.

Where there had been a meeting of minds of sellers and buyer, payment of purchase price by buyer and delivery of automobiles by sellers, sellers were not the "owners", and were not liable for damage caused by buyer's negligent operation of automobile, notwithstanding fact that notarization of assignment of title, was defective and automobile was still registered in sellers' names. Burt and Mumford v. Cordover (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 117 A. 2d 116).

The terms "owner" and "ownership" must be defined by judicial determination, made in a manner giving effect to the objects and purposes of statutory provisions. Mason v. Automobile Finance Co. (1941, 121 F. 2d 32, 73 App. D.C. 284).

Possession plus power and legal right to permit its use by another constitutes ownership. Id.

§ 40-419. Administration.

(a) The Commissioner shall administer and enforce the provisions of this chapter, and the District of Columbia Council may make rules and regulations necessary for its administration, including rules and regulations assessing reasonable fees to reimburse the District of Columbia for the cost of reinstating licenses and registrations suspended under the authority of this chapter, such fees not to exceed the amount of $10 for the reinstatement of a license or registration, or both a license and registration.

(b) The Commissioner shall receive and consider any pertinent information upon request of persons aggrieved by their orders or acts under any of the provisions of this chapter.

(c) The Commissioner shall prescribe and provide suitable forms requisite or deemed necessary for the purpose of this chapter.

(d) The Commissioner shall retain records required for the administration of this chapter for a period of five years, after which the Commissioner may destroy or otherwise dispose of such records. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 121, ch. 222, § 3; (Sept. 8, 1960, 74 Stat. 862, Pub. L. 86-730, § 1; Oct. 31, 1969, Pub. L. 91-106, title IV, § 406, 83 Stat. 175.)

AMENDMENTS

1969—Act Oct. 31, 1969, Pub. L. 91-106, § 406, amended subsection (a) by enlarging the authority to make rules and regulations relating to reinstatement of a license or registration as above set out.

1960—Subsec. (d) added by act Sept. 8, 1960.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1969 AMENDMENTS

See note under § 40-102.

AUTHORITY OF COMMISSIONER AND COUNCIL, DELEGATION OF FUNCTIONS, AND SAVINGS PROVISIONS OF PUB. L. 91-106

See secs. 804 and 805 of act Oct. 31, 1969, Pub. L. 91-106, set out as a note under § 47-2501a.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER AND COUNCIL

Section 402(294) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the function of the Board of Commissioners of making rules and regulations under this section, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of the Plan, set out in the appendix to title 1. Section 401 of the Plan transferred all other functions of the Board of Commissioners under this section to the Commissioner of the District of Columbia.

§ 40-420. Review by Commissioner.

Any order or act of any agent of the Commissioner under the provisions of this chapter shall be subject to review by the Commissioner. Application for review of any such order or act shall be in writing and shall set out in detail the reasons for such review. Such application shall be filed with the Commissioner within five days after the issuance of the order or occurrence of the act in question. If upon review the Commissioner shall sustain such order or act, the same shall become effective immediately.

Any person whose license or motor-vehicle registration shall be denied, suspended, or revoked by the Commissioner under the provisions of this chapter may, within thirty days after such denial, revocation, or suspension has been reviewed by the Commissioner and sustained by him, file in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals an application for the allowance of an appeal from the order or decision of the Commissioner. Appeal shall be as provided in the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, secs. 1-1501 to 1-1510).

For the purposes of this section, the phrase "review by the Commissioner" shall mean a review by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia or a review by any board of review established by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia to review the order or act of any agent of the Commissioner pursuant to the provisions of this chapter. No member of such board of review established by the Commissioner shall review any of his own orders or acts. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 122, ch. 222, § 4; Aug. 28, 1958, 72 Stat. 954, Pub. L. 85-792, § 3; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 78, Pub. L. 88-60, § 6; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, § 163(h), title I, 84 Stat. 583.)

AMENDMENTS

1970—Section 163(h) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended the second paragraph of section by striking out the second and succeeding sentences and inserting in lieu thereof "Appeal shall be as provided in the District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act (D.C. Code, secs. 1-1501 to 1-1510)."

For provisions of stricken matter see 1967 edition of the code.

1958—Act Aug. 28, 1958, struck the second sentence providing for filing of application of review with commissioners within five days after issuance of order or occurrence complained of, and added the new matter set out as the second and third sentences of the section.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act July 8, 1963, § 6, substituted "District of Columbia Court of Appeals" for "Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia". Provisions identical with those of said section 6 were contained in act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1172, Pub. L. 88-873, § 6, which was repealed by act Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 629, Pub. L. 88-241, § 21(a).

AUTHORITY OF COMMISSIONERS NOT AFFECTED—DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY

Section 16 of act Aug. 28, 1958, provides as follows: "Nothing in this Act shall be construed so as to affect the authority vested in the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia by Reorganization Plan Numbered 5 of 1952 (66 Stat. 824). The performance of any function vested by this Act in the Board of Commissioners or in any office or agency under the jurisdiction and control of said Board of Commissioners may be delegated by said Board of Commissioners in accordance with section 3 of such plan."

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

CROSS REFERENCES

Suspension for or after conviction of certain crimes, see §§ 40-453, 40-455, 40-609, 40-617.

Suspension for failure to deposit security, see § 40-437.

Suspension for transfer of registration to defeat purpose of chapter, see § 40-485.

Adversely affected or aggrieved

Uninsured motorist who posted the administratively required security following involvement in automobile mishap and who did not seek review of order by the Commissioner of the District of Columbia could nevertheless be considered a person suffering a legal wrong, or adversely affected or aggrieved by order or decision of Commissioner within meaning of District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act. D. A. Smith et al. v. J. P. Murphy et al. (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 357).

Declaratory and injunctive relief

Uninsured motorists who were in traffic mishaps and required to comply with the security provisions of the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act of the District of Columbia or face suspension of driving privileges and automobile registration, including two who were unable to post security and had their driver's permits suspended, but who failed to utilize statutorily prescribed mode for review by Commissioner of District of Columbia of an order of the Director of Department of Motor Vehicles were precluded from maintaining action for declaratory and injunctive relief to require the Department of Motor Vehicles to follow certain procedures when proceeding under the Act. D. A. Smith et al. v. J. P. Murphy et al. (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 357).

Exhaustion of administrative remedy

To hold that the likelihood of failure to succeed at administrative level justified resort to court of general jurisdiction would frustrate specific mandate of Congress giving court discretion as to whether to review adverse orders of the Commissioner under the District of Columbia Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act and providing that such review, if allowed, be on an administrative record and as provided by District of Columbia Administrative Procedure Act. D. A. Smith et al. v. J. P. Murphy et al. (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 357).

Where final steps of review in the administrative process culminate in application for allowance of judicial appeal and the discretionary exercise of review by court, it cannot be said that exhaustion of the remedy should be aborted in order that the trial court confront and deal initially with asserted constitutional issues. Id.

Judicial review

Uninsured motorists who failed to follow necessary administrative remedies could not maintain action in court on ground that they asserted a class action, since the similarly situated class must also be deemed to be persons who had not exercised their right to review as prescribed by statute. D. A. Smith et al. v. J. P. Murphy et al. (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A. 2d 357).

Suspension mandatory

Automobile driver's license was properly suspended after driver, who had been in accident which resulted in property damage in excess of $100, failed to post security since suspension of license is mandatory under circumstances, without respect to question of nonliability on part of driver. Haith v. Commissioners of the District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 135 A. 2d 458).

§ 40-421. Abstract of operating record.

(a) The Commissioner shall upon request furnish any person a certified abstract of the District of Columbia operating record of any person subject to the provisions of this chapter, which abstract shall include enumeration of any motor-vehicle accidents in which such person has been involved and reference to any convictions of said person for violation of the motor-vehicle laws as reported to the Commissioner and a record of any vehicles registered in the name of such person. The Commissioner shall collect for each abstract the sum of $2.

(b) The Commissioner shall upon request furnish any person an uncertified abstract of the District operating record of any person subject to the provisions of this chapter, which abstract shall include enumeration of any motor vehicle accidents in which such person has been involved and reference to any convictions of said person for violation of the motor vehicle laws, as reported to the Commissioner. The Commissioner shall collect for each such uncertified abstract a sum equal to the cost to the District of furnishing such abstract, as such cost may be determined by the Commissioner from time to time. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 122, ch. 222, § 5.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

§ 40-422. Information regarding financial responsibility to be furnished person injured.

The Commissioner shall furnish to any person who may be injured in person or property by any motor vehicle, upon written request, a statement that the owner or operator of any motor vehicle has furnished evidence of his ability to respond in damages in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, and if such owner or operator shall have furnished evidence of having had in effect at the time of such injury or damage a motor-vehicle liability policy, the name and address of the insurance carrier writing such policy. The Commissioner shall collect for each abstract the sum of $2. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 122, ch. 222, § 6.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

§ 40-423. Service of process on nonresident.

(a) The operation by a nonresident or by his agent of a motor vehicle on any public highway of the District of Columbia shall be deemed equivalent to an appointment by such nonresident of the Commissioner or his successor in office to be his true and lawful attorney upon whom may be served all lawful processes in any action or proceedings against such nonresident growing out of any accident or collision in which said nonresident or his agent may be involved while operating a motor vehicle on any such public highway, and said operation shall be a signification of his agreement that any such process against him, which is so served, shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served upon him personally in the District of Columbia. Service of such process shall be made by leaving a copy of the process with a fee of $2 in the hands of the Commissioner or in his office, and such service shall be sufficient service upon the said nonresident: Provided, That the plaintiff in such action shall first file in the court in which said action is commenced an undertaking in form and amount, and with one or more sureties, approved by said court, to reimburse the defendant, on the failure of the plaintiff to prevail in the action, for the expenses necessarily incurred by the defendant, including a reasonable attorney's fee in an amount to be fixed by the said court in defending the action in the District of Columbia, except that nothing contained in this proviso shall be construed to require the United States or the District of Columbia to file the undertaking hereby required: And provided further, That notice of such service and a copy of the process are forthwith sent by registered mail by the plaintiff, or his attorney, to the defendant, and the defendant's return receipt appended to the writ and entered with the declaration, or such notice of such service and a copy of the process may be served upon the defendant in the manner provided by section 13-108. The court in which the action is pending may order such continuances as may be necessary to afford the defendant a reasonable opportunity to defend the action, and no judgment by default in any such action shall be granted until at least twenty days shall have elapsed after service upon the defendant, as hereinabove provided, of a copy of the process and notice of service of said process upon the Commissioner.

(b) For the purposes of this section—

(1) The term "operation" as used in connection with a motor vehicle includes any use as well as any operation of such vehicle.

(2) The term "nonresident" shall include any person who is not a resident of the District of Columbia and who was the owner or operator of a motor vehicle at the time such vehicle was involved in an accident or collision in the District of Columbia, and includes any such person who was a resident of the District of Columbia at the time such motor vehicle was involved in such accident or collision but who subsequently became a nonresident of the District of Columbia and is a nonresident thereof at the time process is sought to be served on him as a result of such accident or collision.

(c) The appointment of the Commissioner or his successor in office to be the true and lawful attorney for such nonresident as provided by this section shall be irrevocable and binding upon the executor, administrator, or other personal representative of such nonresident. Where a nonresident has been served in accordance with this section and he dies thereafter, the court must allow the action to be continued against his executor, administrator, or other personal representative upon motion, and with such notice as the court deems proper. Except as otherwise provided in the two preceding sentences, service of process may be made on the executor, administrator, or other personal representative of a nonresident in the same manner as is provided in this section in the case of a nonresident. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 123, ch. 222, § 7; Aug. 28, 1958, 72 Stat. 954, Pub. L. 85-792, § 4.)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

Section 13-108, referred to in subsection (a) of this section, was repealed by act Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 620, Pub. L. 88-241, eff. Jan. 1, 1964, and is now covered by sections 13-336 and 13-337.

AMENDMENT

1958—Act Aug. 28, 1958, amended section generally, and among other changes, designated first paragraph as (a), second paragraph as (b), inserted exception clause at the end of the first proviso preceding the colon in paragraph (a), added the definition of the term "operation" in paragraph (b), and added paragraph (c).

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 40-493.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Administrator

The District of Columbia statute providing that administration may be granted on application of largest creditor in absence of application for administration by one entitled to apply therefor and statute providing for service of process on nonresident motorist involved in automobile accident in District of Columbia permitted motorist who had cause of action against estate of deceased nonresident motorist for injuries sustained in collision in District to have administrator appointed for decedent, where cause of action, if established, would give motorist right to proceed against decedent's insurer, notwithstanding that decedent's widow was named as executrix in decedent's will and that she had declined or failed to come into District of Columbia and that petition for administration recited that decedent was resident of District of Columbia. G. J. O'Sullivan v. A. G. Hicks (1963, 313 F. 2d 900, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

Attorney's fees

Where it was clear that statute providing for institution in District of Columbia of automobile negligence action against nonresident, had been invoked against defendant, that defendant engaged attorney and came into District to defend suit, and that plaintiff failed to prevail in the action, defendant was entitled, in absence of special circumstances or presentation of reason to contrary to an attorney's fee under bond executed by plaintiff as required by statute. Dew v. Simon (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 482).

Where motion by nonresident defendant for attorney's fee under bond executed by unsuccessful plaintiff in automobile negligence action was presented to same judge who tried case, judge could have fixed amount of fee without taking evidence on the subject, since he was considered to be an expert on the value of legal services. Id.

Fact that defendant operated taxicab in District of Columbia and lived "within metropolitan area" in nearby Maryland did not preclude his recovery of attorney's fee under bond executed in his favor by plaintiff who instituted in the District of Columbia an automobile negligence action against defendant as a "nonresident." Id.

Common law

Statute is in derogation of common law and must be strictly construed. Wood v. White (1938, 97 F. 2d 646, 68 App. D.C. 341).

Construction

In authorizing substituted service on nonresident motorists, in derogation of the common law, Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act affects substantial rights and must therefore be strictly construed and strictly complied with. R. J. Heinrich v. R. S. Huke (D.C. App. 1968, 244 A. 2d 915).

In construing statutes, general purpose is more important aid to meaning than any rule which grammar or formal logic may lay down. E. Shaffer and J. Shaffer v. T. Singh (1965, 343 F. 2d 324, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 42).

Assuming that defendant when served in India under Nonresident Motorist's Act of District of Columbia was no longer entitled to diplomatic immunity, he was not "nonresident" to whom Act was applicable where, at time of collision out of which suit arose, he enjoyed diplomatic immunity. Id.

In construing Nonresident Motorist Act, court was not required to adopt literal meaning of "nonresident" if term could be given meaning which, while protecting diplomatic immunity of defendant, also enabled purpose of statute to be satisfied. Id.

Delay in delivery of summons and complaint to Marshal

Failure of plaintiff to deliver summonses and copies of complaint to the United States Marshal until 18 days after period of limitations had run was not excusable because of fact that two of corporate defendants were not residents of the District of Columbia and could not be sued and would not be served until plaintiff first filed traffic act bond required by D.C. Code. Criterion Insurance Company, etc. v. W. L. Lyles, et al. (D.C. App. 1968, 244 A. 2d 913).

Delay in mailing summons and complaint

Although copies of summons and complaint were served upon Director of Motor Vehicles in action arising out of motor vehicle collision in District of Columbia with nonresident motorist, mailing summons and complaint to nonresident motorist seven months after statute of limitations had run constituted failure to comply with statutory requirement that notice of such service and copy of process be sent "forthwith" by registered mail. R. J. Heinrich v. R. S. Huke (D.C. App. 1968, 244 A. 2d 915).

Filing of return receipt

Filing of return receipt is not an integral part of the District of Columbia Motor Safety Responsibility Act which authorizes substituted service on nonresident motorist since jurisdiction attaches when service is made on the Director of Motor Vehicles and the nonresident receives copies of the process and notice of service. M. L. Harper v. E. W. Catherton, Jr. (D.C. App. 1969, 255 A. 2d 492).

Although defendant was a resident of Maryland at the time service was purported to have been made under the District of Columbia Motor Safety Responsibility Act that fact did not render notice to the defendant in Virginia at his place of work ineffective, as the statute requires that notice of such service be sent to defendant, not to him at his residence. Id.

Notice is essential to the court's jurisdiction. Id.

Forum non conveniens

Unless the balance is strongly in favor of the defendant, the plaintiff's choice of forum should rarely be disturbed. Caspar et al. v. Devine et ano. (1958, 257 F. 2d 197, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 193).

Nature and scope of process

Financial Responsibility Act authorizing substituted service on nonresident motorist imposes a contractual obligation in derogation of common law, affects substantial rights, and has effect of conferring jurisdiction upon courts where none existed before, and hence it must be strictly construed and strictly complied with. Brenner v. Margolies (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 300).

Notice and mailing of process

Requirement of Financial Responsibility Act, which authorizes substituted service on non-resident motorist, that notice of such service and a copy of the process be sent by registered mail to defendant, was not met by mailing a copy of the complaint to defendant. Brenner v. Margolies (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 300).

Power of attorney

Where judgment creditor instituted action against judgment debtor's insurer to recover on judgment, and served the summons and a copy of complaint upon agent of board of commissioners, and insurer had filed power of attorney authorizing agent of board of commissioners to accept service on its behalf thereby enabling its insureds to comply with financial responsibility act specifically providing it was not applicable to accidents occurring prior to its effective date which was subsequent to creditor's accident, even though power of attorney was broader than statutory requirements, when it was considered together with a resolution by insurer directors authorizing same, it could not be construed to apply to creditor's action. Orban v. The State Automobile Ass'n (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 127 A. 2d 143).

Proof of service of notice

Since there was no conclusive proof one way or the other that nonresident motorist actually received notice of service, purported to have been made under the District of Columbia Motor Safety Responsibility Act, it was not error to vacate default judgement previously entered against motorist. M. L. Harper v. E. W. Catherton, Jr. (D.C. App. 1969, 255 A. 2d 492).

Purpose of substituted service

Financial Responsibility Act authorizing substituted service on non-resident motorist was not intended to reach an actual resident, but was enacted to provide a means of bringing before the local court a non-resident transient motorist, and hence the statute did not apply to a motorist who was a resident at time of accident and who never thereafter became a non-resident. Brenner v. Margolies (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 300).

Provision for service of summons on nonresident defendant in motor vehicle accident case by substituted service on Director of Vehicles and Traffic was passed for the benefit of injured persons within the District of Columbia, not for the benefit of nonresident motorists who caused injury within the District and then by absenting themselves therefrom avoid service and prevent recovery. Seymour v. Hawkins (1943, 133 F. 2d 15, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 376).

Residents

The Financial Responsibility Act of District of Columbia authorizing substituted service on nonresident motorist does not apply to one who was resident of the District at time of accident and who became nonresident after accident, but prior to time action was instituted. Johnson v. Jacoby (1952, 195 F. 2d 563, 90 U. S. App. D. C. 280).

Under the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility Act authorizing substituted service on "nonresident" motorist, quoted word did not include one who had lived in the District for more than 15 months before accident and continued to live there for more than eight months after it occurred, although he was driving a vehicle using New York license plates and may have been domiciled in New York on date of accident. Id.

One may be resident of District of Columbia although domiciled elsewhere for purposes of the Financial Responsibility Act authorizing substituted service on nonresident motorist. Id.

Statute does not apply where person was resident of District of Columbia at time of accident and later moved from the jurisdiction. Wood v. White (1938, 97 F. 2d 646, 68 App. D.C. 341).

Review

Where, on date complaint was filed, plaintiff furnished copies of complaint to be served to initiate the process of effecting service on nonresident defendants, but no undertaking was filed and no return of service appeared in the docket, and subsequently the District Court dismissed the complaint without prejudice, there was final judicial action subject to appellate review, notwithstanding no appearance was entered for the appellees in the appellate court or in the District Court. Caspar et al. v. Devine et ano. (1958, 257 F. 2d 197, 103 U.S. App. D. C. 193).

Surety

Automobile negligence action defendant who, as successful nonresident defendant, was entitled to attorney's fee on plaintiff's undertaking, would have to give surety notice and an opportunity to be heard before he was entitled to have judgment on undertaking run against such surety. Dew v. Simon (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 482).

Undertaking

One purpose of statute requiring that plaintiff, who institutes automobile negligence action in District of Columbia against nonresident by service of process on Director of Vehicles and Traffic, file undertaking in favor of nonresident defendant is to prevent the reckless reaching out into other jurisdictions and forcing of nonresident to come back into District to defend collision suits, and another is to reimburse a nonresident defendant for expense of successfully defending such action. Dew v. Simon (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 482).

The undertaking in favor of a nonresident defendant which is required of a plaintiff who institutes automobile negligence action in District of Columbia against such nonresident by service of process on Director of Vehicles and Traffic, is such an "undertaking" as is defined by Code as an agreement by a party to a suit upon which a judgment or decree may be rendered in same suit or proceeding in which it has been filed. Id.

§ 40-424. Operator deemed to be agent of owner.

Whenever any motor vehicle, after the passage of this chapter, shall be operated upon the public highways of the District of Columbia by any person other than the owner, with the consent of the owner, express or implied, the operator thereof shall in case of accident, be deemed to be the agent of the owner of such motor vehicle, and the proof of the ownership of said motor vehicle shall be prima facie evidence that such person operated said motor vehicle with the consent of the owner. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 123, ch. 222, § 8.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 40-493.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Where statute, except final clause making proof of ownership of motor vehicle involved in accident prima facie evidence of consent, was in identical words of statute previously enacted by other states, there was imported into its terms the construction adopted by courts of such other states. Senator Cab Co. v. Rothberg (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 245).

Accident occurring before effective date

Prior to passage of the statute imposing on the owner of a car liability for the acts of any person who drives it with his consent, a corporation was not liable for an accident of its driver merely because it had entrusted its car to him. Balinovic v. Evening Star Newspaper Co. (1940, 113 F. 2d 505, 72 App. D.C. 176).

In accident occurring before enactment statute imposing liability on owner, a corporation was not liable for damages where the driver of its car at the time of the collision was engaged in chasing a traffic violator under direction of a policeman who was riding on the running board. Id.

The Automobile Financial Responsibility Law cannot be applied to a collision occurring before its effective date. Smith v. Doyle (1938, 98 F. 2d 341, 69 App. D.C. 60).

Action against owner of vehicle

The fact that D.C. Employees Non-Liability Act barred an action by a passenger-schoolteacher against a driver-schoolteacher did not preclude an action by passenger-schoolteacher against the owner of the vehicle. F. P. Davis et ano. v. P. O. Harrod et ano. (1969, 407 F. 2d 1280, 132 U.S. App. D.C. 345).

Agency based on consent

Lessor of truck having notified lessee, pursuant to provisions of lease, that given employee of lessee must no longer be permitted to drive truck could not, under statute, be presumed to have permitted such employee of lessee to drive, and, in absence of some further showing against lessor, it was entitled to directed verdict when sued for injuries sustained by reason of such employee's conduct while driving leased truck. R. V. Neary v. The Hertz Corporation et al. (D.C.D.C. 1964, 231 F. Supp. 480).

Proof that record title to taxicab, O. D. T. certificate, tire ration application, gas allotment papers and Public Utilities Commission certificate were in defendant's name, which was on outside of taxicab, operated by another, gave rise to presumption that taxicab was being operated by defendant's agent with defendant's consent and required proof from defendant to the contrary. Gasque v. Saidman (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 537).

In determining whether an automobile is operated with consent of owner, the usual rules governing relation of master and servant are applied and a substantial deviation from an authorized use terminates consent. Senator Cab Co. v. Rothberg (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 245).

Where party, injured by taxicab owned and operated by member of unincorporated association composed of men who owned and operated taxicabs, obtained judgment against members of association on theory that they were engaged with negligent operator in joint enterprise and were responsible for his negligence, the negligent operator was "agent" of other members of association within this section, so that permits and registration certificates of members of association were required to be suspended unless judgment against them was promptly paid. Champ v. Atkins (1942, 128 F. 2d 601, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 15).

This section makes express or implied consent by owner to another's operation of his vehicle on public highways the equivalent of agency. Rosenberg v. Murray (1941, 116 F. 2d 552, 73 U.S. App. D.C. 67).

Congress intended to establish a new rule of liability in which agency is based on consent. Forrester v. Jerman (1937, 90 F. 2d 412, 67 App. D.C. 167).

Bailors and bailees

The better reasoned view is that the contributory negligence of a bailee is attributable to a bailor under the Automobile Financial Responsibility Law. National Trucking and Storage Co. v. Driscoll (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 64 A. 2d 304).

Owner of car was liable in damages for injury from accident which occurred when her car was being delivered to her by employee of a garage with which she had a monthly storage and delivery contract. Jones v. King (1940, 113 F. 2d 522, 72 App. D.C. 257).

Burden of proof

Owner of automobile operated by another must prove that it was not being driven with his consent at time of accident to avoid liability for any negligence of driver, but presumption may be rebutted by uncontradicted denial by owner that vehicle was being operated with his consent. J. P. Lancaster et ano. v. R. J. Canuel et ano. (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 555).

Owner's lending of automobile to pharmacy as matter of courtesy for making small deliveries by pharmacy employees did not make pharmacy a co-owner of automobile within statutory presumption that in case of accident driver of automobile is owner's agent. Id.

Under statute providing that automobile operator in case of accident is deemed to be the agent of automobile owner, a presumption of agency is created upon proof of ownership and imposes upon owner the affirmative duty of proving that at time of accident the vehicle was not operated with his express or implied consent. H. R. Miller v. Imperial Insurance Inc. (D.C. App. 1963, 189 A. 2d 359).

Under statute providing that automobile operator in case of accident shall be deemed to be the agent of automobile owner, presumption of agency can be overcome by uncontradicted proof sufficient to destroy the inference. Id.

Where trial court concluded that mother who was owner of automobile had not overcome the presumption that her 18-year-old son who was operating the vehicle at the time of the accident was her agent, the Court of Appeals could not say the decision was wrong as a matter of law even though 18-year-old son confirmed his mother's testimony that she had refused him permission to use the automobile and that he had taken keys and registration card from her purse, where there were circumstances which left question of mother's permission open to doubt. Id.

In action against District of Columbia for damages sustained when truck collided with plaintiff's automobile, the presumption under the District of Columbia Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act, if such act was applicable, that driver was operating truck with consent of district, arising out of proof of ownership of truck by district, placed on district the burden of proving that truck at time of accident was not operated with district's express or implied consent. District of Columbia v. Abramson et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 148 A. 2d 578).

Financial Responsibility Act providing that proof of ownership of motor vehicle involved in accident shall be prima facie evidence that driver operated automobile with owner's consent casts burden of proof as to question of consent upon owner of automobile. Milstead v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 93).

Effect of Owners' Financial Responsibility Act declaring that where accident results when person other than owner is driving motor vehicle on highway, with express or implied consent of owner, driver shall be deemed agent of owner, and that proof of ownership shall be prima facie evidence of consent, is to place burden on owner of proving that vehicle was not operated with his express or implied consent at time of accident. Conrad v. Porter (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 79 A. 2d 777).

The effect of statute making proof of ownership of automobile evidence of owner's consent to operation of automobile by another is simply to shift the burden of proof and impose on owner the affirmative duty of proving that automobile at time of accident was not operated with his express or implied consent. Schwartzbach v. Thompson (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 624). See, also, Rice v. Simmons (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 53 A. 2d 587).

The effect of this provision is simply to shift burden of proof and impose on owner the affirmative duty of proving that automobile was not at time of accident operated with his express or implied consent. Rosenberg v. Murray (1941, 116 F. 2d 552, 73 App. D.C. 67).

Common law

Except insofar as statute creates a prima facie case of owner's consent to use of his automobile at time of accident, common-law rules defining liability of employer for acts of employee are unaffected by such statute. Senator Cab Co. v. Rothberg (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 245).

Common law presumption

As to an area which is not covered by District of Columbia Financial Responsibility Law, plaintiff was entitled to common-law presumption. F. O. Gaither v. C. R. Myers et al. (1968, 404 F. 2d 216, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 216, see also 232 A. 2d 577).

Conditional sale vendor

One who had sold and delivered taxicab to another on conditional sale contract and had retained legal title solely for security, was not the owner thereof nor liable for the property damage caused by negligence of another to whom purchaser had entrusted the taxicab and was not estopped to deny such ownership though his name appeared on taxicab. Gasque v. Saidman (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 537).

Conflict of law

A classic "false conflicts" situation was presented where adoption of New York doctrine estopping former owner from denying ownership in order to avoid liability when he has failed to comply with statutes governing transfer of title would further interests of New York but would not interfere with any of articulated policies of District of Columbia while application of District's rule permitting registered owner to prove passage of equitable title and thus relieve himself of liability would impinge upon New York's interests without furthering any of recognized policies of District and, accordingly, New York rule would be applied to action against New York seller based on negligence of New York buyer of automobile which buyer drove into collision in District of Columbia. Williams v. Rawlings Truck Line, Inc. (1965, 357 F. 2d 581, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 121).

Consent

The "consent" which is contemplated by a statute creating a presumption that motor vehicle was being operated with the consent of the owner is an informed consent, based on knowledge, not clouded by mistake or misrepresentation, or produced by error of fact. J. A. McClellan v. Allstate Insurance Company et al. (D.C. App. 1968, 247 A. 2d 58).

A presumption that a motor vehicle involved in an accident was being operated with the consent of owner is a rebuttable one and continues only until overcome by uncontradicted proof sufficient to destroy the inference. Id.

Co-owner

Statute providing that whenever vehicle is operated by any person other than owner with consent of owner, express or implied, operator shall be deemed agent of owner and proof of ownership shall be prima facie evidence that such person operated vehicle with consent of owner applied where automobile was jointly owned by driver and co-owner so as to make such co-owner presumptively liable for driver's acts and to warrant imposition of liability on him where he offered no proof whatever. J. R. Joyner v. J. H. Holland et al. (D.C. App. 1965, 212 A. 2d 541).

Defective vehicles

Where defendant owned the taxicab and rented it to the driver he was legally responsible for the driver's negligence as well as his own in maintaining a door of a cab in defective condition or the negligence of the driver in failing to see that the door was closed when the trip resulting in injury to plaintiff began. Greene et al. v. Hathaway (1951, 191 F. 2d 656, 89 U. S. App. D. C. 229).

Deviation from authorized use

Presumption that owner consented to use of automobile continues until there is creditable evidence to contrary and ceases when there is uncontradicted proof that automobile was not at time being used with owner's permission, but, when fact of deviation from authorized use is established, the issue is one of law for court. Senator Cab Co. v. Rothberg (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 245).

Directed verdict

Under statute making proof of ownership of motor vehicle involved in accident prima facie evidence that driver was operating vehicle with owner's consent, where ownership is proved in defendant who offers no credible evidence to negative the statutory presumption, plaintiff who has otherwise established liability is entitled to directed verdict. Milstead v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 93).

In action for damage growing out of operation of taxicab, where evidence established defendant's ownership of taxicab, and defendant's evidence was somewhat inconsistent and self-contradictory, and the police report of accident stated that defendant was driver of taxicab at time of accident and testimony of plaintiff and one of his witnesses, brought out on cross-examination, contradicted defendant's story that taxicab was being operated without defendant's permission and placed the defendant as operator, evidence was sufficient for jury and directed verdict for defendant was improper. Hiscox v. Jackson (1942, 127 F. 2d 160, 75 U.S. App. D. C. 293).

Under provision of statute that proof of ownership of automobile causing damage shall be prima facie evidence that driver was operating automobile with owner's consent, to justify a directed verdict for defendant, shown to be owner of automobile involved, evidence must destroy all inferences and presumptions supporting plaintiff and must raise no doubts against defendant. Id.

Evidence overcoming presumption

Even though automobile rental company did not report rental violation by lessee to District of Columbia police after date of expiration of rental period and took no other steps to recover automobile or locate lessee, filing of criminal complaint by rental company against lessee in Maryland for failure to return automobile prior to time of accident involving lessee was sufficient to rebut presumption that rental company's automobile was operated at time of accident with company's consent for purposes of application of Financial Responsibility Act. Amicar Rentals, Inc. v. G. Moore, III, et al. (D.C. App. 1972, 294 A.2d 361).

Statutory presumption that owner has consented to operator's use of his vehicle is rebuttable by uncontradicted and manifestly credible testimony to contrary, and though such uncontradicted proof entitles the owner to a directed verdict as matter of law in an action against him as result of operation of his vehicle, trier of fact must assume the usual role of resolving any conflict presented if evidence is not so convincing or positive. T. W. Alsbrooks v. Washington Deliveries, Inc. (D.C. App. 1971, 281 A.2d 220).

In action for personal injuries and property damage arising out of motor vehicle collision, statutory presumption that owner had consented to the operator's use of truck involved in accident was not in this case fully overcome as matter of law, precluding direction of verdict for owner. Id.

Statutory presumption that proof of ownership of motor vehicle shall be prima facie evidence that motor vehicle was being operated with consent of owner may be overcome by uncontradicted denial by the owner, and in such a case a directed verdict for owner is proper. C. R. Meyers et ano. v. F. O. Gaither (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A.2d 577; remanded 404 F.2d 216, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 216).

Evidence that automobile of defendant was involved in accident in Maryland about 11:30 p.m., that it was not until about 3:30 a.m., after repeated telephone calls, that police succeeded in contacting owner, and testimony of owner that he had been at his home all evening made question for jury whether automobile was being operated by owner or with owner's consent. Id.

Where uncontradicted testimony indicated that employee's use of delivery truck at time of collision was without employer's permission, presumption of agency arising from employer's ownership of truck was overcome. Eastern Aquatics, Inc. v. Washington (D.C. App. 1965, 213 A.2d 293).

Evidence authorized finding that automobile title holder sued for property damage arising out of collision when automobile was being driven by her husband had mere naked legal title to and no immediate right of control of automobile, which husband had taken with him at time of marital separation before accident. H. Johnson et ano. v. G. Keyes (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A.2d 24).

Automobile title holder who did not have power to allow or prevent use of automobile by her husband at time husband was involved in accident was not "owner" of automobile within Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act. Id.

Evidence raised fact question whether automobile title holder who was sued for property damage allegedly caused when automobile was involved in collision while being operated by holder's husband and who testified that upon occurrence of marital separation before accident husband took automobile with him had given consent for operation of automobile at time of collision. Id.

Positive statements of automobile owner that he had never given employee of pharmacy, which borrowed automobile, right to drive automobile after business hours and that he had never known of pharmacy employee doing so destroyed any presumption that automobile was being used with his permission at time of accident and owner was not liable for injuries resulting from employee's negligence. J. P. Lancaster et ano. v. R. J. Canuel et ano. (D.C. App. 1963, 1933 A.2d 555).

Statutory presumption that vehicle was driven with owner's consent continues only until there is credible evidence to contrary, and ceases when there is uncontradicted proof that automobile was not at time being used with owner's permission. E. M. Jones, Sr. v. J. Halun (1961, 296 F.2d 597, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 340).

The statutory presumption that vehicle was driven with owner's consent continues only until there is credible evidence to contrary, and ceases when there is uncontradicted proof that automobile was not at the time being used with owner's permission. Hudson v. Lazarus (1954, 217 F.2d 344, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 16).

Rosenberg v. Murray (1941, 116 F.2d 552, 73 App. D.C. 67). See, also, Conrad v. Porter (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 79 A.2d 777); Schwartzbach v. Thompson (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A.2d 624); Rice v. Simmons (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 53 A.2d 587).

Mere ownership of vehicle causing accident creates a presumption that operation was with the consent of the owner, but such may be overcome by uncontradicted proof that the vehicle was not being operated with the owner's consent, and when so overcome, the owner is entitled to a directed verdict. Sawyer et ano. v. Misell (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 156 A.2d 141).

In action against District of Columbia for damages sustained when truck, which was owned by district and which was assigned to recreation department and which was operated by department employee, collided with plaintiff's automobile while employee was driving truck out from the curb in front of employee's house where employee had parked truck while he was having his lunch, proof of district's ownership of truck raised a presumption under District of Columbia Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act, if such act was applicable, that employee was operating with consent of district, and the evidence, consisting of regulation of district commissioners requiring that government-owned vehicles be used exclusively for official purposes and testimony of employee's superiors in the department that employee did not have permission to use truck to go home for lunch, was sufficient to overcome such presumption. District of Columbia v. Abrahamson et ano. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 148 A.2d 578).

In action for personal injuries and property damage sustained when truck owned by defendant and driven by one of his employees struck rear of plaintiff's vehicle, evidence on consent issue was sufficient to overcome statutory presumption and entitled defendant to directed verdict as a matter of law. Stumbar v. Harrison (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 136 A.2d 870).

In action against truck owners for damages caused by employee, where statutory presumption that owners had consented to such employee's driving truck was rebutted by uncontradicted proof that he had no authority to drive, fact that authorized employee-driver had turned truck over to unauthorized employee to park it did not establish owners' liability under principles of master and servant relationship, in view of fact that transfer of possession took place. Chasin v. Miller (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 94 A.2d 647).

Presumption created by Owners' Financial Responsibility Act which arises by mere fact of ownership of motor vehicle that owner has consented to driving of his automobile by another person, is sufficiently rebutted by the uncontradicted denial by owner that vehicle was used with his express or implied consent. Conrad v. Porter (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 79 A.2d 777).

Under statute, making proof of ownership prima facie evidence of consent, owner must offer evidence sufficient to overcome the prima facie case. Senator Cab Co. v. Rothberg (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A.2d 245).

Extra territorial effect

The District of Columbia Financial Responsibility Law was inapplicable where at the time of injury the automobile was being operated in Maryland. F. O. Gaither v. C. R. Myers et ano. (1968, 404 F.2d 216, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 216, see also 232 A.2d 577).

Application of evidentiary clause of District of Columbia statute that proof of ownership of automobile shall be prima facie evidence that automobile was operated with consent of owner to trial of cause of action arising from operation of automobile in Maryland did not give statute extra-territorial effect. C. R. Meyers et ano. v. F. O. Gaither (D.C. App. 1967, 232 A. 2d 577; remanded 404 F. 2d 216, 131 U.S. App. D.C. 216).

Findings

Where owner of automobile involved in accident had permitted driver to drive automobiles on previous occasions and the testimony, that at time of accident automobile was not driven with owner's consent was inconsistent and self-contradictory, a finding that owner had failed to break the force of the statutory presumption of consent was justified. Schwartzbach v. Thompson (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 624).

Husband and wife

Negligence of driver who was taking lady home at her request in her husband's automobile, was attributable to husband, under District of Columbia statute making one who operates automobile with owner's consent the agent of the owner in case of accident, in his action against motor carrier for expenses due to collision with its truck and in carrier's counterclaim against him, in absence of sufficient evidence to overcome prima facie case of consent arising, by statute, from husband's ownership. Baber v. Akers Motor Lines (1954, 215 F. 2d 843, 94 U. S. App. D. C. 211).

District of Columbia rule that a married woman may not maintain action, under District of Columbia Financial Responsibility Act, for injuries she sustained as passenger in automobile while it was driven by one who was, at time of maintaining action, her husband, against person who lent automobile to her husband, whether spouses were married at time of accident was applicable to preclude actions being brought in District for injuries sustained in New York. Baker v. Gaffney (D.C.D.C. 1956, 141 F. Supp. 602).

A married woman may not maintain action, under District of Columbia Financial Responsibility Act, for injuries she sustained as passenger in automobile while it was driven by one who was, at time of maintaining action, her husband, against person who lent automobile to her husband, whether spouses were married at time of accident. Id.

Issue of permission to use automobile

Evidence on the issue of whether defendant automobile owner consented to use of her automobile by defendant driver, who was an employee of corporation of which owner was a major stockholder, and who had used owner's automobile on other occasions, and with whom owner left her keys and note about certain errands, was for the jury in action for damages sustained by plaintiffs in collision with that automobile. M. Williams v. M. Baines and F. Baines (D.C. App. 1969, 257 A. 2d 762).

Joint enterprises

Whether the contributory negligence of the driver of a rented taxicab may be imputed to its owner must be based on the theory that both were engaged in a joint enterprise, but to establish such relationship there must exist not only a community of interest in the subject of the venture but also an equal right, express or implied, to direct and control the management and movement of the car. National Trucking and Storage Co. v. Driscoll (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 64 A. 2d 304).

To constitute a joint enterprise there must be not only joint or community of interest but also an equal right express or implied, to direct and control the management and movement of the motor vehicle involved. Gasque v. Saidman (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 537).

Law governing

Principle that questions of liability in tort are governed by law of state in which tort is committed is subject to exception where forum does not possess necessary procedural machinery to enforce such law. Baker v. Gaffney (D.C.D.C. 1956, 141 F. Supp. 602).

Negligent hiring

Recovery under theory of alleged negligent hiring of negligent employee requires proof that employer omitted use of ordinary care in selection of employee unfit to perform services for which he was hired, but no liability attaches to employer unless incompetency or unfitness of servant was proximate cause of injury. J. P. Lancaster et ano. v. R. J. Canuel et ano. (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 555).

Parties injured by automobile being driven for personal purposes by employee of pharmacy, to which automobile had been lent, were not entitled to recover from pharmacy on ground of alleged negligent hiring of employee, where there was no showing of unfitness of employee to perform services rendered, including operation of two motor vehicles in course of his duties at pharmacy. Id.

New trial

Where principal question was whether colliding automobile was being operated with owner's consent and Municipal Court judge in case tried without a jury made a general finding for plaintiff and assessed damages and general finding was entered on the jacket of the case and in court's minutes and docket, and before judgment was entered defendant moved to set aside and render judgment for defendant, the court was without power to reverse such general finding and enter judgment for defendant, but the court's only recourse was to grant a new trial. Rice v. Simmons (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 53 A. 2d 587).

Operation and control

Evidence was insufficient to present question for jury as to whether owner of automobile could be held liable under Financial Responsibility Act for injuries sustained in collision when automobile was being driven by employee of service station and it appeared that owner at most entrusted employee with driving automobile from owner's place of work to service station, and that employee was not driving back to the station by any route at time of collision but was driving away from it. Hudson v. Lazarus (1954, 217 F. 2d 344, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 16).

Where parking lot attendant was authorized to drive automobile and park it in street in front of owner's store after 6:30 p.m. and attendant had driven four blocks beyond his usual route at time of accident at 6:45 p.m., finding that evidence did not establish that attendant had removed automobile from parking lot for purpose of delivering automobile to owner, and did establish that at time of accident attendant was operating automobile without consent of owner, did not justify judgment relieving owner from liability for attendant's negligence. Senator Cab Co. v. Rothberg (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 245).

"Owners" and "ownership"

Where registered owner of automobile who was automobile operator's mother had no right to prevent operator's use of automobile but rather took title to automobile merely to accommodate operator, with whom financing bank declined to deal directly because of his minority, and payments on automobile were made by operator out of his own earnings, operator rather than registered owner is the "owner" of the automobile within the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act and the registered owner is not liable for operator's negligence. E. F. Spindle et ano. v. P. Reid (D.C. App. 1971, 277 A. 2d 117).

Registration of legal title to an automobile in one's name is not conclusive as to ownership within the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act. Id.

The terms "owner" and "ownership" which are not defined in this provision must be defined by judicial determination, made in a manner giving effect to the objects and purposes of this provision. Mason v. Automobile Finance Co. (1941, 121 F. 2d 32, 73 App. D.C. 284).

Possession plus power and legal right to permit its use by another constitutes ownership within the meaning of this provision. Id.

Chattel mortgagee is not an "owner" of an automobile, nor does he become such merely by virtue of a default by the mortgagor, though the right to possession may accrue immediately upon default, but something more than a lien on the automobile, though presently and summarily enforceable, is necessary. Id.

Ownership as evidence

Under provision that proof of ownership of motor vehicle causing damage shall be "prima facie evidence" that driver operated automobile with owner's consent, with proof that defendant owned automobile involved and with no evidence on behalf of defendant, a plaintiff who has otherwise established liability is entitled to a directed verdict. Hiscox v. Jackson (1942, 127 F. 2d 160, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 293).

Under provision of statute that proof of ownership of motor vehicle causing damage shall be prima facie evidence that driver operated motor vehicle with owner's consent, the presumption continues until there is credible evidence to the contrary and ceases when there is uncontradicted proof that the vehicle was not at the time being used with the owner's permission. Id.

Purpose

District of Columbia code section making operator driving with consent of owner agent of owner, and District doctrine allowing registered owner to disprove ownership were designed to protect persons and property of District residents by encouraging safe driving and providing injured parties with potential defendants. Williams v. Rawlings Truck Line, Inc. (1965, 357 F. 2d 581, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 121).

Object of Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act was not to impose liability on one having naked legal title to automobile with no immediate right of control. H. Johnson et ano. v. G. Keyes (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 2d 24).

In absence of some definite statutory criterion of ownership, the purpose of statute was to place liability on the person in a position immediately to allow or prevent the use of the automobile and to do so by giving a lawful and effective consent or prohibition to its operation by others, and its object was to control the giving of consent to irresponsible drivers by the one having that power rather than to impose liability on one having a naked legal title with no immediate right of control. Mason v. Automobile Finance Co. (1941, 121 F. 2d 32, 73 App. D.C. 284).

The statute has a twofold purpose: To furnish a financially responsible defendant in case a person driving a car, with the owner's consent, negligently causes damage to another; and to promote more careful driving. National Trucking and Storage Co. v. Driscoll (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 64 A. 2d 304).

The purpose of this chapter was the extension of liability of master for acts of servant to those owners who entrust their automobiles to others or give consent, express or implied, to their use by others. Senator Cab Co. v. Rothberg (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 245).

Questions of fact

Whether automobile owner whose keys were removed while he was asleep at a home where he had gone with one who drove his automobile in collision had given permission to him to use automobile was question for trier. H. M. Hancock et ano. v. C. L. Morris (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 922).

In action for damages sustained when a plaintiff's taxicab was struck by an automobile owned by defendant, evidence, including testimony that driver and passenger in the automobile ran away from it after the collision which occurred about four blocks from automobile owner's home, and that automobile owner appeared on the scene shortly after the occurrence, was sufficient to present a question for the jury as to whether automobile was being driven at time of the accident by owner, or with consent of the owner. Farralitano v. Ellis (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 157 A. 2d 127).

In an action against owner of an automobile, for damages sustained by a plaintiff, when his taxicab collided with the automobile, unless automobile owner offered uncontradicted proof that his automobile was not at the time of the accident being used with his permission, question of automobile owner's liability should have been submitted to the jury as a question of fact. Id.

Positive, unequivocal and uncontradicted testimony of owner of an automobile that it was not being used with his permission, at time it was involved in an accident in question, may constitute uncontradicted proof to that effect, for purposes of excusing owner from liability, but if the proof offered by the owner contains inconsistencies and self-contradictions, raising doubt as to owner's credibility or that of his witnesses, issue of permissive use of the automobile is for the jury. Id.

"Uncontradicted proof" requires evidence which destroys all inferences and presumptions supporting one party, and which raises no doubts against the other party. Id.

In action brought by automobile owner to recover for damage sustained when his automobile was struck, while parked, at night, against one whose automobile had been identified as the one doing the damage, defendant's evidence that neither he nor anyone with his consent had driven his automobile at time involved was not so uncontradicted as to justify withdrawal of matter from jury. Love et ano. v. Gaskins (D. C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 660).

Statutory presumption of consent may be overcome by positive testimony of motor vehicle's owner, and if such presumption is overcome by uncontradicted proof, owner is entitled to directed verdict as a matter of law; but if on the other hand, evidence contains inconsistencies and self-contradictions or is reasonably subject to contradictory interpretations, question is one of fact for jury determination. Stumpner v. Harrison (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 136 A. 2d 870).

Upon establishment of defendant's ownership of automobile involved in accident while being driven by another, the Financial Responsibility Act creates presumption of agency and places burden of proof as to question of consent upon defendant, but defendant overcomes such presumption when he offers uncontradicted proof that automobile was not being used with his permission, and is then entitled to favorable finding as matter of law, but where defendant offers some credible evidence to overcome presumption, but not enough to entitle him to judgment as matter of law, question of liability becomes one of fact. McMickle v. Nickens (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 409).

Where statutory presumption that defendant truck owners had consented to the driving of their truck by employee was overcome by uncontradicted proof, question of truck owners' liability to owners of automobiles struck by truck was not strictly one of fact such that trial court's decision should not be disturbed on appeal. Chasin v. Miller (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 94 A. 2d 647).

Upon establishment of defendant's ownership of automobile involved, the Financial Responsibility Act creates a presumption of agency and places burden of proof as to question of consent upon defendant-owner, but defendant-owner overcomes such presumption when he offers uncontradicted proof that automobile was not being used with his permission and owner is then entitled to favorable finding as a matter of law, but, where defendant-owner offers some credible evidence to overcome the presumption but not enough to entitle him to judgment as matter of law, question of liability becomes one of fact. Simon v. Dew (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 214).

Whenever presumption raised by statute providing that proof of ownership of motor vehicle involved in accident shall be prima facie evidence that driver was operating vehicle with owner's consent is overcome by uncontradicted proof, a directed verdict for owner is proper, but if the evidence is contradictory, question of owner's liability is for the jury. Milstead v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 93).

Although presumption, arising under Owners' Financial Responsibility Act by virtue of ownership of vehicle, that vehicle, driven by person other than owner when involved in accident, was being driven with consent of owner and thereby as agent of owner, ceases when confronted with uncontradicted denial by owner of giving of consent, when uncontradicted denial is self-contradictory and inconsistent, it becomes question for jury as to credibility of witness and as to whether presumption has been rebutted. Conrad v. Porter (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 79 A. 2d 777).

Evidence presented was sufficient to meet the statutory presumption of consent under Owner's Financial Responsibility Act, and when a statutory presumption is met by some credible evidence, it becomes, in a sense, something like an inference and when more than a single inference may be drawn from the evidence, it becomes a question of fact for a jury's determination. Bill's Auto Rental, Inc. v. Bonded Taxi Company (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 72 A. 2d 254).

If the presumption that automobile was being used with the express or implied consent of owner at time of accident is overcome by uncontradicted proof, a motion for directed verdict for the owner will be granted, but if the evidence is contradictory or reasonably subject to contradictory interpretations, the question of liability is for the trier of the facts. Rice v. Simmons (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 58 A. 2d 587).

Where owner of taxicab driven by another was in taxicab at time of collision and the evidence was conflicting whether driver was driving with owner's consent, the inferences to be drawn from the facts were for jury. Gasque v. Saidman (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 537).

Review

Where action against owner of taxicab involved in accident was heard before court without jury, and trial judge's memorandum opinion did not state whether statutory presumption of agency had been overcome as a matter of law or of fact, the Municipal Court of Appeals would assume that the trial judge had found for defendant as a matter of law. Simon v. Dew (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 214).

On appeal from judgment for plaintiff in action against automobile owner for damages resulting from operation of automobile by another, the test is whether the showing was such as to justify a holding that defendant had failed to break the force of the statutory presumption of owner's consent, and in applying that test and in measuring the force, effect and extent of the testimony, the municipal court of appeals, like the trial court, was governed by the rules of reason, credibility, and probability. Schwartzbach v. Thompson (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 624).

Setting aside default judgment

Where plaintiff obtained default judgment in automobile accident case and the court had jurisdiction of the subject and of the parties and there was a lack of proof of ownership of the automobile involved, such fact would render the judgment merely erroneous and not void and hence motion to set it aside was properly denied. Lynch v. Williams etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 770).

Unauthorized use

Inasmuch as employee admitted that he took automobile from his employer's lot in order to drive on his own errand after hours of employment and to achieve no objective directly or indirectly furthering his employer's business, employer was not liable to persons injured by employee's careless operation of automobile. J. P. Lancaster et ano. v. R. J. Canuel et ano. (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 555).

Evidence was insufficient to present question for jury as to whether owner of automobile could be held liable under Financial Responsibility Act for injuries sustained in collision when automobile was being driven by companion of owner's son and it appeared that owner had forbidden son to let anyone else drive automobile. E. M. Jones, Sr. v. J. Halun (1961, 296 F. 2d 597, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 340).

In action for damage to automobiles, uncontradicted testimony by defendant truck owners that driver-employees were instructed to allow no one else to drive, and that a helper-employee who was driving truck in intoxicated condition at time of collision, had no driver's license and went out on truck only when specifically instructed to do so, overcame statutory presumption that owners had consented to helper's driving of truck. Chasin v. Miller (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 94 A. 2d 647).

Where lessee of taxicab obeyed lessor's instructions not to permit any one else to drive taxicab, but, after locking ignition, left keys on radio in her apartment, and another person obtained such keys without lessee's knowledge and became involved in automobile accident, owner did not consent to such use and was not liable for the accident. Simon v. Dew (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 214).

Under Owners' Financial Responsibility Act which raises presumption of consent by owner to driving of his automobile by another person involved in accident upon showing of single fact of ownership, where there was uncontradicted testimony of owner and his agents which was not self-contradictory that automobile was driven without consent by third party when accident occurred, it was error to submit issue of owner's liability to jury. Conrad v. Porter (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 79 A. 2d 777).

Waiver of deposit

Question whether Commissioners of the District of Columbia should have discretion to waive deposit of security, as required by automobile statute relating to accidents when driver does not have liability policy, in cases of nonliability or in cases of possible extortion is for legislature. Haith v. Commissioners of the District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 135 A. 2d 458).

Suspension mandatory

Automobile driver's license was properly suspended after driver, who had been in accident which resulted in property damage in excess of $100, failed to post security since suspension of license is mandatory under circumstances, without respect to question of nonliability on part of driver. Haith v. Commissioners of the District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 135 A. 2d 458).

Waiver of deposit

Question whether Commissioners of the District of Columbia should have discretion to waive deposit of security, as required by automobile statute relating to accidents when driver does not have liability policy, in cases of nonliability or in cases of possible extortion is for legislature. Haith v. Commissioners of the District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 135 A. 2d 458).

§ 40-433. Determination of the amount of security.

(a) The Commissioner, not less than twenty days after receipt of a report of an accident as described in sections 40-426 to 40-431, shall determine the amount of security which shall be sufficient in his judgment to satisfy any judgment or judgments for damages resulting from such accident as may be recovered against each driver or owner. Such determination shall not be made with respect to drivers or owners who are exempt under succeeding sections of this chapter from the requirements as to security and suspension.

(b) The Commissioner shall determine the amount of security deposit required of any person upon the basis of the reports or other information submitted. In the event a person involved in an accident as described in this chapter fails to make a report or submit information indicating the extent of his injuries or the damage to his property within fifty days after the accident and the Commissioner does not have sufficient information on which to base an evaluation of such injuries or damage, then the Commissioner after reasonable notice to such person, if it is possible to give such notice, otherwise without such notice, shall not require any deposit of security for the benefit or protection of such person. If the Commissioner finds that a person required by this subsection to make such report or submit such information is or was physically incapable of so doing within the specified fifty-day period, the Commissioner shall permit such person to make such report or submit such information within thirty days after becoming physically able so to do.

(c) The Commissioner within fifty days after receipt of report of any accident referred to herein and upon determining the amount of security to be required of any person involved in such accident or to be required of the owner of any vehicle involved in such accident shall give written notice to every such person of the amount of security required to be deposited by him and that an order of suspension will be made as hereinafter provided upon the expiration of ten days after the sending of such notice unless within said time security be deposited as required by said notice. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 125, ch. 222, § 17; Sept. 8, 1960, 74 Stat. 862, Pub. L. 86-730, § 3.)

§ 40-434. Exceptions to requirements as to security and suspension.

The requirements as to security and suspension in sections 40-432 to 40-449 shall not apply—

(1) to the driver or owner if the owner had in effect at the time of the accident an automobile liability policy or bond with respect to the vehicle involved in the accident, except that a driver shall not be exempt under this paragraph if at the time of the accident the vehicle was being operated without the owner's permission, express or implied;

(2) to the driver, if not the owner of the vehicle involved in the accident, if there was in effect at the time of the accident an automobile liability policy or bond with respect to his driving of vehicles not owned by him;

(3) to a driver or owner whose liability for damages resulting from the accident is, in the judgment of the Commissioner, covered by any other form of liability insurance policy or bond;

(4) to any person qualifying as a self-insurer under section 40-494 or part II of the Interstate Commerce Act (49 U.S.C. § 301 et seq.) or to any person operating a vehicle for such self-insurer;

(5) to the driver or the owner of a vehicle involved in an accident wherein no injury or damage was caused to the person or property of anyone other than such driver or owner;

(6) to the driver or owner of a vehicle which at the time of the accident was parked, unless such vehicle was parked at a place where parking was at the time of the accident prohibited under any applicable law or ordinance;

(7) to the owner of a vehicle if at the time of the accident the vehicle was being operated without his permission, express or implied, or was parked by a person who had been operating such vehicle without such permission;

(8) to the owner of a vehicle involved in an accident if at the time of the accident such vehicle was owned by or leased to the United States, a State or any political subdivision thereof, the District of Columbia, or to the driver of such vehicle if operating such vehicle with permission; or

(9) to the driver or the owner of a vehicle in the event at the time of the accident the vehicle was being operated by or under the direction of a police officer who, in the performance of his duties, shall have assumed custody of such vehicle. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 125, ch. 222, § 18; Aug. 28, 1958, 72 Stat. 955, Pub. L. 85-792, § 6.)

This section is referred to in sections 40-435 to 40-438, 40-440 to 40-444, 40-446, 40-448, 40-449.

§ 40-435. Automobile liability policy or bond—Requirements.

(a) No policy or bond shall be effective under section 40-434 unless issued by an insurance company or surety company authorized to do business in the District of Columbia, except as provided in subdivision (b) of this section, nor unless such policy or bond is subject, if the accident has resulted in bodily injury or death, to a limit, exclusive of interest and costs, of not less than $10,000 because of bodily injury to or death of one person in any one accident and, subject to said limit for one person, to a limit of not less than $20,000 because of bodily injury to or death of two or more persons in any one accident, and if the accident has resulted in injury to, or destruction of property, to a limit of not less than $5,000 because of injury to or destruction of property of others in any one accident.

(b) No policy or bond shall be effective under section 40-434 with respect to any vehicle which was not registered in the District of Columbia or a vehicle which was registered elsewhere than in the District of Columbia at the effective date of the policy or bond or the most recent renewal thereof unless the insurance company or surety company issuing such policy or bond is authorized to do business in the District of Columbia, or if said company is not authorized to do business in the District of Columbia, unless it shall execute a power of attorney authorizing the Commissioner to accept service on its behalf of notice or process in any action upon such policy or bond arising out of such accident.

(c) The Commissioner may rely upon the accuracy of the information in a required report of an accident as to the existence of insurance or a bond unless and until the Commissioner has reason to believe that the information is erroneous. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 126, ch. 222, § 19.)

Coverage of insurance

Where policy of liability insurance by its own terms "does not cover any liability for death sustained by named insured" the financial responsibility act was applicable, where the insured was killed in her own automobile driven by another and the administratrix of named insured could not recover. Hepburn v. Pennsylvania Indem. Corp. (1940, 109 F. 2d 833, 71 App. D.C. 257).

Power of attorney construed

Where judgment creditor instituted action against judgment debtor's insurer to recover on judgment, and served the summons and a copy of complaint upon agent of board of commissioners, and insurer had filed power of attorney authorizing agent of board of commissioners to accept service on its behalf thereby enabling its insureds to comply with financial responsibility act specifically providing it was not applicable to accidents occurring prior to its effective date which was subsequent to creditor's accident, even though power of attorney was broader than statutory requirements, when it was considered together with a resolution by insurer directors authorizing same, it could not be construed to apply to creditor's action. Orban v. The State Automobile Association (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 127 A. 2d 143).

§ 40-436. Security—Form and amount.

(a) The security required under sections 40-432 to 40-449 shall be in such form and in such amount as the Commissioner may require, but in no case in excess of the limits specified in section 40-435 in reference to the acceptable limits of a policy or bond.

(b) Every depositor of security shall designate in writing every person in whose name such deposit is made, but any single deposit of security shall be applicable only on behalf of persons required to furnish security because of the same accident. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 126, ch. 222, § 20.)

§ 40-437. Failure to deposit security—Suspensions.

In the event that any person required to deposit security under sections 40-432 to 40-449 fails to deposit such security within ten days after the Commissioner has sent the notice as hereinbefore provided, the Commissioner shall thereupon suspend—

- (1) the license of each driver in any manner involved in the accident;
- (2) the registration of all vehicles owned by the owner of each vehicle of a type subject to registration under the laws of the District of Columbia involved in such accident;
- (3) if the driver is a nonresident, the privilege of operating, within the District of Columbia, a vehicle of a type subject to registration under the laws of the District of Columbia; and
- (4) if such owner is a nonresident, the privilege of such owner to operate or permit the operation within the District of Columbia of a vehicle of a type subject to registration under the laws of the District of Columbia.

Such suspensions shall be made in respect to persons not otherwise exempt under this chapter who are required by the Commissioner to deposit security and who fail to deposit such security, except as otherwise provided under this chapter. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 126, ch. 222, § 21.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 40-434, 40-436, 40-438, 40-440 to 40-444, 40-446, 40-448, 40-449.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

The plaintiff's claim of unconstitutionality of this section, requiring suspension of drivers' licenses and automobile registrations for persons who are involved in automobile accident causing more than $100 damages and are either uninsured, unable to post security, or unable to obtain release from other parties involved, was so insubstantial as not to require the convening of a three-judge federal court. J. F. Cheek et al. v. W. E. Washington, et al. (1970, 311 F. Supp. 965).

Congress has reposed issuance and retraction of driver's licenses within the discretion of the Commissioners and it may surround this grant with reasonable requisites and contingencies. Id.

Judicial review

Where plaintiff was notified that his driver's permit and registration were subject to suspension under this section, plaintiff appealed action to board of appeals and review of Department of Motor Vehicles which upheld order of suspension, plaintiff's avenue of further relief was by petition for review in District of Columbia Court of Appeals and not in District Court. J. F. Cheek v. W. E. Washington et al. (1971, 333 F. Supp. 481).

Suspension mandatory

Automobile driver's license was properly suspended after driver, who had been in accident which resulted in property damage in excess of $100, failed to post security since suspension of license is mandatory under circumstances, without respect to question of nonliability on part of driver. Haith v. Commissioners of the District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 135 A. 2d 458).

Waiver of deposit

Question whether Commissioners of the District of Columbia should have discretion to waive deposit of security, as required by automobile statute relating to accidents when driver does not have liability policy, in cases of nonliability or in cases of possible extortion is for legislature. Haith v. Commissioners of the District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 135 A. 2d 458).

§ 40-438. Release from liability.

(a) A person shall be relieved from the requirement for deposit of security for the benefit or protection of another person injured or damaged in the accident in the event he is released from liability by such other person.

(b) A covenant not to sue shall relieve the parties thereto as to each other from the security requirements of sections 40-432 to 40-449.

(c) In the event the Commissioner has evaluated the injuries or damage to any minor in an amount not more than $200 the Commissioner may accept, for the purpose of sections 40-432 to 40-449 only, evidence of a release from liability executed by a natural guardian or a legal guardian on behalf of such minor without the approval of any court.

(d) In any accident involving property of the United States or the District of Columbia, should it appear upon investigation by or on behalf of the United States or the District that a person involved in such accident may not be liable to the United States or the District for any damage resulting therefrom, such person may submit, and the appropriate United States official and the Commissioner is hereby authorized to give to him, a statement to such effect, and such statement may be in lieu of the release required by this section: Provided, That the United States and the Commissioner may withdraw such statement at any time if it should appear that the person to whom it was given may be liable to the United States or the District for damages arising out of such accident, and if such statement be withdrawn, the person to whom it was given shall be required to comply with the provisions of this chapter. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 127, ch. 222, § 22; Aug. 28, 1958, 72 Stat. 955, Pub. L. 85-792, § 7.)

AMENDMENT

1958—Act Aug. 28, 1958, amended the section by adding subparagraph (d) thereto.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

See § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the appendix to title 1. See also §§ 301 and 503 of the Plan.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 40-434, 40-436, 40-437, 40-440 to 40-444, 40-446, 40-448, 40-449.

§ 40-439. Adjudication of nonliability—Release from requirement of the deposit of security.

A person shall be relieved from the requirement for deposit of security in respect to a claim for injury or damage arising out of the accident in the event such person has been finally adjudicated not to be liable in respect to such claim. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 127, ch. 222, § 23.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 40-434, 40-436 to 40-438, 40-440 to 40-444, 40-446, 40-448, 40-449.

§ 40-440. Agreements for payment of damages.

(a) Any two or more of the persons involved in or affected by an accident as described in section 40-432 may at any time enter into a written agreement for the payment of an agreed amount with respect to all claims of any such persons because of bodily injury to or death or property damage arising from such accident, which agreement may provide for payment in installments, and may file a signed copy thereof with the Commissioner.

(b) The Commissioner, to the extent provided by any such written agreement filed with him, shall not require the deposit of security and shall terminate any prior order of suspension, or if security has previously been deposited, the Commissioner shall return such security to the depositor or his personal representative, or pay such security to the depositor's assignee, as the case may be, when all payments required by such agreement have been made in full, when an amount equal to such security has been paid in accordance with such agreement, or when such security is assigned to the person injured or damaged as a result of said accident.

(c) In the event of a default in any payment under such agreement and upon notice of such default the Commissioner shall take action suspending the license or registration of such person in default as would be appropriate in the event of failure of such person to deposit security when required under this chapter.

(d) Such suspension shall remain in effect and such license or registration shall not be restored unless and until the person in default has paid all payments then in default.

(e) The Commissioner may accept evidence of a payment to the driver or owner of a vehicle involved in any accident by any other person involved in such accident or by the insurance carrier of any other person involved in such accident on account of damage to property or bodily injury as a settlement agreement relieving such driver or owner from the security and suspension provisions of sections 40-432 to 40-449 in respect to any possible claim by the person on whose behalf such payment has been made might have for property damage or bodily injury arising out of the accident. A payment to the insurance carrier of a driver or owner under the carrier's right of subrogation for the purposes of sections 40-432 to 40-449 shall be considered the equivalent of a payment to such driver or owner. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 127, ch. 222, § 24; Aug. 28, 1958, 72 Stat. 955, Pub. L. 85-792, § 8.)

§ 40-441. Payment upon judgment—Release of judgment debtor.

The payment of a judgment arising out of an accident or the payment upon such judgment of an amount equal to the maximum amount which could be required for deposit under sections 40-432 to 40-449 shall, for the purposes of such sections, release the judgment debtor from the liability evidenced by such judgment. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 127, ch. 222, § 25.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

§ 40-442. Termination of security requirement.

The Commissioner, if satisfied as to the existence of any fact which under sections 40-438, 40-439, 40-440, and 40-441 would entitle a person to be relieved from the security requirements of sections 40-432 to 40-449, shall not require the deposit of security by the person so relieved from such requirement and shall terminate any prior order of suspension in respect to such person, or if security has previously been deposited by such person, the Commissioner shall immediately return such deposit to such person or to his personal representative. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 127, § 26.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Waiver of deposit

Question whether Commissioners of the District of Columbia should have discretion to waive deposit of security, as required by automobile statute relating to accidents when driver does not have liability policy, in cases of nonliability or in cases of possible extortion is for legislature. Haith v. Commissioners of the District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 135 A. 2d 458).

§ 40-443. Duration of suspension.

Unless a suspension is terminated under other provisions of sections 40-432 to 40-449, any order of suspension by the Commissioner under such sections shall remain in effect and no license shall be renewed for or issued to any person whose license is so suspended and no registration shall be renewed for or issued to any person whose vehicle registration is so suspended until—

(1) such person shall deposit or there shall be deposited on his behalf the security required under sections 40-432 to 40-449; or

(2) one year shall have elapsed following the date of such suspension and evidence satisfactory to the Commissioner has been filed with him that during such period no action for damages arising out of the accident resulting in such suspension has been instituted.

An affidavit of the applicant that no action at law or damages arising out of the accident has been filed against him or, if filed, that it is not still pending shall be prima facie evidence of that fact. The Commissioner may take whatever steps are necessary to verify the statement set forth in any said affidavit. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 128, ch. 222, § 27.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Suspension mandatory

Automobile driver's license was properly suspended after driver, who had been in accident which resulted in property damage in excess of $100, failed to post security since suspension of license is mandatory under circumstances, without respect to question of nonliability on part of driver. Haith v. Commissioners of the District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 135 A. 2d 458).

§ 40-444. Nonresidents—Unlicensed drivers—Unregistered vehicles—Accidents in other States.

(a) In case the driver or the owner of a vehicle of a type subject to registration under the laws of the District of Columbia involved in an accident within the District of Columbia has no license or registration in the District of Columbia, then such driver shall not be allowed a license, nor shall such owner be allowed to register any vehicle in the District of Columbia, until he has complied with the requirements of sections 40-432 to 40-449 to the same extent that would be necessary if, at the time of the accident, he had held a license or been the owner of a vehicle registered in the District of Columbia.

(b) When a nonresident's operating privilege is suspended pursuant to section 40-437, the Commissioner shall transmit a certified copy of the record of such action to the official in charge of the issuance of licenses and registration certificates in the State in which such nonresident resides.

(c) Upon receipt of certification that the operating privilege of a resident of the District of Columbia has been suspended or revoked in any State pursuant to a law providing for its suspension or revocation for failure to deposit security for the payment of judgments arising out of a motor vehicle accident, under circumstances which would require the Commissioner to suspend a nonresident's operating privilege had the accident occurred in the District of Columbia, the Commissioner shall suspend the license of such resident if he was the driver, and all of his registrations if he was the owner of a motor vehicle involved in such accident. Such suspension shall continue until such resident furnishes evidence of his compliance with the law of such State relating to the deposit of such security.

The provisions of this subsection shall be applicable only to a certification from a State which by its laws has made provision for the suspension or revocation of the license and all registrations of a resident of such State for failure to deposit security for the payment of any judgment arising out of a motor vehicle accident in the District of Columbia, or for failure to make payment of an agreed amount with respect to all claims arising from such accident, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 128, ch. 222, § 28.)

Whenever the Commissioner has taken any action or has failed to take any action under sections 40-432 to 40-449 by reason of having received erroneous information, then upon receiving correct information within one year after the date of an accident the Commissioner shall take appropriate action to carry out the purposes and effect of this chapter. The foregoing shall not, however, be deemed to require the Commissioner to reevaluate the amount of any deposit required under sections 40-432 to 40-449. The provisions of this chapter requiring the deposit of proof of financial responsibility for the future, subject to certain exemptions, shall apply with respect to persons who have been convicted of or forfeited bail for certain offenses under motor vehicle laws or who have failed to pay judgments upon causes of action arising out of ownership, maintenance, or use of vehicles of a type subject to registration under the laws of the District of Columbia. Wherever used in this chapter the term "proof of financial responsibility" or "proof" shall be synonymous with the term "proof of financial responsibility for the future". The following words and phrases when used in sections 40-450 to 40-484 shall, for the purpose of such sections, have the meanings respectively ascribed to them in this section.

(a) The term "judgment" shall mean: Any judgment which shall have become final by expiration without appeal of the time within which an appeal might have been perfected, or by final affirmation on appeal, rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction of any State, the District of Columbia, or of the United States, upon a cause of action arising out of the ownership, maintenance, or use of any vehicle of a type subject to registration under the laws of the District of Columbia, for damages, including damages for care and loss of services, because of bodily injury to or death of any person, or for damages because of injury to or destruction of property including the loss of use thereof, or upon a cause of action on an agreement of settlement for such damages.

(b) The term "State" shall mean: Any State, Territory, or possession of the United States, or any province of the Dominion of Canada. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 130, ch. 222, § 36.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 40-453, 40-462, 40-474.

§ 40-453. Suspension of license and registration for certain convictions—Effect of proof of financial responsibility—Vehicles owned or leased by the United States, a State, or a political subdivision thereof—Suspension for out of District convictions.

(a) The license and registration of all vehicles registered in the name of any person who by a final order or judgment shall have been convicted of, or shall have forfeited any bond or collateral given to secure appearance for trial for a violation of any of the following provisions of law:

(1) Operating a motor vehicle under the influence of any intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug;

(2) Any homicide committed by means of a motor vehicle;

(3) Leaving the scene of an accident in which the motor vehicle driven by him was involved and in which there is personal injury, without giving assistance or making known his identity and address and the identity and address of the owner of said vehicle;

(4) Reckless driving involving personal injury;

(5) Any felony in the commission of which a motor vehicle is used; or

(6) A conviction of, or forfeiture of bail or collateral for an offense in any State which, if committed in the District of Columbia, would be one of the offenses listed in paragraphs (1) through (5) of this subsection (a);

shall be suspended by the Commissioner and shall remain so suspended and shall not at any time thereafter be renewed, nor shall any other motor vehicle be thereafter registered in the name of such person as owner, except that (1) if such owner has previously given or shall immediately give and thereafter maintain proof of financial responsibility for the future with respect to all such vehicles registered by such person as the owner, the Commissioner shall not suspend such registration unless otherwise required or permitted by law, or (2) if a conviction arose out of the operation, with permission, of a vehicle owned by or leased to the United States, the District of Columbia, a State, or a political subdivision of a State or a municipality thereof, the Commissioner shall not suspend the registration of any vehicle so owned or leased. If such person be not a resident of the District of Columbia, the privilege of operating any motor vehicle in the District of Columbia and the privilege of operation within the District of Columbia of any motor vehicle owned by him shall be suspended until he shall have furnished proof of financial responsibility for the future with respect to all such vehicles registered by such person as the owner, and such person shall not be allowed a license, nor shall such owner be allowed to register any vehicle in the District of Columbia, until he has complied with the requirements of sections 40-450 to 40-484 to the same extent that would be necessary if, at the time of the conviction or forfeiture, he had held a license or had been the owner of a vehicle registered in the District of Columbia.

(b) Upon receipt of a certification from any State that the operating privilege of a resident of the District of Columbia has been suspended or revoked pursuant to a law providing for such suspension or revocation for a conviction or forfeiture under circumstances which would require the Commissioner to suspend a nonresident's operating privilege had the offense occurred in the District of Columbia, the Commissioner shall suspend the license of such resident and the registration of all vehicles registered in his name. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 130, ch. 222, § 37; Aug. 28, 1958, 72 Stat. 955, Pub. L. 85-792, § 9; Sept. 8, 1960, 74 Stat. 862, Pub. L. 86-730, § 5.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Violations in foreign jurisdictions

Where driver had been convicted in Virginia of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquors and such conviction had been certified to the District of Columbia, and where, as a result of such certification, driver's total points under "point system" of regulation exceeded 12 thereby permitting revocation of driver's operator's permit, Director of Motor Vehicles did not abuse his discretion in allowing points to be assessed for conviction outside District since, if incident had occurred in District of Columbia, it would have meant mandatory revocation of driver's permit without exercise of any discretion by Director, without a hearing and without reference to any point system. Council v. Director of Motor Vehicles, etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 159 A. 2d 874).

§ 40-454. Duration of suspension—Giving and maintenance of proof of financial responsibility.

The suspension or revocation hereinbefore required shall remain in effect and the Commissioner shall not issue to such person any new or renewal of license or register or reregister in the name of such person as owner of any such vehicle until permitted under the motor vehicle laws of the District of Columbia and not then unless and until such person shall give and thereafter maintain proof of financial responsibility for the future. (May 25, 1954, 68 Stat. 131, ch. 222, § 38.)

Atkins* (1942, 128 F. 2d 601, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 15).

§ 40-460. Government vehicles—Exception as to nonpayment of judgment provisions.

Where judgment creditor instituted action against judgment debtor's insurer to recover on judgment, and served the summons and a copy of complaint upon agent of board of commissioners, and insurer had filed power of attorney authorizing agent of board of commissioners to accept service on its behalf thereby enabling its insureds to comply with financial responsibility act specifically providing it was not applicable to accidents occurring prior to its effective date which was subsequent to creditor's accident, even though power of attorney was broader than statutory requirements, when it was considered together with a resolution by insurer directors authorizing same, it could not be construed to apply to creditor's action. *Orban v. (c) OPERATOR'S POLICY.—Such operator's policy of liability insurance shall insure the person named as insured therein against loss from the liability imposed upon him by law for damages arising out of the use by him of any motor vehicle not owned by him, within the same territorial limits and subject to the same limits of liability as are set forth above with respect to an owner's policy of liability insurance.

(d) REQUIRED STATEMENTS IN POLICIES.—Such motor vehicle liability policy shall state the name and address of the named insured, the coverage afforded by the policy, the premium charged therefor, the policy period, and the limits of liability, and shall contain an agreement or be endorsed that insurance is provided thereunder in accordance with the coverage defined in this chapter as respects bodily injury and death or property damage, or both, and is subject to all the provisions of this chapter.

(e) POLICY NEED NOT INSURE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION, ETC.—Such motor-vehicle liability policy need not insure any liability under any workmen's compensation law nor any liability on account of bodily injury to or death of an employee of the insured while engaged in the employment, other than domestic, of the insured, or while engaged in the operation, maintenance, or repair of any such vehicle nor any liability for damage to property owned by, rented to, in charge of, or transported by the insured.

2. The satisfaction by the insured of a judgment for such injury or damage shall not be a condition precedent to the right or duty of the insurance carrier to make payment on account of such injury or damage.

3. The insurance carrier shall have the right to settle any claim covered by the policy, and if such settlement is made in good faith, the amount thereof shall be deductible from the limits of liability specified in subdivision 2 of subsection (b) of this section.

4. The policy, the written application therefor, if any and any rider or endorsement which does not conflict with the provisions of this chapter shall constitute the entire contract between the parties.

(g) EXCESS OR ADDITIONAL COVERAGE.—Any policy which grants the coverage required for a motor-vehicle liability policy may also grant any lawful coverage in excess of or in addition to the coverage specified for a motor-vehicle liability policy and such excess or additional coverage shall not be subject to the provisions of this chapter. With respect to a policy which grants such excess or additional coverage the term "motor-vehicle liability policy" shall apply only to that part of the coverage which is required by this section.

(h) REIMBURSEMENT PROVISION PERMITTED.—Any motor-vehicle liability policy may provide that the insured shall reimburse the insurance carrier for any payment the insurance carrier would not have been obligated to make under the terms of the policy except for the provisions of this chapter.

(i) PRORATION OF INSURANCE PERMITTED.—Any motor-vehicle liability policy may provide for the prorating of the insurance thereunder with other valid and collectible insurance.

(i) All prosecutions for violations of this chapter, excepting section 40-610, and this act or regulations made and promulgated under authority of this chapter shall be in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia upon information filed by the corporation counsel of the District of Columbia or any of his assistants.

(j) In addition to the fees and charges levied under other provisions of this chapter, there is hereby levied and imposed an excise tax for the issuance of every original certificate of title for a motor vehicle or trailer in the District, and for the issuance of every subsequent certificate of title for a motor vehicle or trailer in the District in the case of sale or resale thereof, at the rate of 5 per centum of the fair market value of such motor vehicle or trailer at the time such certificate is issued, as determined by the Assessor of the District of Columbia or his duly authorized representatives. As used in this section, the term "original certificate of title" shall mean the first certificate of title issued by the District of Columbia for any particular motor vehicle or trailer. No certificate of title so issued shall be delivered or furnished to the person entitled thereto until the tax has been paid in full. The Assessor of the District of Columbia may require every applicant for a certificate of title to supply such information as he deems necessary as to the time of purchase, the purchase price, and other information relative to the determination of the fair market value of any motor vehicle or trailer for which a certificate of title is required and issued. The issuance of certificates of title for the following motor vehicles and trailers shall be exempt from the tax imposed by this subsection:

(1) Motor vehicles and trailers owned by the United States or the District of Columbia.

(4) Motor vehicles and trailers owned by a utility or public service company for use in furnishing a commodity or service: Provided, That the receipts from furnishing such commodity or service are subject to a gross-receipts or mileage tax in force in the District of Columbia at the time of a certificate of title for any such vehicle or trailer is issued.

(5) New motor vehicles acquired from dealers as replacements for defective vehicles purchased new not more than sixty days prior to the date of such replacement, except that if the fair market value of any replacement vehicle is greater than that of the vehicle which it replaces, than the tax imposed by this section shall be paid on such difference in value. If the fair market value of any replacement vehicle is less than that of the vehicle which it replaces, then the Commissioner or his designated agent is authorized to refund to the owner of the replacement vehicle an amount equal to the difference between the excise tax paid on the defective vehicle and the excise tax paid on the replacement vehicle.

(k)(1) Any unattended motor vehicle found parked at any time upon any public highway of the District of Columbia against which there are two or more outstanding or otherwise unsettled traffic violation notices or against which there have been issued two or more warrants, may, by or under the direction of an officer or member of the Metropolitan Police force or the United States Park Police force, either by towing or otherwise, be removed or conveyed to and impounded in any place designated by the Commissioner, or immobilized in such manner as to prevent its operation, except that no such vehicle shall be immobilized by any means other than by the use of a device or other mechanism which will cause no damage to such vehicle unless it is moved while such device or mechanism is in place.

(2) It shall be the duty of the officer or member of the police force removing or immobilizing such motor vehicle, or under whose directions such vehicle is removed or immobilized, to inform as soon as practicable the owner of an impounded or immobilized vehicle of the nature and circumstances of the prior unsettled traffic violation notices or warrants, for which or on account of which, such vehicle was impounded or immobilized. In any case involving immobilization of a vehicle pursuant to this subsection, such member or officer shall cause to be placed on such vehicle, in a conspicuous manner, notice sufficient to warn any individual to the effect that such vehicle has been immobilized and that any attempt to move such vehicle might result in damage to such vehicle.

(3) The owner of such impounded or immobilized motor vehicle, or other duly authorized person, shall be permitted to repossess or to secure the release of the vehicle upon the depositing of the collateral required for his appearance in the Superior Court of the District of Columbia to answer for each violation for which there is an outstanding or otherwise unsettled traffic violation notice or warrant. #### SECTION REFERRED TO IN U.S. CODE

This section is referred to in section 40 U.S.C. 71e.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Traffic Act, as amended, delegates to the commissioners authority to make rules and regulations in relation to traffic on the public highways, and to the Director of Parks authority to make regulations in relation to traffic on the roads in the public parks within the District; and to provide for punishment for violations by proceedings in the police court at instance of corporation counsel and to exclude United States Attorney from any prosecutions except provision involving smoke-screen felony. Persham v. United States (1939, 104 F. 2d 249, 70 App. D.C. 116).

Authority to revoke permit

"Flagrant," in the motor vehicle regulations authorizing revocation of operator's permit for operation of vehicle in flagrant disregard or willful disregard for safety of persons or property, emphasizes open or notorious nature of the act but also imports an element of willfulness, and "willfulness" does not necessarily require an intent to do harm, but it does require a conscious indifference to consequences under circumstances likely to cause harm. A. Bohannon v. District of Columbia Department of Motor Vehicles (D.C. App. 1972, 288 A. 2d 672).

Revocation or suspension of driver's license is permitted only in those cases where there is shown to have been a breach of usual and reasonable regulations made concerning control of traffic. Bungardeanu v. England (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 104).

Petitioner's operation of motor vehicle in such manner as to show flagrant disregard for safety of persons and property could be made basis of revocation of petitioner's driver's license even though petitioner had previously been acquitted of traffic charges arising out of same incidents leading to revocation of license. Id.

Point system was designed to facilitate determination of drivers who present such danger to the community at large that they should not be allowed to continue to use public highways, but it is by no means exclusive method which Department of Motor Vehicles may use to suspend or revoke licenses; a person's driver's license may be suspended or revoked where person's driving demonstrates flagrant disregard for safety of persons or property. Id.

Traffic hearing officer did not exceed his authority in revoking operator's permit of a motorist convicted of speeding in a school zone even though under the "point system" used in the District, only three points could be assessed for such violation, since notwithstanding such point system Director of Vehicles and Traffic was authorized to revoke operator's permit when, following lawful hearing, he concluded that motorist drove in such a manner as to show a flagrant disregard for the safety of persons or property. Tillman v. Director of

Vehicles and Traffic of District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 144 A. 2d 922).

Commissioners' discretion

The designation by commissioners of the District of Columbia of intersections for installation of traffic control signals is essentially legislative in character and is result of commissioners' exercise of discretion and judgment, and failure to establish signal at intersection was not such negligence as would make District liable for death of pedestrian who was killed by motor vehicle while crossing street. E. C. Urow, Administratrix etc. v. District of Columbia (1963, 316 F. 2d 351, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 350).

Complaint alleging that negligence of District of Columbia in failing to provide traffic control device at intersection caused death of plaintiff's decedent who was struck by motor vehicle while crossing street did not state claim for relief within exception to general rule of municipal immunity with regard to obligation to keep streets in safe condition after being put on notice of defect. Id.

Constitutionality

This section is not unconstitutional as vesting legislative power and unregulated discretion in administrative officers. La Forest v. Board of Comrs. of District of Columbia (1937, 92 F. 2d 547, 67 App. D. C. 396).

Duplicate certificates

The requirements of this section for registration of a motor vehicle do not apply to duplicate certificates of title, and the oath required for registration is not required for issuance of a duplicate certificate. Shelton v. United States (1948, 165 F. 2d 241, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

Effect on contracts of purchase

Subsection (d) of this section providing that the owner of a motor vehicle shall not operate it upon any public highway in the District of Columbia without first obtaining a certificate of title therefor does not void an otherwise valid contract for purchase of an automobile. Associates Discount Corporation v. Hardesty (1941, 122 F. 2d 18, 74 App. D. C. 44).

Evidence

In view of regulation promulgated by commissioners that proof that automobile operator's urine contained .20 percent of alcohol at time of operation of motor vehicle shall constitute prima facie proof that operator was intoxicated was usual and reasonable regulation concerning revocation of operator's permits and in view thereof result of urinalysis without testimony of expert qualified to interpret result was not wrongfully admitted into evidence and considered by hearing examiner in reaching his decision as to revocation. Bungardeanu v. England (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 104).

Motorist's urine specimen given more than an hour after operation of automobile was given in close enough proximity to events in question to provide accurate indication of alcohol in motorist's system at that time. Id.

Excessive penalties in indigent cases

Where maximum penalty for jaywalking was fine of $300 or imprisonment of 10 days or both and indigent defendant received a sentence of a fine of $150 or 60 days' imprisonment, imprisonment was 50 days in excess of maximum which could have been imposed. C. F. Sawyer v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 238 A. 2d 314).

Where defendant is indigent, sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine which exceeds maximum term of imprisonment which could be imposed under substantive statute as original sentence is an invalid exercise of court's discretion. Id.

Government-owned vehicles

Traffic laws of District govern as to mail trucks over orders of Post Office Department. White v. District of Columbia (1925, 4 F. 2d 163, 55 App. D. C. 197).

Pedestrians' right of way

Under the regulations of this act pedestrians are given the right of way at all crosswalks except at controlled crossings. Griffith v. Slaybaugh (1929, 29 F. 2d 437, 58 App. D. C. 237).

"Pick-up and delivery" of railroads

In a mandamus action brought by a railroad company to compel the Public Utilities Commission to act on the railroad company's petition for designation of a route for alleged "pick-up and delivery service," relief was denied until the railroad company obtained a certificate of convenience and necessity from the Interstate Commerce Commission. United States ex rel. Arlington & F. Auto R. Co. v. Elgen (1938, 98 F. 2d 264, 68 App. D. C. 392).

The question of what constitutes a terminal district is so largely one of fact and so far involves considerations calling for the expert knowledge in technical matters of transportation, that a railroad company seeking by mandamus to require the Public Utilities Commission to designate a route for alleged "pick-up and delivery service" within railroad terminal districts, should pursue its remedy before the Commerce Commission rather than the courts. Id.

Prosecution

By (i) last paragraph Congress intended that all prosecutions for violations of the traffic act, except for the violation of the smoke-screen provision in section eleven should be at the instance of the corporation counsel and in the name of the District of Columbia. District of Columbia v. Moyer (1938, 93 F. 2d 527, 68 App. D. C. 98).

Purpose

Purpose of revocation and suspension proceedings is not punishment of driver but protection of public from those who have demonstrated that their driving presents a hazard to life and property. Bungardeanu v. England (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 104).

Residence

A long-continued physical presence, without more, does not constitute "residence" within meaning of statutory provision exempting from excise tax levied for issuance of every original certificate of title for a motor vehicle or trailer in the District of Columbia those motor vehicles and trailers purchased or acquired by nonresidents prior to coming into the District and establishing or maintaining "residences" in the District. District of Columbia v. Fleming (1954, 217 F. 2d 18, 95 U. S. App. D. C. 4).

Where government employee, who lived at mother's home in District of Columbia, purchased automobile in District and drove it immediately to Connecticut where he had maintained a home for seven years, and left automobile in Connecticut for use of his wife and their two daughters, and he spent every other week end in Connecticut with his family, and it was not until a year later that his wife joined him in District, he was not subject to excise tax in District under statute levying an excise tax for issuance of every original certificate of title for a motor vehicle in District but exempting from tax motor vehicles purchased or acquired by nonresidents prior to coming into District and "establishing" or maintaining "residences" in District. Id.

Sale without certificate of title

The registration regulation requiring that certificate of title be assigned at time ownership of motor vehicle is transferred, and the regulation requiring that a dealer acquire a certificate of origin with a new motor vehicle should be construed consistently with reference to the effect of a failure to assign and deliver required certificate at time of transfer. Fogle v. General Credit (1941, 122 F. 2d 45, 74 App. D. C. 208, 136 A. L. R. 814).

The sale of used automobile by dealer who had possession thereof with authority from finance company to offer it for sale in regular course of business was not void because certificate of title held by finance company was not assigned to buyer by dealer at time of transfer, as required by registration regulations. Id.

The purpose of registration regulation that no dealer shall have any used motor vehicle or trailer in his possession unless he shall have a certificate of title for it issued or assigned to him is apparently to prevent persons holding certificate from giving possession of vehicle to a dealer without also delivering certificate to him. Id.

Suspension of sentence

Where defendant was convicted for violation of a traffic regulation, and execution of sentence was suspended, such suspension must be vacated because such power is derived from the Federal Probation Act, and though under the District of Columbia Probation Act, the court is authorized to suspend execution, clearly the suspension in this case was not and did not purport to be exercised under the authority of the probation law and was beyond the power of the court. Ziegler v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 71 A. 2d 618).

Validity and reasonableness

Traffic and motor vehicle regulation permitting Director of Motor Vehicles to suspend or revoke driver's license on basis of operation of motor vehicle in such manner as to show flagrant disregard for safety of persons or property is not unreasonable or too vague to inform public of prohibited conduct and does not make its enforcement unpredictable. Bungardeanu v. England (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 104).

Regulations prohibiting use of vehicles with solid tires on certain arterial streets were valid and reasonable. Smallwood v. District of Columbia (1927, 17 F. 2d 210, 57 App. D. C. 58).

Regulations prohibiting speed in excess of 15 miles an hour on certain bridges were valid and reasonable. District of Columbia v. Bailey (1927, 18 F. 2d 367, 57 App. D. C. 151).

Regulations which prevent parking of automobiles on certain streets between 2 a. m. and 8 a. m. to enable the snow-removal machinery of the city to function is a reasonable and proper regulation. District of Columbia v. Smith (1938, 93 F. 2d 650, 68 App. D. C. 104).

Validity of amended sentence in absentia

Where defendant had not been present when illegal sentence for traffic violation had been amended and he had not been given right to make statement in his own behalf, he was entitled to have case remanded for resentencing. D. H. Monette v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 2d 875).

Violation as negligence

Violation of an ordinance intended to promote safety is negligence, and if by creating hazard which ordinance was intended to avoid it brings about harm which ordinance was intended to prevent, it is a legal cause of the harm. Ross v. Hartman (1944, 139 F. 2d 14, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 217, 158 A. L. R. 1370, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 790, 321 U. S. 790, 88 L. Ed. 1080).

An ordinance requiring motor vehicles, left unattended in public place, to be locked is a safety measure, and its violation is negligence. Id.

Where truck owner's agent violated traffic ordinance by leaving truck unattended, in a public alley, with ignition unlocked and key in switch, and an unknown person drove truck away and negligently ran over plaintiff, the violation of the ordinance was negligence and constituted the "proximate cause" of the injury rendering owner liable therefor. Id.

Where defendant's driver was negligent in leaving motor vehicle unlocked and such negligence was proximate cause of accident in which plaintiffs were injured, defendant was liable for damages. R. W. Claxton, Inc. v. Schaff (1948, 169 F. 2d 303, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 271, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 168, 335 U. S. 871, 93 L. Ed. 415).

Violation of a traffic regulation constitutes negligence per se. Rogers v. Cox (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 75 A. 2d 776).

§ 40-603-1. Appeal from assessment of excise tax for issuance of motor vehicle title certificates—Election of remedies.

Any person aggrieved by the assessment of any tax imposed by subsection 40-603(j) may, within six months from the date the person entitled to a certificate of title was notified of the amount of such tax, appeal to the Superior Court of the District of Columbia in the same manner and to the same extent as set forth in sections 47-2403, 47-2404, 47-2407, 47-2408, 47-2409, 47-2410 and 47-2411, and as the same may hereafter be amended. (May 27, 1949, 63 Stat. 129, ch. 146, title III, § 303; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, §§ 156(a), 161(d)(2), title I, 84 Stat. 573, 581.)

§ 40-604a. Parking of automobiles in Municipal Center—Regulations—Violations and penalties.

(a) The District of Columbia Council is authorized, in its discretion, to permit such officers and employees of the District of Columbia Government as the Council may select to park motor vehicles in any building or buildings now or hereafter erected upon squares numbered 490, 491, and 533, and reservation numbered 10, in the District of Columbia, known as the Municipal Center, and to make regulations, which the Commissioner shall enforce, for the control of the parking of such vehicles, including the authority to prescribe fees and charges, which the Commissioner shall collect, for the privilege of parking of such vehicles.

(b) The Council is further authorized, in its discretion, to permit the public to park motor vehicles in such portion or portions of squares numbered 490, 491, and 533, and reservation 10, in the District of Columbia, known as the Municipal Center, as may be set apart by the said Council for such purpose, and to make such regulations, which the Commissioner shall enforce, as the Council may deem advisable for the control of parking in such portion or portions of the Municipal Center as the Council may set apart for such purpose, including authority to restrict the privilege of parking therein to persons having business in the Municipal Center, and to make regulations, which the Commissioner shall enforce, to prohibit parking in all portions of the Municipal Center not set apart by the Council for such purpose. The Council is further authorized in its discretion, to prescribe fees and charges, which the Commissioner shall collect, for the privilege of parking motor vehicles in such portion or portions of the Municipal Center as may be set apart for such purpose, and, to aid in the collection of such fees and charges and the enforcement of such regulations, the Commissioner may install mechanical parking meters or devices.

(c) The Council is further authorized to prescribe reasonable penalties of fine not to exceed $25 or imprisonment not to exceed ten days for the violation of any regulation promulgated under the authority of this section. (June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 241, ch. 253, §§ 1, 2, 3.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER AND COUNCIL

Section 402(301, 302, and 303) of Reorg. Plan. No. 3 of 1967, effective November 3, 1967, transferred the regulatory and other functions of the Board of Commissioners under this section in the particulars described in pars. 301, 302 and 303, to the District of Columbia Council, subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of the Plan, set out in the appendix to title 1. Section 401 of the Plan transferred all other functions of the Board of Commissioners under this section to the Commissioner of the District of Columbia.

DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY

Reorganization Order No. 18, dated Oct. 23, 1952, created in the Department of General Administration, District of Columbia, under the direction and control of the Director of General Administration, an "Administrative Services Office". This office was assigned the duties of maintaining records of space allotted to District employees for parking privately owned motor vehicles on District or Federal property, also to review requests for and make recommendations for assignments and execute control of approved assignments.

Reorg. Ord. No. 18 was revoked by Org. Ord. 3, dated Dec. 13, 1967, Part IVA of which continued the Administrative Services Office and the parking functions thereof. The Administrative Services Office and the functions stated in Part IVA of Org. Ord. No. 3 were transferred to the Director of the Department of General Services by Commissioner's Order [Org. Action] No. 69-96, dated Mar. 7, 1969.

The Orders are set out in the appendix to title 1.

§ 40-605. Speeding and reckless driving.

(a) No vehicle shall be operated at a greater rate of speed than permitted by the regulations adopted under the authority of this chapter.

(b) Any person who drives any vehicle upon a highway carelessly and heedlessly in willful or wanton disregard of the rights or safety of others, or without due caution and circumspection and at a speed or in a manner so as to endanger or be likely to endanger any person or property, shall be guilty of reckless driving.

(c) Any individual violating any provision of this section where the offense constitutes reckless driving shall upon conviction for the first offense be fined not more than $250 or imprisoned not more than three months, or both; and upon conviction for the second or any subsequent offense committed within two years from the date of any such previous offense such individual shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

(d) Any individual violating any provision of this section, except where the offense constitutes reckless driving, shall upon conviction thereof be fined not more than $300 or be imprisoned not more than ninety days. (Mar. 3, 1925, 43 Stat. 1123, ch. 443, § 9; July 3, 1926, 44 Stat. 814, ch. 739, § 5; Feb. 27, 1931, 46 Stat. 1427, ch. 317, § 4; June 24, 1936, 49 Stat. 1901, ch. 749; Nov. 25, 1942, 56 Stat. 1023, ch. 642, § 1.)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

In the original, "this chapter", as used in this section, reads "this Act", meaning the above-cited act of March 3, 1925. The provisions of such act still in force are classified to §§ 40-301 to 40-303, 40-601 to 40-603, 40-605, 40-609, 40-610, 40-611, and 40-613 to 40-615.

AMENDMENTS

1942—Act Nov. 25, 1942, amended subsec. (d) of section by deleting provisions making first offense punishable with $25 fine, second offense within one year punishable with $100 fine, and third offense within one year punishable with $300 fine and/or imprisonment not more than ninety days or both.

1936—Act June 24, 1936, raised the upper limits for a first offense to those now provided in this section. The penalties for other offenses provided by this section were originally a fine of from $5 to $25 for a first offense; a fine of from $25 to $100 for a second offense; and a fine of from $100 to $500 and imprisonment of 30 days to one year for subsequent offenses.

1931—Act Feb. 27, 1931, amended paragraph (a) as it now exists, and also changed the definition of reckless driving in paragraph (b). The penalties for reckless driving were originally a fine of $25 to $100 and imprisonment of 10 to 30 days for first offense; and a fine of $100 to $1,000 and imprisonment of 30 days to 1 year for a subsequent offense. The 1931 act removed the lower limits on the fines and imprisonment permitted and included the provision that the subsequent offense must be committed within two years, removed the lower limits on the fines and imprisonments and changed the upper limits on third and subsequent offenses as now provided in this section. The 1931 act also included the provisions that subsequent offenses must be committed within one year of the first offense.

1926—Act July 3, 1926, provided for the regulation of speed in outlying districts.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Arrest

Defendant's arrest by United States Park Police officer for offenses of operating automobile in excess of speed limit and while under influence of intoxicating liquor was invalid where offenses were not committed in presence of or within view of officer. District of Columbia v. Perry (D.C. App. 1965, 215 A. 2d 845).

Collateral estoppel

Since the defendant who had been acquitted on charges of reckless driving, speeding, and driving motor vehicle after his permit had been suspended failed to present defense of collateral estoppel to trial court hearing prosecution for unauthorized use of motor vehicle, the reviewing court would not consider claim. R. Mahoney v. United States (1969, 420 F. 2d 253, 137 U.S. App. D.C. 3).

Evidence

There was substantial evidence to support convictions for driving at unreasonable speed and changing lanes without caution even though jury had found defendant not guilty of driving while intoxicated or recklessly and accordingly fact that trial court chose to believe statements of police officers rather than denials of defendant did not compel reversal of convictions. Swailes v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 100).

Where arresting officer testified that he had paced defendant for about two blocks at a speed varying from thirty-three to thirty-eight miles per hour, it cannot be said that the trial judge was wrong in making a finding of guilt. Seidenberg v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 71 A. 2d 607).

Jury trial

One charged with driving an automobile recklessly, and so as to endanger property and individuals, has a right to a jury trial. District of Columbia v. Colts (1930, 51 S. Ct. 52, 282 U. S. 63, 75 L. Ed. 177).

Regulations of director of traffic

Provisions of this act are not in conflict with regulations of director of traffic, as to speed of vehicles on certain bridges and highways. District of Columbia v. Bailey, (1927, 18 F. 2d 367, 57 App. D. C. 151).

Section 40-603 authorized regulation excluding commercial vehicles equipped with solid tires on certain streets, in view of paragraph (a) of this section and act Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 443, § 14, 43 Stat. 1123, 1125. Smallwood v. District of Columbia (1927, 17 F. 2d 210, 57 App. D. C. 58).

Regulation, excluding commercial vehicles equipped with solid tires from certain streets, was reasonable. Id.

Review

Where fine was imposed for speeding and was within the statutory limitation, appellate court has no right to disturb it. Seidenberg v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 71 A. 2d 607).

Sentence

Probation report detailing prior traffic record of defendant who was found not guilty of driving while intoxicated that defendant having been under influence of liquor when offense took place would appear to have forfeited all right to probation was not shown to have so prejudiced sentencing judge that in effect defendant was sentenced for driving while intoxicated rather than driving at unreasonable speed and changing lanes without caution. Swailes v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 100).

Statute providing that except where offense constitutes reckless driving individual violating speeding statute should be fined not more than $300 or be imprisoned not more than ninety days permitted fine of not more than $300 or not more than ninety days but not both, and sentence of thirty days imprisonment and $150 fine was improper. B. R. Paschal v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1965, 206 A. 2d 402).

Separate offenses

Unreasonable speed and changing lanes without caution were not essential elements of reckless driving but were distinct and separate offenses, and acquittal by jury of charge of reckless driving did not preclude conviction by court on charges of unreasonable speed and of changing lanes without caution and accordingly there was no valid basis for a claim of double jeopardy. Swailes v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 100).

§ 40-606. Negligent homicide.

Any person who, by the operation of any vehicle at an immoderate rate of speed or in a careless, reckless, or negligent manner, but not wilfully or wantonly, shall cause the death of another, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or by a fine of not more than $1,000 or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 802(a), as added June 17, 1935, 49 Stat. 385, ch. 266, and amended June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. L. 91-358, title I, § 160(a) (3), 84 Stat. 578.)

CODIFICATION

This section was not enacted as part of the District of Columbia Traffic Act, 1925, which comprises this chapter.

AMENDMENT

1970—Section 160(a) (3) of Act July 29, 1970, Public Law 91-358 amended section by striking out the second paragraph, relating to duty of coroner.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1970 AMENDMENT

See note preceding section 11-101.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1936, substituted "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia" for "Supreme Court of the District of Columbia."

Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, as amended by act May 24, 1949, substituted "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" for "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia."

"Municipal Court for the District of Columbia" was substituted for "Police Court of the District of Columbia" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the Police Court and the Municipal Court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in sections 40-607, 40-608, 40-609a.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Causal connection

In a prosecution for negligent homicide, causal connection between injuries received in an automobile accident by decedent and his death must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. S. J. Stevens v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 514).

Evidence that decedent who died of a coronary occlusion five weeks after the automobile accident and was debilitated by the injuries sustained in the accident and that it was possible that state of debility precipitated the heart attack was insufficient to establish causal connection between injuries sustained in the accident and death and did not support a conviction for negligent homicide. Id.

Concurring negligence

Where, as a consequence of collision of bus and an automobile, deceased motorist was struck by bus or such automobile, or both, joinder of both bus driver and driver of automobile in the same information in prosecution for statutory negligent homicide was proper, and refusal of separate trials was not an abuse of discretion. Miciotto v. United States (1952, 198 F. 2d 951, 91 U. S. App. D. C. 102.)

Where driver of first automobile collided with bus at intersection, and either the automobile or the bus or both struck second automobile with such force that the driver was thrown from it and killed, bus driver and driver of first automobile would be deemed in prosecution under

Negligent Homicide Statute to have participated in the same act or transaction or in the same series of acts or transactions constituting the offense charged within meaning of rule that two or more defendants may be charged in an information if they are alleged to have participated in the same act or transaction or in the same series of acts or transactions constituting an offense or offenses. Simcic v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A. 2d 98).

If defendant drove bus at an immoderate rate of speed and such act was proximate or direct cause of death of deceased who was riding in another automobile with which the bus collided, defendant was not relieved from guilt of negligent homicide, because negligence of the driver of the automobile concurred in producing the result though acts of other drivers were to be considered so far as they shed light on question of defendant's negligence, but if negligence of other driver was sole cause of decedent's death, defendant was entitled to an acquittal. Prezzi v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 196).

Constitutionality

This section specifies with sufficient certainty the conduct which it is intended to proscribe and punish and hence comes within the requirements of constitutionality. United States v. Henderson (1941, 121 F. 2d 75, 73 App. D.C. 369).

Crime, elements of

In prosecution for negligent homicide based on death caused by motortruck, the "corpus delicti" consisted of the death of a human being by the instrumentality of a motortruck operated at an immoderate rate of speed or in a careless, reckless or negligent manner but not willfully or wantonly. Ercoli v. United States (1943, 131 F. 2d 354, 76 U.S. App. D. 360).

The elements of the corpus delicti of negligent homicide by motor vehicle are the death of a human being, by the instrumentality of a motor vehicle, operated at an immoderate rate of speed or in a careless, reckless, or negligent manner, but not wilfully or wantonly. Solar v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 94 A. 2d 34).

In negligent homicide prosecution against motorist whose automobile entered intersection and struck taxicab which crushed child on curb, corroborating evidence independent of motorist's extrajudicial confessions was sufficiently substantial to establish the element of the corpus delicti that motorist operated his automobile in a careless, reckless or negligent manner in failing to observe and obey stop sign. Id.

Criticism of defense counsel

Unjustified criticizing of defense counsel for being unfair to government witness, taking over examination of four defense witnesses, consuming with two of them considerable time on extraneous matters placing them in bad light, and rebuking defense counsel for unfair questions or tactics and stopping him in course of examination and making belittling or sardonic remarks required new trial on charge of negligent homicide. A. C. Williams v. United States (D.C. App. 1967, 228 A. 2d 846).

Dismissal with prejudice

Absent any notation on record or oral statement by judge in prior prosecution for negligent homicide that he was dismissing case with prejudice, trial court's conclusion in dismissing second case against defendant for negligent homicide that the prior dismissal has been on speedy trial grounds and was intended to be dismissed with prejudice was not warranted. United States v. W. J. Young (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 542).

Double jeopardy

Where defendant as result of one accident was charged with negligent homicide by motor vehicle, an offense against United States, and with violation of traffic regulation making it offense against District of Columbia for operator of motor vehicle to fail to give his full time and attention to operation of vehicle, principle of double jeopardy did not preclude prosecution of defendant on the traffic charge after he had been acquitted of charge of negligent homicide. Randolph v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 156 A 2d 686).

Elements of proof required by government

In a prosecution for negligent homicide, government must prove three elements: (1) death of human being, (2) by instrumentality of motor vehicle, (3) operated at an immoderate rate of speed or in a careless, reckless, or negligent manner, but not wilfully or wantonly. S. J. Stevens v. United States (D.C. App. 1969, 249 A. 2d 514).

Evidence

In prosecution for negligent homicide based on death caused by motortruck, evidence that the motortruck under defendant's control was of tremendous size and weight, that it was being driven on busy city street at speed that made it impossible to stop when defendant first saw pedestrian approximately 25 to 30 feet away, and that automobile in traffic lane to defendant's right obstructed his view of pedestrian until it was too late to stop truck, tended to prove the "corpus delicti", so that defendant's extrajudicial admissions were properly received in evidence. Ercoli v. United States (1943, 131 F. 2d 354, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 360).

In prosecution for negligent homicide, there was sufficient substantial independent evidence to corroborate extrajudicial admissions made by defendant to police officers after accident in which his automobile allegedly collided with pedestrian in crosswalk. Sanderson v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 125 A. 2d 70).

Circumstantial, as well as direct evidence, may supply sufficient corroboration of the corpus delicti in cases of negligent homicide. Solar v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 94 A. 2d 34).

Instructions

In prosecution of bus driver and driver of automobile under the Negligent Homicide Statute, wherein driver of automobile testified that the first thing he knew, he heard a tremendous noise to his left and his automobile was then hit by the bus, driver of automobile was not entitled to instruction on theory of imminent or unexpected danger. Simcic v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A. 2d 98).

In prosecution of bus driver and driver of automobile under the Negligent Homicide Statute, court sufficiently charged with respect to element of causation as to automobile driver, where at outset of instruction court carefully told jury that charge was that defendants operated bus and automobile at an immoderate rate of speed and in such a careless, reckless, and negligent manner as to cause the death of the deceased, and that in order to convict driver of automobile, jury was required first to find that in operation of automobile he violated the law in one of the particulars charged and that such operation was a proximate cause of the death of the deceased. Id.

In prosecution of bus driver and driver of automobile under the Negligent Homicide Statute, court properly refused to give requested instruction of driver of automobile that to justify finding of guilt, jury must find beyond reasonable doubt not only that driver of automobile drove automobile at an immoderate rate of speed or negligently, but also that such immoderate rate of speed or such negligence directly and proximately caused death of deceased, since instruction was an erroneous and incomplete statement. Id.

In prosecution of bus driver and driver of automobile under the Negligent Homicide Statute, instruction that if jury found beyond reasonable doubt that bus driver operated bus in a negligent, careless, or reckless manner or at an immoderate rate of speed, and that such operation by bus driver was cause of collision, and that driver of automobile also operated automobile in negligent, careless, or reckless manner or at immoderate rate of speed and that such operation was also a cause of the collision, and collision was proximate cause of death of deceased, it was duty of jury to find both bus driver and driver of automobile guilty, was not subject to objection that it was confusing and did not properly explain theory of causation. Id.

Refusal of defendant's instructions precluding conviction of negligent homicide unless death of deceased was the proximate result of operation of the bus by defendant was not error in view of instruction by the court on same subject matter though nowhere therein did the court use the expression "proximate cause." Prezzi v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 196).

In prosecution for negligent homicide by driver of bus which collided with automobile in which decedent was riding instructions not to ignore other drivers' action because whether defendant was driving at an immoderate rate of speed depended upon all other circumstances, and that if defendant was driving at such speed, then he was one of the causes of the accident, and that if driver of other automobile also caused the accident would make no difference but that defendant was not responsible for acts of the other drivers, were sufficient. Id.

Judicial comment

In prosecution for negligent homicide by driving a bus at an immoderate rate of speed and colliding with an automobile in which decedent was riding, trial court's comment that in its opinion, and as a matter of common sense, if immoderate speed was established, such speed caused the death, which contradicted or at least materially weakened, previous instruction respecting immoderate speed, and which had a strong tendency to eliminate from the jury, the question whether the acts of the driver of the other automobile were the sole cause of the collision, was reversible error. Prezzi v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 196).

Joint trial

Where driver of first automobile collided with bus at intersection, and either the automobile or the bus or both struck second automobile with such force that the driver was thrown from it and killed, the case was a proper one in which to order a joint trial of bus driver and driver of first automobile for negligent homicide. Simcic v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A. 2d 98).

Res judicata

Judgment of acquittal of defendant charged with negligent homicide, a crime against United States, was not res judicata of charge of failing to give full time and attention to operation of motor vehicle in violation of traffic and motor vehicle regulations of District of Columbia although both charges arose out of same accident. Randolph v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 156 A. 2d 686).

Speedy trial

Defendant who allegedly committed offense on February 16, 1970, was arraigned on October 20, 1970, but sought one-month continuance on December 16, 1971, on which date the government indicated it was ready to go to trial, that was ultimately held on February 9, 1971, after further three-week delay for lack of available judges, was not denied his right to speedy trial. United States v. H. L. Kramer (D.C. App. 1972, 286 A. 2d 856).

Since there was no showing by the defendant that his ability to defend himself had been impaired by virtue of delay between February 16, 1970, date of offense and October 20 arraignment, or between arraignment and February 9, 1971, trial, delay did not violate defendant's right to due process. Id.

Where government took approximately two months to reinstate charge against defendant for negligent homicide after first charge had been dismissed and case did not come for trial, due to delays wholly attributable to government, for seven and one-half months after date of accident and defendant, a taxicab driver, has his license revoked until disposition of charge against him, defendant has been prejudiced by the delay and had been denied speedy trial. United States v. W. J. Young (D.C. App. 1968, 237 A. 2d 542).

§ 40-607. Negligent homicide included in manslaughter where death due to operation of vehicle.

The crime of negligent homicide defined in section 40-606 shall be deemed to be included within every crime of manslaughter charged to have been committed in the operation of any vehicle, and in any case where a defendant is charged with manslaughter committed in the operation of any vehicle, if the jury shall find the defendant not guilty of the crime of manslaughter such jury may, in its discretion, render a verdict of guilty of negligent homicide. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 802 (b), as added June 17, 1935, 49 Stat. 385, ch. 266.)

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 40-608.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence

In prosecution for injuring a person with a motor vehicle and failing to stop and give assistance and report to police, excluding evidence of accused's reputation for tenderness and mercy was not shown to be error where record did not disclose the evidence concerning flight. Morris v. District of Columbia (1942, 124 F. 2d 284, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 82).

In prosecution for injuring a person with a motor vehicle and failing to stop and give assistance and report to police, where accused asked for a subpoena duces tecum requiring production of statements which record implied were obtained by counsel for the person injured, but where there was nothing in the record to show that, at the trial, a foundation was or could have been laid for admitting the statements in evidence, either to impeach their authors or for any other purpose, there was no basis in the record for an inference that the error, if any, in refusing the subpoena was prejudicial. Id.

In prosecution for injuring a person with a motor vehicle and failing to stop and give assistance and report to police, excluding evidence that accused carried $100,000 of liability insurance was not prejudicial error where record did not show what testimony concerning flight there may or may not have been. Id.

§ 40-608. Immoderate speed not dependent on legal rate of speed.

In any prosecution under sections 40-606 or 40-607, whether the defendant was driving at an immoderate rate of speed shall not depend upon the rate of speed fixed by law for operating such vehicle. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 802(c), as added June 17, 1935, 49 Stat. 385, ch. 266.)

CODIFICATION

This section was not enacted as part of the District of Columbia Traffic Act, 1925, which comprises this chapter.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence

This section providing that in any prosecution for negligent homicide whether defendant was driving at an immoderate rate of speed shall not depend upon rate fixed by law for operating the vehicle manifests intent that speed shall be determined as a fact from all surrounding circumstances and this section does not expressly prohibit evidence of speed regulations which are admissible as one of the circumstances for the jury, in determining the question of immoderate speed. Prezzi v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 196).

§ 40-609. Fleeing from scene of accident—Driving under the influence of liquor or drugs.

(a) Any person operating a vehicle, who shall injure any person therewith, or who shall do substantial damage to property therewith and fail to stop and give assistance, together with his name, place of residence, including street and number, and the name and address of the owner of the vehicle so operated, to the person so injured, or to the owner of such property so damaged, or to the operator of such other vehicle, or to any bystander who shall request such information on behalf of the injured person, or, if such owner or operator is not present, then he shall report the information above required to a police station or to any police officer within the District immediately. In all cases of accidents resulting in injury to any person, the operator of the vehicle causing such injury shall also report the same to any police station or police officer within the District immediately.

Any operator whose vehicle causes personal injury to an individual and who fails to conform to the above requirements shall, upon conviction of the first offense, be fined not more than $500, or shall be imprisoned not more than six months, or both; and upon the conviction of his second or subsequent offense, shall be fined not more than $1,000, or shall be imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

Any operator whose vehicle causes substantial damage to any other vehicle or property and fails to conform to the above requirements, shall, upon conviction of the first offense, be fined not more than $100, or be imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both; and for the second or any subsequent offense, be fined not more than $300, or be imprisoned not more than ninety days, or both.

(b) No individual shall, while under the influence of any intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug, operate any vehicle in the District. Any individual violating any provision of this subdivision shall upon conviction for the first offense be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both; and upon conviction for the second or any subsequent offense be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

(c) Any violation of any provision of law or regulation issued thereunder which is repealed or amended by this chapter, and any liability arising under such provisions or regulations may, if the violation occurred or the liability arose prior to such repeal or amendment, be prosecuted to the same extent as if this chapter had not been enacted.

(d) The Commissioner or his designated agent shall revoke the operator's permit or the privilege to drive a motor vehicle in the District of Columbia, or revoke both such permit and privilege, of any person, who is convicted in the District of any of the following offenses:

(1) Operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of any intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug.

(2) Any homicide committed by means of a motor vehicle.

(3) Leaving the scene of an accident in which the motor vehicle driven by him was involved and in which there is bodily injury, without giving assistance or making known his identity and address and the identity and address of the owner of said vehicle.

(4) Reckless driving involving bodily injury.

(5) Any felony in the commission of which a motor vehicle is involved.

(e) Whenever a judgment of conviction of any offense set forth in subsection (d) has become final, the clerk of the court in which the judgment was entered shall certify such conviction to the Commissioner or his designated agent, who shall thereupon take the action required by subsection (d) of this section. A judgment of conviction shall be deemed to have become final for the purposes of this subsection—

(1) if no appeal is taken from the judgment, upon the expiration of the time within which an appeal could have been taken, or

(2) if an appeal is taken from the judgment, the date upon which the judgment, having been sustained, can no longer be appealed from or reviewed on a writ of certiorari.

(Mar. 3, 1925, 43 Stat. 1124, ch. 443, § 10; Feb. 27, 1931, 46 Stat. 1427, ch. 317, § 4; Dec. 15, 1944, 58 Stat. 805, ch. 588; Aug. 16, 1954, 68 Stat. 732, ch. 741, §§ 7, 8.)

AMENDMENTS

1954—Act Aug. 16, 1954, amended section by striking the third sentence from subsection (b) which sentence concerned revocation of an operator's permit upon conviction of a violation of the paragraph, and the manner of certification of a conviction. These matters are covered by new subsections (d) and (e) added to the section by the act.

Subsection (d) adds to the traffic offenses calling for mandatory revocation of an operator's permit homicide committed by an automobile, a person's leaving the scene of an accident involving bodily injury without giving assistance or making his identity or the identity of the vehicle's owner known, reckless driving involving bodily injury, and any felony in the commission of which a motor vehicle is involved.

Subsection (e) requires a court to certify to the Commissioners convictions of the offenses included in subsection (d) just as was previously required on convictions of drunken driving.

1944—Act Dec. 15, 1944, amended section generally by omitting word "motor" preceding "vehicle" whenever appearing in subsection (a), by inserting "involving the operator of a motor vehicle" following "of this paragraph" in subsection (b), and reenacting subsection (c).

1931—Act Feb. 27, 1931, amended section generally. Prior to such amendment, subsection (a) of this section provided for the giving of the information upon striking "any individual or any vehicle" or where the vehicle has been struck by another vehicle and provided only for the giving of information concerning the driver including the registration and operators permit numbers. The act also added all that part of the first paragraph of subsection (a) beginning with "if such owner or operator is not present."

The penalties provided for in subsection (a) were originally, for personal injury, a fine of $100 to $500 and imprisonment of 60 days to 6 months for a first offense, and a fine of $500 to $1,000 and imprisonment of 6 months to 1 year for a subsequent offense. The 1931 act removed the lower limits of fines and imprisonment. The penalties for damage to a vehicle prior to the 1931 amendment were a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment of not more than six months for a first offense and a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment of not more than one year for a subsequent offense.

The penalties provided for in subsection (b) were originally a fine of from $100 to $500 and imprisonment of 60 days to 6 months for a first offense, and a fine of $200 to $1,000 and imprisonment of 6 months to 1 year for a subsequent offense. The 1931 act removed the lower limits of fines and imprisonment and also added the present subsection (c) and included former paragraph (c) as the last sentence in present paragraph (b).

Agreement not to prosecute

The entry of a nolle prosequi, without more, to an information charging operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated, would not warrant a holding that there was an implied agreement by assistant corporation counsel to withdraw information in consideration of a plea of guilty to less serious charge in another information of operating a motor vehicle on wrong side of street. District of Columbia v. Buckley (1942, 128 F. 2d 17, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 301, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 57, 317 U. S. 658, 87 L. Ed. 529).

An agreement between assistant corporation counsel and a defendant for withdrawal of an information, to which a nolle prosequi was entered, charging operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated, in consideration of a plea of guilty to less serious charge in another information of operating a motor vehicle on wrong side of street, would not be binding. Id.

Arrest

Defendant's arrest by United States Park Police officer for offenses of operating automobile in excess of speed limit and while under influence of intoxicating liquor was invalid where offenses were not committed in presence of or within view of officer. District of Columbia v. Perry (D.C. App. 1965, 215 A. 2d 845).

— Without warrant

Where police officer, in early hours of morning, heard a crash and subsequently received certain information from a citizen, he was justified in stopping defendant's automobile and making inquiries and when, after observing defendant, officer believed him to be intoxicated, he was justified in arresting defendant, without warrant, for driving while under influence of intoxicating liquor. Johnson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 119 A. 2d 444).

Constitutionality

Subsection (a) of this section making it an offense for a motorist to leave the scene of an accident, without making his identity known, where he has caused substantial damage to property, is not invalid on ground that it is indefinite because it provides no guide to a motorist for determination of what constitutes substantial damage. Scott v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 55 A. 2d 854).

Evidence

Evidence was ample to support the jury's finding that defendant was operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. R. B. Kelly v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1967, 233 A. 2d 503).

Evidence tending to identify defendant as driver of striking vehicle was insufficient to sustain conviction for colliding with another vehicle and leaving after colliding. J. R. Peterson v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 95).

Conviction for a criminal offense requires more support than a mere possibility that accused was person who committed the crime. Id.

Evidence sustained conviction for driving an automobile while under influence of intoxicating liquor. F. H. Kruse v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 752).

Where two or more inferences can reasonably be deduced from the facts, a reviewing court is without power to substitute its deductions for those of trial court. Id.

In view of fact that District of Columbia sobriety test statute gives a right to refuse the test, accused's refusal to take test was explained and justified, and refusal was not admissible in prosecution for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Stuart v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 157 A. 2d 294).

Evidence sustained conviction of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, where defendant's intoxication was conceded, on the ground that the government's proof was sufficient to establish that defendant operated the vehicle, where the circumstantial evidence in support of the admission by the defendant had the effect of placing him in the driver's position immediately following the accident. McKnight v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1958, 141 A. 2d 922).

Evidence sustained conviction for operating automobile while under influence of intoxicating liquor and making an improper turn resulting in collision against a defendant who contended that he had not drunk but was suffering from kidney trouble, low blood pressure, ulcers and shock brought about by collision and that alleged smell of alcohol was caused by medicine. Idler v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 104).

Evidence warranted conviction for drunken driving and for driving through safety zone. Williams v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 130 A. 2d 596).

In drunken driving prosecution, where government introduced evidence of intoxication and defendant offered medical testimony that his behavior was caused by a blackout and not by intoxication, there was an issue of fact for trier of fact, who was not compelled to give controlling weight to such medical testimony even though no rebutting medical testimony was offered by government. Id.

In prosecution for driving without permit and leaving scene of collision, tried by court, erroneous admission of officer's testimony that persons who witnessed collision identified accused, in his presence, as driver of automobile involved in collision, was not cured by court's recognition of error and statement that such testimony was disregarded, where competent evidence of accused's guilt was far from conclusive. Pennell v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 891).

Testimony as to manner in which defendant's automobile was driven, identification of defendant as driver, and condition of defendant a short time thereafter, as reported by officers, was sufficient evidence, independent of defendant's confession, to support conviction of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. Price v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 142).

In prosecution for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, proof that defendant, while in such condition, collided with another vehicle and left the scene of the collision without stopping, although disclosing two other offenses, was admissible as proof of the offense charged and as merely incidentally proving other offenses. Id.

It was error to exclude testimony of police officers who observed defendant that, in their opinion, defendant was under influence of intoxicating liquor, on ground that an expert may not testify to his conclusion regarding facts from which the jury are capable of drawing their own conclusions. Even though one is not an expert he may give his opinion based on personal observation as to whether a person is intoxicated. Woolard v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 62 A. 2d 640).

Failure to report accident

Admitted failure of defendant to report automobile accident to police station or officer justified conviction, and failure of prosecution to establish other charge that defendant failed to stop, give name and residence would not invalidate verdict or sentence. Carpenter v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 32 A. 2d 251).

In prosecution for drunken driving, admission of records of analysis of specimen of urine taken from defendant who had been legally arrested and was being detained was not an infringement of defendant's rights under U. S. Code Const. Amend. 4 prohibiting unreasonable searches and seizures. Novak v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 88, reversed on other grounds 160 F. 2d 588, 82 U. S. App. D. C. 95).

The taking of specimen of urine from defendant who had been arrested and was being detained for drunken driving and the use in evidence of the analysis of the urine was not violative of defendant's rights under U. S. Code Const. Amend. 5 where specimen was given voluntarily, notwithstanding that police officer who requested specimen was in uniform and did not state that defendant had a right to refuse to give the sample, but did state that "If sample were right it would be to the defendant's benefit." Id.

Failure to stop and give assistance

Fact that defendant stopped and parked her automobile at the nearest available point, when informed of the accident, at a distance not exceeding 150 feet from the point where the collision occurred and furnished all the information, is all that the statute requires. Oden v. District of Columbia (1935, 79 F. 2d 175, 65 App. D. C. 50).

While defendant testified that he intended to return and give the assistance and information required, the jury was at liberty to disbelieve him under the circumstances, and to conclude from his conduct, as testified to by the District's witnesses, that he did not so intend. Seher v. District of Columbia (1938, 95 F. 2d 118, 68 App. D. C. 207).

Former jeopardy

In prosecution for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, police judge erroneously sustained defendant's plea of "autrefois convict" alleging that offense of driving on wrong side of street, in respect of which defendant had pleaded guilty, and offense of driving while intoxicated were the outgrowth of one identical act, since the same evidence would not sustain the two charges. District of Columbia v. Buckley (1942, 128 F. 2d 17, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 301, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 57, 317 U. S. 658, 87 L. Ed. 529).

Hearing

Where it was mandatory on the Commissioners to revoke the defendant's operator's permit when notified of his conviction of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, the defendant was not entitled to a hearing on the matter of revocation and administrative review. Oliver v. Silver (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A. 2d 719).

Instructions

Where there was sufficient evidence independent of defendant's statement to authorize conviction of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and trial court charged on presumption of innocence, burden of proof and reasonable doubt, requested charge that there could be no conviction upon an uncorroborated confession without first proving the corpus delicti was properly refused. Price v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 142).

Proof of damage

In prosecution of motorist for causing substantial property damage and leaving scene of collision without disclosing his identity, evidence disclosed substantial damage to other vehicle even though there was no proof of cost of repairing the other vehicle. Russel, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 118 A. 2d 519).

Purpose

Subsection (a) of this section making it an offense for a motorist to leave the scene of an accident, without making his identity known, where he has caused substantial damage to property, was intended to discourage and punish "hit and run" drivers. Scott v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 55 A. 2d 854).

Questions for jury

In prosecution for drunken driving, the weight to be given to results of analysis of specimen of defendant's urine and the medical testimony on the meaning thereof was for the jury. Novak v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 88, reversed on other grounds 160 F. 2d 588, 82 U. S. App. D. C. 95).

Scope of employment

An assault committed by employee-motorist in course of giving information required by statute after having been involved in automobile accident while about business of employer is within scope of employment, rendering employer liable. R. V. Neary v. The Hertz Corporation, et al. (D.C.D.C. 1964, 231 F. Supp. 480).

Flight of employee-motorist from scene of vehicle collision, involving chase by owner of other vehicle over several miles and over a period of 15 to 30 minutes, did not constitute a turning aside by employee-motorist from business of principal in which he was engaged at time of collision, and, accordingly, assault which he committed upon other motorist who was pursuing him in effort to get identification data required by statute was not an independent trespass, but the employer was liable therefor. Id.

Specimen analysis, proof

In prosecution for driving automobile while intoxicated, the government must prove that urine specimen taken from defendant and the specimen analyzed by chemists and reported on in court were the same and were in substantially the same condition when tested as when taken. Novak v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 88, reversed on other grounds 160 F. 2d 588, 82 U. S. App. D. C. 95).

Where witness for prosecution testified that he made an analysis of defendant's urine, the right of the defendant was properly protected by withdrawing from the jury all consideration of the urine analysis, and the withdrawal of such evidence had the effect of showing the jury that they were to make no inference regarding the test. Woolard v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 62 A. 2d 640).

Substantial damage

In prosecution of motorist for causing substantial property damage and leaving scene of collision without disclosing his identity, evidence established that motorist struck another vehicle. Russel, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 118 A. 2d 519).

Motorist who ran into a parked vehicle, mashing in its rear bumper, damaging trunk and skirt, knocking out speedometer, and driving vehicle up and over sidewalk into lamp post caused "substantial damage" within subsection (a) of this section. Scott v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 55 A. 2d 854).

In prosecution of motorist for leaving scene of accident, without making his identity known, after causing "substantial damage" to property, motorist was not entitled to have the prosecution dismissed because of government's failure to prove cost of repairing damage, where there was evidence that motorist caused substantial damage. Id.

Urine specimen—Admissibility as evidence

Questioning by an officer of a defendant, who was charged with driving while under influence of intoxicating liquor and who was upset and sobbing and who was told that he did not have to take urine test but that if he did not it would be his word against the policeman's, but who was not physically abused, was not conduct which was so outrageous as to require exclusion of results of urine test. J. E. Davis v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 247 A. 2d 417).

Urine specimen is admissible at the trial for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor despite absence of medical supervision at time of taking of test. Id.

Evidence was sufficient to support trial court's finding that defendant charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor voluntarily gave urine specimen admitted at trial though officer had used considerable powers of persuasion to obtain the specimen. Id.

Violations in foreign jurisdictions

Where driver had been convicted in Virginia of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquors and such conviction had been certified to the District of Columbia, and where, as a result of such certification, driver's total points under "point system" of regulation exceeded 12 thereby permitting revocation of driver's operator's permit, Director of Motor Vehicles did not abuse his discretion in allowing points to be assessed for conviction outside District, since, if incident had occurred in District of Columbia, it would have meant mandatory revocation of driver's permit without exercise of any discretion by Director, without a hearing and without reference to any point system. Council v. Director of Motor Vehicles etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 159 A. 2d 874).

§ 40-609a. Operating of vehicles while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and in violation of other laws—Prima facie evidence of intoxication—Relevant evidence of use of intoxicating liquor.

If as a result of the operation of a vehicle, any person is tried in any court of competent jurisdiction within the District of Columbia for (1) operating such vehicle while under the influence of any intoxicating liquor in violation of section 40-609 (2) negligent homicide in violation of section 40-606, or (3) manslaughter committed in the operation of such vehicle in violation of section 22-2405, and in the course of such trial there is received in evidence, based upon a chemical test, competent proof to the effect that at the time of such operation—

(1) defendant's blood contained five one-hundredths of 1 per centum or less, by weight, of alcohol, or that an equivalent quantity of alcohol was contained in two thousand cubic centimeters of his breath (true breath or alveolar air having  $5\frac{1}{2}$  per centum of carbon dioxide), or that defendant's urine contained eight one-hundredths of 1 per centum or less, by weight, of alcohol, such proof shall be deemed prima facie proof that defendant at such time was not under the influence of any intoxicating liquor;

(2) defendant's blood contained more than five one-hundredths of 1 per centum, but less than ten one-hundredths of 1 per centum, by weight, of alcohol, or that an equivalent quantity of alcohol was contained in two thousand cubic centimeters of his breath (true breath or alveolar air having  $5\frac{1}{2}$  per centum of carbon dioxide), or that defendant's urine contained more than six one-hundredths of 1 per centum, but less than eleven one-hundredths of 1 per centum, by weight, of alcohol, such proof shall constitute relevant evidence, but shall not constitute prima facie proof that defendant was or was not at such time under the influence of any intoxicating liquor; and

(3) defendant's blood contained ten one-hundredths of 1 per centum or more, by weight, of alcohol, or that an equivalent quantity of alcohol was contained in two thousand cubic centimeters of his breath (true breath or alveolar air having  $5\frac{1}{2}$  per centum of carbon dioxide), or that defendant's urine contained eleven one-hundredths of 1 per centum or more, by weight, of alcohol, such proof shall constitute prima facie proof that defendant at such time was under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

(Mar. 4, 1958, 72 Stat. 30, 31, Pub. L. 85-338, §§ 1, 2; Oct. 21, 1972, Pub. L. 92-519, § 8, 86 Stat. 1018.)

CODIFICATION

This section was not enacted as part of the District of Columbia Traffic Act, 1925, which comprises this chapter.

AMENDMENT

1972—Section 8 of Act Oct. 21, 1972, Pub. L. 92-519, amended section as follows: (a) by striking out the subsection designation "(a)" at the beginning of the section; (b) by striking out in paragraph (2) "fifteen one-hundredths", "eight one-hundredths", and "twenty one-hundredths", and inserting in lieu thereof "ten one-hundredths", "six one-hundredths", and "eleven one-hundredths", respectively; (c) by striking out in paragraph (3) "fifteen one-hundredths" and "twenty one-hundredths" and inserting in lieu thereof "ten one-hundredths" and "eleven one-hundredths" respectively; and (d) by striking out subsections (b), (c), (d), and (e). For provisions of section prior to this amendment, see 1967 ed. of the Code.

CROSS REFERENCE

Implied consent to chemical tests of blood, breath, or urine to determine blood alcohol content, see § 40-1001 et seq.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Refusal to take test

In view of fact that District of Columbia sobriety test statute gives a right to refuse the test, accused's, refusal to take test was explained and justified, and refusal was not admissible in prosecution for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Stuart v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 157 A. 2d 294).

Rule of evidence in administrative proceedings

Statute providing that, in prosecutions for operating motor vehicle while under influence of intoxicating liquor, result of chemical analysis of blood, urine or breath may be prima facie proof that defendant was under influence of intoxicating liquor has no application to administrative proceeding. H. E. Lister v. G. A. England etc. (D.C. App. 1963, 195 A. 2d 260.)

Result of chemical analysis of blood, urine or breath cannot be received in evidence in hearing before Department of Motor Vehicles to determine whether privilege to operate motor vehicle shall be revoked unless accompanied by expert testimony of witness qualified to interpret the result. Id.

Finding of hearing officer, who, in hearing to determine whether privilege to operate motor vehicle should be revoked, attempted to apply statutory standard for determining intoxication on basis of urinalysis without expert testimony of witness qualified to interpret result could not stand. Id.

Urine specimen—Admissibility as evidence

Questioning by an officer of a defendant, who was charged with driving while under influence of intoxicating liquor and who was upset and sobbing and who was told that he did not have to take urine test but that if he did not it would be his word against the policeman's, but who was not physically abused, was not conduct which was so outrageous as to require exclusion of results of urine test. J. E. Davis v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1968, 247 A. 2d 417).

Urine specimen is admissible at the trial for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor despite absence of medical supervision at time of taking of test. Id.

§ 40-610. Smoke screens.

(a) No individual shall knowingly—

(1) Have in his possession any device designed to cause the emission from a motor vehicle of a dense mass of smoke commonly called a smoke screen;

(2) Use or permit the use of any such device in the operation of any motor vehicle; or

(3) Have in his possession or control any motor vehicle equipped with any such device or specially fitted for the attachment thereto of any such device.

(b) Any individual violating any provision of this section shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term of not less than one year nor more than five years. (Mar. 3, 1925, 43 Stat. 1124, ch. 443, § 11.)

United States* (1939, 104 F. 2d 249, 70 App. D.C. 116).

§ 40-611. Reporting by garage keeper of cars damaged in accidents.

The individual in charge of any garage or repair shop to which is brought any motor vehicle which shows evidence of having been involved in an accident or struck by bullets shall report to a police station within 24 hours after such motor vehicle is received, giving the make of the motor vehicle, the engine number, the registry number, and the name and address of the owner or operator of such motor vehicle. Any such individual failing so to report shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than $25 nor more than $100 for each offense. (Mar. 3, 1925, 43 Stat. 1125, ch. 443, § 12.)

Bus tours on Capitol Mall

A certificate of convenience and necessity is not required of a concessionaire under contract with Secretary of Interior to conduct bus tours of Capitol Mall from Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission. Universal Interpretive Shuttle Corporation v. Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Commission et al. (1968, 89 S. Ct. 354, 393 U.S. 186; rev'g 390 F. 2d 474).

Transit system's franchise did not give it absolute monopoly of sightseeing service on Capitol Mall and it does not protect system against competition from concessionaire acting under contract with Secretary of Interior. Id.

Hotels

This section does not apply to a taxicab stationed near a hotel which was for the exclusive use of the hotel and its guests, as the cab was under jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission and not of the District Commissioners. Bell v. District of Columbia (1921, 273 F. 315, 50 App. D. C. 351). See, also, Parker v. District of Columbia (1921, 273 F. 320, 50 App. D. C. 356).

Police regulations

This section supersedes police regulation, art. 4, § 8, adopted April 1918. Willis v. District of Columbia (1924, 295 F. 1012, 54 App. D. C. 191).

Public street

As the space upon which the cab was standing at the time of the arrest of its driver is stipulated to have been the private property of the Washington Terminal Company, by whose authority and permission he was there, it follows that he was not then upon any public street or avenue, and consequently his presence there did not fall within the purview of an act directed against the improper use of public streets and avenues. Reamy v. District of Columbia (1921, 273 F. 323, 50 App. D. C. 359).

Recording

Where automobile dealer had a "floor plan" arrangement by which plaintiff would advance funds to dealer for purchase of automobiles and would take back chattel mortgages, and dealer had arrangement whereby finance company would purchase the conditional sales contracts executed by buyers of automobiles, and the buyer of an automobile gave conditional sales contract which was assigned to finance company but company never received title certificate because dealer had financial difficulties and never repaid plaintiff, plaintiff was estopped from asserting lien against buyer who had no actual knowledge of plaintiff's recorded chattel mortgage lien, and the buyer, not being in default, was entitled to use and enjoyment of automobile, and finance company was entitled to have its lien recorded on certificate of title. Smith, Kirkpatrick & Co., Inc. v. Continental Autos, Ltd., et al. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 184 F. Supp. 764).

A contract, made in District of Columbia, for conditional sale of automobile to resident of Maryland, wherein he used and retained automobile, was not required to be recorded in such District, but was properly recorded in Maryland, law of which requires recordation of such contract where vendee resides. In re Burton (D.C.D.C. 1954, 120 F. Supp. 148).

§ 40-703. Entry of lien—Priority.

In the absence of agreement of all parties affected and in the absence of circumstances estopping a lienholder from insisting upon such rights, lien shall be entered on the certificate by the recorder and shall have priority among themselves in the following order:

(a) If the motor vehicle or trailer has been previously titled or registered in this or some other jurisdiction, unsatisfied liens shown by the previous certificate, title, registry, or proof of ownership shall be entered in the order in which they appear on such previous certificate, title, registry, or proof of ownership.

(b) Liens for which instruments are presented with the application for the certificate.

(c) Liens, where the instruments are presented for recording, together with the certificate, irrespective of the fact that one or more instruments not entered on the certificate may have been previously presented for recording without such certificate.

(d) As between two or more instruments presented for recording without the certificate, the one first presented for recording shall have priority. (July 2, 1940, 54 Stat. 737, ch. 527, § 3.)

Upon the satisfaction of any lien other than the first unsatisfied lien shown on the certificate, the record holder of the lien so satisfied shall, within seventy-two hours, make similar entries upon the face of the certificate, and it shall be the duty of the person in possession of the certificate, upon demand, to permit such holder to make said entries. Any person in possession of a certificate shall, upon demand of the recorder, surrender it to the recorder within seventy-two hours for the purpose of entering the lien or assignment thereon. (July 2, 1940, 54 Stat. 739, ch. 527, § 14.)

In general

Where counts charging perjury were merged and it could not be determined upon which false statement in application for certificate of title the jury rested its general verdict, but verdict if upon statement as to liens would not support sentence, judgment of conviction was subject to reversal. Shelton v. United States (1948, 165 F. 2d 241, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

Duplicate certificates

Section 706 of this title and this section relating to certificates of title apply to duplicate as well as original certificates. Shelton v. United States (1948, 165 F. 2d 241, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

Number of offenses

One making two false statements, one violating the general perjury statute, § 22-2501, and the other violating this section, commits two offenses, though both statements are under one oath. Shelton v. United States (1948, 165 F. 2d 241, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

Prosecution by corporation counsel

The making of false statement of lien under oath in application for certificate or duplicate certificate of title for motor vehicle in the District of Columbia must be prosecuted by corporation counsel in the name of the District of Columbia, under this section, rather than by the United States attorney in the name of the United States under the general perjury statute, § 22-2501. Shelton v. United States (1948, 165 F. 2d 241, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

§ 40-715. Appropriation.

Appropriation is hereby authorized to be made to carry out the provisions of this chapter, and the Commissioner of the District of Columbia is authorized to include in his annual estimates provision for all the expenses of the office of the director and recorder incident to such purposes, and for personnel subject to the limitations of chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]. (July 2, 1940, 54 Stat. 740, ch. 527, § 15; Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 972, ch. 782, title XI, § 1106(a).)

CODIFICATION

The reference in this section to "chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]" was substituted for "the Classification Act of 1949", on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, set out in note under § 1-251. The Classification Act of 1949, as amended (Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 954, ch. 782, as amended), was repealed by act Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a) (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law), and is now covered by the provisions of title 5, U.S.C., cited.

AMENDMENT

1949—Act Oct. 28, 1949, § 1106(a), which was a part of the "Classification Act of 1949" for "Classification Act of 1923". See codification note above.

§ 40-802. Findings and declaration of necessity.

It is hereby declared that the free circulation of traffic of all kinds through the highways of the District is necessary to the health, safety, and general welfare of the public, whether residing in said District, or traveling to, through, or from said District in the course of lawful pursuits; that in recent years the greatly increased use by the public of motor vehicles of all kinds has caused serious traffic congestion on the highways of the District; that the parking of motor vehicles on the highways of the District has contributed to this congestion to such an extent as to interfere seriously with the primary use of such highways for the movement of traffic; that such parking prevents the free circulation of traffic in, through, and from said District impedes rapid and effective fighting of fires and the disposition of police forces in the District, threatens irreparable loss in valuations of property in the District, which can no longer be readily reached by vehicular traffic, and endangers the health, safety, and welfare of the general public; that this parking nuisance can be reduced by providing sufficient off-street parking facilities conveniently located in the several residential, commercial, industrial, and governmental areas of the District; that adequate off-street parking facilities have not been provided by private enterprise; that it may be necessary to supplement private parking spaces by off-street parking facilities provided by public undertaking; and that the enactment of this chapter, as well as the use of land for the purposes set forth in this chapter, is hereby declared to be a public necessity. (Feb. 16, 1942, 56 Stat. 90, ch. 76, § 1.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

§ 40-804. Powers—Acquisition of property—Construction and maintenance—Leasing to private interests—Disposal of property—Establishment of rates—Miscellaneous rules and regulations—Parking meters.

The Commissioner, and the District of Columbia Council to the extent provided by paragraphs (306) and (307) of section 402 of Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1967, within the limits of appropriations by Congress therefor, are authorized to exercise all powers necessary and convenient to carry out the purposes of this chapter, the said purposes being hereby declared to be the acquisition, creation, and operation, in any manner hereinafter provided, under public regulation, of public off-street parking facilities in the District as a necessary incident to insuring in the public interest the free circulation of traffic in and through said District. Such powers shall include, but shall not be limited to, the powers hereinafter enumerated:

(a) The power to acquire any property, real or personal, or any interest therein, by purchase, lease, gift, bequest, devise, or grant, or by condemnation under the provisions of chapter 13 of title 16 in any area of the District as to which the agency shall have made a determination that public parking facilities are necessary or expedient. Before acquiring any area for parking facilities the Commissioner shall request the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for its recommendations and it shall be the duty of said Commission to report thereon within thirty days of such request.

(b) The power to undertake, by contract or otherwise, the clearance and improvement of any such property as well as the construction, establishment, reconstruction, alteration, repair, maintenance, and operation thereon of parking facilities; to contract, by lease or otherwise, with competitive bidding, with any individual, firm, association, or corporation, private or public, for the operation of any parking facilities for such period, not exceeding five years, as the Commissioner shall determine, and to terminate, without prior notice, any contract in the event of any failure or omission of any party thereto to observe or enforce the rules or schedules of rates made under authority of paragraph (d) of this section. The words "such property" in this paragraph shall include, in addition to property acquired under this chapter, any other property, heretofore or hereafter acquired by the District, until needed for the purpose for which it was acquired, or if no longer needed for the purpose for which it was acquired, or upon which parking facilities may be established without impairing its use for the purpose for which it was acquired: Provided, That in each case the agency shall have made a determination that parking facilities thereon are necessary or expedient. Before establishing any parking facilities upon the property not acquired under authority of this chapter, the Commissioner shall request the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for its recommendations and it shall be the duty of said Commission to report thereon within thirty days of such request.

(c) The power to sell, exchange, transfer, or assign any property, real or personal, or any interest therein, acquired under authority of this chapter, whether or not improved: Provided, That such action shall be in accordance with the general law covering the disposal of such property by the District of Columbia: Provided further, That the agency shall have first determined such property to be no longer necessary for the purposes of this chapter.

(d) The power to establish and from time to time to revise, with or without public hearings, uniform schedules of rates to be charged for use of space in each such parking facility; to provide rate differentials between said parking facilities for such reasons as the amount of space occupied, the location of the facility, and other reasonable differences; and to prescribe and promulgate such rules and regulations for the carrying out of the provisions of this chapter as may be necessary to keep said parking facilities subject at all times to public regulation, and to insure the maintenance and operation of such parking facilities in a clean and orderly manner and in such a manner as to provide efficient and adequate service to the public. The rates to be charged for parking of motor vehicles within said parking facilities shall be fixed at the lowest possible rates, consistent with the achievement of the purposes of this chapter, that will defray the cost of maintaining, operating, and administering the parking facilities; liquidate within such time as the Council shall determine the cost of acquiring and improving the required property for parking-facility purposes; and provide for the acquisition and improvement of other necessary parking facilities, but without any purpose of obtaining for the District any profit or surplus revenue from the operation of said parking facilities. There shall be no discrimination in rates or privileges among the members of the public using said parking facilities.

(e) The power to secure and install mechanical parking meters or parking devices on the streets, avenues, roads, highways, and other public spaces in the District under the jurisdiction and control of the said Commissioner, in addition to those mechanical parking meters and devices installed pursuant to the authority conferred on the said Commissioner by section 40-616, such meters or devices to be located at such points as the Commissioner may determine, and the said Council is authorized and empowered to make and, the Commissioner to enforce, rules and regulations for the control of parking of vehicles on such streets, avenues, roads, highways, and other public spaces, and as an aid to such regulation and control of the parking of vehicles the Council may prescribe fees for the parking of vehicles where meters or devices are installed.

(f) The power to lease on competitive bids for terms not exceeding fifty years, any property acquired pursuant to this chapter, or any other property heretofore or hereafter acquired by the District if no longer needed for the purpose for which it was acquired, and to stipulate in any such lease that the lessee shall erect at his or its expense a structure or structures on the land leased, which structure or structures and property shall be used, maintained, and operated for the purposes of this chapter, including purposes incidental thereto, subject to regulation as provided in paragraph (d) of this section, except that the rates for use of space in parking facilities covered by any such lease shall be fixed and regulated by the Council so as to allow to the lessee a fair return, as fixed by the Commissioner, on the cost of such structure or structures, together with an amount sufficient to amortize within the term of any such lease the cost of such structure or structures. Every such lease shall be entered into upon such terms and conditions as the Commissioner shall impose including, but not limited to, requirements that such structure or structures shall conform with plans and specifications approved by the Commissioner, that such structure or structures shall become the property of the District upon termination or expiration of any such lease; that the lessee shall furnish security in the form of a penal bond or otherwise to guarantee fulfillment of his or its obligations, and any other requirement which, in the judgment of the Commissioner, shall be related to the accomplishment of the purposes of this chapter.

(g) The power to use moneys in the fund established by section 40-808 for the purpose of widening or channelizing streets or making other street improvements to correct or improve traffic conditions in the vicinity of off-street parking facilities, and to correct traffic conditions resulting from a lack or shortage of parking facilities. (Feb. 16, 1942, 56 Stat. 91, ch. 76, § 3; Dec. 16, 1944, 58 Stat. 808, ch. 595, § 1; June 19, 1948, 62 Stat. 565, ch. 559; Aug. 20, 1958, 72 Stat. 686, Pub. L. 85-692, § 1; July 29, 1970, Pub. (f), reference to "Council" has been substituted for "Commissioners" in the clause "except that the rates for use of space in parking facilities covered by any such lease shall be fixed and regulated by the . . . so as to allow to the lessee a fair return" to reflect the provisions of subsec. (d) and § 402(306) of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, under which the rates are fixed by the Council.

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 40-805.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Appellant's contention, that, by placing the sign upon the meters the District is estopped to urge that Saturday afternoon is not a holiday within the meaning of the traffic regulation, is unfounded since the principle of estoppel generally does not apply to a city or a state when acting in its governmental capacity. Doing v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 67 A. 2d 396).

Parking regulations

Where appellant was convicted for illegal parking on Saturday afternoon and controversy arose by reason of fact that parking meter bore sign limiting parking to one hour, except on Sundays and holidays, his contention that Saturday afternoon was a legal holiday is without merit because Saturday is not a holiday under the statute or regulations issued thereunder. Doing v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 67 A. 2d 396).

Presumption

The presumption that everyone is presumed to know the law applies to traffic regulations just as it does to statutes. Doing v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 67 A. 2d 396).

§ 40-805. Motor-Vehicle Parking Agency—Creation and composition—Term—Powers.

There is hereby created a motor-vehicle parking agency consisting of seven members, namely, a representative of the Federal Works Agency, to be designated by the Administrator thereof; a representative of the National Park Service, to be designated by the Secretary of the Interior; a representative of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic of the District, to be designated by the Commissioner, and four other members, each of whom shall have been a bona fide resident of the District for at least three years immediately preceding his appointment, to be appointed by the Commissioner, without regard to race or creed. The Secretary of the Interior, the Federal Works Administrator, and the Commissioner may from time to time, in his discretion, change their respective designates in office, and they shall name new designates to fill any vacancies caused by the death, resignation, or other inability to serve of their respective designates in office. The terms of the other four members of the agency shall be four years each, except that in the case of the initial appointments, one shall be for a term of one year, one for a term of two years, and one for a term of three years. In the case of any vacancy in the position of the members appointed for definite terms the same shall be filled for the remainder of the term. The said agency shall perform the duties imposed upon it by this chapter and such other duties as the Commissioner may assign to it. The Commissioner is authorized to delegate to the agency any or all of the powers vested in the said Commissioner by this chapter, except the powers set forth in paragraphs lettered (a) and (c) in section 40-804. The Commissioner is also authorized to delegate to the agency any or all of the powers vested in said Commissioner by subsections (a) and (b) of section 40-604a. (Feb. 16, 1942, 56 Stat. 92, ch. 76, § 4, Dec. 16, 1944, 58 Stat. 808, ch. 595, § 2.)

AMENDMENT

1944—Act Dec. 16, 1944, amended section by adding last sentence.

ABOLITION OF AGENCY AND TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

The Motor Vehicle Parking Agency was abolished and the functions thereof transferred to the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia by Reorg. Plan No. 5 of 1952. The executive functions of the Board of Commissioners were transferred to the Commissioner of the District of Columbia by § 401 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967. The Agency was reestablished by Reorganization Order No. 54, dated June 30, 1953, and continued by Organization Order No. 106, dated May 17, 1955. The Plans and the Orders are set out in the Appendix to title 1, Administration.

ABOLITION OF FEDERAL WORKS AGENCY

The Federal Works Agency and the office of Federal Works Administrator were abolished and the functions thereof transferred to the Administrator of General Services by Act June 30, 1949, § 103, 63 Stat. 380 (40 U.S.C. 753). Certain functions of the Federal Works Administrator with respect to public roads were transferred to the Secretary of Commerce by Reorganization Plan No. 7 of 1949, and subsequently transferred to the Secretary of Transportation, see 49 U.S.C. 1655.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 40-804.

§ 40-809. Appropriations—Employment of director—Salaries of employees—Salaries of members of agency.

The Commissioner shall include in his annual budget such amounts as may be required from the highway fund established in section 47-1901, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this chapter. The Commissioner is authorized to employ a director and such other personal services as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this chapter, and the salaries of such employees, other than members of said agency, are to be fixed in accordance with the provisions of chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]. The Commissioner shall fix the compensation of the members of said agency without reference to the provisions of the Classification Act of 1923: Provided, however, That the compensation of any members shall not exceed $500 per annum: And provided further, That no compensation for services as a member of such agency shall be provided for any member who holds a salaried public office or position, in the District of Columbia or the Federal Government. (Feb. 16, 1942, 56 Stat. 93, ch. 76, § 8; Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 992, ch. 782, title XI, § 1106(a); Mar. 2, 1962, 76 Stat. 18, Pub. L. 87-408, § 602.)

CODIFICATION

The reference in this section to "chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, U.S. Code, relating to the classification of government employees and related matters" was substituted for "the Classification Act of 1949 as amended" on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. L. 89-554, set out in note under § 1-251. The Classification Act of 1949, as amended (Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 954, ch. 782, as amended), was repealed by act Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 89-554, § 8(a) (of which § 1 revised and enacted title 5, U.S.C., into law), and is now covered by the provisions of title 5, U.S.C., cited.

The exception from the "Classification Act of 1923" is obsolete. Sections 1202 and 1204 of the Classification Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 972, 973) repealed the 1923 Act and all laws or parts of laws inconsistent with the 1949 Act. While § 1106(a) of the 1949 Act provided that references in other laws to the 1923 Act should be held and considered to mean the 1949 Act, it did not have the effect of continuing the exception contained in this section because of § 1106(b) that provided that the application of the 1949 Act to any position, officer, or employee shall not be affected by § 1106(a). Section 5102 of title 5, U.S.C., now contains the applicability provisions of the 1949 Act.

AMENDMENTS

1962—Act Mar. 2, 1962, amended first sentence of section generally.

1949—Act Oct. 28, 1949, § 1106(a), which was a part of the "Classification Act of 1949" for "Classification Act of 1923". See codification note above.

For transfer of functions with respect to budgetary matters, see § 403 of Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1967, eff. Nov. 3, 1967, set out in the Appendix to title 1.

§ 40-809a. Acquisition of new parking facilities prohibited—Operation and expansion of existing facilities—Exempt facilities.

Notwithstanding any provision of this chapter, no real property shall be acquired under the authority of this chapter for use as a parking facility on or after March 2, 1962, and the Commissioner and the agency are authorized to operate and maintain only those parking facilities which have been established prior to March 2, 1962. No such existing parking facility shall be expanded or otherwise altered except to the extent as may be necessary to permit its continued operation in the same manner as it was being operated immediately before March 2, 1962. This section shall not apply to (1) any parking facility which is limited to use by officers and employees of the Governments of the United States or of the District of Columbia by reason of their employment by any such Government, (2) any fringe parking facility, and (3) any parking facility located on property of the District of Columbia beneath any elevated portion of a public highway. (Feb. 16, 1942, 56 Stat. 93, ch. 76, § 10, as added Mar. 2, 1962, 76 Stat. 19, Pub. L. 87-408, § 603.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS TO COMMISSIONER

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Liability for impounding and ticketing vehicles

Complaint alleging that, though plaintiff had obtained from his landlord equal and coextensive parking privileges in allegedly private alley adjoining business premises involved with a defendant, such defendant had engaged in wrongful or illegal action against plaintiff's parking, resulting in ticketing and impounding of his automobile, was sufficient as against such defendant. J. C. Gager v. "Bob Seidel" etc. (1962, 300 F. 2d 727, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 135).

Record as a whole disclosed that plaintiff suing police officers and others for damages resulting from alleged conspiracy with respect to ticketing and impounding his automobile which he repeatedly parked in what he alleged was a private alley failed to state cause against police officers. Id.

(3) "Finance charge" means the total amount to be added to the principal balance to determine the balance of the buyer's indebtedness to be paid under a retail installment contract.

(4) "Governmental charges" means the excise tax, personal property tax, inspection fee, registration fee, recording fee, and such other fees charged by any government, or otherwise authorized by law, incident to the transfer of title to a motor vehicle as the District of Columbia Council may by regulation include within such term.

(5) "Instrument of security" means any promissory note, retail installment contract, or other written promise to pay the unpaid balance of the total amount to be paid by a retail buyer of a motor vehicle.

(6) "Motor vehicle" means any automobile, mobile home, motorcycle, truck, truck tractor, trailer, semitrailer, or bus, but shall not include any boat trailer or any vehicle propelled or drawn exclusively by muscular power or designed to run only on rails or tracks.

(8) "Principal balance" means the cash sale price of a motor vehicle, including accessories and equipment, plus the amounts, if any, included in the retail installment contract, if separate identified charges are stated therein, for insurance and governmental charges, less the amount of the purchaser's downpayment, if any, in money or goods or both.

(9) "Retail installment contract" means a contract entered into in the District or entered into by a seller licensed or required to be licensed by the District evidencing a retail installment transaction pursuant to which the title to or a lien on, or security or a security interest in, the motor vehicle, which is the subject matter of the transaction, is retained or taken to secure, in whole or in part, the retail buyer's obligations. The term includes a security agreement, chattel mortgage, conditional sale contract and a contract in the form of a bailment or a lease if the bailee or lessee contracts to pay as compensation for use a sum substantially equivalent to or in excess of the value of the motor vehicle sold and it is agreed that the bailee or lessee is bound to become, or, for no further or a merely nominal consideration, has the option of becoming, the owner of the motor vehicle upon full compliance with the terms of the bailment or lease.

(10) "Retail installment transaction" means any transaction in which a retail buyer purchases a motor vehicle for a price in excess of the cash sale price and agrees to pay part or all of such price in one or more deferred installments.

(11) "Security interest" and "secured party" have the same meanings as those given to the terms in sections 28:1-201 and 28:9-105(i). (Apr. 22, 1960, 74 Stat. 69, Pub. L. 86-431, § 1; Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 771, Pub. L. 88-243, § 9.)

subject to the right of the Commissioner as provided by section 406 of the Plan. For provisions establishing the District of Columbia Council, see section 201 of the Plan, set out in the appendix to title 1.

CROSS REFERENCE

Applicability of provisions of this chapter to transactions under article 9 of subtitle I, title 28, see § 28:9-203.

§ 40-902. Maximum finance charges—Computation—Proportionate adjustments—Investigation of economic conditions to determine finance charges—Regulations—Classification of parties—Waiver.

(a) Notwithstanding the provisions of any instrument of security, refinancing contract, or other instrument to the contrary, made or entered into on or after the effective date of this chapter, no person shall charge, contract for, receive, or collect a finance charge if such charge exceeds the larger of $25 or an amount determined under the following schedule:

Class 1. Any new domestic motor vehicle designated by the manufacturer by a year model not earlier than the year in which the sale is made and any new foreign motor vehicle—$8 per $100 per year.

Class 2. Any new domestic motor vehicle not in class 1 and any used domestic motor vehicle designated by the manufacturer by a year model of the same or not more than two years prior to the year in which the sale is made and used foreign motor vehicle not more than two years old—$11 per $100 per year.

Class 3. Any used motor vehicle not in class 2, and, if a domestic motor vehicle, designated by the manufacturer by a year model not more than four years prior to the year in which the sale is made, and, if a foreign motor vehicle, not more than four years old—$14 per $100 per year.

Class 4. Any used motor vehicle not in class 2 or class 3—$16 per $100 per year.

(b) The finance charge authorized by the preceding subsection shall be computed on the principal balance payable for a motor vehicle from the date of the instrument or contract until the maturity of the final installment, notwithstanding that the balance thereof is required to be paid in installments.

(c) For a period less or greater than twelve months or for amounts less or greater than $100, the amount of the maximum charge set forth in the foregoing schedule shall be decreased or increased proportionately.

(d) The Commissioner shall from time to time investigate the economic conditions and other factors relating to and affecting finance charges, and shall ascertain all pertinent facts necessary to determine what maximum charges should be permitted in such transactions. Upon the basis of such ascertained facts, the District of Columbia Council, notwithstanding the provisions of the preceding subsections, shall from time to time by regulation or order determine and fix the maximum finance charges sufficiently high to result in a fair return on investment to persons engaged in the business of financing retail installment transactions, but not so high as to constitute an unreasonable economic burden on the purchasers of motor vehicles under retail installment contracts. The Council may from time to time, upon the basis of changed conditions or facts, redetermine and refix any such maximum finance charge, but, before determining or redetermining any such maximum charge, the Council shall give reasonable notice of its intention to consider doing so, and provide a reasonable opportunity to persons desiring to be heard with respect to any such proposed determination or redetermination. Notice of the action proposed by the Council shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in one or more of the daily newspapers published in the District. Any such changed maximum finance charge shall not affect any pre-existing instrument of security lawfully entered into between the seller and the purchaser of any motor vehicle.

(e) (1) The Council is hereby authorized to make, and the Commissioner is authorized to enforce, such regulations as the Council in its discretion deems appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section and to prevent unconscionable practices in connection with retail installment transactions, including, without limitation, provisions:

(i) governing the form and substance of instruments of security;

(ii) requiring that installment payments under instruments of security be made in substantially equal amounts and at regular intervals except (1) that the interval for the first installment payment may be longer than the other intervals; (2) that the final installment payment may be less in amount than the preceding installment payments; (3) that where a buyer's livelihood is dependent upon seasonal or intermittent income, one or more installment payments in the schedule of payments included in any such instrument of security may be reduced or omitted; and (4) that any contract covering a new motor vehicle to be used primarily as a demonstrator sold to a bona fide motor-vehicle salesman employed by the seller shall be exempt from the requirement that installment payments be in substantially equal amounts;

(iii) requiring that amounts due under instruments of security may be prepaid in full and that the unearned charges, whether for finance, insurance, or for other purposes, attributable to or resulting from such prepayments shall be refunded or credited;

(iv) establishing maximum delinquency, collection, repossession and other charges;

(v) specifying the types and maximum amounts of insurance which may be required, at the expense of the retail buyer, to protect from loss the seller in a retail installment transaction or his assignee or any other person entitled to payments from a retail buyer under an instrument of security;

(vi) respecting the manner and methods of the sale or disposition of repossessed motor vehicles under such conditions, including, without limitation, rights of redemption, as the Council deems advisable;

(vii) requiring the books and records of persons engaged in the business of financing retail installment transactions to be subject to production for examination by the Commissioner.

(2) The Council is further authorized, in its discretion, to make, and the Commissioner enforce, such additional regulations as it deems necessary to insure that purchasers of motor vehicles under instruments of security are not being required, directly or indirectly, to pay finance, insurance, or other charges in excess of those authorized by this chapter or by the Council pursuant to the authority vested in it.

(3) In exercising their powers and authority under this subsection (e), the Council is authorized, in its discretion, to make reasonable classifications (i) according to the parties to retail installment transactions, or (ii) according to the parties to the instruments of security, or (iii) according to the parties involved in repossessions, or (iv) according to other bases, or (v) according to two or more of the foregoing clauses (i) through (iv), and to exercise such powers and authority under this subsection with respect to any one or more of any classifications so made or with respect to all of said classifications.

(f) No provision shall be inserted in any retail installment contract whereby the buyer waives or purports to waive any provision of this chapter, and any such waiver or purported waiver shall be void and of no effect. The Council is authorized in its discretion, by regulation (1) to prohibit the inclusion in any retail installment contract of any provision waiving or purporting to waive any provision of any regulation promulgated by the Council relating to retail installment transactions, and (2) to provide that any such waiver or purported waiver, shall be void and of no effect. (Apr. 22, 1960, 74 Stat. 69, Pub. L. 86-431, § 2.)

SHORT TITLE

Section 9 of Act Oct. 21, 1972, Pub. L. 92-519, provided: "This Act [enacting this chapter and amending § 40-609a] shall be known and may be cited as the 'District of Columbia Implied Consent Act'."

§ 40-1002. Implied consent to blood-alcohol content tests—Administration—Accidents.

(a) Any person, other than one described in subsection (b) of this section, who operates a motor vehicle within the District shall be deemed to have given his consent, subject to the provisions of this chapter, to two chemical tests of his blood, breath, or urine, whichever he may elect, for the purpose of determining blood-alcohol content. However, when the election of a particular test, such as a blood test requiring a physician or registered nurse, causes unreasonable delay or inconvenience, the arresting officer or other appropriate law enforcement officer shall elect which chemical test should be administered. In such a case, the operator can only object to a particular test on valid religious or medical grounds. The tests shall be administered at the direction of a police officer who, having arrested such person for a violation of law, has reasonable grounds to believe the person to have been driving or in actual physical control of a motor vehicle within the District while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

(b) Any person who operates a motor vehicle within the District of Columbia and who is involved in a motor vehicle collision or accident in which death or personal injury results shall submit, subject to the provisions of this chapter, to two chemical tests of his blood, breath, or urine, for the purpose of determining blood alcoholic content whenever a police officer (i) arrests such person for a violation of law, and (ii) has reasonable grounds to believe such person to have been driving or in actual physical control of a motor vehicle within the District while under the influence of an intoxicating liquor. However, when the election of a particular test, such as a blood test requiring a physician or registered nurse, causes unreasonable delay or inconvenience, the arresting officer or other appropriate law enforcement officer shall elect which chemical test should be administered. In such a case, the operator can only object to a particular test on valid religious or medical grounds. (Oct. 21, 1972, Pub. L. 92-519, § 2, 86 Stat. 1017.)

CROSS REFERENCE

SECTION REFERRED TO IN OTHER SECTIONS

This section is referred to in section 40-1005.

§ 40-1003. Blood tests—Physician or nurse to withdraw blood—Additional test by private physician.

Only a physician or registered nurse acting at the request of a police officer may withdraw blood for the purpose of determining the alcoholic content thereof. This limitation shall not apply to the taking of a breath or urine specimen. The person tested may, in addition to submitting to the two tests administered at the direction of a police officer, also submit to a chemical test or tests administered to him by a physician, registered nurse, or other person of his own choosing who is qualified to administer such test or tests. The failure or inability to obtain an additional test by a person shall not preclude the admission of the tests taken at the direction of a police officer. (Oct. 21, 1972, Pub. L. 92-519, § 3, 86 Stat. 1017.)

§ 40-1004. Test information—Availability.

Full information concerning the tests administered under this chapter shall be made available to the person from whom a specimen was obtained. Prior to administering the tests the police officer shall advise the operator of the motor vehicle about the requirements of this chapter. (Oct. 21, 1972, Pub. L. 92-519, § 4, 86 Stat. 1017.)

§ 40-1005. Test refusal—Penalty—Incapacitated person—Use of evidence.

(a) If a person under arrest refuses to submit to chemical testing as provided in section 40-1002(a) he shall be informed that failure to submit to such test will result in the revocation of his license. If such person, after having been so informed, still refuses to submit to chemical testing, no test shall be given, but the Commissioner, upon receipt of a sworn report of the police officer that he had reasonable grounds to believe the arrested person had been driving or was in actual physical control of a motor vehicle upon the public highways while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, and that the person had refused to submit to the two tests, shall revoke his license for a period of six months; or if the person is a resident without a license to operate a motor vehicle in the District, the Commissioner shall deny to the person the issuance of a license for a period of six months after the date of the alleged violation, subject to review as hereinafter provided.

(b) Any person who is unconscious, or who is otherwise in a condition rendering him incapable of refusal, shall be deemed not to have withdrawn the consent provided by section 40-1002 and the two tests may be given; except, that if such person thereafter objects to the use of the evidence so secured, such evidence shall not be used and the license of such person shall be revoked, or, if he is a resident without a license, no license shall be issued to him for a period of six months. (Oct. 21, 1972, Pub. L. 92-519, § 5, 86 Stat. 1018.)

§ 40-1006. License revocation or denial order—Hearing.

(a) Whenever any license has been revoked or denied under the provisions of this chapter, the reasons therefor shall be set forth in the order of revocation or denial, as the case may be. Such order shall take effect five days after service of notice on the person whose license is to be revoked or who is to be denied a license unless such person shall have filed within such period written application with the Commissioner for a hearing. Such hearing by the Commissioner shall cover the issues of—

(1) whether a police officer had reasonable grounds to believe such person had been driving or was in actual control of a motor vehicle upon the public street or highway while under the influence of intoxicating liquor; and

(2) whether such person, having been placed under arrest, refused to submit to the test or tests, after having been informed of the consequences of such refusal.

(b) If, following the hearing provided in subsection (a) of this section, the Commissioner shall sustain the order of revocation, the same shall become effective immediately. (Oct. 21, 1972, Pub. L. 92-519, § 6, 86 Stat. 1018.)

§ 40-1007. Judicial review.

Any person aggrieved by a final order of the Commissioner revoking his license or denying him a license under the authority of this chapter, may obtain a review thereof in accordance with section 1-1510. (Oct. 21, 1972, Pub. L. 92-519, § 7, 86 Stat. 1018.)
